Whether he dreamed it or whether he heard some little animal children singing it as they skipped rope or counted out for tag, Uncle Wiggily didn't know. But, all of a sudden, there popped into his head one day this queer little song. He found himself humming it as he skipped over the fields and through the woods. This was the song.

Fillisie, follisie, Nicholas Jan.
Queever, quaver,
English knaver,
See, saw Nan!"

"It's a silly sort of thing," chuckled Uncle Wiggily as he hopped along. "But how it keeps running through my head! I shouldn't wonder but what I might hum it in my sleep and then my wife would wake me up and ask me to sing it for her. I must try and forget it."

So he hopped along as fast as he could, but, all the while, the queer words seemed to hum themselves and, though he didn't want them to, Uncle Wiggily again found himself singing:

"Wunnery, twoery, ickery Ann,
Fillisie, follisie, Nicholas Jan.
Queever, quaver,
English knaver,
See, saw, Nan!"

"I really must stop it!" said Uncle Wiggily aloud, after he jumped over a stump, thinking that would give him something else to hum about. "I mustn't do it any more."

"Do what any more?" asked a voice and there stood Mr. Twistytail, the fat pig gentleman. "Are you going to stop jumping, Uncle Wiggily?"

"Oh, no," answered the rabbit gentleman with a smile. "It's just a silly, nonsensical song I must stop singing."

"What song is it?" asked the pig, who was very fond of music.

"It goes like this," answered the rabbit.

"Wunnery, twoery, ickery Ann,
Fillisie, follisie, Nicholas Jan.
Queever, quaver,
English knaver,
See, saw, Nan!"

"Ha! Ha!" grunted Mr. Twistytail. "That is a queer song. But, do you know it's, rather jolly! I think I shall sing it myself. I like it. How does it go. " "Fillisie, follisie, quaver quee——"

"No! No!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "It starts off, 'Wunnery, twoery, ickery Ann,' and then it goes—"

"Oh, now I have it!" cried Mr. Twistytail, and he sang the queer song all the way through. 'Ha! Ha!" he laughed. 'I'll go home and sing it for my wife. She's very fond of anything like that."

"Take it and welcome," said Uncle Wiggily. "I wish I could get it out of my head. I can't stop humming it,' and, before he knew it, as he hopped away from Mr. Twistytail, Uncle Wiggily was again singing the funny song to himself, though he didn't in the least want to. "I really must forget it!" he said aloud.

"Forget what?" suddenly asked a voice and Uncle Wiggily thinking it was Mr. Twistytail coming back to ask if there was a second verse, didn't run away as he should have done. For there stood the Fuzzy Fox. "What are you trying to forget?" growled the Fox.

"Oh, it's just a silly song," said the rabbit.

"Sing it for me!" ordered the Fox. So Uncle Wiggily sang:

"Wunnery, twoery, ickery Ann,
Fillisie, follisie, Nicholas Jan.
Queever, quaver,
English knaver,
See, saw, Ann!"

"How very odd!" barked the Fox, forgetting for a moment that he meant to eat Uncle Wiggily. "I should like to learn that. You must teach it to me. How does it go? Let me try: "Knavery, noovery, dickery dock—"

"Don't tell me!" snapped the Fox. "I want to do it myself. Annerie ooerie, jiggery Jack—"

"Worse and worse!" exclaimed the rabbit. "It goes!"

"Stop!" cried the Fox. "Let me try once more. Jibbery, jabbery, hickory stick—"

"Wrong! Wrong!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "It starts 'Wunnery, twoery—"

"Nothing of the sort!" shouted the Fox. "I guess I know. It begins with Snickery, snackery—" and then he became so angry because he couldn't remember that he began to turn around to bite his own tail and Uncle Wiggily thought it time for him to run home, which he did.

And when the bunny reached his bungalow he had forgotten all about the silly song and he was glad.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

OUR SCHOOL

My father has his office and
His business, and all that;
My mother keeps with busy hand
The house that we live at;
My brother has his work to do,
His shop and shining tool;
And we have something dandy, too—
We fellows have our school.

At nine o'clock the schoolbell rings,
It used to make me mad;
It's all the way you look at things
(I got that from my dad).
But now it's music to my ear,
That schoolbell, as a rule;
I'm rather glad, when morning's here,
We fellows have our school.

My father has his friends to lunch,
My mother has her teas,
But, say, we have a better bunch
Than either one of these.
The boy who doesn't like to go
I think's an awful fool;
Big people have their clubs, I know—
We fellows have our school.

WHY NOT A DIFFERENT PLACE THIS SUMMER?

Spend Your Holidays On Georgian Bay

There are many more than 30,000 Islands in Georgian Bay—and they seem to be all over the map and no two are alike.

You can spend a great holiday in this district. There are hotels and boarding houses on the larger islands—their rates are reasonable—plenty of real outdoor fun—tennis, swimming, sailing and canoeing. Bass fishing is the real sport up here, though, and maskinonge are frequently taken. Anglers come back year after year.

Get the descriptive booklet "30,000 Islands of the Georgian Bay." Any agent of the Canadian National Railways will gladly supply it.

Liverpool Quotations Affect Chicago Market

CHICAGO, Ills., May 21. (C.P.) — With Liverpool quotations on wheat showing less firmness than expected, wheat prices here averaged lower early to-day. A decided downturn in the value of corn owing to better weather for planting operated also to ease wheat. Opening at 3-8c off to 1-8c up, Chicago wheat later tended to sag but with December delivery showing comparative strength. Corn started unchanged to 3-8c down and subsequently underwent a general set back. Oats likewise inclined downwards. Provisions held steady.

OIL SECTION ALSO DECLINES

Home Oil and Mayland Among Issues To Take Downward Trend On Standard.

NEWBEC LEADS TRADING.

TORONTO, Ont., May 21.—(Canadian Press).—Liquidation in the high-priced mining stocks and the oil stocks generally resulted in heavy declines in the more active stocks on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day. Home Oil sustained the heaviest loss, tumbling to a low of 20.00 with the noon price of 20.25, showing a net loss of 2.20.

Mayland followed with 1.25 loss at 10.25, while Noranda dipped 95 cents to 50.00. Sudbury aBsin at 8.55, Sherritt-Gordon at 7.60, Teck-Hughes at 8.75, Baltac at 2.10, Dalhousies at 4.85 and Premier at 1.65, were all off 25 cents. Lake Shore dropped back to 25.00, off 60 cents, and Falconbridge broke to 13.25, the morning's low a loss of 80 cents.

Newbec again accounted for a goodly part of the total sales and after getting down to 59 held at *1, off 3¾ points. Ajax was a point lower at 60.

NEWS FROM THE MINES

Solloway, Mills & Company Through

NORANDA.

Top of first bay of No. 2 reverberatory furnace which fell in now repaired, and copper poured Sunday. Rear end of furnace kept warm during couple of days it took to repair.. Exceedingly fast time was made in putting on new roof. Coal-bin head of pulverizer caught fire and coal was gradually drawn off, as if too much air was let in another explosion similar to the one last fall would take place. All danger now over.

NORANDA CONCENTRATOR.

Putting through about 300 tons per day and running successfully. Amount of copper lost in tailings reduced to negligible quantities and will be still further reduced.

PATTERSON COPPER.

Shaft down to 500 feet and station cut at that level. Cross-cutting to start immediately for downward extension of vein where an upper level a short shoot of copper was encountered. On account of faulting it is impossible to estimate how far drive will have to go.

GOLD HILL.

Getting good results west drift on 1,100 level. Said to have 30 feet of good grade ore. Vein rather narrow but stated to be of commercial grade over stoping width.

AMITY.

Fault occurred which threw vein off for 25 feet. Good ore again encountered when vein was picked up other side of fault.

NORANDA.

Smelter at Noranda again operating after three day shut down and poured copper on Sunday.

NEWBEC.

TWO COAST SMELTERS.

Advices from Vancouver to effect that British Metals will proceed with Ladysmith Smelter plans for Vancouver Island despite plan of Consolidated Smelters to erect similar plant. Pacific Tidewater, subsidiary British Metals, has secured important Gabbro group on Vancouver Island.

TORIC.

Toric Mines, Alice Arm, B.C., will be taken over and operated by Britannia Mining and Smelting. Small mill on property but operations to date have not proven profitable.

REEVES—McDONALD.

Another good strike of zinc ore reported on Reeves McDonald, in which Pend Oreille holds substantial interest. This undoubtedly explains Pend Oreille's strength in coast markets Saturday. There are now 2,000,000 tons ore blocked out on this property.

BOSTON CREEK SMELTER.

Smelters Corporation of Canada being incoroprated to erect smelter at Boston Creek on T. & N. O. Railway.. This will serve Amity Copper, only producer of base metals in area.. There is great activity going on in this section and many new properties have been taken up recently. Among latest entrants are said to be Ventures, the Lindsley organization.

AMITY COPPER.

Smelter for Boston Creek as planned means much to Amity Copper. Mine is now in shape that concentrator is justified. Company has been shipping good grade ore to Noranda smelter but with smelter located near mine, company's costs would be materially reduced as freight rate to Noranda is quite high.

TORONTO LIST HOLDS STEADY

PAGE HERSEY ADVANCES.

TORONTO, Ont., May 21 (Canadian Press).—Though practically all the more prominent stocks gave evidence of further weakness, the main list on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, held up fairly well, and showed only fractional declines. Trading was very backward, with International Nickel providing the main part, and selling ¾ points lower to 49¼. Ford Motor hit a low of 51, while the noon-price of 52 indicated a net loss of two points. Some stocks, such as Canadian Oil, Distillers Seagrams, Canada Malting and British American Oil, started off lower but recovered towards noon to remain unchanged. Gypsum and Alabastine, City Dairy, Maple Leaf, Ontario Equitable Life and Home Oil all recorded single point declines. Service stations came out at 69½, and then dipped to 68, off 1¾ points.

Page Hersey was an exception, a few shares selling 1½ points higher at 129½.

COMMENT ON THE MARKET

A Special Service to The Examiner.

Variety of Opinions on Dominion Glass

One official says: "Nothing whatever to the rumors of a possible split up or likelihood of the company being sold. The only place I have heard this is in market circles."

Another official, when asked about the situation, said: "About the only thing I can see around is the possibility of a further stock issue, and judging from recent developments rights are not very popular in the market at the present time, so such action could hardly be construed as a bull factor for the stock."

Another interest close to the situation says with emphasis: "Keep right on buying Dominion Glass, because its right on its way to 400. Don't let anybody put you off buying it. Just look at the steady accumulation around 175 to 180, and you can see there is something in the wind. The buying was of the best character and people do not purchase a high-priced stock unless they know what they are about. Whether a deal is worked out in a week or a month the stock is bound to sell at almost double its present price. So the worth you should do is get a little of it and if you can afford it, take on as much as you can pick up."

New Power Development Expected to Help Montreal Power

The opinion held by leading banking interests is that any development in the power field around Montreal is practically certain to help Montreal Light, Heat and Power consolidated, rather than interfere with it in any way. The view taken is that just as was the case with Montreal Island Power, a contract is likely to be made with Montreal Power to take a big block of power from the Beauharnois development in order that Montreal Power may have it available for its extensive system of distribution throughout the Island of Montreal.

If the Beauharnois Light and Power undertaking is carried through to a successful conclusion, it is felt that it will be mutually advantageous for both the new and old power companies to make a deal for a big block of power. Such a contract would be particularly profitable to the Beauharnois company and would make unnecessary the installation of the extensive transmission system that would make unnecessary the installation of the extensive transmission system that would be entailed if the company were bringing the power in on its own account to various parts of the island. Montreal Power is looked upon as being in an advantageous position to take on any additional power and to give customers on the island full benefit of the savings that can be effected through its being able to secure large amounts of power for distribution.

Beauharnois interests seem to be devoting their attention more particularly to plans for furnishing large amounts of power to big industries. It is understood that negotations now under way in this direction will mean that four or five new undertakings will require upwards of three-fourths of the total amount of power that will be developed from the initial installation.

BRITISH SAILORS WILL DEFEND CITY

CANTON, China, May 21 (C.P.).—British sailors landing from gunboats in the harbor to-day in Shameen quarter immediately began construction of defenses in various parts of the English concession. Gates and bridges were closed and guards posted.

In the native city the utmost tenseness prevailed with attacking Kwangsi troops known to be not far away, although there was no definite word as to their position. Ransacking of the city, the largest of Southern China, was feared in the event of capture by the Red Kwangsi elements, which was believed imminent.

PROSPECT OF HIGHER RATES FELT ON CURB

Issues Decline Despite Efforts of Pools To Bring About General Rally. .

CALL MONEY SCARCE.

Industrials and Public Utilities Decline Under Further Selling Pressure.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 21. — (Canadian Press).—The cloud of higher money rates hung over the stock market again to-day and prices generally lost ground despite the sporadic efforts of pools to bring about a general rally. Rails displayed a fairly firm undertone in reflection of the favorable St. Louis and O'Fallon decision but the industrials and public utilities encountered further selling pressure.

Call money renewed at 7 per cent but the supply of funds available at that figure was scarce, and the rate is expected to work higher. Time money continues firm around the highest levels in years. In view of the expected stringency around the end of the month, several brokerage houses have been advising their customers to lighten long commitments and reduce margins, which probable accounts for much of the selling in the last few days.

NEW PAVILION AT LAKEFIELD

ROBERTS' MELODY MEN.

The village of Lakefield, at the entrance to the Kawartha Lakes, has been selected as the ideal location for Peterborough's newest and most modern dancing pavilion. The name for the new summer playhouse is "Melody Inn" and work has been proceeding on it for some weeks..

Decorators have completed their work, which will be found by those visiting to be an attractive scheme of interior decorating in gay colors of red, green and yellow, intermingled here and there by softer tones.

"Melody Inn" will be somewhat different from the ordinary run of dancing pavilions, in that it is fashioned after the newest and most up-to-date Inns through the country. The pleasure-loving public will also find here a combiantion that has long been sought after, as it is possible to dine as well as dance. Smart, attentive waiters will courteously look after the wants of those visiting "Melody Inn."

The dancing floor will be fashioned after the modern plaza, now so popular in the larger hotels in the country and the "piece re reesistance" will be Rick Roberts, well known musician and orchestra leader, together with his Melody Men.

Lakefield has all the natural attractions for such a novel playhouse with its wonderful location, overlooking Katchiwana Lake and surrounded as it is by tall shadowy pines.

FARM WORK IS WELL ADVANCED

LOW LANDS UNWORKABLE.

GUELPH, Ont., May 21.—(Canadian Press).—Farming conditions in Wellington county are fairly well advanced except on the low lying lands, which are still flooded because of recent heavy rains. Throughout portions of Guelph township many of the farmers have completed their spring work with seeding all done. The root farmers who specialize in turnips and potatoes report good progress but in other townships much of the heavy land is still unworkable. While there are many complaining of the backwardness of the season there is a feeling of hopefulness that weather conditions from now on will permit of seeding being completed at an early date.

Financial News and Briefs

A Special Service to the Examiner

B. C. Packers' Meeting Approved Capital Changes.

Shareholders of British Columbia Packers Limited approved the by-law paving the way for the issuing of preferred stock in exchange for the preferred shares of Gosse Packing and B.C. Fishing at a special general meeting here yesterday.

One shareholder present was anxious to know where the money was to come from to pay the dividend, and President Aemilius Jarvis pointed out the financial statement showed as surplus of $695.00, and it was proposed to pay the dividend out of this. Mr. Jarvis pointed out products were more diversified through the consolidation and that the larger fishing season spread earnings over many months instead of at one period of the year, as in the past. Another shareholder stated he did not think the offer to purchase one share of common at $20 compensated preferred shareholders for their loss of arrears of dividend, but it was pointed out that it was an option granted to shareholders to purchase one share good until November 1, and the chairman felt assured that when this time came the stockholders would be glad to exercise their rights.

At the annual meeting the financial statement was approved and the board of directors re-elected without change. An amendment asking the directors to prepare a report of the three separate companies was moved, but when the president stated the meeting was that of B.C. Packers only, and that meetings of the other companies would be held at a later date, giving all details, the amendment was withdrawn.

Kootenay Landing and Procter Railway Line Construction to Start At Once

Vancouver.—Work will start immediately on the 35 mile link, according to official word received last night from Winnipeg. According to an announcement by D. C. Coleman, vice-president of western lines for the Canadian Pacific railway, the contracting firm of Dutton and Grant of Winnipeg were the successful bidders. No announcement has been made as to the contract price.

The Kootenay Landing-Procter line is considered one of the most important of the various lines to be built. This line when completed will give an all-rail southern route for the C.P.R. to the Pacific coast.

The line, a connecting, link, was made necessary by the growth of the traffic and will do away with the necessity of using boats between Kootenay Landing and Nelson," says the official announcement from Winnipeg.

Construction work along Kootenay lake will be one of the most difficult since early railroad construction days in the west. The line following the lakeshore and level will be built almost in sheer rock.

So difficult will be the construction that two tunnels will be built in this 35-mile stretch. The smaller one will measure about 400 feet and the larger one 100 feet.

Kootenay Lake at Kootenay Landing will be crossed by a bridge. This planned structure with the approaches will be 3,500 feet in length

At present the link is connected by steamer, a palatial four decker, the Nasookin, being used to carry passengers to and from Nelson and Kootenay Landing. The freight traffic over the route which is heavy is handled by tugs and steel barges, the cars being ferried from Kootenay Landing to Proctor.

RUM RUNNER FAST ON ROCKS

Boat Is Within Quarter of a Mile of American Cataract.

TWO MEN SAFE.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., May 21 (C.P.).—A cabin cruiser believed to be loaded with liquor, is fast on the rocks in the rapids of the Niagara river less than a quarter of a mile from the brink of the American cataract to-day. United States coastguardsmen at Fort Niagara have been asked by customs authorities to attempt to pull the boat off the rocks.

Two men aboard the boat are reported to have reached shore in safety by clinging to an iron pipe protruding into the river and wading and swimming through the rapids. Edward Grey, Niagara State reservation patrolman, said he learned the anchor dragged when the craft was anchored off Port Day at the head of the Niagara Falls Power Company's canal just above the rapids last midnight, and was carried down into the rapids.

TWO AVIATORS ARE REMANDED

Men Who Said They Came From Peterborough Appear in Court.

RELEASED ON BAIL.

SWEETSBURG, Que., May 21 (Canadian Press).—No light was thrown on the mystery surrounding the appearance of an airplane with the partly obliterated marking "Haviland U.S. Mail 429, capacity 27.5 cubic feet" at the Granby, Que., airfield last Saturday when the two fliers, who gave their names as E. G. Westlake and E. J. Brown, appeared before Magistrate Lemay in court here to-day on charges of having entered Canada without clearance papers and breaking a customs seal. Albert Sauvage, Granby Attorney, asked for a fifteen-day adjournment of the case on behalf of the men. This was granted and Westlake and Brown were released on the payment of $500 bail each.

Landed Last Saturday.

The plane landed on the Granby airfield last Saturday. Not being able to give a satisfactory account of themselves, the fliers were requested to remain in Granby and the machine was locked by customs officers. Later the locks were broken and the fliers left the field, only to be forced to land at Eastray, Que., not far from Granby. They were brought back to Granby and detained until they came before the Magistrate to-day.

The two fliers told officials here that they came from the vicinity of Albany, N.Y., on Saturday they said they were from Peterborough, Ont., and also New York City.

The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways for the week ending May 4th, 1929, were $4,958,080, as compared with $4,769,421 for the corresponding period of 1928, an increase of $188,659, or four per cent.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

Comparison of Used Cars To Stocks and Bonds

Dealer Gives Some Comparative Information On a Very Live Subject.

DEALER COMPARES THE USED CAR TO STOCKS AND BONDS

The man who buys stocks and bonds is usually willing to accept the quotation on the ticker tape, the quotation board and the newspapers as evidence of market value. So does the man who sells them

The published quotation governs—and the customer gets the "market price"—no more and no less—regardless of whether he is buying or selling. He cannot claim $90 a share for stock when the quotation on the board is $90, nor would he take $80 if the quotation were $90.

In other words, the transaction is strictly a business one, made on the basis of quoted value.

Used car values should likewise be gauged by a certain definite standard, and I believe automobile dealers will go a long way towards solving the so-called "used car problem" when they are governed by a uniform method of quoting used car values.

The owner of the used car, like the owner of stocks, is the seller. Consequently he does not wish, nor should he be expected, to accept less for his car than it is worth—the quoted price. The dealer on the other hand, is the buyer, and should not be expected to pay more than that used car is worth.

The man who owns stocks may feel that they are worth more than the market quotation. But once he puts them up for sale, he accepts the market price.

There is only one standard I know of for valuing used cars, and that is the National Used Car Market Reports. We depend upon the large Blue Book in our offices and equip our salesmen with the pocket edition Red Books. Then, when they call upon a prospect and get into the question of used car prices, they quote national values for the particular make of car the prospect wishes to exchange.

The data contained in these official reports, we find, place us in the desired position of knowing what we are talking about. Our salesmen of course, do not make appraisals. These must be made at our store, and, in the final analysis, must be arrived at after a thorough inspection of the car, with due consideration given to its appearance, mechanical condition, tires and other points. The allowance made to the prospect may be higher or lower than the national figure given in the Red Book. It all depends upon how the car measures up on the points mentioned.

In addition to being able to show the customer the national value on his used car, the salesman can, with the serial numbers and other identification data, accurately determine the age, year and model. He can also tell the customer not only the price of his car when new but the present day trade-in value. He can further show the important improvements in the current models offered for less money than the original cost of the car the prospect is driving.

The prospect's mind is always centered on the depreciation of his old car, and it is especially important that dealers and salesmen stress the value represented in the new car of to-day—its changes and improvements in style, comfort, appointments, mechanical design, performance and quality.

Dealer, salesman and owner can best handle the matter of a used car trade-in by getting together on a definite standard of value.

Poland's population is now slightly more than 30,000,000.

GIRLS UNDER MEDICAL CARE

Doris Cowan and Dohma Roberts Will Be Allowed to Return Home Next Week.

EVERY PRECAUION TAKEN.

The two Peterborough nurses, Doris Cowan and Dohma Roberts, who miraculously escaped death in the Cleveland Clinic Hospital disaster were expected to arrive home yesterday. Word has been received from Cleveland that the two girls will be kept under medical attention for a few days longer. They will likely be allowed to return to their homes here early next week.

Every precaution is being taken to safeguard the weakened state of health of those who escaped through the deadly fumes. Many of those who did make their way from the building felt that they were unharmed but died suddenly some hours later. This has caused rigid care to be taken to ascertain that all have recovered from their harrowing experience before leaving.

AUTOMOBILES COLLIDE.

Two Cars Are Damaged About Fenders On George Street.

A collision between two cars on George street, south of Charlotte street, resulted when A. W. Davidson drove his car out from the curb where it had been parked. Robert Goodfellow was driving south on George street and he swung out to the centre to avoid Davidson's car. Goodfellow's car hit that of J. P. Halcrow, woh was proceeding north. Both cars were damaged along the fenders and Goodfellow's steering was broken.

REACH AGREEMENT

PARIS, May 21—(Canadian Press) The allied reparations experts have reached a full agreement on the text of a letter to be sent to Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the German delegation, in which they set forth which of the German reservations they have accepted, having revamped some of them, and also presenting some allied reservations.

This letter will be delivered to Dr. Schacht to-morrow.

ALL POINTS ARE NOTICED

Twenty-five Per Cent. Will Be Allowed For Accuracy at Choir Concert.

50 FOR INTERPRETATION.

The record of adjudicators in any competition is interesting—the weak and strong points of a performance are all noted, to be handed to the judged individual or body of individuals. From these "pointers" and the marks allowed, competitors know their standing, to be of use when entering competitive ranks again.

Of adjudication records, none are more important than those pertaining to the study of the vocal art—a soloist or a choir can be made or "crashed" by the percentages given by the judges.

Regarding the award of marks by the adjudicators in the Federated Glee Clubs of American contest at Madison Square Garden, New York, on Saturday, in which Peterborough Male Voice Choir has entered in Class B, the following formula of the judges' decision, will be of interest to the many friends of the choir.

Contestant number—4.

Accuracy—Value 25 per Cent.
Correctness of Pitch and Rhythm.
Unanimity of Attack and Release.
Correctness of Notes and Words.
Consistency in Following Leaders' Direction.

Quality—Value 25 per cent.
Beauty of Tone.
Dynamic Effects.
Enunciation.

Interpretation and General Effect — Value 50 per cent.
Tempo and Phrasing.
Expression and Nuance.
Spontaniety.
Legitimate Individuality.

From the above divisions, one can readily notice how difficult it will be for any choir to "slide through" — every movement, carriage expression and action, is noted and the marks are given on complete merit.

GENERAL PROGRAM FINALLY ARRANGED

Plans Rapidly Going Forward For Campbellford Old Home Week.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 21 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Arrangements took on a definite shape at the meeting of the executive of the Old Home Week Association, held in the council chamber last night at eight o'clock. There were twelve members present and the business of the moment was transacted with despatch. The general program was finally arranged, and will be adhered to in making the more detailed arrangements. The chairmen of several of the committees brought in a favorable report of their activities, and the invitations appeared to be receiving warm welcomes in various parts of the continent. Some of the replies were read.

After the doings of the previous executive meeting had been read and accepted as correct, G. A. Kingston, the general chairman, asked for any communications. There was a letter from J. J. Turner, Peterborough, re decorations for the streets and it was handed to the decoration committee. Another was from the Badge and Specialty Company of Montreal. It also was placed in the hands of a committee.

Committees Report

S. H. Neale, treasurer of the association, reported that he had received a number of membership fees from former residents. The names of the recent replies were read. The same treatment was meted out to several of the letters. Those read were from Old Boys and Girls in Bowmanville, Kingston, Galveston, Texas; Brighton, Newcastle, and Muskoka. These were the last to be received. An interesting piece of information came out when it stated that the first membership in the Old Boys' Association had been purchased by Mr. Chapmen, representative of the Masco Electric Company. He is not a former resident, but was thoroughly enthused with the idea and handed over a one-dollar bill before the matter was finally settled. N. A. McCall's account for postage was paid.

Invitations had been sent out replies received from many, MacCall reported. A. T. Linton said he had discussed the matter of parades with H. N. Carr, and he would report later. J. C. Birmingham said he had heard of portable "knock down" dancing floors in Belleville and Stirling, but had been unable to secure the use of either of them. His committee would meet again next week and make further arrangements. Dr. Watson had been ill and had nothing further to report than what his sub-chairman, J. A. Irwin, had submitted at the last meeting. H. W. Lapp could do nothing about his programs till he knew what each committee was going to do and when. This brought the discussion to the historical publication of the town and township, which is being left in the hands of the local printers. Apparently the book has not yet progressed very far since the discussion was of an indefinite nature as to size, contents, price, selling rights and other details.

A member of the executve mentioned the fact that he had been approached for permission to hold a tag day during Old Home Week. He did not mention what organization had asked this privilege, but it is certain that no tag days will be allowed. The suggestion brought a unanimous "NO" from the executive. The next step was to take precautions against any unauthorized tagging. H. N. Carr said that tentative arrangements for the parades had been made and when he knew how much money he would have at his disposal, he and his committee would be able to make complete arrangements.

The Present Program

It is expected that there will be several minor changes in the present arrangements, but the general outline will be followed: Monday's plans have not yet been made. Tuesday, July 30 there will be a parade at 1.30 in the afternoon, followed by field sports and a lacrosse game. At night there will be a water carnival. Wednesday is to be a Neighboring Towns' Day, with horse races and hardball tournaments and the water carnival at night. Thursday will be regatta day with possibly a marathon race added. The last of the water carnivals will be held in the evening. Friday morning is School Day for the Old Boys and Girls. In the afternoon there is to be a calithumpian parade and marathon swim, with a boxing tournament in the evening.

Dancing is to be the order every day, both square and round, and the final session is at present, planned for a mammoth street dance. There will be numerous minor attractions and during the entire week, the Maple Leaf Shows will have their concessions and midway attractions in town at various locations.

CAMPBELLFORD MAN ATTEMPTED RESCUE

Melville Petherick One of Men Who Plunged Into Icy Waters of Trent River.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 21 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Practically every account of the double drowning tragedy that was told to The Examiner brought in the fact that there were two men who swam out in the cold water in an attempt to locate the bodies of the two small boys, Geyle Scott and Dennis Wragg, who had upset out of a canoe into the waters of Trout Creek. R. W. Raynor, Toronto, who was driving south on Grand Road when he stopped in answer to Mrs. Scott's call for help, said that a second man had gone into the water and he believed he was a local man. Questioned as to this man's identity, he ventured a name. But the name was wrong. Another, however, was forthcoming, and it was wrong. The search seemed hopeless. People who had lived in town for many years, said there had been two men, one they believed to be a traveller. Various other names were suggested for the second. None of them were right, until one of the doctors said he believed the man was a truck driver. This narrowed the field of investigation considerably, and the truck driver was located.

Melville Petherick, who drives a truck for A. C. Connor and Sons, was the local man who plunged into the icy water and aided in the search for the bodies. The Examiner found him enjoying a neighborly conversation with a man who lives near the office of the firm and asked him about the affair. Very modestly, he related how he "Didn't do much." Whether or not it was much or little, he did all that he was able. He dove where they said the bodies had been seen, felt around there for a while, then swam out to the raft with Raynor. They searched around it for a while, then came back to shore. Both men came out and got into their clothes as other help arrived. "I couldn't do much," Petherick said. "The water made me numb. If I had only dived from the north wall instead of the south, I would have found them. But I wasn't much good in the cold water." This was his modest way of ending the interview. Told of how his identity had been such a mystery, he smiled and said that he had gone home to get on dry clothes as soon as he got out. When he returned, the bodies had been recovered, so he went on about his work since there was nothing more that he could do.

The morning after the trouble begins. A down-and-out stranger arrives whom he has invited the night before to pay him a visit. He tells startling stories to the wife. The son is confronted by a girl who supposed that she had become engaged to him three years previously. The complications that arise are uproariously funny.

LONDON, May 21 (Canadian Press).—It is understood that Sunday, June 16, has been selected as the date that King George will appoint as a day of thanksgiving for his recovery from his recent grave illness.

WELL SELECTED PROGRAM GIVEN AT SONG RECITAL

Miss Daisy Davidson Provides Most Pleasing Event at Conservatory.

MISS HARSTONE ASSISTS.

Singer Had Pleasing Stage Presence and Clear,

(By Jeanette).

The song recital given by Miss Daisy Davidson last evening in the hall of the Conservatory of Music was a very pleasing event. There was a large attendance of music-lovers, who applauded heartily the various numbers on a program of well-selected numbers of interesting type. Assisting Miss Davidson, who is a pupil of Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, was Miss Mary Harstone, pianist, pupil of Mrs. Pearl Burford Curtis, playing an attractive program of pianoforte selections.

Miss Davidson, who wore a lovely gown of white taffeta and white net, the skirt made in bouffant style with tiers of net over a foundation of taffeta, has a pleasing stage presence and a clear, sweet, attractive soprano voice that is used very effectively. She has the ability, just a little extraordinary in a youthful singer, of presenting songs written in a foreign language in such a manner that the full beauty and meaning of the selection is apparent. One of the loveliest things on the vocal program was Liszt's "O! Quand je Dors," a bit of mild, lyrical beauty sung in the half voice, in French, and descriptive of the passion of the poet Petrarch for Laura.

Receive General Appreciation.

Two other selections, one in German and the other in Italian, received a generous meed of appreciation for their expressive rendition. These were Schumann's song of resignation, "Ich Grolle Nicht," in which Miss Davidson's breadth of middle register was apparent in the sweet softness of the lower voice, and the impassioned cry of the tortured Tosca, in "Vissi d'Arte."

The opening numbers were a recitative and aria from Handel's difficult composition, "Aye, be it So," and "Mighty Love Now Calls to Arm." These were followed by a delicately-phrased selection entitled "On Wings of Song," by Mendelssohn, and a beautiful rendition of some of Wagner's music, in "Elizabeth's Prayer," from the opera "Tannhauser." This was an expressive, dramatic, powerful number in which Miss Davidson showed great skill in the presentation of the cry of the heartbroken maiden for release from love for the sinful Tannhauser, who has become chained to sensuality.

A brief bit of Bishop's dainty music was the final number in this opening quartette of song. "Bid Me Discourse" illustrates the eighteenth century flair among British composers for melody of a bright, light, portamento fashion, with flowing, soft cadences.

The final group of songs brought four numbers eminently suited to the sweet, clear, fine calibre of the singer's voice. They were dainty compositions, with a captivating bit of elfin fantasy in the exquisite "Fairy Pipers," in which the merry sprites dance to light, staccato melody, "Underneath a fairy moon."

Del Riego's "Happy Song" had a rendition that suited its title admirably, and was followed by the capricious daintiness of the "Piper of Dreams," and the delicate, high-pitched vernal music of "A May Morning." As an encore to repeated applause, Miss Davidson sang the lovely "Nightingale's Song."

Miss Harstone's piano numbers proved a very pleasing addition to the program. Playing with an expert technical finish, a smooth, rounded tone and an expressive, clear-cut etching of the melodic background of the compositions, Miss Harstone's skill is equal to the demands of the most exacting of numbers.

Flowing, Brilliant Type.

Her music last evening was mainly of a flowing, brilliant type. "Etincelles" was just like its name, a thing of "sparkles" that illustrated Moszkowski's flair for change and temperamental tempo. It was a difficult bit of fantastic composition with a broken, halting rhythm.

The first number in the opening group was a graceful thing of glimmering atmosphere, in MacDowell's "Praeludium," with deeply accented, isolated bass chords against a tapestry of unceasing, rippling treble music. Another number was Gluck's Melody from the second ballet in "Orpheus."

The second group of piano numbers opened with Staub's "Sous Bois," an attractive thing of descriptive type, picturing the rippling streams and cheerful bird life of the forest. Lucas' "Moon of Omar" followed, and Weber's "Rondo Brillante," with its bright, soft, pauseless music, the notes etched in swift progression and with vivacious, smooth tempo.

Accompaniments for Miss Davidson's songs were played by Miss Gwen Mary Donley with proficiency and skill.

Miss Davidson received a large number of bouquets of beautiful flowers, while Miss Harstone and Miss Donley were also accorded some lovely floral tributes.

SECONDARY SCHOOL COURSES OUTLINED

he enumerated a great many to illustrate the openings for a commercial students. Then Mr. Jamieson quoted figures showing that for most professions it cost at least $5,000, while a business course would cost only about $25 to $50 if the student were living at home. There are not too many in the course, said Mr. Jamieson. It seemed as if there were a few years ago, but of the three graduating classes last year there are only about six who did not receive positions.

There are three courses in the commercial department. The general commercial course, taking three years which includes all the different branches of business a three year course in accountancy and secretarial course for the same period for private secretary and stenographer positions. Then there are the special two-year courses for those who cannot afford the three year course and a special one year course for those who have had at least two successful years of academic work.

General courses are taught as well as the commercial work, assuring an all around education. The commercial department here is unique in that of the staff of seven teachers, each one is a specialist in his line. This is not required by law, but is an example of the quality of the school.

Academic School

Mr. Pettit spoke nevt for the academic school. "For many years," said Mr. Pettit, "the teachers in the Peterborough High school were handicapped as they attempted to put all their pupils into one course, but today we have three: the academic, the commercial, and the technical. It is the duty of every parent to find out where his child belongs. There are three parts to the academic course: The public school teacher's course, requiring four years collegiate, one year Normal, teaching for three years, and a further Normal course for a first class certificate. Five years in high school is the regular route for the first class certificate. This term of years is also required for entrance in the colleges now with the exception of the faculties of pharmacy and law; here only four years or junior matriculation is necessary. The boys and girls in the first two years are encouraged to take the teacher's course until they decide what they want. Then there is a general academic course which can be taken and the choice of subjects may be modified with the consent of the principal. It was figured the expense of a boy at collegiate was $300 and at college was $700 a year, and from these bases Mr. Pettit gave the cost of training for numerous professions.

Vocational Department

Mr. Moon, speaking for the vocational department, laid a background for his explanations as the department was new and would be more easily understood if such a plan were followed. When a pupil goes to the principal's office, it is necessary for him to make a choice if he desires to follow the vocational or academic line. Assuming he chose vocational, he must then make a further choice; if he wishes to choose the commercial department, the household arts or the industrial department. The work in the industrial department consists of several subjects ,half of which are general and the other half practical. Only when a pupil has worked in such courses as drafting, electricity, woodworking can he tell what he wants, and in his second year he is allowed to specialize. The vocational school has to keep pace with industry, and soon some allowance will be made in industry by firms to the graduates of such schools whose courses in Peterborough are approved of by the largest firm in the city.

Household Arts

The last phase to be covered was the household arts. Miss Kendall, of the department, explained that it was a course for girls, and similar in the nature of the industrial course, because half of the course was in general work while the other half was specialized in cooking, sewing, budgeting, etc. It is a course that is necessary because nearly all girls will have a home to direct, and while experience is a good teacher, it is very expensive. Cooking is taught by the meal plan, where the meals are actually prepared, and here the girl learns the food values and is able to choose the proper foods. By home management, girls learn how to use money to the best advantage, by budgeting, they learn to plan ahead. The 'teen age girls should assume home responsibility. The vocational course to-day opens the doors to many positions such as dieticians, research workers, demonstrators, and the field has just been opened with good remuneration that will be better.

Miss Jarrett, the last speaker, spoke on sewing only. She explained that the girl retained knowledge of this longer than other subjects and it was as good a brain developer as arithmetic. Attractive dressers can do it cheaply, homes are made more attractive, a means of amusing oneself, leads to other interests as millinery, and opens the door to many positions, all of which require the knowledge of how to pick clothes, acquired through a study of sewing were sufficient reasons for this important course. At the close of the lecture a number of samples of the sewing of the students was displayed, each one being marked with the problems involved in its making.

Mrs. Kate Morris of the Peterborough School Board, summed up what the previous speakers had said and heartily endorsed the meeting.

CONSERVATIVE PARTY PLACES 596 IN CONTEST

will have to give serious attention to his Labor opponent, Herbert Elvin, secretary of the National Union of Clerks, for the Socialist organization is very strong in Spen Valley.

One nomination paper on behalf of Elvin was signed by members of a well-known Anglo-Catholic training community of Mirfield, Yorkshire, of which the present Bishop of Truro, Right Rev. Walter Frede, was Superior at one time.

On Non-Stop Train.

One of the exciting incidents of the nominations yesterday was the experience of Lt.-Col. J. G. Thom, Conservative candidate in Dumbarton, Scotland He and his supporters found themselves on a non-stop train which travelled right past the nominations headquarters. The train was stopped before it got too far away, however, and after crossing two miles of fields they arrived in time.

H. P. Winfrey, the Liberal candidate in Wellingborough, had a narrow escape. His automobile broke down on the way and he arrived just two minutes before the close of the nominations.

CLAIMS $800 FOR SERVICES

Luella May Wagar Suing Estate of Henry Norman Payne.

IN SURROGATE COURT.

A claim for $800.00 is being heard before Judge O'Connor in Surrogate Court at the Court House to-day. Luella Mae Wagar is claiming $800 from the estate of Henry Norman Payne as wages for housekeeping services rendered to the deceased from May, 1920, over a period of years.

O. A. Langley is appearing for the executors of the estate, the defendants, and J. E. Stevenson as official guardian of infants. A. L. Elliot is appearing for the plaintiff, Mrs. Wagar.

In her evidence, Mrs. Wagar stated that she had been housekeeper for Norman Payne at his house, 237½ Princess Street, from June, 1920, until the time of his death, February 20, 1926. By a written agreement she was to receive $15 a month and board for herself and children. She had only received $100, paid for doctors' bills for her children, and an additional $300 during the whole time she kept house for Henry Payne, she said.

The case is proceeding this afternoon.

THREE GROUPS ENTER CONTEST AT ALL SAINTS

St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. Wins First Place With Its Play, "The Ghost Hunters."

WELL PRESENTED.

Omemee and St. John's Also Present One Act Play in Contest.

A dramatic contest was held in All Saints' Parish hall last evening when three groups of A.Y.P.A. of the Peterborough district competed: St. John's, and St. Luke's of Peterborough, and Christ Church, Omemee.

The plays, which were all one act, lasting about forty minutes, were exceedingly good and well played; the characters being well suited to their parts and showing fine dramatic ability as well as splendid training.

St. John's play was entitled "Rooms to Let." The scene takes place in a college town at the home of Mrs. Smyth, who takes boarders, since the death of her husband. It is several days after the closing of the college term, but the two boys Dick and Tom still occupy their rooms. The summer school term is commencing, and Mrs. Smith rents the rooms to two girl students. A very humorous scene takes place in which the girls' aunt is exceedingly funny, and the girls and boys apparently settle matters very satisfactorily to all concerned.

Mrs. Smythe, Mrs. D. J. Batchelor; Dick Rush, Ormie Heap; Tom Warren, Leslie Dyer; Betty Breeze, Winifred Melton; Madge Walls, Florence Hutchinson; Matilda Judd (the aunt) Aloha Horne; Jerry, D. J. Batchelor.

"Who Kissed Barbara?"

Christ Church, Omemee, contingent was the next on the program, with the play entitled "Who Kissed Barbara?" directed by Mrs. T. Stephenson.

This was an amusing farce, which takes place at the home of Katherine Blake the evening before her wedding. Barbara Nichols, who is to be her bridesmaid, is kissed by an unknown man in the dark, and she is furious. She has no clue to his identity except that his breath smelled of peppermint, but suspects her friend's financee because she has had a wager with him, that she will never allow any man to kiss her before she is engaged.

Barbara is heart-broken and tells her friends, and they plan to discover the culprit, but find all the boys in the house have been chewing peppermint gum. The guilt is finally fixed on Paul Blake, Katherine's brother who, coming home earlier than expected, rushes into the hall expecting to meet his sister and kisses her. The screams alarmed him and he took to his heels.

The Ghost Hunters.

The last play on the program was given by the members of St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. entitled, "The Ghost Hunters."

This sketch was of an entirely different character, taking place at an old ruined house which was supposed to be haunted. The lights were turned off and the moon shone through a bare window on which an old dilapidated shutter hung on one hinge. This would occasionally bang in the wind. Four young people decide to visit the house and satisfy themselves as to the existence of the ghost and many are the thrills and tremors they receive before midnight when the ghost finally appears and is captured by Homer Jones. It proves to be an escaped criminal who is hiding in the old house. He is taken charge of by a burly policeman, handcuffed and taken away.

The cast of characters:

Madge—Mrs. Hepburn.
Bunny—Miss Queenie Hope.
Bob—Mr. C. Hope.
Homer Jones—Mr. M. Perry.
Tim Hennessey (policeman)—Mr. R. Krant.
The Ghost—Mr. W. Hepburn.

J. A. Bent, Omemee, district convenor of the Dramatic committee, made a very efficient chairman, and at the conclusion of the program called upon Mr. A. D. Clarke to give the judges' decision.

Mr. Clark said the judges, consisting of Mrs. Blackwell of St. John's, Miss Ross of High school staff, Omemee, and himself, had found it very difficult to give a decision as the plays varied so much in character, but they were unanimous in giving the honor to St. Luke's, Peterborough.

Between the plays Mrs. S. Willis delighted the audience with two solos, "The Throne of Roses" and "Absent."

Her second number was "Rose in the Bud." Miss Howarth played her accompaniments and also gave several instrumental piano solos during the evening.

Next week members of A. Y. P. A. from All Saints', Peterborough, Millbrook and Lindsay will compete in Omemee, and the winners of each group will then compete for the championship of the district.

CAR OVERTURNS KILLING DRIVER

GLARING HEADLIGHTS.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., May 21 (C.P.).—Charles D. Campbell, City Enginger, was instantly killed, one mile east of Deseronto, early to-day, when the car which he was driving turned turtle, pinning him under the wreckage. A Passenger, Fred Smythe, was seriously injured and is now in the Belleville Hospital. An inquest will be held by Coroner Dr. Stratton, of Napanee, and after preliminary examination the hearing will be adjourned for a week.

Mr. Smythe alleged the accident was caused from glaring light and "hogging" the road by a motorist going east, while the Campbell car was proceeding west, the car was forced over the shoulder, along a deep ditch and struck a culvert.

Charles Campbell has been City Engineer of Belleville for the past six years, coming from Preston, and many improvements have been noted in his regime. He was a graduate of Toronto University and an Ontario land surveyor. In fraternal circles he took a prominent part, being a member of Rameses Shrine of the Masonic Order. He leaves a wife and one son.

SIDELIGHTS ON ELECTION

(By Canadian Press.)

LONDON, May 21 (C. P. Cable).—Difficulty in finding the necessary election deposit of $750 resulted in the failure of a number of Communist candidates to secure nomination yesterday. Two prominent Laborites and former Cabinet ministers, Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas and Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson are without Communist opponents, thanks to the shortage of Red funds. The veteran "Tay Pay" O'Connor, "father of the House of Commons," received acclamation owing to the failure of a Communist to produce the required amount. The Communist would probably have lost his deposit had he put it up, as Mr. O'Connor's position in the Scotland Division of Liverpool is regarded as almost impregnable.

At Finchley it is reported scores of children between the ages of three months and sixteen years appear on the electoral roll. Their parents seemingly have got the impression that under the new extension of the franchise every member of the family is entitled to be placed on the Voters' List.

YOUNG KITTY DRIVES TO VICTORY OVER VISCOSE IN CONNAUGHT CUP

Sterling Seagram Filly Continues Sensational Winning Streak in 1929 Debut.

LEADS ALL THE WAY.

TORONTO, May 21.—Young Kitty, sweetheart of the Seagram stable, shattered the bogey which trailed the Waterloo hopes on opening day when she tripped down to win the Connaught Cup handicap at Woodbine yesterday afternoon.

It was the sterling filly's eighth straight victory in the nine starts which comprise her two-year racing career and she established herself firmly as the queen of the Canadian-breds. Her only defeat came in her first race as a juvenile, when she finished second, but since that time her form figures show that she has never been headed in competition.

After the little gods of racing luck had frowned down five Seagram hopes in as many races on Saturday they appeared to-day in a more congenial mood and the powerful Waterloo establishment flew its colors twice in the charmed circle through the efforts of Young Kitty and Jewel Kit, the latter being victorious in the Hampton plate.

A Head at the Wire.

For the first time in her career, Young Kitty was pitted against other than Canadian-breds and the winner of the 1923 King's plate led three-quarters of the way to stave off the belated challenge of J. E. Smallman's Viscose by a head at the wire.

Under the guidance of Johnny Maiben, veteran New Yorker, the daughter of Old Koenig-Gallant Kitty, broke in full stride and entering the back stretch the metropolitan dynamo let loose a wrap and Young Kitty swept into the van to displace H. C. Hatch's Campanini, which had spurted to the top when the barrier flashed.

In the run down the far straightaway Young Kitty raced the Hatch banner-bearer into the ground and opened a slight daylight lead but at the home corner Viscose, with Schaefer at the helm, hove up on the outside and began to close up on the Seagram miss. It was a stern duel down past the stands but Young Kitty responded willingly and her courage carried her under the shadow of the pagoda a clear head in front of the hard-ridden challenger.

Mr. Smallman's Clear Sky, coupled in the entry, closed stoutly for the third award, three lengths away, but Patricia J., which was installed an even-money favorite, was a laboring last all the way in the field of six.

Attempt Is Made To Lynch Prisoner

BUFFALO, N.Y., May 21 (Canadian Press). — Captured by police following a revolver duel late last night, Michael Hazenstab, 23, of this city, was threatened with lynching at the hands of 200 men and women, after he had been identified by two girls as having attacked them.

The crowd, angered by more than 20 reported outrages in their district in the past six weeks, stormed the doors of the Kensington Police Station, and had to be ejected as detectives questioned the suspect.

SCOUTS TAKE PART IN SHOPPING WEEK

Will Distribute Display Shields and Streamers Among Merchants of City.

Empire Shopping Week in Peterborough, from May 25 to June 1, will be a colorful scene insofar as the retail stores are concerned. The Chamber of Commerce and the Manufacturers' Association, the Peterborough branch, who have heartily endorsed the week are with the aid of the Boy Scouts going to have 350 sets of shields and streamers for display purposes distributed in the business section and in the retail stores of Peterborough.

Though only on short notice, the Scouts, who are to-night patrolling the banks of the Otonabee in hope of recovery of the bodies of the three unfortunate victims who lost their lives on Sunday, have expressed their willingness through Scout Commissioner J. A. McKone, to do everything in their power in aid of Empire Shopping Week.

The Scouts will be detailed off in the retail section of the city to certain streets and will distribute the display matter and literature to the proprietors of the stores. The managers are asked to receive this matter personally, and to place it in a conspicuous place in their show windows. A public appeal will also be made by the president of the Chamber of Commerce and the Manufacturers' Association not only to practice Empire shopping during the week, but over the whole year.

SHANGHAI, China, May 21.—(Canadian Press)—Chinese and Japanese reoprts state that Kwangsi forces captured Canton at noon yesterday. No confirmation was available here.

Factional warfare between the provinces of Kwangsi and Swangtung was in full progress by May 8, when the Kwangsi forces were threatening the capture of Canton, capital of Kwangtung.

Behind the warfare lay the struggle between the Nanking or Nationalist central government and the Kwangsi military clique as well as a more localized railway rivalry between the two provinces. Kwangtung had always been more or less under the domination of Kwangsi but during the recent fighting in the region of Hankow between the central government at Nanking and the Kwangsi leaders. The Kwangtung leaders announced neutrality, an action regarded as tantamount to a declaration in favor of Nanking.

Peace parleys between the two provinces went on for some time, but eventually these broke down and open warfare broke out. The Kwangsi troops made a steady drive on Canton and have been threatening it ever since.

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

I have been wondering how many mothers in Peterborough have trouble getting their children to go to sleep in the evening. Some mothers have succeeded in teaching the children to waken themselves, but not to go to boon also.

* * * * * *

Do you realize what you must do in order to get the children to sleep early? You must allow them to stay outdoors after school and come in to wash before supper.

* * * * * *

Then give them a nourishing meal which will be easy to digest. A quiet place where they can do homework uninterrupted will be a great also.

* * * * * *

The children should not be over-excited at night and should not be allowed to keep late hours. If you are planning a party in which the children will be allowed to participate, you will be doing them a kindness if you keep the party off until a week-end.

* * * * * *

Many mothers have nights of sleeplessness because they have difficulty in getting the children to bed and asleep early.

* * * * * *

Some Peterborough mothers have found they have been able to get the children to sleep early, bt they find their own cases much more difficult to conquer.

* * * * * *

Perhaps they have some physical ailment which causes this and they could do much to help themselves, even though they find it much harder to look after themselves than to protect their children.

* * * * * *

A good beginning would be to set a time when the children would have to go to bed, and a very unwise thing to do would be to let the children alter this whenever they desire to.

* * * * * *

A thing which helps a great deal towards getting sleep is to have a comfortable bed. It is hardly fair to expect the children to sleep on a hard bed which you would not enjoy yourself.

* * * * * *

It is much better to have a hard straight bed and tuck a soft pillow under a tired back than to sleep in a bed that sags down in the centre. Such a bed, you know, doesn't rest a person at all.

* * * * * *

Do not sleep on a very high pillow unless you have been specially asked to do so by your doctor. A low, flat pillow is much better and if at all possible, lie in a straight relaxed position, inclined to your right side.

* * * * * *

Are you afraid of fresh air at night? Do you keep the windows closed because you believe the children will catch a cold from the cool air.

* * * * * *

Of course if you are affected with some kind of bronchial trouble or if your children are, then you have a good reason for keeping the windows closed, but if you are not affected in this way, by all means leave the windows open.

* * * * * *

Do you know that you will drop off to sleep more quickly and will wake more refreshed if you sleep in frosty air? Why not give your children this benefit?

* * * * * *

How many Peterborough housewives overlook the fact that bedclothes may be too short? By all means have the bedding long enough so that it may be tucked in at the foot. They will not slip off during the night if tney are securely held in position at the foot.

* * * * * *

If there are east windows in the children's bedrooms, you can fix them so that the sun will not waken the children early in the morning, by pulling the blind down quite far, or hanging a blanket up.

* * * * * *

Many mothers make the mistake of going to bed without eating much supper. They may have been interrupted by the baby, or were too tired to eat, but this is a wrong thing to do.

* * * * * *

It is generally the opinion of many people in Peterborough that to eat before going to bed will hinder sleep rather than promote it. I have been told that a glass of milk, some fruit or a sandwich before going to bed will not hinder sleep.

* * * * * *

Something to eat before going to bed seems to help you forget all the worries of the day. It certainly is difficult for a person to forget all the worries of the day when she goes to bed at night, but one must forget them if her rest is to do her any good.

* * * * * *

I read the other day of a nervous child who was helped in this regard by a very clever man who advised, "Remember always, that if you will go to bed, turn out your light and lie still, it does not matter so much whether you sleep or not, you will have strength for the next day."

* * * * * *

Have you ever realized that lying awake at night, thinking over the problems of the next day, is very hard on a person, and even if one does go to sleep eventually, his sleep will not do him much good.

* * * * * *

When you have gone through a trying day, try this idea of lying still in bed with the light out, and you will be surprised when you find you are able to go to sleep quite quickly.

* * * * * *

How many times have you wished for a costume to wear at costume parties? Be prepared for the next costume party by having the essentials for a Spanish dancer's costume.

* * * * * *

Nowadays impromptu costume parties are a favorite summer evening diversion and the makings for some sort of fancy costume should be included in every womans holiday wardrobe.

* * * * * *

If you would like a copy of this week's help which gives a diagram pattern for the shawl and skirt, please fill in the coupon which you will rain hurry to get the job done because the rain after transplanting helps

Just at this time of the year, many housewives are transplanting their plants from the hotbed and seed boxes into the open, and I wonder if they realize how very important it is that this be done correctly?

* * * * * *

The success of the garden will depend upon how successfully a job of transplanting has been done.

* * * * * *

If possible, select a cloudy day for this job, and if you think it will rain hurry to get the job done because the rain after transplanting help a great deal.

* * * * * *

Get as much of the root system of the plant as possible and as much dirt as can be made to cling to the root. Sometimes it is not opssible to get much dirt with the plant, but a thorough watering after planting will help much in this case.

* * * * * *

It is a good idea to set the seedlings fairly deep, making a hole large enough to permit the spreading out of the roots in a natural manner.

* * * * * *

Firm the soil around the plants gently until the plant is in place, and then apply more pressure to prees the soil closely around the root.

* * * * * *

After this has been done, water the plants thoroughly so that the moisture will soak down about the roots and settle the soil in close contact with them. Establishing contact between soil and roots is the main factor of transplanting successfully.

LEMON PUDDING

(Contributed by "Just Eve")

One lemon (grated rind and juice), one cup sugar, yolks of two eggs (beaten), one teaspoon melted butter, two tablespoons flour, one cup sweet milk. Stir milk and flour together and mix with other ingredients, lastly stir in well beaten whites of eggs. Pour into pudding dish and place in pan of water. Bake until nicely brown about 30 minutes. This pudding is always a surprise the first time it is tried, a separation takes place in the baking, a delicate crust forming on top and a rich lemon sauce below it.

THAT PIECE OF SONG, That old and antique song we heard, last night.

POWER OF LITTLES

(Contributed by Lucinda)

Great events we often find,
On little things depend,
And very small beginnings
Have oft a mighty end.

Letters joined make words,
And words to books may grow,
As, flake on flake descending,
Forms an avalanche of snow.

A single utterance may good
Or evil thoughts inspire;
One little spark enkindled
May set a town on fire.

What volumes may be written with little drops of ink.
How small a leak, unnoticed,
A mighty ship will sink.

A tiny insect's labor
Makes the coral strand,
And mighty seas are girdled
With grains of golden sand.

A daily penny, saved,
A fortune may begin;
A daily penny squandered
May lead to vice and sin.

Our life is made entirely
Of moments multiplied,
As little streamlets joining,
From the ocean's tide.

Our hours and days, our months and years,
Are in small moments given;
They constitute our time below—
Eternity in Heaven.

The Contest continues through May with 1109 prizes still to be awarded for amateur photographs in twelve different classes.

HOME HELPS

Clothing-Colour

"Very few of us can resist the moral support of being suitably dressed."—Health Confessions of Business Women.

A friend of mine was describing a woman whom she considered a good dresser. She said, "She weighs one hundred and sixty, but she takes off twenty-five pounds in the way she dresses." Just as knowledge and skill in the matter of line improve our apparent figures, so the same in colour improves our apparent complexions and colourings. Some women, of course, are naturally artistic and, by instinct, seem to know the right colours to wear; others seem to have just as unerring an instinct in choosing the wrong ones, or them and the in-betweens a little study of the matter is worth while.

The colour chart consists of red, orange, yellow, green, blue, violet. The pigments are usually designed in a circle with red at the top, and the others following in the order given at angles of sixty degrees. The colours directly opposite are complementary colours; neighboring ones are analagous colours. Complementary colours look well together, analagous ones are related closely enough not to fight. When mixed together complementary colours have a graying or toning-down effect on each other—mixed in equal proportions, they make gray. Mixed colour is more easily worn by most people than pure colour.

In blending colours, a rule which is often quoted is: Follow nature—she never errs. Colours seen together in plants, etc. must be right. Nature is a wonderful artist, all right, and like an extremely good dressmaker whom I once knew can put the most unlikely colours together and get away with it.

Certain colours and designs emphasize and should be shunned by the woman who wishes something slenderizing—something that will take off twenty-five pounds. Such woman must avoid very light colours and checks or prints of large design. Black emphasizes outlines, so that either the very large or the very small, of desirous of appearing more like their fellow-beings, would do well to give it a wide berth.

It has long been customary to prescribe green and blue for the blondes and pink, red, tan, brown, etc. for the brunettes. But there are so few who are either decided blondes or brunettes! Most of us are in-betweens; so the wise thing is to experiment and work out ones own colour scheme—a scheme which emphasizes all our good features and subordinates our bad—and then, in general, stick to it. Of course, since health, age, and climate affect the complexion, hard and fast rules are not applicable. A Saskatchewan woman once told a blooming, blushing bride from Ontario, "You may not believe it, but when I came from England six years ago, my complexion was just as fine as yours is now. This climate is ruinous."

A brown-haired, brown-eyed young woman in a phone conversation with a friend said, "I have a new dress; it's brown." The friend answered, "You didn't need to tell me the colour—yours are always brown." Years later, someone remarked that this same woman's wardrobe was almost devoid of brown while blue seemed to hold a prominent place. She explained, "Yes, I think blue is more of an old lady's colour."

I am reminded of a controversy which two friends waged long and heatedly. One held that those who are not blessed with an abundance of good looks should dress strikingly so that their clothes, at least, might impress their friends and acquaintances. The other maintained that all such should dress in quiet, inconspicuous colours—not drawing attention to their physical imperfections, but giving their personalities a chance to do the impressing. She held that only the good-looking could wear bright and striking clothes with impunity. Neither convinced the other, it is still a moot question with them. With which do you agree?

What Happened To Mary

By DORA MOLLAN

The girl occupying the stool nearest the window, fourth from the corner on the sixth floor of a huge skyscraper, wore on a certain day in January, a bright pink blouse. It caught the eye of a man standing in the window on the corresponding floor of a hotel directly opposite.

Fascinated, he watched her deft fingers as, with the precision of a machine, she packed celluloid toilet articles into satin lined cases which she took from a pile beside her.

When the girl came to the end of the pile of boxes she turned on her stool and looked out of the window. Her glance met that of the man in the window opposite. She smiled. He acknoledged it by waving his hand.

With a start Strong Lewis remembered the warning words of his wife spoken as he left their country home for a business trip to the city. With a guilty feeling he hustled into hat and overcoat and out of the hotel. The episode, however, had not escaped the attention of the other girl who sat at the same table. "I'll teli Johnny on you, Mary," she giggled.

"Guess if I always keep them at that distance, Sadie, Johnny'll not have any kick coming," the other replied. But Johnny did have a kick coming that very night, and this is why.

When Strong Lewis returned to his hotel room it was verging on 5 o'clock With the instinctive movement of a man who is not used to being cooped up indoors, he walked directly to the window. The girl in the bright pink blouse sat in the same place. Her fingers flew back and forth at the same task.

"Been at it all day—and every day, I suppose," the man soliloquized. "How on earth can she stand it?" Then his wife's warning, which hadn't been far from his thoughts all day, came into the foreground again. Muttering something about "taking a chance," and "a man named Brodie," Strong Lewis watched the opposite window intently. The girls were making preparations to depart.

He hurried down into the street. Girls, singly and in groups, were stringing out of the doorway just across from the hotel.

Mary Cummings and her cousin, Sadie, accompanied by the girl who lived next door, had started to walk home together, as was their custom, when Lewis approached them. He addressed Mary. "Could I speak to you—on a matter which may interest you?"

Strong Lewis did most of the talking until they reached the doorway of the flat building where the cousins lived There Mary seemed to have something to say, the while they were watched by two curious pairs of eyes from an open window above. When Mary entered the flat she went to the room which she shared with Sadie and closed the door.

Sadie and her mother listened until they heard Mary leave her room and start down the stairs. Hurriedly they opened the front window and looked cautiously down. A taxi drew up at the curb and a man jumped out to help Mary in. Sadie was sure it was the man who had waved.

The girl from next door came over to discuss the scandal and many suppositions were brought forward before Johnny Deland came for his regular Monday evening call upon Mary. And it was a dejected Johnny who, hands thrust deep in his pockets, slouched away. For he had brought the good news of a raise and had planned to broach the suggestion that "maybe by June they might be gitting married."

Disgusted by the slurring innuendos of the women, for Johnny had always rated Mary just a little below the angels, he decided over a desperate lemon soda that at least he'd give the girl a chance to explain. But Johnny couldn't imagine standing the suspense of not knowing for another day, so he hung around till closing time. Then he hid in the dark doorway of the flat building where Mary lived.

A half hour after midnight a taxi stopped in front of the house and man helped Mary out. Johnny heard the parting words:

"Then I'll be at the Woodville station to meet you at 6.30 day after to-morrow," said the man.

"Sure," said Mary, "and I never can thank you enough for the grand time I had tonight."

Running up the steps, Mary stopped suddenly as she spied a man hiding in the shadows. "Mary," said Johnny in a hoarse voice, putting a hand on her shoulder, "Mary," but he could go no further. For Mary's face shone with relief and happiness at the sight of him.

"Oh, Johnny," she said, "I've been to the Winter Garden! All my life I've wanted to go to one of them swell shows, and when Mr. Lewis says, 'What can I do to persuade you to come to the country?" I says, 'Take me there,' And Johnny, all the time he talked to me about the great big house he is going to bamboozle his grandmother into lending him the money to build when she comes to visit them, and his wife says she can't come if he don't bring someone home from the city to help her do the work, and he saw me, in the window and likes the way I work; and he says he can use you, too. And there's a little house we can live in and we'll go day after to-morrow—Johnny"—Mary paused for breath.

"But we can't live together in a little house, Mary, until—" Johnny's voice was trembling with the hope of supreme happiness.

The Mirror of the Mode

By Mary Marshall

This black bangkok hat trimmed the new more flattering millinery, with ostrich is characteristic of

The other day I saw a collection of recently imported French hats that almost convinced me that the days of the severely simple, very nearly untrimmed hat were numbered.

A number of these hats were from Reboux, who ranks among the five or six most influential of French milliners. They were similar to hats that have just been made in Paris for an ever-increasing number of well-dressed French and American women who are asking for hats that are definitely flattering—women who accept the severely simple hat of felt or straw to wear with sports or tailored street things—but who want something more alluring for wear with picturesque afternoon dresses.

One narrow-brimmed little hat of black bangkok was raised at the back to reveal a row of curls across the nape of the neck and there was a row ofsmall pink roses across the back just above the curls. Almost every hat in the collection showed trimming either of flowers or feathers.

There are, to be sure, two decided disadvantages to this sort of hat—disadvantages from the point of view of the woman who wears them, not of the milliner. They are of necessity more expensive than the simpler sort of hat and they are far less hardy. Of late years, we have become accustomed to hats that will stand fairly hard usage, hats that will go through dampness and even light showers without a murmur, hats that are easily packed and that can be replaced at not very great expense.

In the meantime for resort and country wear, there are all sorts of practical hats of linen, pique or other fabric to wear with cotton or linen sports dresses.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

By all means provide yourself with a few waterproofs cushion for use in the garden and on the veranda. Even if you have no garden and veranda you will find two or three of these cushions a convenience to take on picnics or for use on your summer holidays. The lower side of the cushion may be a burlap or some coarse serviceable material. Just under this should be a piece of rubber. Above the rubber there should be a thin padding and then the cover which may be of any sort of attractive cretonne or cotton upholstery material. You may have on hand pieces of attractive material left over from curtains that will do very nicely for these outdoor cushion tops.

Any sort of rubber—providing it is quite waterproof—will do for the interlining. You may be able to buy pieces of heavy corded rubber for the purpose and if you do this you will not really need the padding since the heavier rubber makes the cushions soft enough for most purposed.

Wooden clogs of the sort that are sold for beach wear are convenient to have on hand to wear in the garden when dew is on the grass. It is usual in France to have thick wooden shoes of the sort that peasants wear to use in the garden and these are frequently seen neatly placed just outside the door that leads from the house into the garden.

Strips of checked gingham—half a yard wide—make attractive table runners for cottage use. These may be finished with half-inch hems held in place by coarse running stitching done in colored embroidery cotton.

Maple Leafs Advance To Third Place In League

TORONTO WINS FINAL GAME OF ROYAL SERIES

Defeat Montreal Club 10-6 To Drop Them To Sixth Rung.

KEYS TAKE SERIES.

Rochester Scores Three Runs in Ninth Inning to Defeat Bisons.

MONTREAL, Que., May 21 (Canadian Press). — Toronto took undisputed possession of third place in the International League race, and the Montreal Royals dropped to the sixth rung when the Leafs captured the final game of the series yesterday afternoon, 10-6, to gain a two-to-one edge in their first visit of the season to Montreal.

In marked contrast to the first two engagements between the keen Canadian rivals, no thrilling ninth-inning rally marked yesterday's game. It was left to Manager Steve O'Neill and the umpires to provide the fans with all the excitement a dull baseball display failed to provide.

KEYS DEFEAT CATS.

JERSEY CITY, May 21 (Canadian Press). — Chicken Hawks home run in the third inning with Pitcher Ed. Holley on second, gave Reading the series yesterday and sent Jersey City down to defeat 2 to 1.

Holley, pitching a great game all the way, faltered in the ninth, and the Black Cats were saved from a shutout when Ted Jordan sacrificed to deep centre, sending George Selkirk home with the lone tally.

SCORE THREE IN NINTH.

BUFFALO, N.Y., May 21 (Canadian Press). — Scoring three runs after two were out in the ninth inning, the league leading Rochester Red Wings took a sensational game from the Bisons here yesterday 5 to 4.

George Toporcer's double was the big spot in the three-run rally at the expense of Jesse Barnes, as it scored the tying and winning runs.

CLEAN SWEEP OF SERIES.

NEWARK, May 21 (Canadian Press). — Wright put a home run into the right field stands in the fourteenth inning with Kingdon on base yesterday to give the Newark Bears their sixth straight victory and a clean sweep of the four-game series with Baltimore. The score was 5 to 4.

Browns Beat Sox In Opening Game

ST. LOUIS, May 21. (C.P.) — The St. Louis Browns hit often and timely yesterday and won the opening game of the series from the Chicago White Sox 6 to 3; Manush hit a home run; Blue and Schang each got three singles.

Again Famous Plate Races Pass Into History With Second Choice Horses Winning Honors

Both King's Plate and Kentucky Derby have passed into history. The future book second choice in each instance won, and left no doubt of their superiority. The crushing defeat of Seagram's was a stunning blow to the so-called talent. That of Blue Larkspur was even more so although it looks as though a conspiracy of circumstances operated against this clever performer who finished fourth, and ran a good race, even though out of the money.

The talent in racing are inured to such shocks. In the case of Seagram's defeat they are likely to shrug their shoulders and murmur "what of it." It was noted that they lost four races at Woodbine Saturday at rather short prices. Of course racing luck played some part in their succession of defeats. The Seagrams will win plenty of purses before the year is out.

In the meantime all will doff the sombrero, tile or faded lids to the Davies boys and their clever Dutch trainer, Fred Schelke. Shorelint in winning bulged their coffers to a considerable extent.

Race followers who admire the fraternity will hope this is but a prelude to many other victories.

The solid horse won the Derby. Clyde Van Dusen, a noted mudder and son of the great hose Man O'War, out of a mud running family on the mother's side, proved a hardy campaigner by sloshing through the mud to take the Derby. This is by far the greatest triumph that any son of Man O'War has accomplished, and gives further recognition to the status of the great Fair Play stallion as a sire. Van Dusen is a tough type and will be a strong contender for main honors through the year. His future duels with Blue Larkspur will be looked forward to with keen anticipation.—Ottawa Journal.

SOCCER TO-MORROW KING EDWARD PARK

Woollens Play Quakers in Spalding Cup—Kick-off at Six O'clock.

Another evening game of soccer is promised for to-morrow night, when the Woollens meet the Quakers in a Spalding Cup tie, at King Edward Park. Kick-off is scheduled for six o'clock. Referee J. M. Middleton.

The Woollens have lost three valuable players who have gone back to England; and Cridland has been instructed to give the game a rest until he is in proper shape again. They are minus full-backs now and they would be willing to accept two full-backs to fill the vacancies.

Last week, there was nearly five hundred spectators present and the teams are expecting another crowd that will prove interesting. The fans have been generous and it is hoped that they will continue to support the clubs.

All players are requested to be at the pavilion no later than 6.15.

The Quakers have chosen the following players: Fowler, goal; Honor and Armstrong, backs; Budworth, Craig and Pulley, halves; Watkins, Dyer, Ward, Dixon and Williams forwards. Reserves, Cross and Hotson who are reported on the injured list.

FAVORED TO WIN

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 21.—(By the Canadian Press).—Phil Edwards, of Hamilton, Ont., now star half-miler of the New York University, and winner of the 880 in the Inter-Collegiate A.A.A. meet last year, is picked by sports writers to repeat his 1928 victory this year. Edwards is one of the worlds premier half-milers. He came fourth in the Olympic 800-metre at Amsterdam last year.

MORE STARS ENTER MEET

Fitzpatrick and Cuthbert To Compete in Toronto Club Events.

TRANTER FROM HERE.

TORONTO, May 21.—Johnny Fitzpatrick, Olympic star of Hamilton, is among the latest of the great list of star athletes who have sent in their entries for the monster track meet to be held in conjunction with the national Marathon championship at U. of T. Stadium, May 24, under the direction of the Monarch Athletic Club. Accompanying Fitzpatrick's entry were those of several of his teammates of the Hamilton Olympic Club, as well as the famous relay team of that organization which is entered in the one mile club relay. A great group of girl athletes have entered from the Ambitious City, headed by Gwen Nye, who is regarded as one of the fastest sprinters among the girls, and Gertie Woods, who was a member of the first girls' team that represented Canada in Britain.

Johnny Cuthbert, winner of the 1924 Canadian Olympic Marathon trial, has entered the Marathon. Cuthbert represented Canada at Paris in 1924, finishing well up with the leaders in the classic grind. Among the other late entries in the Marathon were two from the States—A. Garcia of Yonkers, N.Y., and Fred Miller of Chicago, Ill. Norm Dack of the Hamilton Olympic Club will also be a starter, as well as Ted Skelding and G. MacKay of the Ambitious City. There are 55 entries in the Marathon, this probably constitutes a record for this country. The field contains most of the country's greatest Marathoners.

Harold Webster, Canadian two-mile indoor champion, has forwarded his entry for the three-mile race. This brings the total number of competitors for this event up to 50. It is by far the classiest field of three-mile runners ever drawn together in the Province. Other outstanding stars who are entered are: Hornby of Hamilton; McCluskey, McCurdy, Michell, Phipps and Brown of the Monarch Club; Keay of the Toronto Police, Barber of Belleville, Teal of Niagara Falls, Walsh of Guelph, Porter of Gladstones, Dodds of Picton, Tranter of Peterborough, and others.

WANDERERS DEFEATED

BARCELONA Spain, May 21. — (Canadian Press).— A Barcelona team defeated the Bolton Wanderers, winners of the historic English Football Association Cup, 4 to 0, yesterday in a soccer match played here.

CUBS MAINTAIN LEAD OVER CARDS

CHICAGO, May 21.— (Canadian Press).—Guy Bush had all his stuff with him yesterday, and the Chicago Cubs trounced Pittsburg, 6 to 1, to maintain their half game lead over the St. Louis Cardinals.

It was Bush's fourth victory of the season, and he has yet to lose a game.

NO FAVORITES NEW YORK BOUT

Fidel La Bara Does Not Want Cuban To Prove Easy Mark.

ON WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

NEW YORK, May 21—Fighters have gone into action before with prayers on their lips, but never with so unusual a supplication as the one in the heart of Fidel Le Barba on the eve of his battle with brilliant Kid Chocolate.

Others have appealed for strength to lay their rivals in the resin. Le Barba's only prayer is for Chocolate to be all that people say he is— a great fighter.

Finished with his training, satisfied that he is in the best of condition, Le Barba sat in his reception room at the Alamac Hotel last night and discussed his strange desire.

"I dread these so-called bums," he said. "I actually have a horror of being asked to fight one.

"My hardest opponents have been my easiest fights. I have never been hurt by a good fighter. I came out of my fight with Frankie Genaro with only a little bump on my face, and yet that the fight in which I won the flyweight championship of the world.

Gets $400 and Beating

"These so-called easy fights always wound up with a lot of lumps. I fought a boy named Pedro Villa in a little club near Los Angeles. I got $400 and the decision—and also the worst beating of my career. He was a sucker, they told me.

"I fought another pushover up at Boston, a fellow named Johnny Vacca. Nobody ever heard of him until he got through with me. He hit me so hard in the first round that I didn't know where I was for the next 15 minutes. By the time I came to, he had won the decision. I finally whipped him, but I had to fight him twice more to turn the trick.

"Not so long ago I met another setup, a fighter who has never been heard of outside of the Coast. Young Nationalista is his name. I beat him, but I've never been hit harded in my life than I was in that fight.

"I fought Jimmy McLarnin twice. People said they were good fights, but they were cakewalks from my point of view, compared to Villa and Vacca and Nationalista.

"Clever Sencio, Newsboy Brown, Emil Paluso, Georgie Rivers and Elkie Clark were all supposed to be good fighters, but I had no trouble with them; Bushy Graham and Earl Maestro are top notchers, too. I came out pretty easy with them.

No Set-ups Wanted

"I don't want set-ups. I don't want soft fights. 'They never turn out to be as easy as people say they are. Not in my case at least."

La Barbara practices what he preaches. No matter what the outcome of the Chocolate fight, he is going direct to box Bud Taylor late in June. If he looked the whole world over he couldn't pick anything tougher than the Terror from Terre Haute.

No one has the slightest idea who is the favorite in Wednesday night's battle. The odds depend on where you happen to be. In some places Chocolate is 6 to 5, and in others La Barba is 6 to 5. The best guess is that it is an even-money proposition and the most interesting the big town has seen in many a day. It's a red-hot betting fight.

Advance Sale $20,000

There will be more money riding on the result than there will be in the gate, and that will be limited only by the capacity of the Coliseum. Jess McMahon has an advance sale of $20,000, and estimates a gross of more than $70,000.

Chocolate has fought two bantamweights who were defeated by La Barba, and in each instance he disposed of the men much easier than La Barba did. The Kid won by a technical knockout over Emil Paluso and administered a decisive beating to Johnny Vacca. La Barba defeated Paluso twice and lost two decisions to Vacca.

However, there is a catch in those comparisons. La Barba was a flyweight when he fought Paulso, and he was a flyweight when he fought Vacca. Chocolate weighed 121 pounds against both men. The La Barba he will meet on Wednesday night is ten pounds heavier than the La Barba of 1927, and, those who have seen him say, twice the fighter and twice the puncher.

PLAYED PROMINENT PART IN SPORTS

With Old Home Week coming on and the prospect of a snappy Old Boys lacrosse game as the feature sport event during that big week, old timers—looking back over the years—are trying to figure out just who was the greatest all-round athlete that Peterborough ever produced.

This city produced a galaxy of stars in every sport, but the whole debate upon the most versatile athlete, seems too limited to two, Bill Crowley and Dr. Lionel King.

Looking up the records it is found that Bill Crowley played a prominent role on nearly every Peterborough team between 1900 and 1910. He played flying wing with the senior rugby team, which was listed as one of the best in the province. He played smart games on the forward line of the hockey team and he was also an outstanding member of the senior lacrosse team. Not satisfied with that he was a noted baseball player and the fastest runner in the district at 100 and 220 yards sprints. Another thing Bill Crowley learned all his sport on the corner lots in the south end of the city, he graduated up through all the stages to stardom.

Dr. Lionel King starred in hockey and lacrosse and he was a great performer on the baseball field. He was a whirl wind at all three of these sports and won wide fame.

NEWARK BEARS NEARING TO RUNG

Tris Speaker's Newark Bears have hit their stride and are up fighting Rochester for first place now. Bad pitching in early games broke up the Bears' play but now they have hit their stride and in the last thirteen games they have won all but two of them. Yesterday they beat Baltimore 5 to 4 in fourteen innings of baseball. The Newark fans are baseball crazy and the day before yesterday 20,000 crowded into the stands to see their team perform.

AND IT RAINED SURE ENOUGH

In the blue grass country of Old Kentucky where famous horses are born and bred the loyalty of colored servants to the high-spirited animals is remarkable. When favorite are defeated, particularly at Churchill Downs, Louisville, the anguish of these ardent followers of the speeding equine knows no bounds. So therefore it must have been a most impressive sight at the Van Dusen farm last Friday night when the servants gathered at prayer meeting and, with a spirit of fatalism hovering all around, they begged that rain would fall and thus pave the way for the victory of Clyde Van Dusen, pride of the stable, in the famous Kentucky Derby. And the rain came down in torrents, making Churchill Downs almost into a morass, as Clyde Van Dusen raced on to victory. He'll get a right royal reception when he goes back to the farm, for there his friends are legion and they are pathetically loyal.—(Toronto Globe).

John J. Evers recently broke down and confessed. The arch-enemy of the Giants for lo! these many years the man who was such a sharp thorn in the sides of the great Polo Grounds performers of old, the man whose quick wit snatched a pennant from under the very nose of the outraged McGraw in 1908, admitted recently to Mr. Cullen Cain that the dream of his young life was to grow up and become a ball player on the Giants.

It's too bad his dream didn't come true. For years he was the most dreaded, most dangerous and, in baseball sense, the most hated opponent the Giants had on the diamond. He seemed to save all his craft and punch and guile for the Clan McGraw. He tricked them in the field and annoyed them with his bat. Yet he grew up wanting to be a member of the Giant team. It should have been arranged.

"Yes, sir" said Johnny, "when I was a boy in Troy I used to walk a mile every evening, not for a cigarette, but to go down to the only drug store in town where the baseball scores were posted. The Giants were my idols and I was heart-broken any time they lost a game. As far as I could I fought for 'em and I bled with 'em. When I began to blossom out as a player my one idea was to get on the Giants. Boy, I didn't think there was any other team in the world worth playing for! But the Cubs picked me up. Even then I didn't give up hope. An admirer of mine, a wealthy resident of Troy, offered to buy my release from the Cubs so that I could get a trial with the Giants. He was ready to go as high as $3,000. But the Cubs wouldn't hear of it. So instead of becoming a star for the Giants, as I had hoped, I became famous as their bitterest enemy. Funny, isn't it?"

There were times, Mr. Evans, when it didn't seem so very funny.—(New York Times).

Wrestler Is Injured In Kansas City Match

KANSAS CITY, May 21.—(A.P.)—Matros Kirkilenko, New York wrestler, suffered concussion of the brain and a dislocated shoulder in a match here last night with Ed "Strangler" Lewis, when Kirklenko plunged out of the ring on to a concrete flour when Lewis evaded one of his headlong rushes. He was taken to a hospital, where physicians said his concondition was not serious.

The accident occurred after two minutes and 30 seconds of wrestling to determine the winner of the match. Lewis had taken the first fall in 28 minutes with a crotch and half nelson and Kirkilenko had won the second in six minutes and eight seconds with a body hold and arm lock.

LONDON, May 21.—After serving three months in prison, Ernest Lee, 35, received a pardon and $500. "THE BELLAMY TRIAL"

A picturization of a book or magazine story usually brings to the screen a more finished type of production than is encountered in the ordinary run of features strung together for the purpose of making a film. The art of the writer who spends a lot of time and energy in polishing off the situations and rounding out the tale, provides no loose ends. Such is the case in "The Bellamy Trial" which is filmed from the popular serial story of the same name, written by Frances Noyes Hart. Combined with this polished type of presentation is an exceptionally fine cast and an absorbing plot that centers about the always-popular subject of a murder and the trial which follows it.

The story is introduced in a novel manner by means of fictitious news reel pictures that give an element of reality to the scene which follow, and make the murder of Mimi Bellamy a

The progress of the trial scene is as interesting as usual. The audience follows with intense interest the stories of the various witnesses and watches the actions of the "persecuting" attorney, as he is rightly called by the lawyer for the defense.

Sue Ives and Stephen Bellamy are on trial for the murder of Mimi Bellamy, but the story of an absolutely new witness, introduced during the concluding stages of the trial, furnishes proof of their innocence and they go free. The anti-climax of the tale come with the discovery, in an odd fashion, of the real murderer.

"The Bellamy Trial" is one of those pictures that make the watchers think for themselves and hold their attention to the last minute. A bit of broad comedy is in the choosing of a plump, rabbit-faced clerk to read the impassioned love letters to a convulsed court-room.

Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy have one of their screaming comedies in which they appear as a pair of salesmen, bent on selling Christmas trees to householders in California. The and an infuriated prospect have a parlous encounter and provide many giggles of the audience.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 21 (Canadian Press).—Of the 29 nations which set out earlier this year in quest of the Davis Cup, held for the past two years by France, only eleven still are in the running.

In the American zone, with five original entrants, three still survive. Cuba, with first round bye and a four to one victory over Mexico in the semi-final, has advanced to the finals. The United States, with a victory over Canada in the first round, is to meet Japan next to determine which shall face Cuba in the final round.

Play in the European zone has reached the quarter-final round. Italy, favored to win the zone finals for the second consecutive year, meets Germany next. In the other section of the upper half of the draw, Czechoslovakia and Denmark will clash. In the lower half, Great Britain, regarded as likely to advance to the final round, engaged South Africa next. Holland and Hungary battle it out in the remaining quarter-final series.

CALEDONIAN CLUB HEARS ADDRESS

F. L. Roy Speaker at Illustrated Lecture Given in Woodmen of World Hall.

Members and friends of the local Caledonian Club to the number of about one hundred and fifty, gathered in the Woodmen of the World Hall on Friday evening to enjoy an illustrated lecture, entitled "Hitting the High Spots," or "A Tour in Europe with the George King Party," by F. L. Roy.

The speaker of the evening, with his wonderful descriptive faculties, aided by a series of wonderfully clear moving pictures, succeeded in holding his audience spellbound for a period of two and a quarter hours, the time required for this interesting discourse.

The pictures were all the more interesting as many well-known local faces were recognized on several stages of the tour. Life on board the giant liner "Letitia" could not have been monotonous, for besides the usual games on board, members of the touring party staged a wonderful play, the scenery in which looked like being on the desert instead of on the rolling billows.

The countries visited by the party were Ireland, Scotland, England, Wales, France, Holland and Belgium.

Ireland was the first country visited, and beautiful pictures, such as Kilarney and other far-famed beauty spots, as well as a trip through the Giant's Causeway, was much appreciated, and made all the more real by the accompaniment on the piano of lovely Irish airs played by Robert Gilmour.

Scotland was next on the route, but at this stage only a brief visit was paid, as some of the members of the party wished to spend more time there than could be permitted then, so, in the speaker's own words, the best of the tour was kept till the last, when they would have more time to enjoy it.

London Is Big Attraction.

In England the Shakespeare country and London were the chief attractions. Many of these places were quite familiar to the audience, and excited much enthusiasm, as also did the scenery of Wales.

Crossing the Channel to the Continent, the party sailed the canals of Holland and viewed with delight the windmills and quaint little people in native dress, which since children had been familiar to them in their story books and fairy tales, and which are seen nowhere else in the world.

The war-torn fields of Flanders changed the scene. The sadness of desolation can still be seen, and many a sigh could be heard when the cemeteries with their hundreds of crosses in orderly rows were shown on the screen. Many beautiful spots in and around Paris were also shown.

Tour of "Auld Scotia."

The speaker then conveyed his audience back to what was for them the most interesting part of the tour, "Auld Scotia," and to scenes and memories which still live vividly in the minds of those Scots in Canada. A tour through the Rob Roy country, the wildest and most picturesque part of Scotland, was vividly described, as also was the Burns country.

In Edinburgh, besides the historical places, the Scottish National War Memorial was dwelt upon at great length. Mr. Roy tried to convey to his interesting audience what he felt must be the emotions of a visitor to this memorial raised by Scottish people to "Scotland's Glorious Dead." It is the most wonderful memorial of its kind in the whole world. From the Castlehill the gleaming Firth of Forth could be followed over to the coast of Fife, with the Ochil Hills in the distance, and further on the Pentlands.

Loch Lomond, Loch Katrine and Loch Earn, with the hills towering over them, were rare gems of beauty. These wonderful pictures of seascape and landscape which Mr. Roy can describe in his attractive manner, ought to be seen by all lovers of the Old Land who have not so far availed themselves of this wonderful opportunity.

"Ye can traivel far and widely,
Ye can roam in foreign lands,
But gie to me Auld Scotland,
Maisterpiece o' Nature's hands."

Mr. Veitch thanked the speaker for the wonderful treat he had provided, and voiced his appreciation of the large turnout of members and friends who had gathered to hear it.

Dainty refreshments were served by the Executive, and a few dances to the accompaniment of Mr. Gilmour's melodeon brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.

It is the only reasonably sure means of preventing disease that attacks neglected gums, thus ravaging the system, robbing youth, and often causing loss of teeth. This disease is the more serious for only dental care can stem its advance once it is contracted.

See your dentist at least every six months.

Brush your teeth regularly. But don't forget that teeth are only as healthy as the gums. So brush gums vigorously, morning and night, with the dentifrice made for the purpose, Forhan's for the Gums. It helps to keep them firm and sound.

After you have used Forhan's for a few days you'll notice a vast improvement in the way your gums look and feel—firmer, sounder—thus strong enough to resist disease. Also you'll find that Forhan's cleans teeth and helps to protect them from decay.

There are no bargains in health. Get a tube of Forhan's from your druggist and start using it today.

Forhan's for the gums

★ 4 persons out of 5 after forty and many younger are bargain-hunters. They sacrifice health to the extravagant price of neglect.

"Eczema broke out in pimples all over my face, neck, arms and hands. I had to keep my sleeves rolled up so they would not irritate the breaking out on my arms. MANY ENQUIRIES FROM TOURISTS

ADVANCE GUARD HERE.

The advance guard of the tourist influx are already entering the city, as there are numerous foreign license plates seen on the Peterborough streets from as far as Dallas, Texas, but there will be a greater number when the main body arrives, if the letters of inquiry that are received at the Chamber of Commerce are any omen as to those who are intending to make the trip.

Information is sought regarding the fishing, the hotels, the best routes, the scenic beauties, the canal system, the channels of navigation, the type of boat that can navigate in the waters of the Trent system, and the Kawartha Lakes in general as a Summer playground.

The following places have been heard from: Cleveland and the Ohio centers seem to be very popular with Peterborough; others are Detroit, Rochester, Timblin, Pa.; Newark, Ohio; Newark, N.J.; Pittsburg, McKee's Rock, Pa.; Cincinnati Fishing Club in Cincinnati; Dayton, Ohio; Mobile, Alabama; Chicago, Brantford, Brandonville, Ohio; Warren, Ohio; East Liverpool, Ohio; Flushing, N.Y.; Buffalo, Philadelphia, and many others.

HUMANE SOCIETY HOLDS MEETING

Lengthy Report Is Submitted By Inspector Dr. Thomas Johnston.

The regular executive meeting of the Peterborough Humane Society was held in the Chamber of Commerce on Thursday evening, May 16. The president, Thomas E. Sargent, presided. During the business part of the evening it was decided that all cheques paid out during the coming year would be signed by the secretary, and in the absence of the secretary, the president, or vice-president were authorized to sign.

It was also decided that the new inspector, Dr. Thomas Johnston, be paid the usual salary, which would include expenses of car used in making the Society's calls in and out of the city, and within a radius of ten miles in any direction in the county. Trips made exceeding this distance will be paid for by the Society.

During the past few years the charge for destroying small animals has been 50c each. This was amended and the charge in future will be: for a cat 25c each; dog 50c; horse $1. The Society felt that these charges would be within the reach of everyone, who would like to have their animals humanely put to sleep by carbon monoxide in the lethel box for that purpose. In future an owner who claims his dog will be expected to pay for the advertising, plus 25c per day, for its care, as any dog that is lost gets the very best of treatment and food while in the care of the inspector.

In view of the annual meeting and convention of the Ontario Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, held at the new headquarters, 11-23 St. Albans street, Toronto, the president, secretary and inspector were appointed to attend.

The inspector's report was an exceedingly lengthy one, showing a great deal of activity during the month. It read in part:

Visited the market. Gave a warning.

Inspected three stables, and found one cow down with paralysis.

Emergency call to a dog injured by car. Destroyed at once.

Got a sick stray kitten. Destroyed same.

Investigated complaints re poisoning of dogs and cats. There has been a great deal of trouble along this line. Have made several post mortem examinations and find the poisoning to be that of strychnine, and would recommend that this matter be taken up with the proper authorities and try to stop the sale of this poison to anyone who might ask for it. In the meantime the matter is being attended to by the detectives.

Called for and destroyed a sick kitten.

Inspected two stables and also visited cow found with paralysis a few days before. Prescribed for cow.

HYDRO ORDERED TO PAY $5,000

Boy Received Burns While Climbing Pole Carrying High Tension Wire

TORONTO, Ont., May 21.—(C.P.)—Settlement of $5,000 in favor of Max Russell, 8, Oil Springs, was authorized by Justice Fisher here yesterday against the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission.

The Russell boy suffered severe burns while climbing a Hydro pole near his home last July. Recently he was brought to Toronto, where an operation will be performed in an effort to restore his sight, which was practically ruined when he came in contact with high voltage wires.

The medical bill of $2,500 already expended on behalf of the boy, who has been in Petrolia Hospital, was termed "almost incredible" by Mr. Justice Fisher.

APPOINTMENT NOT EXPECTED

ARCHBISHOP IMPROVING.

KINGSTON, Ont., May 21 (Special to The Examiner). — The appointment of Bishop O'Brien, Peterborough, by the Pope as Coadjutor and with the right of succession to Archbishop Spratt of Kingston, came as a surprise to the clergy of the Roman Catholic Church here. It is expected the transfer of Archbishop O'Brien to Kingston will take place with in the next month.

His Grace Archbishop Michael J. Spratt is recovering his health and strength quite rapidly to the delight of his people throughout the Archbishopric of Kingston. He has been living in the Hotel Dieu Hospital for the past year and a half. He was frail in health for a considerable time, but happily has gained in weight and vigor during the past few months. He converses with his priests with much of his old-time geniality and mirth. In seeking a full restoration of health, it is possible he will seek a quiet and cool summering place. Years of comfort and happiness are wished him by his flock and many friends so I got a box, and in no time I felt better, so I took three boxes more and I have never had shortness of breath since."

FRENCH WILL CONSIDER U. S. DEBT QUESTION

Parliament Re-assembles After Spring Recess in Paris To-morrow.

BERENGER AGREEMENT.

Premier Poincare Will Ask For Little Debate As Possible On Question.

PARIS, May 22 (Canadian Press).—Members of the French Parliament, which re-assembles to-morrow after the spring recess, have taken note of the views of Senator Root and others at Washington that the French Government ought to give some indication when it intends to press for ratification of the Berenger debt agreement.

It is understood that Premier Poincare will put the question before Parliament immediately after a settlement of the reparations problem has been concluded by the experts of the second Dawe's committee.

For months Premier Poincare has maintained, when approached on the subject, that the debt settlement could not be taken up until the future of reparations payments were known.

Meanwhile, both the French treasury and the Bank of France are becoming a little anxious because notes are due from France to the United States treasury in the first week of August, and the minor sum of $7,000,000 is due later in the year.

It is said that Premier Poincare does not desire to provoke a full dress debate on debts, but would rather have a simple resolution passed by both Houses ratifying the agreement with very little discussion.

So far as can be learned here, the U.S. Government has not asked France when the agreement will be ratified. Certainly nothing formal and official has been received, though it is considered not improbable that Secretary of State Stimson has had conversations with Ambassador Claudel as to the convenience for both sides of early ratification of the Berenger accord.

MANY BUILDING PERMITS ISSUED

The promised boom in the building program of the city is already beginning to materialize, and during the last three days many permits have been issued at the City Engineer's office.

Permission to make alterations to the property of Misses Dickson at 490 Dickson at a cost of $7,000 has been granted. An electric elevator will be installed. T. Ephgrave is the contractor.

A dwelling will be erected at 744 George Street at a cost of $3,700. The house will be 27 feet in length and 21 feet wide, a two-story brick structure with six rooms. The interior will be of pine, and it will be completed by August 15.

W. S. Bogue will build a seven-room, two-story house on the south-west corner of Romaine and Aylmer Streets at a cost estimated at $2,000. It will have hot air heating and an open fireplace.

The following permits have also been granted: A. Blazing Forest Land Considered To Have Been Extinguished Flames Forth Again.

COTTAGES DESTROYED.

Northern Manitoba Facing Worst Year of Fires in Past Decade.

Winnipeg, Manitoba, May 22. — (C.P.) — The threatening torch of blazing forest land, considered a week ago to have been extinguished, is flaming forth again.

From northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan, come reports of timber lands and prairie stretches once more being laid waste by the fire demon.

Settlements at Christopher and Emma Lakes, thirty miles north of Prince Albert, were the centre of trouble in Northern Saskatchewan.

Manitoba's most dangerous blaze raged at Ruby Lake, where a tract of timber in the vicinity of Hudson Bay Junction had been destroyed. City owners of Summer cottages at Christopher Lake experienced relief when

LABOR LEADER'S GENEVA SPEECH IS UNDER FIRE

Macdonald's Notions Are Said To Be Simple But Puerile.

LORD CUSHENDUN REPLIES

Declares Other Nations Will Not Be Coerced Or Kajoled.

LONDON, May 22.— (By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.)—Declaring the Labor leader's notions of disarmament negotiations were "simple but puerile," Lord Cushendun, British representative on the League of Nations' Preparatory Disarmament Commission, in a speech at Rochester today replied to Rt. Hon. J. Ramsay MacDonald's suggestion as to the conduct of such negotiations.

On Saturday Mr. MacDonald criticised the government for their instructions to Lord Cushendun not to oppose any disarmament proposal accepted generally by other nations. He said this was not enough and that if he were the head of a government his instructions would be: 'Make up your mind what your new proposal is going to be. Make it wise, practicable and applicable to world conditions. Put it on the table, see that other nations' representatives under-

Two Enter Pleas of Guilty

St. Catharines Police Magistrate Sentences Men to 15 Years in Penitentiary.

OTHER CHARGES READ

Special Plea Is Made By Counsel For Anthony Consolo.

St. Catharines, Ont., May 22. —(C.P.) — Fifteen years in the penitentiary was the sentence imposed on the first two of the four bandits who held up and robbed the Beamsville branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Beamsville.

Anthony Consolo and Joseph Di Salvio, who were arrested at Brockton, Mass., and brought here Saturday night under extradition waivers, this morning pleaded guilty before Police Magistrate Campbell, to the Beamsville charge, and were summarily sentenced.

Before sentencing the prisoners the magistrate read charges against Consolo of having robbed, while armed, Gasbarini's Grocery store in St. Catharines on two occasions and also of shooting with intent to kill.

No evidence was offered on the latter charge by Crown Attorney Lancaster. George F. Peterson appeared for the prosiners, making a special plea for Consolo whose mother, he stated,

FLAPPER VOTE IS BLAMED FOR DULL ELECTION

Lethargy of Present Electorate in England Noticed On All Sides.

RIVALS DEBATE QUESTION.

Attempt Has Been Made To Revive Liveliness of Bygone Days By Newspaper.

LONDON, Ont., May 22. — (By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)—Blaming the deadly seriousness of women in politics for the dullness of the present election campaign, the weekly social paper Truth to-day joins with its daily contemporaries in commenting on the lethargy of the electorate. With a suspicion of a regretful sigh for the old days the paper points out how at least one daily paper has attempted to revive, in a measure at least, the liveliness of a bygone political era by getting rival candidates on the same platform.

"The climax of such fraternal fisticuffs," the paper continues, "was reached when the 'hustings' were set up at Alberta Hall and when after the stalwart Jix (Sir William Joynson-Hicks) and the redoubtable Jim Thomas (Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas) had done battle on behalf of the latterday blues and buffs the two principals and their seconds wound up by joining hands and singing Auld Lang Syne.

Becoming Duller

Truth remarks it is rather curious that with the advance of democarcy elections should become duller and thinks nothing has done more to take the fun out of politics than the enfranchisement of women. "Women" the paper remarks, "taking part in public affairs seem possessed of a deadly earnestness rarely attained by male politicians. A consciousness of this fact must weigh heavily on the minds and spirits of masculine politicians at election times.'

Something similar was said by Major J. W. Hills, Conservative candidate in Ripon where 33,000 out of 55,000 electors are women. "Since the war" he said women have changed more than men. They seem to perceive the essential pith and reality of political questions more clearly than men who are still, perhaps, inclined to regard politics as something apart from ordinary life.

EXPERTS PRESENT DRAFT REPORT IN MODIFIED FORM TO GERMANS

If Total Has Been Changed Fear Is Expressed That There Will Be Complete Refusal.

PROLONG DAWES PLAN.

Next Move Will Be Up To Dr. Schacht and His Associates.

PARIS, May 22—(Canadian Press) A modified draft report agreed upon by the reparations experts of the allies' views was transmitted to Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, chief of the German delegation this afternoon.

Chief interest in reparation circles centred on whether the creditor nations' draft report made any changes in the total of annuities to be paid by Germany in addition to the reservations made on several of the German conditions to acceptance of the figures proposed by Owen D. Young. From all information available it appeared likely that the Germans would reject the report if there were any changes in the total of annuities.

A talked of scheme to prolong the life of the Dawe's Plan after August when the fifth annuity year ends also would be rejected by Dr. Schacht if it were included in the modified report in the opinion of responsible circles.

With the receipt of the draft report setting forth the views of the creditor experts, the next move is now again up to the Germans who had been waiting for more than a week for the allied delegations to act.

The Germans probably will take a day or two to study the new situation although they have been kept informed all along in a general way of the progress of the negotiations among the creditor experts and, if, as has been stated on good authority, the creditor decisions involve a change in annuities which will mean increased payments by Germany, they will be rejected, it was said in German quarters this morning.

Satisfy Small Creditors

The creditors in order to find means of satisfying Belgium and other smaller claimants hit upon the expedient of applying parts of the reparation receipts under the Dawe's Plan to the new reparations annuities under the plan proposed by Mr. Young.

It is understood they assume the Germans will pay under the Dawes Plan until the end of the year. By applying the surplus over the young annuities to the newn repartitio among the creditors they were able to find the sums lacking to satisfy everyone.

The Germans contend however that the Young plan should be considered as applying to all the rest of the year from April and say that the ywill not accept any proposal that would involve any other system which they feel disadvantageous.

United States Customs Officer Declares Conditions at Detroit Have Changed.

"THING OF THE PAST."

Special Men Are Being Trained For Important Border Post.

DETROIT, Mich., May 22 (C.P.).—Carey D. Ferguson, United States Collector of Customs at Detroit, today denied assertions of laxity and insincerity of border patrol officers in their handling of the liquor smuggling problem as made by W. D. Euler, Canadian Minister of National Revenue, in the House of Commons at Ottawa yesterday.

He agreed, however, that the thwarting of rum runners is primarily the concern of the United States.

The Detroit River is more dangerous for rum runners to-day than it has been for years and landing of liquor at Detroit within sight of the Customs House is "a thing of the past," Mr. Ferguson declared. Mr. Euler's assertions of laxity of the border patrol are directed at the organization of the past," he said. "To-day we have men appointed after a Civil Service examination, men trained in a Customs school before coming to Detroit, and men of a much higher calibre than we had in the past," he stated.

Hon. W. D. Euler Charges U. S. Is Not Making Attempt to Stop Traffic.

POLICY IS CRITICISED.

Vessels Land Cargoes Within Hundred Yards of Customs Officers.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 22.—(Canadian Press).—The Government of Canada is not disposed at present to accede to the request of the United States that clearance be denied to liquor shipments destined for that country. The door, however, is not closed, and the Dominion Government is ready to give consideration to such representations as it may receive on this important matter.

The attitude of the government on the question of refusing clearance to liquor cargoes was indicated in the House of Commons yesterday by Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of National Revenue. Mr. Euler spoke in reply to speeches by J. S. Woodsworth, Labor member for Winnipeg North Centre, and others in the Progressive and U. F. A. ranks in which the statement was made that Canada was guilty of an "unfriendly act" in not acceding to the United States request. Demand for government action on the matter has been indicated by the presentation of numerous petitions during the session requesting the refusal of clearance to liquor shipments.

No Serious Attempt to Enforce Law

Mr. Euler gave to the house instances which indicated that the United States, has not, as yet at certain border points made a very serious attempt to enforce its own prohibition laws. He described a trip which he had made as a guest on boarl a boat engaged in the international liquor traffic. This vessel was under sight of the United States port for which she was bound during the entire duration of his trip. While in Detroit, he had spoken to bootleggers there, and asked them how it was that their supplies came in an uninterrupted stream across the river, day or night. He asked where the United States revenue officers were that they did not prevent the trade.

"It just happens that they are not

THREE BODIES STILL MISSING

WORK IS DANGEROUS.

Dragging operations have continued unceasingly since last Sunday when three lives were lost in the Otonabee river at Lock's Dam, but have not yet revealed any of the bodies of the drowned victims.

To-day there were plenty of volunteers to handle the drags and the punts, but at times there were lacking men who were able to handle the motor boats which held up the work at times to-day.

The height of the water and the swift current still make the work dangerous and difficult and it is next to impossible to approach the fall of water or to get the drags near the bottom in the current and where, to many, the bodies are still believed to be located.

VICTIMS OF DROWNING

Jumping overboard when their disabled outboard motor boat was drifting down the Otonabee river dam here on Sunday last, three members of a party of six were carried down the slide to their deaths in the rapids below. The three who were drowned are: (1) Richard Bell, 25; (2) Annie Lucas, 23, and (3) Alex. Scobell, 29. Bell and Miss Lucas were to be married next month.

Suspect Arrested At Morrow Home

Wanted To Speak To Flier

Mysterious Stranger Held in Connection With Blackmail Plot.

SEARCH FOR WOMAN.

Sister of Fiancee Threatened With Death in Letter.

NORTH HAVEN, Me., May 22. — (Canadian Press).—This island, where nerves have been on edge for 24 hours following reports of a plot on the life of Constance Morrow, was thrown into excitement at midnight last night by the arrest of a mysterious stranger from Mexico City.

The man, who had attempted repeatedly to reach the Morrow home, where Col. Lindbergh, his fiancee and the women of the Morrow family are staying, was held as a suspicious person. Residents here say that it is the first time in 200 years that a person has been held on that charge.

The man said that his name is Robert Tondera, that he is an inventor and aviation mechanic and that he has a mission to see Col. Lindbergh. Asked why he picked out the noted flier, the man said that he wanted to reach "the highest man in the business."

Tondera arrived here on the 1.30 p.m. boat from Rockland, Monday. He carried a "little black bag," and his actions quickly attracted the attention of the guards around the Morrow house and the local police.

Finally, after his actions had become more and more suspicious, and he had tried again and again to reach the Morrow home, it was decided to take him into custody.

Search of his bag revealed nothing more suspicious looking than a passport and extra clothing, but it was decided to hold him temporarily at least, and Constable Haskell took him into custody.

LLOYD GEORGE CLAIMS ROAD FUND RAIDED

CHURCHILL ASSAILED.

Hills of Wales Are Beautiful, But Roads Are Not, Meeting Learns.

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

PEMAENMAWR, Wales, May 22—Back in his own division of Carnarvon, Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George passed sentence on Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, last night. In a fighting speech replete with humor and dramatic incidents, he also elaborated on the need for a greater road system, in the building of which he hopes to solve the unemployment problem, if he is given power to do so.

The Liberal leader first charged the Chancellor with raiding the road fund of $150,000,000, garnered by taxation of motorists and the like, because "He had so mismanaged the finances of the treasury that he could not get the money any other way."

Causes Much Merriment

"I will tell you what I would like to do with Mr. Churchill," he added with dramatic gesture. "I would condemn him for a whole month to push a perambulator along a road without any footpaths." And the idea of the versatile Chancellor of the Exchequer pushing a baby carriage along a busy motor road without sidewalks for a month so delighted the crowd that it was some minutes before he could continue his address.

As he talked of the need for roads, Lloyd George burst into a lyrical description of the hills of Wales. He loved them alike in sunshine or in storm; in their splendor, their glory and their sublimity, "They can be so beautiful," he said, "and they can be so terrible. I love them in all their moods.

Must Be Good Roads

"But there must be good roads instead of twisting, turning lanes which can not be made into good roads because there is no cash in the road fund."

He had a challenge for the Prime Minister as well. He demanded Premier Baldwin to name just one expert in electricity, telephones or road-making, who would be willing to come out and condemn the Liberal scheme for reducing unemployment. He also questioned whether the Prime Minister had sought the opinion of Sir Henry Maybury, the greatest English authority on roads, as the Conservatives had declared. "Has he done it?" Mr. Lloyd George queried. "He dare not do it," someone in the audience shouted. "If he asks Sir Henry's opinion and publishes it before the election," the Liberal leader returned, "I will stand by Sir Henry's authority."

CHOPPED DOWN WALL.

Woman Being Guarded Pending Return Home of Her Sons.

WINDSOR, Ont., May 22.—(Canadian Press).—Police last night uncovered what they believed to be one of the most important wholesale liquor caches in the city when they raided a garage at the rear of the home of Mrs. Mary Bezean. The seizure comprised 100 quarts of assorted export liquor and 50 cases of government contraband beer.

Customs police, led by Sergt. William Neale, did not locate the contraband until they had chopped down the rear wall of the garage. The liquor had been concealed cleverly behind a built-in section which opened by manipulation of a secret panel, controlled by a string at the front exit.

An officer is guarding Mrs. Bezean, 62, at her home pending the return of her sons, the reputed operators of the "plant." She will be locked up ultimately if they do not return, Sergt. Neale said.

IRISH GIRLS GO TO POLLS

Election is Being Held For Northern Ireland Parliament To-day.

MANY VOTING.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, May 22.—(Canadian Press.—Great excitement prevailed in thousands of Ulster homes today as for the first time in the history of the British Isles "flappers" were enabled to vote.

Kathleens, Millies, and Kitties took advantage of their privileges and while mothers looked on patronizingly, having experienced several elections, the girls with only a dissatisfied glance at the weather, which tabooed flimsy attire, hurried to the polling stations before going to work.

Probably the one to benefit most from extension of the womens franchise was Joseph Devlin in the Belfast Central constituency. He is the idol of the Falls Road mill girls who have flocked by the thousands to his street parades and has already been returned unopposed to the Imperial parliament.

The election excitement was particularly keen in Belfast where there were 13 contests. The elections were for the Northern Ireland parliament only, the Imperial parliament elections taking place May 30, just as in the remainder of Great Britain.

PROTEST RULE OF DR. SHIELDS AT DES MOINES

Baptist Ministers at Seat of University Oppose Present Leaders.

REPLY IS MADE.

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 22 (C.P.) —Baptist ministers of Des Moines yesterday adopted a resolution saying: "We are not at all in sympathy with the present management of Des Moines University and cannot lend our sympathy, co-operation or encouragement to the future of the college under the present regime."

The resolution said the ministers believed the school should not continue under the management of Dr. T. T. Shields, president of the board of trustees. The trustees dismissed all members of the faculty, effective June 4, following a board meeting, May 11, at which Dr. Shields and Miss Edith M. Rebman, secretary of the board, were exonorated of charges against them.

The ministers said: "We deplore the unjust and un-Christian treatment accorded Dr. H. C. Wayman, president of the University, the faculty, and the students by those now in control."

TORONTO, Ont., May 22 (C.P.)— Baptist ministers of Des Moines never have done anything for the Baptist University there," was the reply last night of Rev. Dr. T. T. Shields, president of the board of trustees, to the resolution adopted yesterday by Des Moines clergymen condemning his management of the university.

"That resolution does not affect the situation at all," said Dr. Shields. The Baptist ministers of Des Moines never have done a single thing for the university. All of them but two are modernists and have been in opposition to the university under our management since the beginning. They belong to the old regime which led the university to bankruptcy. It would be impossible for them to have done less than they have done for the institution."

United Church Ministers In Toronto Stage Heated Discussion Over Use Of Tobacco

TORONTO, Ont., May 22—(Canadian Press)—Stormy scenes developed here yesterday at a meeting of the Toronto Centre Presbytery of the United Church over the adoption of a report by a special meeting on the use of tobacco by ministers

Heated discussion took place regarding a section of the report which read: "That the Christian character of those who regard the use of tobacco as an innocent gratification should not on that account be impugned."

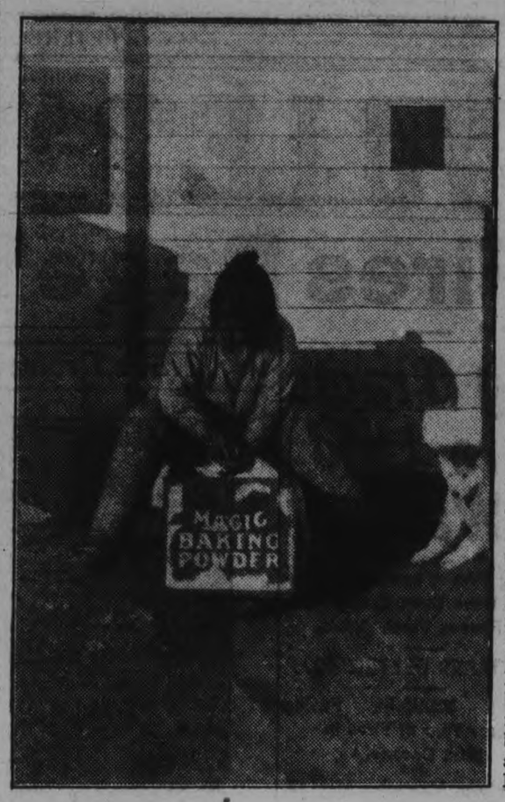
Dr. J. Mc. D. Kerr started the controversy by seeking to move a resolution denouncing the use of tobacco and objecting to the adoption of the committee's report.

"I cannot accept Dr. Bland's report" sail Dr. Mc. D. Kerr, "for it implies that the use of tobacco is an innocent gratification. I do not believe it is. I think it is a wasteful habit."

The resolution was later adopted as a separate item.

"Simillia" is an Eskimo Belle

She lives near the North Pole



THE accompanying illustration is reproduced from a snapshot taken at Grace Harbor, Ellesmere Island, in the Arctic Circle, about eight hundred miles south of the North Pole.

"Simillia" is the name of the young Eskimo woman, and she is busily engaged in scraping away the fat from the inside of a sealskin, with a young "Husky" looking on with great interest.

No doubt the fat has long since reached Simillia's inside and the sealskin itself at this moment adorns her outside, for it is apt to be a trifle chilly up near the North Pole. You observe, of course, that her work-bench is a Magic Baking Powder shipping box. From this it may be deduced that the people at Grace Harbor like to eat some toothsome tea biscuits and cakes and rely upon good old Magic Baking Powder to make them light and wholesome.

The popularity of Magic Baking Powder in every part of Canada is astounding. But there is the very best reason for it—quality. It contains just three ingredients—Phosphate, Starch and Soda — the very finest grades of each, expertly blended. No alum. No adulterants or "cheapeners" of any kind, and the quality is always uniform. Naturally, people residing far from the busy haunts of men, away up in the Arctic regions, take no chances when they buy baking powder. They buy the kind that is absolutely reliable — MAGIC BAKING POWDER.

THREE HOLD-UP SUSPECTS ARE ARRESTED IN LONDON

Forty Members of London Church Euchre Club Lined Up Along Wall.

WOMAN ONE OF TRIO.

Vagrancy Charges Are Laid Against Three While Police Investigate.

LONDON, Ont., May 22.—(C.P.)—Russell Burch, 22; Parke C. Thomas, 38, American, living in this city, and Mrs. Pearl Ryckman, 23, this city, are held on a week's remand on two charges each, while local police and detectives are conducting a thorough investigation into the hold-up which took place at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church hall at York and Lyle street Monday night. Nearly forty men members of the euchre club of the church were backed against a wall in the basement by three masked bandits, who demanded their money. Burch is at present charged with being drunk, and a vagrant; Thomas is held on the same counts; while Mrs. Ryckman is held on a nominal charge of vagrancy and with being in possession of a gun. The vagrancy charges were laid against the trio, in City Police Court yesterday morning by Crown Attorney Albert Judd.

Although the three were arrested shortly before 11 o'clock Monday, at the corner of Dundas and Wellington streets, there was nothing brought out in court this morning that implicates them with the parish hall job. They are being held on suspicion, while the investigation is being continued.

there when we go across," was the reply he received.

Assisted by Officers.

Liquor vessels, he declared, landed their cargoes within a hundred yards of the United States customs offices in a certain city where they dock, Mr Euler told the House.

Sometimes it took them three hours to unload their illicit cargoes. They had actually been assisted by officers of the "Dry Squad."

"One of the arguments against this question,' said Mr. Euler, referring to the request for refusal of clearances, "is that the problem which the United States is now experiencing is one of their own making and that we are not primarily responsible. The second argument is—using the words of the man on the street—'Let the United States enforce their own law.' In the light of the statements which I made this afternoon, in connection with the lack of effort on the part of the United States to enforce their own law, I think that attitude is a very human and fairly reasonable one, and that we might at least go slowly until we have some assurance and some evidence that they are trying to do for themselves what they are now asking us to do for them."

The Minister pointed out the difficulties which inevitably arose when a country with an absolutely prohibitory law was located next door to one which permitted the manufacture and sale of liquor. He expressed doubt as to whether refusal of clearances would result in stopping the flow of liquor into the United States. He pointed out that if Canada was to amend the customs law so as to refuse clearances of liquor shipments, this country would require a new and larger preventive force n order to enforce the law.

Hon. H. H. Stevens (Conservative, Vancouver Centre), described the conditions with respect to the non-enforcement of the prohibition law by the United States, as indicated by the minister, as "appalling." If this was the way the anti-smuggling treaty which provides for notification by Canada of liquor shipments, was being dealt with by the United States, Mr. Stevens suggested that Canada should abrogate the treaty.

Policy Condemned

The practice of collecting an excise tax of $9.00 on every gallon of liquor shipped to the United States was condemned by Mr. Stevens. By collecting this tax Canada, in his opinion, became, to a certain extent, a partner in the business. Last year the Dominion had collected $7,800,000 on liquor smuggled into the United States. Mr. Stevens pointed out that no excise tax was retained on liquor shipments to other countries, and he advocated similar treatment for the United States. By removing the tax the profits of the liquor smuggler would be cut.

The matter was still under discussion when the House adjourned at eleven o'clock.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 22.— Slight advances at the opening of yesterday's wheat market were wiped out around mid-session when wheat values slumped 2 cents. The market was unable to regain much ground and at the close quotations were 1¾c to 1 5-8c. lower for the day. A declining corn market at Chicago resulted in selling here, sending prices to lower levels. Prices were unchanged in the cash wheat section. Trading was not very heavy.

Demand for oats continues good, but prices failed to respond, remaining fractionally lower throughout. Flax and rye values were fractionally lower. Barley, which was in good demand, held firm.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Bids were 50c lower for the week on all grades.

Hogs were steady at $12.75 F.O.B. for selects or $13.75 off car.

Spring lambs were steady at $5 to $14 each.

Sheep were steady at $8 to $9 a cwt. for the best.

Receipts 2950; trade slow.

Heavy beef steers $10.50 to $11.50.

Butcher steers, good to choice, $10.75 to $11.50.

Butcher cows, medium $7 to $8.50.

Calves, good to choice $12.50 to $14.

Hogs, select $13.75.

Good ewe lambs $15 to $15.50.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 22. — Widening of the Congressional breach over the export debenture plan, together with flattening out of demand from buyers, put wheat values on the down grade yesterday. The drop in prices carried July wheat to below any quotation which that delivery had heretofore touched this season.

Unsettled at Close.

At the finish, wheat was unsettled, ¾c to 1⅝c to 1½c net lower; corn, 1¼c to 1⅝c down; oats, 1½c to ¾c off; and provisions exactly unchanged.

Word from Washington that for the second time within 48 hours representatives of the Senate and House had disagreed concerning the export debenture method of farm relief, and that the split to-day had intensified, became public here at a time when the wheat market was about bare of any offers to buy. Upturns which prices earlier had scored were quickly more than wiped out, and for a while during the final hour the market showed a maximum setback of nearly 3c a bushel, compared with the day's top figures. At the last, however, something of a rally was in progress.

Feeble Export Trade.

Persistent feebleness of export call for wheat from North America operated as a noticeable bearish factor, especially in view of a prospective burdensome carry-over of supplies at the end of the season, July 1, and because of apparent likelihood of increased accumulations soon from the harvest of the new domestic winter crop. Throughout a good part of the day, however, offerings of September and December deliveries of wheat were readily absorbed by commission houses, December in particular. In some quarters, this temporary enlargement of buying was linked with assertions that prevailing prices of United States wheat certainly do not represent anything for the farmers' labor, and that a situation of this kind cannot continue.

Corn Is Easier.

Better weather for corn planting, and in particular no rain overnight in Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, and Iowa, led to active selling in the corn market yesterday, and to a consequent downward swing of prices right from the start. Oats eased owing to sympathy with corn.

Provisions were somewhat firmer early, but reacted later, influenced by declines, both in grain and in the value of hogs.

SIDELIGHTS ON ELECTION

(By Canadian Press.)

LONDON, May 22.—If the present spell of glorious weather holds for long, many candidates are going to regret the amount of money spent in advance on the engagement of public halls. Thanks to the loud speaker systems, much larger audiences can be addressed and with less expense in the open air.

It is already certain that in the majority of ridings the votes will be counted on Friday, May 31, the day after the election. nI many places application has been made, and granted, for polling until 9 p.m., instead of 8 p.m.

Sir Boyd Merriman, Solicitor-General, at that great steel centre of Middlesbrough, last night claimed the benefits of the government's "derating" scheme were already visible in the revival of the iron and steel trade.

An interrupted but most enjoyable meeting was held by Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in his own constituency of Epping last night. He denounced the 1926 general strike as an atrocious and unconstitutional outrage, and there were storms of shouting. He asserted he had never said the blame was all on one side in the coal strike. An interrupter chimed it: "If it hadn't been for you it would never have happened."

ASKED TO SPEAK TO LINDBERGH

manding $50,000 under penalty of death were received a week ago by Constance Morrow, 15, daughter of Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, and prospective sister-in-law of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. It became known last night that the police were searching for a Massachusetts car in which a woman lingered near the spot in Westwood where the money was to have been deposited.

Detectives, aided by the town police of Westwood and Dedham, have been working quietly on the case ever since the first of the two letters were received by Constance at Milton Academy, where she is a student.

They were convinced a woman was responsible and that she was the same one who had made similar demands on the parents of Frances St. John Smith, the parents of Kenneth Rawson, who went to the Arctic with McMillan; Mrs. Curtis Guild, widow of the former governor of Massachusetts; Mrs. Charles Summer Bird, political leader; Mrs. Larz Anderson, a widow of the former ambassador to Switzerland, and several others.

The woman always incloses the last verse of a poem in which parents bid farewell to their loved ones, and leads up to threats of torture.

Colonel Lindbergh took his fiancee's "kid sister" to North Haven the day before the extortioner's ultimatum expired. Meanwhile a Cambridge girl, impersonating Constance Morrow and resembling her closely, was around the academy grounds. Next day she drove over the prescribed route to Dedham for the rendezvous. Before she arrived, however, the woman had gone.

The woman never has carried out the threats and, despite long vigils and continually prepared traps has remained uncaught nearly four years.

During that time she has caused great alarm in many families. Her threats always have been the same. She has demanded a deposit of ransom at the same point in the lonely Westwood road, but each time has failed to appear.

SIXTY PHYSICIANS ATTEND CONVENTION

U. S. Osteopath at Preston Convention Comments on Epilepsy Treatment.

PRESTON, May 22.—With members of the Western New York Osteopathic Society as guests, the twenty-eighth annual convention of the Ontario Association of Osteopathic Physicians, of which Dr. V. G. Hilborn, Preston, was President for the past year, was held here recently. A series of addresses touched on work vital to osteopathic interests. Close to sixty physicians were present.

Dr. Hilborn was returned to the Presidency for the second term. Dr. Hubert J. Pocock, Toronto, was returned as First Vice-President; Dr. R. G. Ashcroft, Kingston, Second Vice-President, and Dr. A. R. Harker, London, Secretary-Treasurer. Dr. G. F. Elliott, Toronto, was nominated delegate to the American Osteopathic Association next month in Des Moines.

Prominent among those present from a distance were Dr. W. H. Conklin, Battle Creek, Mich., who has been collaborating with the Rockfeller Institute in the treatment of gastric diseases and epilepsy, and who has also been identified with work at Harvard University and the New York Presbyterian Hospital; Dr. E. O. Millay of the Medical Arts Building, Montreal; Dr. Learner and Dr. Stouffer of Buffalo.

Dr. Sutton, Hamilton, spoke on diet and food combinations; Dr. Moyer, Hamilton, outlined electric therapeutics, while Dr. Routledge of Chatham spoke on hay fever and asthma.

After luncheon the delegates accepted an invitation to the Preston Springs Hotel, where they were given a special exhibition of X-ray work.

"Epilepsy cases", Dr. Conklin stated, in an iterview, "are treated a great deal by fasting. In common cases, the patient fasts from 25 to 28 days with nothing but water, while in exceptional cases the fast extends from 35 to 38 days. The average fast is 26 days. During the time of fasting, patients are usually up and around. We are having wonderful success with this scheme, although we handle only several classes of epilepsy. This includes about 60 per cent. of all epileptics Out of that 60 per cent., and there are a million known cases in the United States, while there are probably a million cases that are not known, we produce a normal person in 55 per cent. of the cases, while we give relief in 90 per cent. of the remaining cases. These reports are based on over 600 cases that have been out of my hands now more than two years.'

Cancer patients in Australia who received radium treatment have improved, which caused the Health Ministry to announce that its $500,000 radium purchase last year has been justified.

YOUTH IS GIVEN FIVE YEAR TERM

Robert McLaughlin Sentenced For Participation in Cottam and Leamington.

FACES ANOTHER CHARGE.

WINDSOR, Ont., May 22. (C.P.).—Ralph McLaughlin, 23, one of three border youths who attempted to hold up a Detroit policeman near London on the night of May 1, yesterday in Sandwich Police Court was sentenced to five years in Portsmouth Penitentiary for participation in robberies in Cottam and Leamington on April 1.

McLaughlin appeared for sentence to-day, as he had pleaded guilty to the two charges a week ago following his arrest in Detroit. He was sentenced to two years for the Cottam robbery, and to three years for the one in Leamington. The sentences are to run concurrently.

The young bandit took his sentences calmly, but his mother who was in the court room when Magistrate W. A. Smith imposed the penalties, almost collapsed, and had to be assisted from the room.

McLaughlin must also stand trial in London for the attempted robbery of the Detroit policeman, Dilworth McClellan—an attempted stick-up in which one of his accomplices, Robert Schacht, was killed by the officer, and the other, Leo Desroches was seriously wounded.

SOME THINGS WE COULD ADOPT.

The British election campaign as it draws near its itably in this country.

close furnishes some lessons that could be adopted prof-

In the first place, the campaign has been a comparatively short one—and that is an example that might well be followed in political fights in this country.

And, then, although there are plenty of speeches—necessarily so since over 1,700 candidates are in the field—but the majority of them, judging from the cabled reports, are not lengthy—an improvement in this respect over the average Canadian political speech.

There is another difference, inasmuch as the leaders especially seem able to inject something new into each speech—a fresh phrase that catches the ear of the hearer or the eye of the elector who reads the newspaper reports.

In short, the addresses of the British leaders are real news, because they represent the breaking of new ground.

Too often in Canadian campaigns the same set speech with local trimmings is made to serve the purpose.

A DANGEROUS PRACTICE.

The Examiner has no desire to take the joy out of life for the small boy who is planning his Victoria Day fireworks display, but a word of warning in regard to those particularly violent firecrackers known as "Salutes" would seem to be necessary.

In the first place, the use of these explosives by children calls for careful handling, for they are decidedly dangerous toys for youngsters to play with under any circumstances.

In the second place, the manner in which these explosives are flung about the streets by boys old enough to know better, sometimes indeed by adults, should occasion police activity.

A "Salute" of this type might quite easily blind a person or cause other serious injuries, and there is no reason why the reckless and promiscuous use of these powerful firecrackers should be permitted.

The police should deal with this dangerous practice by charging the first offenders they catch at it with disorderly conduct.

Fireworks carefully handled are one thing, but dangerous explosives thrown recklessly in crowded streets are quite another—and the thing should be stopped before there is a serious accident.

THEY DO IT HERE, TOO.

A St. Thomas youth was fined $10.00 in police court the other day for driving his automobile over a length of hose while the fire department were fighting a house fire.

In imposing the fine the St. Thomas magistrate issued a warning to citizens in general who make a practice of racing to fires in their automobiles, often impeding the movements of the firemen and fire apparatus, intimating that fines may be expected if the practise is not discontinued.

A similar warning may not be out of place here, where many motorists seem to feel called upon to rush to the scene of a fire regardless of how much the progress of the firemen may be interfered with in the process.

Nor are drivers any too prompt in obeying the regulation which calls for them to draw to one side of the street when the sirens are sounding in order that the fire apparatus may be able to reach fires without delay.

The St. Thomas case should not be without significance to local drivers who have failed to live up to the ordinances in regard to impeding the progress of the fire department.

The fire apparatus should have a clear road, and at fires there should be no interference with the work of members of the brigade.

380 MURDERS—9 CONVICTIONS.

When some of the statistics in regard to homicides in the United States are considered it is not difficult to see why murder is becoming a major industry over the border.

Recently the City Affairs Bureau of the Republican County Committee of New York published the results of a survey that it has made in this direction, and the results, to say the least, are striking.

A study of official records, the Bureau finds, reveals only seven convictions for murder in the first degree were made out of a total of 300 cases of homicide in New York last year.

These seven convictions, singularly enough, were all obtained in the borough of Brooklyn, and three of the seven were the climax of a joint trial.

The present year has not done any better, for the Bureau reports eighty additional murders during the first three months of 1929 with but one conviction.

In other words, there has been an average of only one conviction for murder for every fifty killings.

And of these eight convicted murderers out of a total of 380 possible some may escape the supreme penalty.

When you contrast that record with the percentage of convictions and executions that are obtained in cases of homicide in Great Britain, there does not seem to be any reason for looking further for the reason for the increase in killings in the United States.

UNIFORMITY OF RULES.

Every motorist will be behind Mayor Cecil E. Jackson in his appeal for uniformity of motor regulations throughout Canada and the United States. One of the difficulties of touring by car is that so many municipalities have their own peculiar quirks of regulating traffic. For instance, at intersections where there is a traffic light and a person wants to turn to the left, there is frequently divergence of opinion as to how it may be done. Some want the driver to come in close to the centre and wait for the chance to proceed; others want the driver to make a wide turn to the outside and wait there. In the case of making a right turn, in some places it can be made against the red light, while in others it is necessary to wait for the green light. And so on it goes. The motoroamer is never quite sure whether he is doing the correct thing or not, and he usually wants to act in accordance with the rules of traffic.

Also there is the vexed problem of signals made with the hand. In many places the accepted code is: left hand and arm out and pointing upwards to turn to the right; left hand and arm held straight out to make a left turn; and left hand and arm held out and downwards to stop. But not everyone knows or practices this code. Hence, confusion is often caused by wondering just what signal is being made by a driver who is doing his or her best to indicate intention.

A uniform system of rules has often been discussed. Much progress has been made to establish some common basis. There is no doubt that the increase in the number of cars and the consequent crowding of the roads demands a code of traffic regulations that will be understood thoroughly by every driver in North America. —Border Cities Star.

THE BRITISH ELECTIONS.

With the British elections less than ten days away, the cables do little to help forecast the result. When the contest first opened and the Baldwin forces were still reeling under a succession of by-election blows defeat for the Conservatives seemed almost a certainty. Lloyd George's spectacular campaigning, the aggressive confidence of Labor, the hostility toward Baldwin of powerful Tory newspapers, the general discontent over unemployment and depressed trade—all these boded ill for the Conservative cause. But as the campaign has progressed the situation has changed.

Mr. Lloyd George's employment policy bombshell, which once looked as though it might have a devastating effect, now looks as though it had been somewhat of a dud. The British electors, taken by and large, are a hard-headed lot, and "L. G.'s" dubious policy, originating with a politician who is less trusted than admired, has not stood up well under criticism. The "Welsh Wizard," of course, is campaigning with all his old verve and nerve, his sword flashing everywhere; but though the multitude hears him and applauds him, it is altogether another matter to vote for him. A brilliant showman, no matter what his politics, is always sure of a crowd.

The picturesque and romantic Laurier could always draw cheers in Toronto, and even in 1917, when his party was decimated, his tour through the country was a triumphal march. So, last fall, with the colorful Al Smith. While Hoover went about the country reading dull essays and being greeted by polite crowds, Smith swept over the land like a conquering hero, the seeming idol of the mob. In his recently published memoirs, Mr. T. P. O'Connor tells that Gladstone in his great Home Rule campaign was everywhere greeted with such tremendous enthusiasm, the Irish party, including Parnell, were certain of the triumph of their cause. Yet when polling came the Liberal party was annihilated at the polls. The truth, in fact, is that in elections tumultuous crowds mean little.

Premier Baldwin, lacking in color, yet possessed of those solid qualities which appeal to Englishmen, may well be making more progress than the spectacular Lloyd George. There is something about Baldwin, some depth of character, some quality of heart and mind, that makes a tremendous appeal. Of the arts of the demagogue, the ordinary and somewhat threadbare tricks of politics, he is entirely free. Chivalrous almost to a fault, of indestructible good temper, he gives the impression that he puts the good of Britain above the gain of his party, and he is entirely incapable of those bitter phases and rancorous attacks upon his opponents which mark the electioneering of Mr. Churchill. Because he knows in his heart, as Churchill must also know, that victory for Labor would hold nothing of calamity for the country, that things under Ramsay MacDonald would go on pretty much as they are, he cannot bring himself to those blood-curdling charges and tales about "Reds" and "Moscow" which are hurled with such abandon by the Chancellor of the Exchequer. As a consequence, he is respected and trusted.

Then, again, Baldwin has the great advantage of a realization by the country that as the Liberals cannot hope to have more than 160 seats, and that it is improbable that Labor can have a majority over all, it might be wiser to give the Conservatives a clear majority than to have a Labor Government that could not govern of itself, but which would be at the mercy of the demands of Lloyd George. What happened in 1923, when the MacDonald ministry was a "Cabinet in custody," is remembered by all.

However, in England, as in all democracies, elections are like horse races. Judging by the cables, and reading the opinions of British newspapers and experts, it is impossible to see a clear victory for the Liberals. That would be almost a miracle. But it is different with Labor. The Labor party is well led, well organized, confident and aggressive; and there is just a possibility that it will win over all. That, considering the England of twenty years ago, would be a tremendous political revolution—but nothing more. Those in this country who think that with Ramsay MacDonald and his followers supreme around Whitehall either the Empire or England would be in peril, can know little of the character of British Labor. Ramsay MacDonald and J. H. Thomas and Philip Snowdon are far from being revolutionaries or Reds.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

There are 1,700 candidates in the British election, and the hat Lady Astor knocked off is another one in the ring.

The Council of the League of Nations may meet in Canada, thus offering a good chance to settle the Kingston-Peterborough baseball disputes.

Premier King insinuates that there may not be a Federal election next year. Well, that's all right with us.

Hon. Robert Forke is said to be slated for a seat in the Senate. He'll be glad of a place anywhere where nobody has any questions about immigration to ask.

The Baldwin family looks to have the best chance. The Premier's son is a Labor candidate, giving the Baldwin family representation in two of the three political camps.

Hamilton is likely to vote on daylight saving. They'll all have it soon.

The Fiji Islanders now own 1,074 automobiles. The day will come when all cannibal tribes will use them instead of spears.—Ottawa Journal.

A Thought

A TEST.

I know by the test of tests, the test William James, the American philosopher, in his "Pragmatism," gives for determining what is Truth—

To wit: Truth is what will work.

For if I go on the assumption that the noblest and purest in me is my true self, I become strong, courageous and happy. I function best as a man. I have better health, saner mind and cleaner love. I grow. I am normal.

And when I get to thinking that my evil nature is the real me, that after all and under all I am unworthy, a coward, a weakling and possibly a scoundrel, this thought operates to make me afraid, to spoil my work, to ruin my happiness and to make me a nuisance to other people.

By the pragmatic test, therefore, I decide that the real me is the best in me—the truth.—Dr. Crane.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE ARE INTERESTED IN OUR FAMILY TREE.

William Jennings Bryan, the great Commoner, opposed the doctrine of evolution. He was fond of repeating, "If any man finds pleasure or pride in tracing his ancestors back to a monkey, he is at perfect liberty to do so. But don't include me in your family tree, because I do not agree with you."

Mr. Bryan's objection that origin determines value. He assumes that if man descended from a low form of life he can't be of much importance. This is a common assumption. All of us are inclined to judge a person by his family tree and his social connections.

The wide-spread interest in geneology and one's family tree is doubtless due to the hope and desire of establishing a claim to greatness on the merit of some dead ancestor who was a celebrity. We are proud to claim descent with some revolutionary hero of the Pilgrims in the Mayflower or some other individual or group prominent in the history books.

Conversely, it is a disappointment not to find at least one noted ancestor in your family tree. A certain woman whose husband had recently amassed a fortune was eager to establish social connections and thought it would help if she could discover some noted personages in her family tree. Accordingly, she employed a geneologist who discovered that several hundred years back, one of her illustrious ancestors was hanged for stealing sheep.

It is difficult for us to get away from the notion that origin determines worth and value and to realize that many important and worth-while people and projects develop from humble beginnings. In a heated argument between two English men, one a Lord and the other a Commoner, the Lord finally jeered at the commoner for his humble ancestry as conclusive evidence of the great difference between them. To this the Commoner replied, "You have demonstrated by your conduct that the nobility of your family ends with you, while the nobility of my family begins with me."

Origin does not in fact determine value. The purest, whitest lilies grow out of the blackest and dirtiest soils. But because people still believe that origin determines value they are interested in their family trees, especially if it has borne celebrity fruit.

While the seeding season is admittedly from ten days to two weeks behind that of other years, farmers located in the central part of Waterloo county have already completed from sixty to seventy-five per cent. of their seeding. Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

CHAPTER XLVI

The storm which had been threatening all day broke in full violence just when Jessica said she thought she ought to be going.

"You'll have to stay the night," Ana said. "There's no help for it. You can have Mollie's room." She broke off with a little shiver realizing that it was no longer Mollie's room. Mollie would never sleep there again; Mollie had gone away with Ralph Mahon.

How could she, oh, how could she!

In spite of her passionate joy there was a restless dissatisfied feeling in Ana's heart. She wished she could have reached her own happy ending by other means. It seemed horrible that only Mollie's tragedy had made it possible; horrible that there would be scandal and gossip. Ana's conventional upbringing still shivered at the thought; she found herself wondering what her aunt would have said as she stood beside Jessica looking out at the pouring rain and flashing lightning. There seemed hardly a second's interval between the crashes of thunder.

The General came in to the room excitedly.

"It's the guns in the sky firing," he shouted. His little face was red with enthusiasm. "Can't we go out and watch the guns fire?"

"Not in this rain," Ana said. "We should be washed away. I expect there'll be a lovely big sea to-morrow," she added by way of consolation. She knew how big waves thudding on the beach fascinated the little General.

"He's not a bit afraid, is he?" the First Prayer said wonderingly. "When I was his age I used to howl the place down if there was a storm.

"He isn't afraid of anything," Ana answered proudly. She went upstairs to get Mollie's room ready. She put away the few possessions Mollie had left behind; none of them were of any value. When she opened a drawer to find room for them she saw Mollie's wedding ring lying there, together with a watch bracelet which Anthony had given her, and which she no longer considered fine enough to wear. So she meant it to be irrevocable.

Ana shut her eyes with a little sick feeling. How could she! how could she? she asked herself again passionately. To leave Anthony for a man like Ralph Mahon; what happiness could she hope to find?

Jessica followed her up the narrow staircase.

"What a tiny room!" she said critically. "You don't tell me that Mollie Hzmbledon slept and had her being here?"

"She hasn't been here very often lately—only for week-ends. She did find it rather small," Ana said painfully.

"It's a duck of a room, anyway," Jessica said. "Gee, just hark at that rain!"

She helped Ana remake the bed.

"I feel quite nice and domesticated," she said complacently. "This is what I should have been doing if—well, if things had gone as I wanted them to go years ago. Love in a cottage! Making my own cakes and pies, instead of mixing poisonous cocktails that ruin one's digestion." She sighed and looked across at Ana. "This is the sort of life you ought to have," she said. "You ought to marry a poor man and have lots of kids, and then you'd be so happy you wouldn't know yourself."

Ana made no reply. She longed to tell Jessica what Mollie had done, but she could not bring herself to do so. Soon Anthony would be here and then everyone would know.

The two girls sat up late talking. The storm went away into the distance and came back again toward morning with renewed fury.

"It's not the end of the world by any chance, I suppose, is it?" the First Prayer asked dolefully. She had come across the tiny landing to Ana's room and the two girls sat together talking in whispers while the General slept on undisturbed.

"Why in the world we need whisper when all the heaven's artillery doesn't wake him, I'm blessed if I know," said the First Prayer cynically. She got up, and with the candle in her hand crossed the room to look down at Hambledon's son sleeping peacefully, his flushed cheek pressed against the pillow.

"It's only people with an easy conscience who can sleep like that," she said enviously. She sighed and came back to Ana. "I wouldn't mind a day or two down here," she said in her blunt manner.

"It gives me a 'good' sort of feeling to be leading the simple life. Could you put up with me for a day or two, or wouldn't Mollie Hambledon like it?"

Ana winced and turned her face away. "Mollie won't mind," she said stiffly. "Do stay if you like—the only thing is that Anthony may be home any day, and then of course he would want his room."

"And then, of course, the Missus will come back, too," Jessica said cynically. "Well, there's no fear of me staying if she's anywhere about. I've only met her once or twice, and I can't bear her!"

"Why not? Isn't it rather an unfair judgment?"

"No. I believe in first impressions. There's nothing in her but vanity. You've known her a very long time, haven't you?"

"We were at school together."

"What made her marry Hambledon? He never had any money, had he?"

"Not a great deal. I think she was just very much in love with him, and didn't mind about money then."

Jessica guffawed.

"Don't tell me! She could never love anyone but herself. You must think of a better reason than that, my dear soul."

Ana made no reply.

The storm seemed to be dying away again but the wind was rising, and it howled round the little cottage and rattled the window frames with frenzied hands.

"I'm glad I'm not at sea to-night," Jessica said suddenly, with a shiver.

Ana's heart contracted. Anthony was at sea— supposing something happened to his ship? Every nerve in her body had been dragged at by a thousand nameless fears ever since she knew he was coming home. Happiness was so often snatched away from people at the eleventh hour. She pushed the thought from her resolutely. Why be a coward now when her goal was in sight? She had borne so much, why be a coward now?

"You look tired out," the First Prayer said bluntly. She regarded Ana with kindly criticism in the wavering light of the candle.

"I'll hop off to bed now the storm is over." She rose to her feet, yawning. "There's a shroud in the candle," she said suddenly.

Ana's face paled.

"I wish you wouldn't say such horrible things," she said sharply.

Jessica laughed.

"You're a bag of nerves, my dear—if you weren't, a little thing like a winding sheet in a candle wouldn't upset you. It's only the draught that blows the wax down one side."

"Yes, I am a bag of nerves," Ana thought, when she was alone again, lying with wide-open eyes staring into the darkness. "As if a candle could possibly mean anything. Don't be a fool, Ana. Go to sleep and dream of something pleasant."

But she could not sleep, though once she dozed a little,only to waken almost immediately with Anthony Hambledon's name on her lips.

"Anthony!"

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S MAY POLE

(Copyright, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Are you going to be very busy today?" asked Uncle Wiggily's wife one morning as the rabbit gentleman finished his breakfast.

"No so very," he answered. "Why?"

"We really ought to have one for the children," went on Mrs. Longears. "I think you could put one up in the yard and they could dance aound it and twine colored ribbons as they do in England."

"What's this all about?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "What do you want me to put up in the yard?"

"A May pole," answered his wife. "Didn't you ever read about them?"

"Yes, I think I have," said Mr. Longears. "You mean a tall pole with a bunch of long ribbons fastened to the top and the children take hold of the lower ends of the ribbon streamers and weave in and out as they skip around the May pole on the ground. Is that it?"

"That's it," said the rabbit lady. "Will you put up the pole and fasten the bunch of ribbons on top?"

"I will!" promised Uncle Wiggily. "And, what is more, I'll stay home instead of hopping off to look for an adventure, and I'll sing a song for the animal boys and girls to march by."

"Not that song about 'Wunnery, twoery ickery Ann!' Don't you dare sing that song!" warned Mrs. Longears, shaking a paw at her husband.

"No, I'll sing a different song," said the bunny gentleman. "But, first of all, I'll see about putting up the May pole."

Out in the yard was an old clothes post standing in a corner near the fence. Uncle Wiggily thought this would do nicely for a May pole.

"But first I must dig a hole," he said.

Now digging a hole was very easy for Uncle Wiggily, as it would have been for any rabbit. They have paws just made for digging, since wild rabbits always dig, or burrow, under ground to make their homes.

So Uncle Wiggily dug a deep hole in the middle of the bungalow yard where it wouldn't spoil any flowers or vegetable beds. And when the hole was deep enough, the rabbit gentleman, with the help of his wife and Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, put the old clothes post upright in it and stamped the dirt around to hold it firmly in place.

"There's your May pole!" said Uncle Wiggily, rather proudly.

"Oh, but what about fastening the bunch of long ribbons on top?" asked Nurse Jane. "The children can't have a May pole dance until the ribbons are fastened on top so they can be twined about it."

"Dear me! I forgot all about that," said Uncle Wiggily. "I should have fastened the ends of the ribbons on top of the pole when it was on the ground, before we set it up in the hole. Now I shall have to get a ladder to climb to the top of the pole. But that will be easier than taking the pole down again."

He found a ladder in his garage, set it up against the pole and then, with a hammer, some tacks and the bunch of long ribbons, up climbed the bunny gentleman.

The top of the pole was flat and quite large enough around so Uncle Wiggily could step off the ladder and sit down while he tacked the ribbons. This he did, making himself comfortable on top of the May pole.

Now while he sat up on top of the pole along came the Skillery Scallery Alligator with the double-jointed tail, and, seeing the bunny high up there in the air, the Alligator laughed to himself and said:

"I'll sneak up and take away that ladder. Then when Uncle Wiggily wants to get down he can't and I'll go get the Bob Cat, who can climb a pole, and he'll catch the bunny. Ha! Ha!"

So the Alligator sneaked up softly and took away the ladder, carrying it off to hide in the bushes. Then the Bad Chap stood near the May pole and loudly shouted:

"Ah, ha! Now let's see you get down, Uncle Wiggily!"

Uncle Wiggily looked and, lo and behold! The ladder was gone!

"Oh! Oh! Oh! dear me!" exclaimed the rabbit.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the 'Gator. "You can't get down and I'm going to bring the Bob Cat, who will climb up and get you!"

But as the Alligator ran away Uncle Wiggily remembered the bunch of long ribbons, reaching to the ground.

"I'll slide down them like a sailor!" said the rabbit. Clasping his paws around the twined-together ribbons Uncle Wiggily slid safely to the ground and when the Alligator came back with the Bob Cat, Mr. Longears had telephoned for the Police Dog, who soon made the Bad Chaps run away.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

THE MY MAN.

He was just a man, like the men you meet,
He lives perhaps on your very street,
Who had a wife, and a darling one.
But thought a wife was to fetch and run.
It was "toast my toast" when the day began,
Perhaps you know of that kind of man,
It was "tie my tie" when he had to dress,
You've seen that sort of a man. I guess.

It was toast my toast when the sun was high,
When the sun went down it was tie my tie.
It was do my this and was do my that,
It was coat or collar or book or hat.
It was toast my toast when the sun came up,
My spoon or saucer or plate or cup.
She longed for rest and she longed for night,
But when it came it was "light my light."

So she sat her down on a certain day
And she wrote a note to the man to say
She had packed her pack and had gripped her grip
And was starting off on a nice long trip.
She said, "Dear Sir, I have packed my pack
For a nice long trip, and I won't be back."
Then she sealed it up, and the words she wrote
On the envelope were just "Note my note."

DISTRICT COUNCIL MEETS IN LINDSAY

Many Attend A.Y.P.A. Meeting In Marsh Memorial Hall.

LAKEFIELD, May 21.—(Examiner Correspondence). — The regular meeting of the Peterborough and district council of the A.Y.P.A. was held on Thursday evening May 16th in the Marsh Memorial Hall, Lindsay, with a large attendance of members. The president, Howard Jordan of Millbrook was in the chair and in the absence of the secretary, Miss G. M. Gray of Millbrook, the secretary of the Lindsay branch, Mr. Cayford Woolley read the minutes and attended to the duties of the office.

Rev. (Canon) C. H. Marsh of Lindsay opened the meeting with prayer and invoked God's blessing on the deliberations of the council. Following the suggestion made at the April meeting, held in Lakefield, a musical program was given, each branch contributing one or two numbers. The program was a success and consisted of several exceedingly well given numbers and it was unanimously decided that the venture was a happy thought.

The following is the program: — Duet, Miss Winifred Payne and Mr. E. Robertson, Lakefield; piano duet, the Misses Lang of Millbrook; solo, Mr. Griffin Young, All Saints, Peterborough; piano solo, Mr. Marshal of St. Johns', Peterborough; piano solo, Miss Graham of Lindsay; duet Messrs. Henry Gray and Gerald Rapin of Millbrook; solo, Miss Winifred Payne of Lakefield.

Canon Marsh gave an address, welcoming the visiting young people feeling that a meeting of this sort was especially appropriate to the Whitsun season.

Rev. Mr. Roberts of Millbrook also spoke this is the first time he has been at a meeting of the local council and he was agreeably surprised as he was not aware that such gatherings were put on by the A.Y.P.A. He felt that they would be a means of good and that the Holy Spirit would fill these young people and make them ambassadors for Christ.

During the summer season there are many temptations to young people to desert the church and he hoped that the members of the A.Y.P.A. would not yield to this but would remain firm for Christ and the church.

When Admiral Togo was told, during the Russian-Japanese war, that the Russians had occupied Manchuria, he had just a mosquito fleet and after three days quietude he addressed his men saying:" For us there is one all absorbing purpose—to bottle up the Russian fleet". This successful effort tended to shorten the war and give the victory to the Japanese. The all absorbing purpose of the church should be to raise the world to higher standards. The A.Y.P.A. has its own definite part to play and is a great asset to the church.

Miss Dorothy Worboy, who is a member of the Dominion Executive, presented the Life Member's ring to Miss B. Graham of Lakefield, who has been made a life member of the A.Y.P.A. by the Peterborough District Council. Miss Graham replied thanking the Council for their generosity and assuring them of her appreciation.

The proposed District Concert was discussed, this will take place during the second week in October.

Mr. John Bent of Omemee gave a report of the Dramatic committee which has arranged the schedule for the contest. The first section will be put on in All Saint's Parish Hall on Monday evening, May 20th, when St. Luke's and St. John's Peterborough and Christ church, Omemee will compete. On May 27th the second section will be put on in Coronation Hall, Omemee. When St. Paul's, Lindsay, St. Thomas, Millbrook, and All Saint's, Peterborough, will compete.

The finals will be given on May 30th in a neutral hall. Mr. Bent paid a tribute to the faithful work of Mr. Bert Graham on the committee.

Mr. N. Nesbitt of Lindsay presented the treasurer's report which showed a good balance on hand.

Mr. T. Simpson of Lakefield asked that the annual district banquet be held in Lakefield in the autumn. It was decided that Lakefield should have the banquet this year.

The next meeting of the council will be held in Millbrook on the third Thursday of June.

Canon Marsh bespoke the prayers of the A.Y.P.A. for the Synod which opens its meeting on May 28th.

A resolution of sympathy in her illness was sent to the secretary Miss Gray with hopes of an early recovery.

The roll call showed the following branches represented. St. Paul's Lindsay 25, All Saint's, Peterborough 15; St. John's Peterborough 6 Christ Church, Omemee 6; St. Thomas, Millbrook, 18, St. John's Lakefield 14.

Following the business the visitors were guests of the Lindsay branch for refreshments which were served at small tables, one for each month of the year. This was a happy idea as it mixed the crowd up and promoted greater fellowship.

NORANDA

At clost of business to-day, Wednesday, trading in Noranda rights will cease on Standard Exchange, Toronto.

West Dome Lake Gold Plans To Reorganize

Owing to the fact that the mine has not been meeting operating expenses since milling was resumed at the beginning of the year, and that more capital is needed for development work, a special general meeting for shareholders of the West Dome Lake Gold Mines, Limited, to be held on May 31, is announced in the annual report of the company. The new company is to have a capitalization of 3,500,000 shares of no par value, of which 1,500,000 shares are to be issued to the present company in payment for their assets, and distributed to the stockholders on the basis of one of the new for each four of the old.

In his report, D. M. McPhail, resident manager, states that work during 1928 was largely confined to the 1,050, 1,200 and 1,325 foot levels on which 2,270 feet of drifting, 693 feet of crosscutting, 266 feet of raising, 136 feet of sinking and 358 feet of slashing was done. On the 1,200-foot level a total length of 630 feet of ore was developed, one lens runing an average of $15.33 to the ton, and the other averaging between $5.12 and $8.26 per ton.

On the 1,050 foot level, drifting was carried east for a distance of 2,800 feet from the main shaft, and considerable exploration carried on by cross-cutting, short drifts and raises. A length of over 450 feet of low grade ore was developed in three shoots, having widths of from 15 to 20 feet in places.

In addition to the underground work, the mill was overhauled, certain changes and improvements having been made which increased the capacity by 25 per cent.

Development work should be continued both east and west on the 1,325-ft. level, the manager advises, and work should be done on two sections of the property that have not as yet been explored.

According to the balance sheet for the period ending December 31, 1928, current assets include: cash, $3,609.46; account receivable, $889.39; balance due on stock subscriptions, $5,250; and freight and express deposits of $300; a total of $10,048.85. Deferred charges, including sundry inventories and prepaid insurance, total $10,895.07. Property, buildings and equipment, $680,454.52. Expenditures for development and production to date, $320,731.81. Other assets, including shares in the Porcupine skating rink company, total $1,985.

Accounts payable amounted to $20,396.62, wages and accrued charges, $4,345.23, a total of $24,741.85. Sundry loans are shown at $34,000.

Dr. J. H. Eastwood was summoned and dressed the wound after which Mr. Welsh went back on the job and is now continuing his work.

LIGHT TRADING TORONTO CURB

Nickel and Hiram Walkers the Only Stocks To Demonstrate Any Activity.

LIST NARROW.

TORONTO, Ont., May 22 (C.P.).—There was no pronounced change in prices on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, when both the list and volume of trading was decidedly narrow. The only stocks to demonstrate any activity at all were Nickel and Hiram Walkers. Nickel got as low as 48½ and then recovered to 49¼, off ⅜, while Walkers improved fractionally to 20¼. The oils were literally dead, with Home the only one to show any definite price movement. Home recovered to 22.75 and then held at 22.00, up 1.25. The others were soggy.

Brazilian and Service Stations both suffered further losses of 1½ points to 53 and 66 respectively, while Hayes Wheels came out two points lower at 60. A few shares of Steel of Canada at 52⅝ and Hamilton Bridge at 53½, changed hands at a loss of 1⅜ points; Cockshutt Plow at 38 and G. S. Wares at 31½ were both a point lower.

NEWS FROM THE MINES

Solloway, Mills & Company Through

Holding 2,900 acres Waite Valley oil structure, lying west of Turner Valley, Richfield Petroleum looms as an important western oil venture. With million no par shares, company has 600,000 issued, quarter of which are free and balanced pooled three to six months. Innerfold Oil leased 1,000 acres from Richfield and has 100,000 cash for drilling. Pay 100,000 shares and 1½% royalty to Richfield for lease and will drill at once. Richfield shares active. Calgary $1.40 to $1.65.

OIL BARGAINS

Reaction due undoubtedly to forced liquidation on costs and Calgary forced some good oil stocks into position where they are regarded as being on bargain counter. With Home 2 diamond drill pushing into limestone, news may come of success any time and general opinion is that all good issues in this vicinity will participate in market activity that seems to result.

CAMBRO MINES

Deal with Bidgood by Cambro means latter turns its ground between Bidgood and Leduc Oro into Bidgood for 1,000,000 shares of Bidgood's authorized six million shares. Cambro will continue existence with about $80,000 cash, investments and supplies, and $20,000 current liabilities. Company has 2,400,006 shares issued.

DALHOUSIE

Dalhousie Oils considered one of Turner Valley's safest speculations. Holds 1,800 acres largely on structure and favorably located. Two wells produced nearly 2,500 barrels in April. Dalhousie No. 1 has produced between 500 and 600 barrels in a single month and is producing very well this month. Company controls Midwest with 80 acres Turner Valley well located. Capitalized 3,000,000 all issued of which Royalite owns 51 per cent. Dalhousie No. 7 spudded in recently. Now down about 200 feet in centre of structure, which is believed to be in best section of Turner Valley.

Stray Livestock Not Allowed On Highways

Traffic Officer Hincheliffe issues a warning that all horses and cattle must be kept off the provincial highways as they are dangerous to traffic using these roads. The narrow escape on Sunday by a Toronto man is evidence enough of the results that might come from this practice. Drivers of horse-drawn vehicles also are warned not to use the highways at night unless the proper lights are carried.

COMMENT ON THE MARKET

A Special Service to The Examiner.

Satisfactory Year for United Fuel Investments

Earnings of $33,445 on 100,000 shares of common stock outstanding are shown in the annual report of the United Fuel Investments, Limited, amounting to approximately 33 cents a share. In commenting on the situation, the management points out that while earnings were not as high as had been hoped for, the company's year, when viewed as a whole, was quite satisfactory. The more gratifying feature from the standpoint of the management was that dividends of $526,689 were paid on the 6 per cent. preferred and that there was some surplus on the common, not for dividend, but still a surplus.

United Fuel Investments is the holding company for the Hamilton By-product Coke Ovens, Limited, and the United Gas and Fuel Company of Hamilton, and the report just issued for the year ending March 31, 1929, represents its first year of operation.

The consolidated balance sheet shows net profits of $560,135, of which $526,689 was applied to the 6 per cent. preferred dividend on the $9,000,000 flotation of one year ago.

Oil Increases in Texas and California.

NEW YORK.—The recommendations of the Federal Oil Conservation Board and the program of the American Petroleum Institute for conservation of oil were so harmonious that oil interests were surprised that the Attorney General disapproved the program, according to C. B. Ames, vice-president of the Texas Company, writing in the Texaco Star.

"It is putting it very mildly," said Mr. Ames, "to say that the industry was surprised to find that a program developed by it in harmony with the recommendations of the Federal Oil Conservation Board was regarded by the Attorney General as an effort on its part to secure immunity from a prosecution under the anti-trust laws, but as the Federal Oil Conservation Board felt, naturally, that it was bound by the opinion of the Attorney General, it was prevented from approving the program of the institute."

Mr. Ames then quoted the answer of the board, which said that, owing to legal inhibitions, the solution appeared one for state action. He continued:

"It thus appears that after four years of effort, during which time the industry, after much study, many conferences, many individual sacrifices and considerable expense, has agreed upon a program, the Federal Oil Conservation Board has found itself unable to approve this program, and has formulated a new one involving a compact between the principal oil-producing States to be approved by Congress, the details of which are not stated further than that "it could well comprise creating a joint board for the purposes of constructive conservation." It will be noted that the industry is not invited to participate in the formulation of this program, but notwithstanding this fact, which may have been unintentional, the institute has advised the board that it stands ready to consider the plan carefully and will appoint committees for that purpose if the board desires it to do so.

"Congress has approved approximately twenty-five interstate compacts, and I believe that without exception these compacts all relate to some subject which no state, acting alone, could control. In the main, these compacts compose boundary disputes or deal with navigable waters on the boundary line between two or more states, or the control of waters in a stream traversing a number of states, or deal with land titles in a state which has been created out of the boundaries of another.

W.M.S. HOLDS MEETING.

Program at St. Andrew's Was in Charge of Mrs. W. G. Nelson.

The May meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S., held in the church parlor yesterday, was in charge of Mrs. W. F. Nelson's unit.

The Bible reading was given from Luke 18 by Miss E. Ferguson, and a devotional leaflet, entitled "The Needle's Eye," was read by Mrs. F. E. Saltman.

Prayer was offered by Mrs. A. H. Allan, after which a solo, "Teach me to Pray," was beautifully rendered by Mrs. Shook, accompanied by Miss M. Flowers.

A very interesting report of the branch meeting held in Sydenham United Church, Kingston, was read by Mrs. J. John.

The earnest missionary address by Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, in which he emphasized our need of real, vital, genuine religion in order that we may send the same to other lands will long be remembered.

GENERAL LIST HOLDS STEADY ON MINE CURB

Session Dull Except For Active Trading in Newbec Issue.

NORANDA DROPS LOWER.

Number of Minor Advances Recorded at Noon Hour Quotations.

TORONTO, Ont., May 22.—(C.P.)—A sudden, heavy demand for Newbec supplied the bulk of trading on an otherwise dull session on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day.

Though Noranda broke 75 cents to 53.00, after touching a low of 52.80, and Hollinger and Ventures were a little easier, the general list was inclined to be steady, and at noon a number of minor advances were recorded. Newbec, in a turnover of more than 225,000 shares, held at the morning's high of 65¾, up 4; points.

Home Oil made a strong recovery to 23.00 with the noon quotation of 21.75, indicating a net advance of 80 cents, while Mayland improved 50 cents to 10.50. The other oils, with the exception of Foothills, which dipped 50 cents to 8.25, were all slightly stronger.

NEW YORK LIST TURNS WEAKER

Result of Federal Reserve Council's Statement Favoring Rediscount Rate Increase.

CALL MONEY STEADY.

(By Stanley W. Prenosil. Associated Press Financial Editor)

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 22.—Acute weakness developed in to-day's stock market as a result of the Federal Reserve Council's statement that it favored an increase from 5 to 6 per cent. in rediscount rates. Prices sold off sharply at the opening; rallied before mid-day under the leadership of the oils on the announcement that President Hoover had called a conference of Western governors to act on oil conservation plans and then turned weak again in the early afternoon. Extreme declines of 3 to 15 points were distributed over a broad list of railroad and industrial shares.

Despite the prospect of higher rediscount rates this week, there was no change in monetary rates. Call money renewed unchanged at 7 per cent. with a fair supply of funds available at that level. There was no change in time money or commercial paper rates, although they are now quoted at the highest levels in years.

LARGE TRACTS ARE LAID WASTE

it was announced that only one of a series of frame cottages had been ruined by the flames; it was stated, however, that Emma Lake, nearby, had been swept by the wind-fanned conflagration.

Men Rushed to Scene

Saskatchewan fires were also reported from Steep Creek and the Candle Lake country along the Torch River, as well as from Pasquia and Fort Le Corne reserves. Squads of fire fighters were despatched to each area, close to one hundred men being hurried to locate the blazes.

Northern Manitoba is laboring under the worst year for forest fires in a decade. According to Patrick Labonte, fire ranger for the Pas. Besides the Ruby Lake conflagration, other Manitoba fires are gaining strength in the Carrot River territory, near the Pas, and near Mile 45. The Labonte squad extinguished a fire at Mile 48 which had covered eight square miles of territory.

A prairie fire north of Stony Mountain carried destruction to one farmer's home, and levelled quantities of hay, but to-day had been fought back to bog land and into submission.

Simple But Puerile.

"Mr. MacDonald's notions are simple but puerile," said Lord Cushendun. "He would very soon find other nations are not quite so ready as he thinks to be either coerced or cajoled. If he had a little more experience he would have enough sense to do exactly as we did.

"Mr. MacDonald, it appears, does not understand there must be unanimity at Geneva. Consequently any one nation by persisting in opposition can prevent any particular proposal from being carried. We therefore, the other day, realizing there must be some give-and-take, announced we would withdraw our opposition to any proposal on which there was general agreement among the other nations. The United States' representative made a precisely similar declaration, which, after all, was only common sense when we were trying to reach an agreement between a large number of independent States."

In Police Court

"Did you ever notice that all men who get along in the world go to church," admonished Magistrate Langley to W. G. Bowman, as he fined him $10 and $4.90 costs for reckless driving on the Norwood road Sunday evening. Bowman was caught in the act by Provincial Officer Thompson, and counsel A. Elliott remarked that had Officer Thompson been at church the speeder would not have been apprehended, when Magistrate Langley replied advising young Bowman to go to church.

A local man was fined $10 and $4.50 costs for being drunk in a public place. Robert Allen, charged with keeping liquor without a permit, contrary to the O.L.A. He pleaded not guilty and the case was adjourned until Monday.

B. J. Rowe was fined $10 and costs for speeding on Water street on Monday evening. E. D. Snelgrove paid $5 and costs for driving over Hunter street bridge at a speed exceeding 15 miles an hour. Chief Newhall issues the warning to motorists that he has placed men on the principal thoroughfares to check up careless and speeding drivers. These were the first to fall prey to their careful watch.

That Mark Pengelly, the official dog catcher, is on the job, and is leading dog owners, who allow their canines to run free, a merry chase, was attested to when he had three dog owners in court. They all paid their fine of $1.

Gerald Higgins, a truck driver, appeared, charged with being intoxicated while in charge of a motor vehicle. He through his counsel refused to plead and asked for a remand until to-morrow morning. Bail was fixed at $500.

DETECTIVE SHOT BY GANGSTERS

Officer Tracking Band of Kidnappers in Chicago is Murdered.

FOLLOWED UP MASSACRE.

CHICAGO, Ills., May 22.—(C.P.) — Detective Sergt. Joseph Sullivan, 28, a member of the squad tracking a band of kidnappers who slew police Sergt. Ray Martin a week ago, and the man who signed the complaint charging "Machine Gun" Jack McGurn with the massacre of seven gangsters three months ago, was shot to death on a west side street.

Two bullets had entered his head and back, his face was bruised and blackened. Evidence police said, that he grappled and fought with his killers. Sullivan had been assigned to the squad investigating the Septuple Moran gang murders on St. Valentine's day. Sullivan had signed the charges against Mc. Gurn at his chief's request. Police however, were not inclined to believe his life was taken in revenge for this act, as Sullivan was merely one of the squad.

TO STABILIZE COPPER TRADE

Curtailment of Output Under Way Seems Adequate For Meeting Situation.

FURTHER BREAK UNLIKELY.

Curtailment of output announced by Anaconda Copper Mining Company, its subsidiaries, Chile and Andes, by Inspiration and Greene Cananea, the cut by United Verde and indicated for Kennecott and its subsidiaries, Nevada and Utah, show clearly that the copper producers feel that price of copper should be stabilized at 18 cents a pound.

This move toward stabilization is the most constructive that has been made in copper in many years. Probability is the other producers will follow suit as it becomes more evident that output should be curtailed. It is therefore fairly certain that stabilization of price will be accomplished at 18 cents in the United States and 18.30 cents abroad.

What the copper industry has needed for years is a stabilization of the price of copper, says the Wall Street Journal. Then officials of the fabricating companies will not have to be wasting their time in trying to guess the ups and downs of copper price, but will be able to devote all of their time and effort to developing new business for their companies. Consumers, if stabilization be effected, also will have a steady price, on which to base their estimates of new projects and the like.

Price of 18 cents delivered for copper is not excessive. It is much higher than producers have obtained for many years, but 18 cents is relatively lower, compared with the pre-war average than in the case of most commodities and of labor.

Some feel that a price of 18 cents a pound for copper will permit substitutions to cut copper consumption appreciably. Others think it will bring in much new production over a period of years.

Where lightness is desirable in Novelties or specialties aluminum must win. Where zinc will answer, and cheapness is important, zinc will be used, whether copper be 15 cents or 18 cents a pound. The real stable consumption of any metal is due to those demands that it fills markedly better than any substitute. The way nickel consumption has expanded in recent years, despite its relatively high cost, shows that price does not hamper expansion in those main fields in which the product is better and price breaks severely again.

For some year copper sold below the pre-war price, while other metals ruled 60 to 70% higher. There appears no reason why copper should not be maintained at 20 to 25% at least above pre-war levels. Producers feel that they alone will be responsible if the price breakrs severely again.

While demand in the United States and Canada have increased greatly, due in good measure to developments in the hydro-electric utility, Europe is many years behind in development of electrical energy. Progress has been made lately however and should a satisfactory settlement of the Reparations question be made now, demand from Europe, which has been running at about 100,000,000 pounds monthly, could easily expand to much larger proportions. Consumption in the United States should continue to average 180,000,000 pounds monthly. Stocks are low now, much lower than they should be normally. Reasonable control of production, now apparently being worked out should maintain operations of copper producers on a highly profitable basis, on the basis of 18 to 19 cents per pound, and at the same time conserve physical resources.

OKALTA

Okalta new stock at $5 looks decidedly cheap. Crew completing casing to top of hole and production might easily be jumped to 500 or 600 barrels any time. Some oil men who have inspected well believe it capable of more than 600 barrels when full recovery is possible. Work on Okalta No. 2 and 3 progressing steadily.

HIGHWOOD

Highwood management planning to submit a proposal to shareholders to increase capital from 200,000 at $5 par to 2,000,000 shares, no par. Each present preferred would be exchanged for twelve new and each common share for eight new. Additional shares of preferred stock would be given to care for an unpaid dividend of 8 per cent for about three years. About 80 per cent of present shares issued with only about 15 per cent estimated on market. Well now definitely in lime at 4,227 feet.

HOME NO. 2

Home No. 2 now thoroughly cleaned out for two feet of new hole past cement and diamond bit is being put into action Thursday so faster progress may be expected.

MIDFIELD

Midfield No. 1 down 1,150 feet. Company owns ten acres adjoining Regent with stock mostly held in Winnipeg.

REGENT

Regent No. 2 spudded in and No. 3 to follow within 30 days. Management pleased with action of new separator on No. 1 well.

SOUTHWEST PETE

Southwest maintains record breaking pace. Down about 3,200 feet Thursday night.

A. P. CONS.

Holding 150,000 or approximately one-fifth of issued stock in Home Oil., A. P. Consolidated would feel benefits of production from Home No. 2 and 3 wells. Present market value of Home shares makes A. P. Cons. worth about 4.40 in addition to its royalties and extensive acreage in Turner Valley and near the boundary. Present price has not discounted big A. P. Con. drilling program and very favorably located acreage.

HOME

In regard Home's first dividend of 20 per cent to be paid June 29 to shareholders of record June 8, transfer book will close June 9.

MINING BRIEFS
A Special Service to The Examiner

Reports from Rouyn continue optimistic as regards Newbec. It is said that conditions on the bottom level appear good and that the management expect to reach the ore in about ten days. The situation now appears to be that two ore bodies, one about 8 feet wide and running 8 per cent. copper, and the other about 20 feet wide and running up to 13 per cent. copper, have been encountered on the 125-foot level. It is now intended to pick up extensions of these two veins on the 250-foot level. One particularly good round is said to have been taken out over the week-end on the 125-foot horizon.

Latest news from the cross-cutting in the Duparquet Mining Company's No. 2 shaft at the 175-foot level shows that free gold was encountered at a distance of 55 feet. The cross-cut is headed to pick up a vein showing on surface and is now in well over 90 feet.

Peterson Lake Cobalt Mines are now said to be making arrangements for a diamond drilling program, to be carried out from the old underground workings. One fortunate feature which will now be of material benefit is that the mine has been kept free of water.

It is now reported from the west that the British Metals will proceed with the Ladysmith Smelter plans for Vancouver Island in spite of the decision of Consolidated Smelters to erect a similar plant. Pacific Tidewater, a subsidiary of the British Metals, is said to have secured the important Gabbro group on Vancouver Island.

The shaft at the Patterson Copper is now said to be down to 500 feet, and a station has been cut at that level. Cross-cutting will start immediately to cut the downward extension of the vein shown on upper levels where a shoot of copper was encountered.

Gold Hill is said to be getting good results in the west drift on the 1,100-foot level. They are now said to have thirty feet of good grade ore. The vein is said to be rather narrow but of commercial grade over stoping width.

The Noranda concentrator is now said to be putting through about 300 tons per day and running well. The amount of copper being lost in the tailings have been reduced to almost negligible quantities and will be still further cut down.

Work on the Premier, the prolific British Columbia dividendpayer, now consists of drifting on some of the veins recently encountered on their Silverado group at a depth of about 600 feet. No information has been given out as to the values found.

It is now reported that Smelters is negotiating for the purchase of the Stemwinder and North Star mines at Kimberley. Some 100,000 tons of silver-lead-zinc ore was developed here in early days, one-fifth of which was mined. Owing to some difficulties encountered in concentrating, the mine was closed and has been idle for the last two years.

TWO WINNERS VISIT OTTAWA

Toledo Children Will Pay Visit to Canada's Capital.

SPONSORED BY E. ODETTE

WINDSOR, May 22.—(C.P.)—Two school children of Toledo, Ohio, will visit Ottawa late in May on the suggestion of Edmond G. Odette, member of Parliament for East Essex. The pair will be the winners of a special contest in the Toledo schools. All students of the public, separate and high schools of that city are writing essays on Canada and the writers of the two best manuscripts will be chosen for the expedition.

When Mr. Odette spoke at a citizens' picnic last summer in Toledo he suggested the pupils should compete in such a manner and he then volunteered to entertain the winner at Ottawa. The proposal was endorsed by the parent-teachers' associations there and a special committee was appointed to arrange the contest. It was decided to extend the scope of the competition to include the high schools. One grade school and one high school student will be chosen.

The contest was suggested by Mr. Odette as a means of implanting in the minds of the students greater and more reliable information of the Dominion.

REDISCOUNT RATE MAY BE 6 PER CENT.

Federal Reserve Advisory Council New Blow at Speculation

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 22. —(Canadian Press).—Advances in rediscount rates by the principal federal reserve banks was forecast in financial circles to-day on the basis of the Federal Reserve Board's announcement that the Federal advisory council had recommended that it permit such banks requesting the privilege to raise their rate to six per cent.

By "thus bringing the rediscount rate into closer relation with generally prevailing commercial money rates" the council's memorandum to the board suggested, "improvement in financial conditions and a consequent reduction of the rates structure will thereby be brought about more quickly, thus best safeguarding commerce, industry and agriculture."

C.W.L. TO MEET AT BORDER CITY

Important Gathering Next Month Will Consider Many Questions.

PROMINENT SPEAKERS

WINDSOR, Ont., May 22 (By the Canadian Press).—Plans are now about completed for the ninth annual convention of the Catholic Women's League of Canada which will be held at Windsor, Ont., June 17-22. Mrs. J. J. Duggan of Edmonton, Alta., the National President, will preside over the session, and already a large number of officers, delegates and visitors representing the four hundred branches of the League have signified their intention of being in attendance. Owing to the central location of Windsor members from the Pacific coast and those from the Maritimes Provinces will find it a half-way meeting place of interest.

The executive will go into session at 9:00 a.m. on Monday June 17, and will continue throughout the day, while the official opening will take place that evening in the Prince Edward Hotel, convention headquarters, when His Grace Archbishop McNeil of Toronto and the Right Reverend M. F. Faloln, Bishop of London, will be among the prominent speakers. Mrs. T. Durocher will voice the greetings of the local body and the Mayor of Windsor will give the civic welcome. Mrs. Duggan will also deliver her presidential address. Very Rev. Dean Laurendeau will open the convention with prayer.

Celebrate High Mass

The following morning High Mass will be celebrated at St. Alphonsus church, Windsor, by His Grace Archbishop Forbes, of Ottawa and in the afternoon of the same day he will address the convention on the problems of higher education.

Sessions on Tuesday will be mostly taken up with business, the reading of reports and the appointment of committees. The evening will be especially devoted to child welfare. Dr. Helen MacMurchy, chief of the children's division, department of health, Ottawa, will give an address, followed by Dr. La Casse of Windsor, speaking in French. Mrs. W. F. B. Parsons, national convenor, will give her report with moving pictures illustrating child welfare work done by league during the year.

On Wednesday morning a requiem service for deceased members will be celebrated at St. Alphonsus church. The league being concerned with immigration problems, the whole of Wednesday evening will be given over to discussing these. Archbishop O'Leary, of Edmonton, Honorary Chaplain of the League, will give an address on British immigration. Other speakers will be Rev. Father Dignan and Rev. Father Daly, the latter to tell of the chain of Catholic Women's League hostels now established from coast to coast. Mrs. A. W. Robertson, Montreal, national convenor will give her report and lead in the discussion.

Girl Guides Work.

The work of Girl Guides in Canada will be the subject of an address by Mrs. Howard Parsons, Toronto, on Thursday at luncheon and Mrs. Wm. Kirwin, Ingersoll, Ont., national convenor will give her report on C.W.L. Girl Guides later in the day. Thursday evening, June 20, will be held the usual convention banquet when several prominent members of the League will speak.

Friday will be given over to various reports by national convenors, Mrs. J. M. Lyons, Ottawa, on finance; Mrs. Donald Fraser, Chatham, N.B., on national scholarship; Miss Sara Tansey, Montreal, and Mrs. Frank Dynes of Edmonton, on organization. Miss Lillian Gough, Toronto, and Miss Ethel MacDonald of Calgary will report on junior organization.

Among the luncheon speakers each day are Mrs. J. Viger Sullivan, Amherstburg, N.S., and Mrs. Edward Skae, president of the League of Catholic Women, Detroit, Mich. The convention will be the guests of the latter at the tea hour on Tuesday at their new million dollar Activities Building in Detroit.

The C.W.L. members of the Border Cities have proven indefatiguable in their plans for hospitality and several social events will be a feature. The convention will be brought to a close on Saturday morning with election of officers and the appointment of the next place of meeting.

RE THE "KEENE ROAD."

To the Editor:

Dear Sir,—The last letter of the Critic referring to such road seems to adequately verify the impression that he is an instrument at the instance of another person.. He states that the "Grader has not been over the road this season," which is not correct. The grader has been used right along on all maintained roads, and the road in question the same as others.

He seems to clamor for a return of conditions that obtained some years ago probably when his prompter had a finger in the pie. There is no use in referring him to take the "Edison" invention as to a shedding light, when if he lives near or has been over the road, he would not say the grader has not been used this season. His eyesight must be beyond artificial assistance. He would be well advised if he and his prompter are in earnest, to join with his prompter and form a joint stock company in order to finance the following wager, namely: That he and his prompter forfeit $10 for every satisfied ratepayer that lives adjacent to the road from Keene to Peterborough, and that he and his prompter be paid $10 for every dissatisfied ratepayer living adjacent to said road.

Come across THIS is not a "DREAM."

SPECIAL SERVICES IN UNITED CHURCH

Cobourg Presbyterial Observes Last Sunday As Special Day For Missionary Support.

MILLBROOK, May 22.—(Examiner Correspondence). — The United Churches of the Cobourg Presbyterial observed Sunday, May 19, as a field day for the special purpose of presenting the support of maintenance and missions on the various congregations, an exchange of pulpits being arranged among the ministers, and throughout the Presbytery seven returned missionaries spoke of the work of the kingdom on home and foreign fields in a number of the churches.

On the Millbrook charge the pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, exchanged pulpits with the Rev. E. Swayne, of Fraserville, the latter preaching here morning and evening, and taking the work at Fallis Line in the afternoon.

At the morning worship Rev. Mr. Swayne chose as his text, John 1:9, "That was the true light which lighteth every man that cometh into the world," pointing out that John, in his gospel, goes back beyond Genesis as he shows that redemption was in God's mind even before creation.

"The statement 'which lighteth every man' comes to us rather as a surprise, for we are likely to think it is only good people who have this enlightenment, but God's love is broader than our conception of it, and He does not so limit Himself. The fine ethical principles of non-Christian religions are evidence of this enlightenment, and while there are people who apparently are living in total indifference to the light of the world, yet in time of stress and sorrow this knowledge will probably be their main source of reliance."

The tragedy of receiving benefits from God and leaving Him wholly unrecognized was dealt with briefly as an approach to the question of the bigness of the missionary problem and the wide field in which the United Church serves with six hundred missionaries, fifteen thousand helpers and a constituency of 32,000,000 people. "The mistakes made at home have not been repeated on the mission fields, for at the outset there was an agreement to prevent overlapping, hence rivalry has been abolished and the work is centred wholly on the kingdom and its interests."

The hunger of the world for Jesus Christ was emphasized, the restlessness of the age being an evidence of the cry for peace, such as He alone can give, going out from souls starving for the bread of life.

Because of material resources and blessings, the speaker believed that gratitude should lead Canada to be the premier missionary nation of the world. "Sharing our knowledge of Christ with others means spiritual enrichment and growth in our own lives, while selfishness will bring only loss and will disqualify us for the enjoyment of Him both here and hereafter."

The sermon concluded with a strong appeal for consecration of lives and means since the challenge of the kingdom is one of service, and a lack of material resources is responsible for the holding back of young men and women who have offered their lives for the mission field.

Evening Service.

In the evening Rev. Mr. Swayne spoke especially of his experiences as a school teacher and a missionary worker for four years in Saskatchewan, the presentation of needs and conditions from personal contact being decidedly impressive.

FIRE EXTINGUISHERS WARSAW VILLAGE

Two Chemical Apparatus Purchased As Means of Fire Protection.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, May 22.—A meeting to discuss Fire protection was held in the Warsaw town hall on Friday evening. The committees had done a good deal of investigating. An agent for chemical fire extinguishers was in the village all day and there were gatherings of men who could spare the time at different times and places. It is felt because of so many fires recently, there should be some protection. The bucket brigade of some years ago was not much help. A system of water extinguishers, while useful in most of the village would not do much good in those parts of the village further back from the river, nor to the farmers. Few wells would hold out very long and many farms have drilled wells.

The agent explained the various kinds of apparatus fully, and it was decided to purchase two chemical fire extinguishers which could be drawn any place behind a truck or car, or in winter placed on a sleigh. Two were considered better than one, as the spray could be applied at two places simultaneously.

Several men offered their garages to store the engines and T. Clements offered to store the supplies. The supplies will keep almost indefinitely so long as they are sealed in the dark. Those which are kept in the extinguisher need to be renewed frequently as they deteriorate.

A number of men subscribed and most of the subscriptions run from $10 to $25. A committee was appointed to purchase the extinguishers and make arrangements for storing supplies, keeping and caring for the engines and any other necessary items.

Farmers Build Fences

Fencing and other jobs necessary on the farm are being carried by the many farmers who cannot work their land.

Fall wheat and meadows in high places look well. In low places they are about done.

PRESENTATION MADE.

Worthy Grand Matron Mrs. I. Richman Honored By Chapter.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, May 22—Mrs. I. Richman, Worthy Grand Matron, accompanied by Mrs. Ritz, Worthy Grand Chaperon of Oakville, pay a fraternal visit to the Prosperity Chapter, number 16, at Havelock last Thursday. A number of visitors from Trenton and Peterborough Chapters were present.

During the evening Mrs. Richman was presented with a gift and at the close of the meeting lunch was served.

Cadets Inspected

On Thursday morning of last week, the school cadets of Havelock were inspected by Captain Isbester, district inspector and Colonel Hill, head of the cadet movement in Canada. Captain Bedford assisted by Lieutenants McLaughlin and Dart ran the cadets through the drills with principal Coates taking charge of the physical exercise drill.

After the inspection the cadet officers were presented with medals. William Rose and Captain Bedford were presented with medals for shooting, and C. Wrightly and A. Stapely for ecceciency and appearance on inspection.

After the presentation of the medals, Colonel Hill addressed the cadets and assembled people on the work he was doing; also telling them about the King's Shield, which is a large shield presented by the King for shooting competition from year to year, being presented to the part of the British nation having highest aggregate score.

Captain Isbester spoke briefly on the fund provided by the goverment to take certain cadets from each town having cadets to Kingston in the summer. He also spoke on the different places in his district.

Mr. Evans, the starter of cadet work in Havelock, Doctor Thompson and Principal Yuill told of the difficulties encountered in order to start cadet work here and also stated that cadet work was not associated with the militia. Owing to the kindness of the school board a holiday was enjoyed by the cadets and pupils of the school.

BOAT REACHES DOCK SAFELY

British Passenger Albertic Has Rudder Trouble As She Nears England.

PASSENGERS DISCHARGED.

LIVERPOOL, Eng., May 22.—(Canadian Press).—After giving wireless warning to all ships in the vicinity to give her a wide berth, the British steamship Albertic, from New York, safely reached the Mersey under escort yesterday, suffering from trouble with her rudder.

Some time after she had left Cobh yesterday a large pin connected with the steering gear slipped and her rudder was put out of commission. The ship was stopped for half an hour while emergency gear was put into operation. Meanwhile a tender was rushed from Liverpool to meet the disabled vessel and piloted her into the Mersey.

(The Albertic, 10,234 tons, sailed from New York on May 11, and from Boston on May 12 for Cobh and Liverpool).

Members of Keene W.M.S. Arrange To Hold Quilting Bee.

NEW PRESS SECRETARY.

KEENE, May 22. — The regular meeting of the W.M.S. of Keene United church took place recently, with the president, Mrs. Taylor, in the chair.

It was decided to have a bee at the next regular meeting which takes place the second Wednesday in June. All the members were asked to attend and come as early as possible to quilt, after which a ten cent tea will be served.

The other business was the appointment of a new press secretary.

At the close of the meeting the president expressed the regret of the society in losing Mrs. Burley, an active member, who is moving to Belleville.

Wabash Railway
Windsor, Essex and Lake Shore Rapid Railway

From points in United States and on all fares from Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, the summer tourist rates are considerably cheaper than any reduced rates that could be secured. As Peterborough is a tourist point, these tickets will have a limit to October 31, 1929.

From Manitoba the same tourist rates are effective, but with a time limit of two months from date of purchase.

The following instructions have been issued under authority of the Canadian Passenger Association, and apply on the Canadian Pacific Railway and Canadian National Railway like:

Fares Issued on Certificate Plan.

All fares to Peterborough from points east of Fort William as far as Halifax will be handled on the certificate plan basis as follows:

The purchaser will request a certificate from the passenger office at point of origin and will purchase single fare ticket to Peterborough. It would be just as well that parties who would ordinarily purchase tickets at a small station would apply for ticket to the nearest regular station, as no doubt the ticket agents at the larger stations have additional information to that of the smaller stations.

Upon arrival at Peterborough they will have same certificate validated by the representative of the Old Home Week, and by presenting such certificate to the passenger department at Peterborough, of either railway, will be entitled to a return ticket at half the single fare, which will be the cost of returning.

Certificates will be valid for only three days, exclusive of Sunday, after the celebration has closed. This is in reality a fare and one-half for the round trip, and the validating of such certificate will cost the certificate-holder 25c additional, to be paid to the representative of the passenger department.

On all fares coming from United States points and on all fares coming from Saskatchewan, Alberta, British Columbia, the summer tourist fares to Peterborough (as a tourist point and summer resort) will be much lower than any return fares which could be secured, and parties originating from such territory will be allowed a time limit to October 31 on such return tourist tickets. From Manitoba the same tourist rates will apply, but the time limit is two months, and is the only exception to the time limit. Parties from territories as above stated should ask for summer return tourist tickets, which apply from all points in the United States and the anadian West, including British Columbia, and are applicable to Peterborough as it is listed as a tourist point. Summer tourist fares are straight fares and will require no certificates.

Remember the above instructions as to tourist fares do not apply in regard to fares to Peterborough from points east of Fort William as far east at the Atlantic coast points, which will be handled strictly on the certificate plan basis.

A Real Old One!

The Palace Bar, George street, of which Tim Pelcher was proprietor. It was located about where the Royal Theatre is now. The signs read: "Try Our Oyster Patties," "NO CREDIT," "Oyster Cocktails," "Liver and Bacon," "The Ambrose Winslow Brewing and Malting Co., Ltd."

IDEAS FOR FLOATS

Citizens who desire information about building floats may see pictures and obtain ideas from Mr. Furman at the Old Home Week Office, City Buildings. These ideas are suitable for all types of cars.

Dr. Poole estimates the population of Peterborough, in the year in which his book was published, 1867, as 4500. In 1832, seven years after the first settlement of "Scott's Plains", by the Robinson immigrants, the population, according to official returns, was under 500.

In 1838, Peterborough contained 150 houses, including two grist mills, seven saw mills, five distilleries, two breweries, and two tanneries; the population was under 900.

Since its incorporation, it has been subject to stated periods of prosperity and depression—the latter caused by bad harvests succeeding one another for several years, and by the exodus of numbers of the mechanic class to the United States in the years of the war, and by a commercial crisis brought about as in 1867-8-9 by over-production and the undue expansion of the credit system.

The census of 1861 gave to Peterborough and Ashburnham together 2,471 male, and 2,363 female inhabitants. In 1872 the population of Peterborough alone was estimated as 4,717; in 1882 it has risen to 7,010, which gave it the largest percentage of increase of any town in the Province of Ontario, in the preceding decade. The population of Ashburnham in 1883, was about 1,400, that of Peterborough 7,832, making the combined figures close to 10,000.

The following statistics are taken from a reliable and well-written "Business Directory and Book of Reference for the Town and County of Peterborough, 1883-4,' published by the Times Printing Company:

In 1882, there were 1873 resident ratepayers and 42 non-resident; 1768 children over 5 and under 16: 657 over 16 and under 21; and 1000 over 7 and under 13 years of age; 1243 acres (resident) and 39 acres (non-resident). The value of resident lands was $2,215,575, of non-resident lands, $24,500, and of personal property, other than income, $218,700. The total income was $183,090, personal property, $401,790 and the total assessment was $2,617,365.

In 1883, the figures were: 2032 resident and 29 non-resident ratepayers; 1864 children over 5 and under 16 years of age; 641 children over 16 and under 21, and 1010 over 7 and under 13 years. There were 1,270 resident and 12 non-resident acres. The value of resident lands was $2,469,300 and of non-resident lands, $9,625. Of personal property, other than income, the total was $221,750 and income totalled $206,400. The total of personal property was $428,150 and the total assessment was $2,897,430.

History of Peterborough

Written by Thomas W. Poole M.D., and Published in Peterborough 1867

About the year 1832-3, a couple of small steamers, the Pemedash and the Northumberland, were placed on Rice Lake, and thenceforward for many years these or other steamboats continued to ply daily between Rice Lake and Peterborough. About that year the great project was conceived of rendering navigable the chain of waters from the Bay of Quinte to Lake Simcoe; and in November, 1833, N. H. Baird, Esq., civic engineer, to whom had been entrusted the survey and estimates for such a work, reported in reference to that portion between the Bay of Quinte and Rice Lake. We need not quote these estimates, as they are to be found in the Appendices to the journals of the House of that period, and are easy of reference. Suffice it to say, that the total estimated cost of this portion was £233,447 6s 11d. In December, 1835, Mr. Baird reported in reference to rendering navigable the rivers and lakes through which the Otonabee flows, so as to afford continuous water communication between Rice Lake and Lake Simcoe. The total cost of which was estimated at £262,067 16s 4d, and for the entire distance of 165 miles, between the Bay of Quinte and Lake Simcoe, including lockage, £495,515.

A committee of the Legislature recommended the construction of the upper section to be proceeded with, and important works were undertaken and completed at several points. Below Rice Lake, £90,000 were expended. The locks at Whitlaw's rapids, just below Peterborough, were completed, and considerable sums expended in improving the navigation of the river between Rice Lake and that place. The locks at Bobcaygeon were undertaken as early as 1883-4, by Messrs. Pearse, Dumble and Hoar, contractors, for £1600 currency, but owing to the unsettled state of the country, ending in the outbreak of 1837, and the union of the two Provinces which followed, the attention of the Government was withdrawn from this work, and the intermediate links of the connection have never been even commenced. The following gentlemen at the time acted as "commissioners for superintending the improvement of the navigation of the Newcastle district," viz.: J. G. Bethune, Robert Brown, John Hall, Thomas Need and A. McDonell, Esquires.

As an illustration of the homely fare and simple habits of some of our people, even during the second ten years of settlement, and in contrast with the luxury and ample store of the present time, it may be mentioned that during Mr. Baird's survey of our inland waters in 1833, he and his party called at a farm house near Rice Lake for dinner. A large pot of potatoes were boiled and emptied on the table and a handful of salt added in close proximity. At the conclusion of the meal, the chief of the party called for the bill, and was informed by the host that the charge was "seven pence ha'penny for the officers and six pence for the men." The bill was paid and the party retired, greatly amused at the discriminating value which was placed upon their humble fare.

In 1834, Sir John Colborne, Governor of Upper Canada, visited Peterborough, and after a brief stay, was accompanied through Quebec on his return by a mounted escort to Major Charles Anderson's, from which place he crossed Rice Lake in one of the steamers then navigating those waters.

RADIUM PRICES MAY DROP.

Prices of radium are expected to drop with the development of the new radium mines in Portugal. Until now most of the world's supply has been obtained from mines at Kantaga, in the Belgian Congo, which are owned and operated by a Belgian company. The present quotation is about $60,000 a gram, or approximately $1,700,000 an ounce.

Lakefield

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, May 20.—The annual banquet of St. John's branch of the A.Y.P.A was held on Tuesday evening, in the Parish Hall, and was attended by twenty-five, who braved the stormy elements and declared unanimously that they were well repaid for the effort. The committee in charge was made up of the unmarried members, who spared no effort to make the affair a real success. Tables were set in horse shoe form and were decorated with the A.Y.P.A colors of blue and gold. Above the table hung the letters in blue and white — "A.Y.P.A."

When the supper was over a toast list followed with the president of the A.Y.P.A., Mr. Chappell, acting as toast master and Miss Verna Payne as pianist. Song sheeets were provided.

The first toast was to his gracious majesty, King George, and was proposed by L. J. Charlton in a brief speech and honored in the customary manner.

The toast to the Church was proposed by M. C. Hampton, who for several years has been convenor of the Look-out committee and has served his church so loyally that it was quite in keeping that he should have the honor of proposing this tion of the world but the redemption or regeneration of the world. He came to lift the world to a different standard, the Standard God had for mankind when he made them. It is not the work of the church to hold little groups together here and there but to raise the world to a higher level. Before the war it was said that war had become impossible because of the international character of the great financial interests and also the brotherhood of labor, also international in character. But in spite of this, war came, the moneyed interest was of a selfish character, but the great brotherhood, Lord of labor is banded together for mutual support. But the world is not yet regenerated and it is the Church's business individually and collectively to lift the world to higher and better things. In our village parish which is one the links of the great chain we have our part to play and toast. Mr. Hampton's speech was brief but was marked by sincerity and modesty.

A verse of "The Church's One Foundation" was sung and Rev. W. J. Creighton, M.A., replied to the toast.

"Those who were at the Deanery service know that Bishop Seager spoke of the church as the Body of Christ, Christ, when He left the world made certain plans which He left to the Church. His body, to carry out. He planned not the evangelizaour responsibility not only in the evangelization of the world but in raising the world's standard higher.

In this parish we might very well and worthily celebrate the 75th anniversary of this little old church which was opened for the worship of God in the autumn of 1854, the exact day is not known, with Rev. Percy Warren as the first clergyman appointed. The new church goes back to 1866 and while in the light of the great age of many of the churches in the motherland these are not old churches nevertheless we will do well if we commemorate these land marks."

Rev. Mr. Creighton outlined his plan for this commemoration which would include a Sunday service, a week day Harvest Festival service and a social gathering of some kind to which every man, woman and child of the parish would gather and from that triple celebration the parish would go forward, endued with new zeal toward the centennial.

Miss Mae Mahood proposed the toast to the Visitors in a gracefully worded speech. "Guests", she said, "are a class of people for whom I have the greatest respect, even as a little child I loved to have visitors come to our home and I deem it a pleasure and an honor to propose this toast."

W. S. Remnant, rector's warden replied, thanking the A.Y.P.A for their invitation and expressing regret that there were not more visitors.

Mr. Clappell proposed the toast to the Rector, Rev. W. J. Creighton, who is pastor of the branch and takes a part in most of the activities.

To this toast Miss Graham replied in the absence of Dr. Lingwood, the people's warden.

Miss M. Hampton proposed the toast to the A.Y.P.A. Miss Hampton has been a member of the branch for a good many years and is proud of its record in the parish.

Miss B. Graham replied, sketching the history of the society from its organization in 1911 to the present day, reviewing its achievements and setting forth its part in the parochial life and forecasting its future as a useful, respected and invaluable asset to St. John's parish. Mr. Chappell endorsed the words of Miss Graham by remarking on the splendid spirit of co-operation of the branch.

The next toast was rather unique, there are three of the original members of the branch in the Society and the toast was to "The Originals" and was proposed by Mendal Smith. Mr. Smith gave shyness and a weak heart as reasons why his speech would not be too lengthy but he paid a gallant tribute to the A.Y.P.A where he and his wife have found friendship and a fine spirit of fellowship. He also spoke warmly of the virtues of the "Originals."

One of the Originals"

Miss Amy Watson replied saying she was proud to be one of the Originals who had met in the room over Brown's restaurant on November 15, 1911 for the first meeting. Miss Watson was on the first social committee and so well did she succeed that it has become a habit to call on her for assistance at social functions.

The toast to the past presidents was proposed by T. A. Simpson who has been a member of the society for almost fifteen years. "In eighteen years of branch life the society has had but four presidents, one is Rector of a Toronto parish, one is living in the village and we regret his absence tonight and one has gone on to a happier home above. This toast is a link between the past and present and is significant of the bond of friendship uniting the members."

On the suggestion of Mr. Charlton, Mr. Chappell, who for the past two years has been a faithful president, replied regretting Mr. Stenner's absence and reminding the members that the annual business meeting and election of officers takes place on Monday evening, May 27 and asking for a good attendance. Miss Winifred Payne proposed a toast to the officers who have so faithfully served the society during the year. E. J. Robertston the treasurer replied referring in humorous fashion to the speeches "wise and otherwise", which had been given. For the past seven or eight years he has been a member of the branch and has enjoyed it and considers it an honor to be an officer of the hardest working and most successful church society in Lakefield. He referred to the fact that in eighteen years there had been only four presidents as highly creditable. Every member should consider himself or herself an officer in its broadest sense. Mr. Robertston closed with the appropriate quotation "They also serve who only stand and wait."

Rev. Mr. Creighton referred to the fact that the toast to the Ladies had been omitted and he proposed it, being heartily endorsed by Mr. Robertson. Mrs. Stenner, Mrs. M. Smith and Mrs. Chappell replied briefly.

Mr. Simpson urged greater co-operation with the district and suggested asking for the next district banquet for Lakefield. Mr. Charlton asked permission to say a few words on behalf of the originals. He was in Lakefield about a year before the war and attended several meetings of the A.Y.P.A and when overseas received parcels from them and he made up his mind to join the society if he returned to Lakefield. He closed by saying "That's what the originals did for me". Mr. Charlton was heartily applauded.

The remainder of the time was spent in music. Mr. Robertston contributed several solos, including several old favorites. Miss Winnie Payne sang a duet with Mr. Robertston "Sweet Genevive" which was much enjoyed.

The banquet concluded with votes of thanks to the committee for the fine entertainment and to Miss Verna Payne who presided at the piano and who contributed so much to the success.

IMPROVEMENT IS BEING SEEN UNDER NEW ACT

Work of Weed Inspectors Receives the Praise of Administrator of Law.

SEEK INFORMATION

Inspector is Held Responsible for Cutting of All Weeds on Highways.

The work of the weed inspectors throughout the province of Ontario during 1928 has received praise from J. A. Carroll who is in charge of the administration of the act.

He state, "Taking the province as a whole much more was done in 1928 to prevent weeds from going to seed than for many years previous. Improvements were particularly noticeable on the highways. Some interesting information on the cost of weed cutting has come to our notice, in one place it was found after cutting weeds before going to seed the cost was reduced last year by one third. In another place where weed cutting was costly when commenced seven years ago, the cost has been reduced each year and in 1928 amounted to about $5.00 a mile.

"The most encouraging observation last year is the evident demand for information on the nature and particularly on the control of weeds.

Two Provincial Inspectors

"To ensure a more uniform application of the act and to offer assistance to inspectors and others who are interested in promoting weed control, the government has appointed the following district inspectors. oFr eastern Ontario John D. McLeod of Dunvegan Ontario is the inspector while A. R. G. Smith of New Hamburg is in Western Ontario.

"The services of these men will be available in an advisory way throughout the season and requests for their assistance may be sent direct to the district inspector."

Some interesting points regarding the destruction of weeds are given by Mr. Carroll. The weed inspector is responsible that all weeds on highways are cut and that noxious weeds are cut in all place within confines of the municipality. For weed control along water ditches the road authority is responsible for all ditches on road allowance and bordering them. The property owner is responsible for all small ditches running through personal property. Weed cutting on large open municipal ditches should be undertaken by the municipality and charged to the drained area which they serve. Concerning the cutting of crops for the destruction of weeds, the answer cannot be given in all cases. For instance in an area where sow thistle is common to most farms it would be unwise to start cutting the crops containing it. On the other hand, if a small patch is discovered in an area where this vicious weed has not obtained a foothold, this weed should not be permitted to go to seed. The inspector will have to exercise judgement in this case.

RICHARD HALL LIMITED

UPPER CANADA BIBLE SOCIETY HOLDS ANNUAL BANQUET AT "Y"

Women Co-Workers Who Made House to House Canvass Honored By Society.

REPORTS READ.

Rev. J. S. Herrington Tells of Work Members Have Done in This District.

A distinctly Scriptural atmosphere was imparted at the annual banquet given by the executive of the Peterborough Distictr of the Upper Canada Bible Society, last night at the Y.M.C.A., as a compliment to the ladies who made a house to house canvas in the interests of the Socety.

A. S. Zavitz, Field Secretary, and President of the local Society, presided at the banquet and expressed his appreciation and the thanks of his executive for the splendid work done by the ladies present. It was a wonderful thing he said to have these gatherings, bringing together representatives of every church in Peterborough, all interested in this very important work.

A most interesting and encouraging report of this year's canvass was given by G. H. Roper, the Secretary, showing the total receipts for the district to be $1133.40, a small increase over last year's $1123.10. This report does not include East City, which has not yet been canvassed.

H. B. Cowan on behalf of the executive moved a hearty vote of thanks to the ladies for undertaking this task and accomplishing it in so efficient a manner. Many plans have been tried but none has succeeded like the present one.

In seconding this vote of thanks, G. Mulligan said it was a pleasure to be present, and that compared to the splendid returns this banquet was but a small reward for the service rendered the Society.

Miss Nichols, on behalf of the workers, said they had received their reward in many ways in doing the service, and were proud to be co-workers in sending out the Scriptures to the whole wide world.

In keeping with the program of the evening was Rev. J. H.Sutcliffe's beautiful vocal solo, "My Mother's Dear Old Bible."

Mr. Zavitz brought in a very interesting note which belong exclusively to this district. It will be remembered that at last year's banquet it was decided to use a part of the funds collected in Peterborough district for a special purpose—that of having the Bible translated into a foreign language. The tangible result was exhibited to the guests.

Rev. J. S. Herrington.

The speaker, Rev. J. S. Herrington, Secretary of the Upper Canada Bible Society, in a very interesting address, spoke in glowing terms of the part this district has taken in promoting the Society's work. Especial mention was made of the Bible which has been translated into the language of a tribe of Africans located in the Belgian Congo. "This to us, unreadable Book," he said, "is a great bond between us and a people whom we do not know."

Mr. Herrington expressed his sincere congratulations and thanks to this Branch, saying that he fully understood all the work involved in organizing and carrying out plans, and laying out and assigning districts. He paid high tribute to Mr. Roper's untiring efforts in advancing the work.

A suggestion was offered for a special object this coming year, which will be the one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the Society, that a special thank offering be given as a suitable way to mark this anniversary.

It is a stimulating vision to know that hundreds of thousands are gathered together, just as we are here, peoples of all colors and all nationalities. Setting our minds upon the one thing, "The Holy Scriptures," we are in a very real sense 'one' by the advent of this one Book. Not only that, but it is a noteworthy fact that Canada, even Ontario, in what you might say our own neighborhood, the first translation of the Scriptures, Old and New Testaments, was made in the language of the Mohawk Indians, with Joseph Brant as co-translator, at the Indian village which is now the City of Kingston.

undertaking in an appealing report, the popular report, prepared in an interesting and readable form, called the "Glory of the Garden." The Book is compared to the seeds in a garden —some small, some large, but each containing the "Germ of life." The Bible is translated into more than six hundred languages, each containing spiritual power. No matter what form it takes, "God speaks through it." Thorugh it we are sowing seeds over the whole wide world.

The address closed with an appealing vision as told in the story of Jesus—how in His going about in the homes and His breaking of bread, was the opening of the Scriptures to the people.

We, too, are holding this torch to people ove rthe whole wide world. Hearts have been touched by the wonder and magic of the power of the Lord as told in His word.

Rev. J. L. Hughes, in expressing a vote of thanks to Rev. Mr. Herrington for his stimulating and educational address, said it was his great privilege and pleasure, and that he was one hundred per cent. behind the Upper Canada Bible Society, and thoroughly approved the way in which it was educating the church.

Rev. C. V. McLean seconded this vote of thanks to Mr. Herrington, and the program was brought to a conclusion with the singing of a hymn.

STUDENTS TAKE MATTERS INTO THEIR OWN HANDS

When Dr. T. T. Shields of Toronto, chairman of the board of trustees of the Des Moines University, and Miss M. Rebman, secretaary, were cleared by the board of the charges made against them, and the entire faculty of the University discharged as a result, the students took matters in their own hands, as shown by the photograph here. Dr. Shields and other members of the board were forced to summon police protection before they could leave the buildings.

ONTARIO LADY IS AMAZED OVER WAY HUSKY HELPS HER

MISS LILY McILWAINE

"My nerves went all to pieces several months ago, and ever since I have had nervous indigestion and have been terribly weak and run down," said Miss Lily McIlwaine, of 24 Grange Ave., Toronto.

"I took much medicine for my indigestion, but my stomach just got worse and I couldn't eat fruit, onions, cabbage or rich foods. My nerves were so bad I could not get to sleep before 1 or 2 a.m., and then I would wake in a little while. I could hardly get up in the mornings and my appetite was so poor I just couldn't eat breakfast.

"So many of my friends were taking Husky I got a bottle for myself and it just surely has helped me a very great deal. I can enjoy eating almost everything now, and Husky has helped my nerves so much that I go right to sleep as soon as I get in bed and sleep all night. I feel so much better in the mornings and go to work with plenty of energy. I am glad to recommend Husky to others."

It is surprising how many cases like Miss McIlwaine's are traced to a catarrhal condition in the stomach. This catarrh inflames the delicate stomach lining until it secretes mucus, which fills your stomach, surrounds the food you eat, causes gas and acidity and constipates you. Your food is a soured mass and sends impurities into your blood instead of rich, red corpuscles. Weakness, headaches, nervousness, rheumatic pains and other ailments follow.

Husky's ingredients cleanse the system of this mucus and soothe the irritated membranes. That's why Husky makes you feel better so quick and why a treatment of several bottles gives permanent relief and new strength. Begin using Husky to-day and see how soon food tastes better, sleep is more sound and you feel stronger. Call on the Husky Expert at Bond's Drug Store and let him explain to you how best and quickest results are obtained from the use of this medicine. His information is free and you incur no obligation by calling on him.

ANNUAL MEETING JUNIOR INSTITUTE

Reports Read and Much Business Transacted By Lakefield Society.

LAKEFIELD, May 22 (Examiner Correspondence).—The annual meeting of the Junor Institute was held on Wednesday afternoon in the Town Hall. The president, Miss Lulu Darling, was in the chair and conducted the business part of the meeting. Miss Marjorie Frankish read the treasurer's statement, which indicated receipts for the year to be $109.04. Miss Edna Frankish gave the secretary's report, which showed that the number of members was 35, and 12 meetings were held during the year. A delegate was sent to the convention in Toronto, six to Cobourg to the Juniors' conference, and two to Gelph convention.

A first aid kit was given to the Sandy Lake school, where a former member, Miss Oro Dunford, is the teacher; two visits were made to the House of Refuge, with gifts to the old people.

During the year there were three weddings in the Institute and gifts were given the brides.

In March a short course in household science was held in co-operation with the senior branch. This brought in thirteen new members.

Addresses were given at various times by J. B. Nelson, Dr. N. H. Sutton, and Miss Graham.

Flowers were sent in November to a member who had suffered a sad bereavement.

Misses Edna Frankish and Mabel Mullen gave interesting reports of the Guelph convention.

Miss Frankish was the first speaker. She said: "We arrived in Guelph on Tuesday, May 7, and were assigned rooms in Johnson Hall. The first evening was given over to a social gathering, when the girls representing each county had to do a stunt and games were provided, which mixed up the groups and promoted better fellowship. Two hundred girls attended the conference.

Miss Crookshanks opened the morning session with an excellent address in which she paid a tribute to the late Mrs. Adelaide Hoodless, who late in the nineteenth century organized the first Woman's Institute in Canada in the little village of Stoney Creek. The same lady was the means of getting household science taught, and through her presentation of the need to Mr. MacDonald, the father of the Agricultural College movement, a department for girls was added and MacDonald College is the result. Since then wonderful advances have been made and now six provinces take up this science and give a degree in it, and it has become a real factor in the nation's life. As 75 per cent. of the family income is handled by the women, she should know how to make the best use of it."

Miss Ethel Chapman, in her address, urged more time for relaxation and reading.

The company was divided into groups and taken on a tour of inspection of the college. The cow barn was the first place visited by the group in which Miss Frankish found herself, and it was well worth the time given. The museum came next and it was an extraordinary place teeming with interest. The waxed fruit and vegetables were marvellous. Then the poultry section was visited and the 6,000 egg incubator inspected. The dairy building and the section given to dietetics were also visited.

Mrs. Aylesworth gave a practical talk on home handicraft, and other interesting lectures were given by Miss Powell on needlework, by Miss McEwen on books and the selection of books, and by Mrs. Whitelock on community activities.

Dr. Christie, principal of O.A.C., gave a talk on his recent trip to Europe and showed maps, national costumes, laces and embroideries which he had purchased.

Miss Mullen told of her impressions in a paper equally good and also well given.

It was a full week of pleasure and profit; the group in which Miss Mullen found herself visited the field husbandry section, the agricultural section, the cattle barns and the horticultural buildings; the greenhouses were magnificent and were well worth the visit.

Some of the points gleaned from the addresses were these: Without beauty, truth and love, a girl's club cannot stand and the motto of the five-point star was given as a standard for the girls of the Junior Institutes: "Be physically fit, morally clean, mentally alert, vocationally efficient and sociably serviceable."

"Mr. MacLean spoke on public speaking, urging greater individual thought. 'Do not,' he said, 'be a Victrola for whom someone else provides a record? He urged against learning the speech off and glibly reciting them. He had heard nine-year-old children give speeches on politics which they had learned by heart."

A visit was paid to the prison farm which is really a manufacturing centre, as each inmate is taught a trade of some kind during his stay there.

A lecture was given on Friday on nutrition. Household science is like any other work, and to be cheerful and robust girls must have proper food. Do not be angry, anxious or fearful at meals.

In the lecture on good dressing, the girls were urged to choose for durability rather than for mere show; clothes should be for bodily comfort as well as beauty. As you dress, so do you think.

Interior decoration was taken up and its value stressed as an important means of making an attractive home. No home can be better or worse than the individual makes it.

Miss Emily Guest spoke on the pot of gold we all have in our lives if we can find it. Choosing a congenial life work and life partner helps a great deal in making this quest successfuly. "Earn all you can, spend all you can, save all you can and give all you can," said Miss Guest.

It was urged that if we want good prices for our products we must take a lesson from other sections and market more attractively. British Columbia apples sell for more than Ontario apples because wrapped in tissue paper and carefully graded they are more attractive.

The banquet was one of the highlights of the convention and the chief speaker was Mrs. Ewan MacDonald (L. M. Montgomery), whose books are beloved of girls in every English-speaking country. Mrs. MacDonald gave an excellent address and it sent the girls back to their home inspired to high standards and with a message of hope and good cheer."

SCOTCH CLAIM FIRST JAZZ

That jazz really originated in Scotland instead of America is being claimed by Scotch critics. They say that the kind of music in which "the emphasis is shifted from the strong to the weak part of a time unit by making the first note or two, into which the beat is divided, take only a fraction of time of a second, is nothing more or less than the old Scots snap or catch. They declare that it has been used in old reels, and was copied in the Italian airs of the eighteenth century.

BOARD MEETING POORLY ATTENDED

Little Interest is Taken By Lakefield Men in Board of Trade.

LAKEFIELD, May 22.—(Examiner Correspondence.)— A disappointingly small attendance of members of the Board of Trade turned out to the meeting called for Monday, May 20th at 8 o'clock. The president, J. F. Lillicrap, stated that the purpose of the meeting was to elect officers for the year and regretted that there was not a large enough company to attend to this business. The president and secretary wish to reign their offices and had hoped that successor might be appointed.

F. J. Burgess was appointed to canvass the business men and try to arrange a suitable date when a really representative meeting might be held.

Visiting Lodges Present.

About forty members of the I.O.O. F. Lodge No. 358 accompanied by a number of brethren from the Peterborough lodges attended the evening service in St. John's church, Lakefield, on Sunday, May 19th, with Lawrence J. Charlton, the Noble Grand. The service was fully choral, with Mrs. J. W. Todd at the organ.

Rev. W. J. Creighton took his text from the 2nd verse of the first chapter of the Book of Genesis, "And the earth was without form and void, and the darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters."

Mr. Creighton the members of the I.O.O.F. reminding them that their lodge was founded on the spirit of brotherly love, recognizing the Fatherhood of God.

The spirit of God breathing upon the chaos brought order and form where all was void, and the world was made.

The speaker deplored the present day interpretation of the word charity, which made it a thing to be avoided, where as in its true sense it is a God-given quality to be cultivated and used.

Church Decorated.

At the Sunday morning service in Regent Street United Church, bird and flower Sunday was observed on May 19th with appropriate sermon and music. The church was decorated with flowers and singing birds in cages. Several little children were baptized in with impresive service.

Parish Dedicated.

An item of local interest was to be seen in the Toronto papers of Monday, May 20th, which described the dedication of the new parish of St. Dunstan's in Toronto, with Rev. H. A. Ben-Oliel inducted as the first rector. Associated with the Bishop in the ceremony was the Archdeacon of York and Canon F. H. Hartley of St. Mathias Church, Toronto was the preacher.

Rev. H. A. Ben-Oliel was rector of St. John the Baptist church, Lakefield, from 1911 till 1915, when he went overseas as a chaplain in the C.E.F. Since his return from overseas in 1919 he was rector of All Saints', Collingwood.

The Archdeacon of York (Archdeacon G. Warren) was rector of St. John the Baptist church for eighteen years, leaving here in 1906 to take over his duties as superintendent of diocesan missions.

Canon Hartley was the pioneer in what is now known as the Stoney Lake Mission and built St. Mathias church, Buckhorn and Holy Trinity at Haultain.

Today is Empire Day, the day on which the Daughters of the Empire decorate the graves of soldiers. In Peterborough, these graves are decorated with litte flags and the ladies who do the work pray beside the resting-places of defenders of their country. Graves are decorated in the Little Lake Cemetery and the Roman Catholic Cemetery here and a grave of a soldier at Bridgenorth is always remembered also

And so many people confuse Empire Day and the 24th of May, it is interesting to read what Fred Williams, writing in The Mail and Empire, says on the subject:

"Why is it that so many otherwise well-informed people and newspapers will persist in, year after year, speaking and publishing the statement that May 24 is Empire day? The twenty-fourth of May is not, never has been, and seemingly never will be Empire day in Canada. It is legislatively set aside by act of parliament (chapter 107, revised statutes of Canada, 1906) as Victoria day. It was on May 2, 1901, that the House of Commons passed a bill setting aside May 24 as an annual public holiday to commemorate the great queen whose death was then so fresh in the public mind. The 24th had been a holiday, the first spring vacation ever since her accession in 1837, and had, generation after generation, been looked forward to not only as an opportunity to pay homage to the sovereign, but as the initial celebration by our people of their escape from the thraldom of our oling winter. Some of us can recall the time when, on May 23, we used to sing to our teachers:

"Tomorrow is the 24th the queen's birthday;
If you don't give us a holiday
We'll all run away."

"And when the suggestion was put forward by the Laurier government it was accepted as the right thing to do. If Canada's spring holiday was to be preserved. The fact that King Edward's birthday came on November 9, rather aided the proposal, for who would want to make holiday in Canada in November? When King George came to the throne there were some people who would have changed the date of the holiday to June 3; but that would have wiped out May 24, which would never have done at all, at all.

"Empire day is an entirely different proposition. In 1899, realizing that the patriotic importanct of the 24th had been largely overshadowed by the family picnic (though in those "decadent" days we did usually have a military review somewhere in Canada), Mrs. Clementina Fessenden of Hamilton, suggested that the afternoon of the day before the queen's birthday should be used as an occasion for patriotic demonstrations in the schools, to impress upon youthful minds, not only the grandeurs of Victoria's reign, but also the lessons in patriotism taught by recalling the chief events of the empire's history. The proposal was taken up by Hon. W. Ross, then minister of education, and put into practice in the schools of this province, from which it has spread to other provinces. Thus, in Canada, Empire day is May 23, not May 24. Down in Quebec, where the British section of the population are not so flamboyant as in the other provinces, the 24th of May is, for some mysterious reason, called by the newspapers, Empire day, which it is not.

"The French Canadians have got into the habit of combining their observaance of May 24 as a public holiday with a commemoration of the memory of Dollard des Ormeaux and his fellows who fell at the Long Sault and saved Montreal from the Iroquois; but that is no reason why the English-speaking folk down there should say that May 24 is Empire day. The act of parliament designating May 24 as a holiday is entitled "An act respecting Victoria day" and is cited as "the Victoria day act". Not a word about Empire day.

"In England, however, there has been an attempt to creat a public sentiment in favor of the celebration of May 24 as Empire day. It was started by the Earl of Meath in 1902, and first celebrated in a faint-hearted sort of a way in 1904. But, like the 24th in Canada, it ran up against the snag of another popular and long-established holiday—Whit Monday, the opportunity for the first summer outings. Who would sacrifice Whit Monday for May 24? Not Johnny Bull, any more than Johnny Canuck will allow his summer holiday to be anything else but Victoria day. So, please, when you hear people speak of May 24 in Canada as Empire day tell them that they are quite wrong!"

OLD SONGS

THAT PIECE OF SONG, That old and antique song we heard, last night.

"WHERE THERE'S A WILL THERE'S A WAY"

This life is a difficult riddle
For how many people we see;
With faces as long as a fiddle
That ought to be shining with glee;
I am sure in this world there are plenty
Of good things enough for us all;
And yet there's not one out of twenty
But thinks that his share is too small.

Did you never hear tell of the spider
That tried up the wall hard to climb;
If not, just take that as a guider,
You'll find it will serve you in time.
Nine times it tried hard to be mounting,
And every time it stuck fast,
But it tried hard again without counting,
And of course it succeeded at last.

Some grumble because they're not married,
And cannot procure a good wife;
Whilst others, they wish they had tarried
And long for a bachelor's life;
To me it is very bewild'rin',
Some grumble, it must be in fun,
Because they have too many children,
And others because they have none.

Do you think that by sitting and sighing
You'll ever obtain all you want?
Its' cowards alone who are crying
And foolishly saying, 'I can't;
It's only by plodding and striving
And laboring up the steep hill
Of life, that you'll always be thriving,
Which you'll do if you've only the WILL.

Chorus

Then what is the use of repining,
For where there's a will there's a way,
And to-morrow the sun may be shining,
Although it is cloudy to-day.

Girls, don't worry about middle age

Lots to recommend it, if you keep fit

TELL a sensible woman of 50 that she looks like the older sister rather than the mother of her children, and she just laughs at you.

"I'm middle-aged," she'll declare, "and not trying to hide the fact. Why should I? Middle age has a lot in its favor—that is, if you're well and healthy.

"Sick? Never had a doctor in my life except when my babies came. Never had the habit of dosing myself with pills and medicines, either. I just took Nujol—all the time my babies were coming, and in between times, too. I'll always depend on Nujol.

"Even the healthiest woman is better off by taking Nujol—especially at times when her system is apt to be thrown off balance and her regular functions upset. This pure substance keeps your system functioning normally and naturally even under abnormal conditions. It not only prevents an excess of body poisons (we all have them) from forming, but aids in their removal. It's these poisons that age people prematurely. Make them feel old and tired and useless."

Nujol isn't a medicine or drug. For this reason it can't possibly disagree with you or upset you. It is simply a pure natural product. It works effectively without being drastic.

* * * * * *

At present the finishes which are held in highest favour are: Paper, paint, sanitas, calcimine or muresco, and wall fabrics. Their respective merits cannot be compared very well as each has its place and is probably most correct in that place. The demands of the room and individual tastes and preferences must determine one's choice.

* * * * * *

Whatever the finish chosen, a few principles of mural decoration must be kept in mind.

* * * * * *

Plain walls add to the apparent size of the room; patterned walls, particularly if the design be large, seem to draw the sides of the room closer together.

* * * * * *

* * * * * *

Rooms with northern exposures should be done in warm colours—yellow, buff, rose, etc.; sunny rooms in cooler tones—gray, blue, and green.

* * * * * *

"Busy" wall designs (those that set one working out squares and diamonds) should be avoided.

* * * * * *

Do not select any designed wall covering in the shop. Take home several samples and try them against your wall. Conditions vary so greatly that often the effect at home is very different from that in the shop. Some stores allow you to alter your choice after you have put on several strips. But, to me, this seems altogether an imposition—a case of carrying "woman's privilege" slightly beyond the limit.

* * * * * *

* * * * * *

Panelling may be done in wood; with canvas and applied moldings to deline the psaces, with paper or printed fabrics, the boundaries being defined by wooden batten moldings; with wall board and battens of the same, or of stained and painted wood.

* * * * * *

Still another possibility is to use wall paper or printed fabric in the panel spaces, particularly for halls or dining rooms.

Wood panelling is not prohibitively expensive—as some seem to think. It may be bought ready made, and has the value of being permanent.

* * * * * *

Paint has long been used as a wall finish, and modern chemistry has revolutionized its use so that now beautiful soft finishes in practically any color may be obtained. Nor is it limited to one-tone effects. By means of stippling two or even three tones may be used in paint or calcimine.

* * * * * *

At one time stippling was a brush process to be undertaken by professionals only. But here, also, the older order has changed. There are two methods by which the amateur may achieve very satisfactory results.

* * * * * *

The undercoat is applied and allowed to dry. The second color is printed on with the flat side of a sponge that has been cut in two. Have the paint in a convenient shallow dish or pan, and do not stipple too evenly.

* * * * * *

Apply ground coat and allow it to dry thoroughly. Apply second coat and, while it is still wet, mottle it by picking it off with a pad of unglazed wrapping paper about fifteen inches square. Crush the paper to soften it first and discard the ball when it becomes soggy. Time may be saved by having a supply of balls ready before beginning. As flat paint dries quickly, a space not more than four feet square should be painted and mottled at a time.

* * * * * *

In wall paper there is now an almost infinite variety, but it may be classified into the following types: textile, floral, leather, striped, all-over, and plain or blends.

* * * * * *

Textile patterns are dignified and conventional, usually in two tones of color. They are unobtrusive and do not interfere with furniture arrangement. They are well adapted to hall, living room and dining room.

* * * * * *

Floral designs are pre-eminently bedroom papers. Few are suited to living room use. In the right room they are lovely but in the wrong one (like the little girl with the curl) they are horrid.

* * * * * *

The library is the room which seems to call for leather patterns. Stripes, if chosen judiciously, can be used in almost any room. The all-over "calico" patterns are very delightful in old-fashioned cottages and with early American furniture.

* * * * * *

Sanitas, as a wall covering, possesses qualities of durability, appearance, and cleanliness. It can now be had in many beautiful designs as well as in the neat tile patterns so suited to kitchens and bathrooms for which it seems to have been originally intended. Walls that have been covered with sanitas may later be papered, painted or calcimined, as it makes a permanent wall covering.

* * * * * *

The initial cost of calcimine is small. It is quite desirable for ceilings, whatever the wall finish may be, and is especially adapted to newly-plastered walls as, applied over a coat of sizing, it does not materially interfere with the drying of the plaster.

Fashion's Forecast

FOR TINY MAIDS

The Style No. 2788, a favorite with tiny maids of 1, 2, 4 and 6 years, shows the fashionable fulness that falls from shoulders with a decided increase of width at hem to allow plenty of freedom for play. The chemisette, Peter Pan collar and cuffs reveal smart scallops, so important in the grown-up mode. The sleeves extend to neckline. The front and back of dress have soft gathers and are stitched to sleeves following guide for same. Printed dimity, dotted swiss, striped percale, cotton broadcloth, chambray, linen, printed pique, and tub silks appropriate. It is sketched in French blue linen with white pique.

THE PATTERN is very easy to use, as it is explained in Picture how each seam is joined, which is a great help to save time in the making. It is offered at cost price 15 cents (stamps or coin) as a service to readers who sew.

NEW FASHION BOOK containing all the latest styles is 15 cents, but may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

FLOOR COVERINGS

Whether rugs are necessary or desirable depends chiefly upon the floor of the room. But, if the question 'to be or not to be 'has been decided in the affirmative, then other questions loom large.

Material—This may be velvet, wool, rag, linen, linoleum, fibre, or grass The use of the room for which it is intended and the income of the purchaser will be the chief determining factors in this.

Whether the rug will form part of the background or be the centre of interest in itself. The room—its type, height and size, wall space, lighting and furnishing must be taken into consideration here. Plain rugs of neutral colour are becoming increasingly and deservedly popular. They are the best background rugs though, for some rooms, notably hall and dining-room where the furniture is scant or consists of stereotyped articles—patterned rugs are attractive and practical. They do not show wear, footmarks, or crumbs so readily.

A small girl of my acquaintance was required to sweep the dining-room, which was covered with a small-patterned linoleum, each evening after supper. In her opinion, this was quite a superfluous task. One evening, while doing it, she sighingly remarked, "Well, I had one crumb when I started, but I've lost it."

The living-room probably presents the most difficult rug problem. It has such varied uses, such varied furnishings, and may be used at any time of day or evening A good 'background' rug is best here, though not necessarily one devoid of pattern. The pattern, however, should be uniformly distributed (a small all-over repeat one is good) and should present no striking contrasts. Taupe is perhaps the best neutral color for a rug. The three primary colors—yellow, red, and blue—all go into its making, thus enabling it to be used successfully with practically any scheme of coloring. Gray, tan, and dark brown are also good background colors.

Walls—Sand color, plain or two-tone stippled or papered.

Woodwork—Dark natural, or painted sand color.

Upholstery—Green and black, mulberry and black or mulberry and green.

Draperies—Printed linen or cretonne with bold design in green, mulberry, yellow and black. If upholstery is patterned, use plain draperies.

Lamp shades—Yellow and black.

PIT-BOY POET ENTERS COLLEGE

Frederick C. Boden, known as the "Pit-Boy Poet" of England, has left the coal mines to study English literature and philosophy at Exeter University. He published last year a volume of lyrics, "Pit-Head Poems," which attracted the attention of Dr. Bridges, the Poet Laureate. Dr. Bridges and a few friends made it possible for Boden to enter Exeter. Young Boden has just completed a new volume of poems. He had suffered a life of hardship and privation until recently.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

The water in which certain vegetables have been boiled is useful for making vegetable soups, and the thrifty housewife saves the liquid drained from potatoes, onions, carrots and many other vegetables.

Cabbage water should not be used and for this reason if you wish to be very economical you will serve cabbage raw or else cook it by means of steaming.

Beets lose a great deal of goodness in ordinary boiling. They should always be cooked with the skins on and care should be taken in scrubbing and trimming them not to bruise them If it is necessary to cut off a considerable part of skin in preparing them for cooking then it is better to steam them.

Onions should of course always be cooked with the skins off and with the cover of the pan removed. There is far less odor in cooking if this is done and the onions are less likely to become soggy and discolored.

Asparagus which cooks quickly is always best steamed, since it is so easily bruised and broken in active boiling.

Peas should be cooked only until they are thoroughly tender throughout and this depends on the condition of the pea. String beans usually need very much longer cooking than peas, unless they are very young and tender ,an hour is not too much time to allow.

AIR CLUBS FOR BRITISH RICH.

Air clubs are being formed among the young rich of Britain who have tired of the crowds on the motor highways. Any club member of average ability is said to be capable of obtaining an official certificate of proficiency as a pilot after 15 hours' flying, and many do it in less. The cost, including a club entrance fee, subscription and tuition fee, is estimated at $150. Light planes carrying two people and their baggage may be bought for $3,100 to $3,250.

To the child, the cut finger, the scratched hand or face, or the bruised knee, maybe just a cut, a scratch, or a bruise—something to be endured or even boast about. But to Mothers these little cuts and bruises mean possible infection—real trouble-makers.

In the bath Lifebuoy soothes the little nicks and knocks of the day's play. Its creamy, antiseptic lather goes deep into the countless tiny pores, cleanses them, opens them up and lets them breathe . . . and stands guard like an invisible shield.

MOVIES MAR FRESH-AIR VOGUE

Rapid growth of motion picture theatres is said to be stopping the fresh-air vogue that has been strong in England. Chief among the apprehensive are the owners of beach resorts who fear that this year's season will be greatly marred by the talkies. New theatres, motion picture houses and similar places are opening at the rate of two or more a day. Most of these are motion picture palaces. Birmingham has had eight new cinemas in the last 12 months and London reports that they are "springing up all over the place."

That Body of Yours

(By Jas. W. Barton, M.D.)

TOO MUCH STARCHY FOOD

You are the ordinary healthy individual at work every day, and have nothing to complain of from a health standpoint.

However, you find that you have frequently a pain in the abdomen, which while distressing at times is hardly worth a visit to your doctor.

Sometimes the pain seems to be "under the heart," at other times it is at the same point on the other side of the body under the liver. It may also be down on the lower right side of abdomen in the region of the appendix and you quite naturally have a little suspicion that it may be appendicitis.

Again it may be on the lower left side of abdomen or it may even be just under the middle part of abdomen.

There is one outstanding point about the pain, however, and that is that it seems to shift about to and from these different points in the abdomen.

Your abdomen feels greatly distended and there is a considerable amount of "gurgling" which your rightly attribute to gas.

Perhaps you will be constipated for a few days and then there will be diarrhoea following this. You are thus unable to find out whether or not you need a purgative medicine, for just about the time you determine to take a purgative, the diarrhoea commences. Now what is the matter?

Dr. E. S. Emery, jr., tells us that it is the failure of the digestive apparatus to properly digest the starches in the food that brings about the above symptoms.

Perhaps a few general rules about eating would be of help here, such as;—Eat slowly, chew your food thoroughly. Do not hurry your meals, nor be in a hurry before and after meals. Do not eat when hot or excited. Eat only at regular times and just three times a day. Five to six hours between meals. And the particular treatment is to cut down on your starches such as bread and potatoes and avoid hot rolls, hot biscuits, muffins, waffles, and cakes.

If the symptoms are at all severe Dr. Emery suggests that you do without starchy foods entirely for a few days. This results in complete relief of the symptoms.

Remember then that much of the pain in the lower abdomen is due to too much starch in so far as your particular body is concerned.

The Mirror of the Mode

By Mary Marshall

Jacques Worth of Paris, once wrote: "There is as much style in the way clothes are worn as in the clothes themselves." No truer fashion comment was ever made. It is also true that it is easier for most women to wear clothes of a new style than to adopt the new way of wearing them.

Recently fashion has set the stamp of her approval on bags of various sorts—bags with straps to be worn over the wrist or arm. But even though women buy these bags eagerly enough, most of them still wear them under one arm. The new jackets for daytime wear are made to be buttoned securely at a low front closing or to hang free and straight—but many women still cling to the old the way that was necessary with the old type of wrap-around wrap.

Then there are women who have a sure knack of adopting the new way of wearing clothes so that even in last year's dresses and wraps and hats—that have undergone only a very little alteration—they can look entirely up to date. They are so quick to sense and adopt the new way of wearing clothes.

The new daytime jackets as I said, are to be worn either securely buttoned or hanging straight and free. Many of them are made without buttons or fastening of any sort. The new cardigans are many of them made in this way. They hang straight down from the shoulders to a low hipline accentuating the slender line of the dress beneath.

Footnote

The new spiral pleating is used on this this marron flannel skirt with which a marron and beige wool blouse and cardigan are worn.

Fat People Buy Tags In Mosquito Battle

Winnipeg, Man., May 22.—(By The Canadian Press).—"I never got my killings done so cheaply before—here take another and kill me another million" said a fat man to a pretty girl on Portage avenue.

Three hundred women taggers under 32 captains, "spread out" over the streets at an early hour carrying card board boxes labelled: "A quarter will kill a million", and the picture of a lean and hungry looking mosquito with long sharp bill. All fat and juicy looking people bought, said one tagger, but a lot of the thin anaemic ones passed. She hoped "they'd all get bitten this summer." One large departmental store released 30 clerks to tag employees on entry into the store.

Before they sailed for their new homes on farms in Australia, a party of boys from Dr. Barnardo's Homes were inspected in London by the Prince of Wales recently.

Cars are all right for the necessary rapid transit, or for an airing if one cannot walk, but for thorough enjoyment there is nothing like a walk, or if one wants to go further afield, a bike, can be parked any place.

"It is one of the joys of country life to be close to the wonderful out of doors. This spring there is too much rain, or people think there is, anyway it is not so pleasant getting around. We can look out day after day, sometimes hour after hour, and see things grow. All we do is prepare the soil and plant the seed and cultivate, and the life within the buried seed comes forth. What does it mean—that wonderful process of growth? Where would we be without it? What we would miss of pleasure could we not rest eyes on that beautiful green! Those things which provide our food and food for beasts and birds are clothed in beauty.

The wild flowers make us glad; there is such perfect harmony, even when there is a riot of color. The trees, the mosses, each growing in its own way. They make me think of some vast cathedral made by immortal hands. There is the grand show. All the tiny humming insects are moving, there always seems to be a sound in the earth in spring. Then there is the louder music of all the birds. They are a whole choir, with a full orchestra. One is awakened in the morning by the sweet strains. These same birds are beautiful in their colors and each has its own little way. The meadow-lark is a beauty when he marches around the lawn. Robins are such sausy chaps. Many families of phoebes have been raised under the eave over the pantry window. I read once that phoebes never returned, byt we have had them in the same place for seven years and a few feet away for several years before. For several years Mr. Phrebe would sit for hours and call 'phoeve,' and each year his voice was harsher. This year I fancy it is a son that is here, for the note is not harsh and he does not call so much. The gorgeous oriole comes whistling around. The wood-pecker hammers, and seems proud of his red topped head. Bobolinks in the coats of richest black and white velvets, come where the clover grows; the little song sparrow preempts the top of the spruce tall. We, in the country have so much beauty all around us. In Peterborough county there are so many places where we can see how earth is formed. There is no much of the story of the creation written all around us, if we only think of it.

"If we could only have eyes that see and ears that hear and hearts that understand, what would it mean?"

Sincerely yours,
QUID EST.

Thank you for your nice letter, "Quid Est". I'm sure you and I would get on well together—at least on rambles! I thoroughly enjoy walking when there is some object in it, but of course one cannot deny the necessity for cars when one has to cover long distances or travel quickly. It's not so many years since our great grandfathers walked from Peterborough to Port Hope and back with supplies. (I've been reading about it in the chapters of Poole's history appearing in the OldHome news every evening). And now a stroll for pleasure is "too fatiguing" for many!

Canadian Woman Named On Plant Breeding Staff

Winnipeg, Man., May 22. (By The Canadian Press)—Dr. Lillian Hollingshead of the department of genetics, University of California, has been appointed to the plant breeding staff of the Dominion Rust Research Laboratory in this city.

She is a Canadian, her home being in Saskatchewan. She graduated with honors in arts, and took post graduate work in botanical science at the University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon, where she worked with Dr. W. P. Thompson, on the cytology of wheat hybrids. She has been working three years in California, with Drs. At the the Rust Research laboratory at Winnipeg she will co-operate with the plant breeding specialist in attempting to produce rust resistant varieties of wheat.

BABY RIDES RUNNING BOARD

Three-year-old Bernard Bidwell recently enjoyed a three-mile ride on the running board of his father's automobile. The boy crawled on to the vehicle unnoticed when his father started from their home at Wisbech, England. While the father was bowling along at 30 miles an hour a passing motorist called his attention to the child. "Mummie, Daddy does drive fast. It was lovely," was Bernard's comment.

MARION'S MAIL

Dear Marion:

"I wonder if the neighbors in the city are longing for warm bright weather as much as their friends in rural parts.

"The succession of heavy rains is becoming a matter of worry to the farmers and consequently to their wives.

Many a field has been prepared two or three times for seeding and is still unsown.

"Just as the farmer finishes cultivating, a heavy rain comes down and it must be worked up again before it can be sown.

"Clear warm weather is hoped for or it may be a poor crop like last year or even worse. However, as we read the papers, we can be thankful that we are not so badly off as in other parts of the country.

"We were sorry to hear that the 'Rest Room" project had to be shelved. It is much needed if Peterborough is to keep up its prestige with other places of its size and prosperity.

"We are trying to get our garden in between other jobs and this morning, I notice that the lettuce, garden peas, and onions are through the ground. I also planted a few butter beans yesterday. I knew it was early but thought I would risk the danger of frost and chance having a few early green beans.

"In my vegetable garden I also sow flower seeds. They look so bright and cheery among the rows of vegetables and provide flowers for the house.

"We have set out a Dutchman's pipe this spring and four spirea. I wonder if any neighbor who has them, will give me a little information about them! I want the Dutchman's Pipe as a shade on the west side of the porch. Will it be necessary to provide a wire netting for it to climb up?

"Will the Spirea need to be protected in some way the first winter? Our lawn is north of the house.

I am enclosing a recipe. I try a great many of those contributed and invariably have found them good. Each one contributes of her best.

"Am still enjoying your 'Whatnots', Marion."

Yours sincerely,
RURALITE.

I like the idea of planting flowers among the vegetables, "Ruralite", but one must be careful of the kind one plants. The Dutchman's Pipe will climb strings, and I have an idea that would be better support than the wire netting. I've seen netting pulled into all kinds of shapes by the vine, looking anything but attractive. It is a good idea, with any heavy vine, to have a board across the width to keep it from sagging in on the verandah. I hope the three or four days of good weather we have had indicate the rain is over—the fields were certainly in terrible condition.

Dear Marion:

"May I return so soon? Your whatnot about the stroll appealed to me.

EMPLOY 1,200 AT ROYAL YORK

Important Executive Posts Were Filled Several Weeks Ago.

OPENS NEXT MONTH

TORONTO, May 22.—1,200 employees will comprise the personnel of the Royal York when the empire's greatest hotel throws open its doors next month.

Important executive posts were filled weeks ago and each department head is fully responsible for the work of his own particular division. The superintendent of service is in charge of the uniformed staff—porters, doormen, elevator operators and starters, pages and bell boys. The chef has between 125 and 175 skilled culinary experts under his control. The head waiter commands a group of more than 300 workers. The housekeepers, with a large number of assistants, was on the job some time ago. Carpets and rooms have already been made spic and span and are being kept so, with daily cleanings exactly as if the great hotel were running full blast.

There were a number of unusual positions to fill. A night auditing staff is required which comes on just before midnight and checks each days receipts to the ultimate cent. There is a corps of 28 picked telephone operators. The printing establishment has three presses and a Linotype machine to be manned. Special operators were needed for the radio and public address system which is the largest in the world and is handled from a separate control room on the convention floor.

He was born of English parents at Montserrat, B.W.I., educated at London, England, Canterbury and Louvain, Belgium. He came to Canada in 1872 and joined the old Grand Trunk railway staff, relinquishing his position to enter the journalistic field. At one period he was on the editorial staff of the Globe and of the old Leader. Later he went to New York, engaging in literary work, became editor of the Knickerbocker, a social paper. He returned to Canada in 1884 and held editorial positions in turn on the Evening Post, the True Witness, Toronto Star and the Ottawa Free Press. In recent years he wrote magazine articles and was a frequent contributor to The Mail and Empire. At one period he held a commission in the Royal Grenadiers. HARRY ROLAND DENNIS WRAGG

CAMPBELLFORD, May 22.—(Examiner Staff Correspondence).—St. John's United church was filled with people yesterday afternoon who paid their last respects to Harry Roland Dennis Wragg, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Wragg, Alice Street, who was drowned in Trout Creek Saturday afternoon. The service was conducted by the Rev. Ernest Harston of Oshawa and formerly of St. John's Campbellford. He was assisted by the Rev. N. Clarke Wallace, the Rev. F. G. MacTavish and the Rev. W. J. Mark, D.D. As many members of the church choir as were able, were present for the service. Seventeen little boys, class mates of the dead boy, acted as flower bearers. The pall bearers were William McCombe, Paul Douglas, Billie Richardson and George Smith. Interment was made in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Following a brief service for the family at the home on Alice Street, the remains were taken to St. John's church where a public service was held. Several hundred friends filled the church as they paid their last respects to the little lad. The service was most impressive. As a basis for his oration the Rev. Ernest Harston selected the words, "As one whom his mother comforted, so will I comfort you," from the book of Isaiah; and "Is it well with the child, and she answered it is well", from the second book of Kings. God, he said had revealed himself to man in many ways, and still man fails to comprehend Him. It is, however, essential that we find for ourselves and answer to the question and he believed that if man could get a clear accurate mental vision of God, the doubts and fears of life would be removed and our lives lived more worthwhile. From his earliest days, said Mr. Harston, he had pictured God in many different forms. At the present time he saw Him as a Father who is good to his children and will withhold nothing from them that is good. But the prophet Isaiah had pictured God as a Mother as shown in the verse which he had selected as part of his text.

All of these conceptions, however, were incomplete. Many of them were the result of various methods of reasoning and interpretations of literary works. In order to get a true picture of God, it was necessary to get a true picture of Jesus. Then the sting would be removed from the bitter experiences of life. "This child of God's, it is well with it." Said Mr. Harston in closing. "It is in the keeping of a great Mother. Let not your heart be troubled, our child is in His care and all things work together for good for those who believe in Him."

The hymns used during the service were, Mother of Salem; God sees the little sparrow fall; and Glory to God On High. After the singing of the last hymn the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. F. G. MacTavish of Seymour United Churches. Once again the little flower bearers lined the approach to the church from the street and the little ivory coloured casket was borne down the aisle as the organ played the Dead March in Saul.

Slowly the funeral procession wound its way to Mount Pleasant Cemetery where the remains of the little boy were laid in their final resting place.

There were many beautiful floral designs, tributes from the little friends of the unfortunate child, and from the older people and organizations of the town as well. Among them were flowers from the father and mother and brother; Master Jimmie Rogers, Mildred Twigg, Master Wilfred Turner, Eleanor and Henry Oliver, Alice Tripp, Jean and Betty Bell (Perth), Master David Rollo, Master C. W. and Graydon Bell, the teachers and pupils of the public school, St. John's United Church, Water and Light Cimmissioners and employees, Ionic Chapter Masonic, Golden Rule Lodge Masonic, the neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Henson and Dorothy Henson, Mr. and Mrs. Scott and family ,Dr. and Mrs. O. C. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Maguire, Mrs. H. Atkinson, Mrs. George Mason and Mrs. Boyle, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bonny, Mr. and Mrs. Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. James Whittaker and Mr. and Mrs. H. Whittaker, Mr. and Mrs. Collison and family, Mrs. Chapter and Miss Jordan, Miss Evelyn Irwin, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hore, Stockdale; Mr. and Mrs. Hoover and family; Mr. and Mrs. Lucy and family; Mrs. Clegg, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Birk, Mr. and Mrs. George Frederick, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Kingston, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Burbank and F. A. Hendricks, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Atkinson.

HASTINGS ROAD BEING REBUILT

COMPLETED IN MONTH.

MARMORA, May 22 (Examiner Correspondence).—Considerable work is under way on the old Hastings Road which extends from Millbridge to Murphy's Corners, and has for several years now been part of the county provincial highway extending from Belleville to Maynooth. Five miles north of the famous Hole in the Wall hill, where the road passes the property of William Dalton, it now takes a new course for the distance of a mile, regaining the old course when the property of Edward Tapp is reached. This cuts off the somewhat steep though picturesque Pinery Hill. The work was commenced last August by the county road gang under the foremanship of John Donaldson of Millbridge, and work was resumed on April 15 of this year. It is estimated that another month will see the completion of the work.

The new road will be much appreciated by all who have occasion to use it.

JUDGE DENTON FINDS ISBELL NOT GUILTY

Man Was Brought to Toronto On Charge of Stock Conspiracy.

TORONTO, Ont., May 22.—(Canadian Press)—Irving J. Isbell, Montreal, was found not guilty of conspiracy charges by Judge Denton in criminal sessions here yesterday.

Isbell was brought from Montreal to stand trial here on a charge of conspiring to affect the market price of Eastern Metals and Smelting Company stock in 1927 to defraud certain subscribers. He testified his own defence that he had no knowledge of Toronto firms with which Nathaniel Gilbert and Henry W. Fields, now serving sentence in penitentiary, had been associated.

Judge Denton commented that much of the evidence concerning Eastern Metals alleged conspiracy transactions affected Gilbert but not Isbell.

Fields and Gilbert had received $62,000 from the deals, it was brought out and His Honor stressed the fact that the accused received but $300 in commission. Any man entering into conspiracy would hardly be satisfield with so small a portion, Judge Denton said.

TUNNNEY FACES $500,000 SUIT

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 22.—(Canadian Press).—An announcement was made here yesterday that papers in a suit for alleged breach of promise of marriage with $500,000 claimed damages brought by Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty, 30, of New York City, against James J. (Gene) Tunney, retired heavyweight boxing champion, had been sent to Bridgeport to be entered in the Superior Civil Court of Fairfield county.

The papers were sent by a deputy sheriff for fyling yesterday morning, and a member of the law firm of Field, Durant and Levere went to court to arrange for other details of entry of the suit. In the cut, Tunney is shown with his bride, the former Miss Lauder of United States.

WILL NOT BOX AGAIN, SAYS JACK DEMPSEY

Former Heavyweight Champion Denies Recent Reports.

NEW YORK, May 21.—Stretched out in a barber's chair, while a razor fought with his blue black beard and a manicurist clipped his nails, Jack Dempsey blew the lather from his lips and declared without reservation that he is farther away than ever from another ring come-back.

As forcefully as a man could say it, the former heavyweight king declared the retirement he announced after Gene Tunney whipped him for the second time in Chicago still stands—more so now than ever. The ring had lost its lure, boxing days are behind him, and a new career stretches ahead.

As the barber rubbed Jack's face with perfumed lotion, the big fellow winced. Working out in a gym here last week "to keep my clothes fitting," Dempsey damaged a vertebrae in his neck. The neck is stiff and painful and he plans to have X-ray pictures taken of the injury.

"What a fine sap I'd be to ever box again," he said as the barber chided a "big strong fellow like you," for jumping when his neck is twisted. "I've got a million dollars and that's enough. If Gene Normile, my former manager, said in Reno he had an agreement with me for another bout, he was all wrong. We are mixed up in a proposition together, but it doesn't involve boxing.

"Of course, if some one came along with a bonafide offer for $1,000,000, I'd have to consider it seriously. If some one offered to make it worth my while for me to start training, and find out if I could get in shape again, I'd have to think that over, too.

"There have been no million dollar offers and I don't expect any. Even if one did come, I'm not so sure but that I wouldn't refuse it after all. I'm a promoter now and have a mass of theatrical offers. I'll never box again."

Reports that Dempsey had decided to return to the ring have been piling up within the past few days. Shortly after visiting Dempsey here, Normile announced in Reno that the former champion would box again in Mexico, for a million dollar purse. Humbert J. Fugazy, Dempsey's partner in promotion, declared several days ago that Jack would battle the winner of the Paulino Uzcuden-Max Schmeling bout here this fall.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETED FOR ATHLETIC MEET

School Boys From District To Take Part in Events At Exhibition Grounds.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

Games Held Under the Direction of Ontario Athletic Commission.

Every school boy in Ontario will have an opportunity this spring to compete in provincial wide athletic meets. The province has been divided into ten districts and beginning this week and lasting until the middle of next month athletic meets for school boys will be held at a central point in each of the ten districts.

The big meet for this district will be held at the Exhibition Park this Saturday afternoon. All plans have been made, and the scenes are all set for the big meet. Doug. Loomis, physical director of the "Y," has had charge of all arrangements and he has secured the support of the city council and the Exhibition board to ensure that everything will be prepared. It only remains for the athletes to come through with their best to maintain the honor of this district.

The finals in the championships will be held at Queen's University Stadium, Kingston, on August 23. These games will be under the direction of the Ontario Athletic Commission and the athletes during their stay in Kingston, will be looked after in a royal manner. They will be mustered at the University, and the program calls for a grand tour of the Thousand Islands during their stay in the Limestone City.

In order to get a free trip to Kingston, and win the right to compete in the final events the competitors must reach a certain standard in the event in which they are competing. The standards are not high but serve to sift the wheat from the chaff. The boys who make these standards prove that they are of the material that with additional training might win in the big final meet at Kingston.

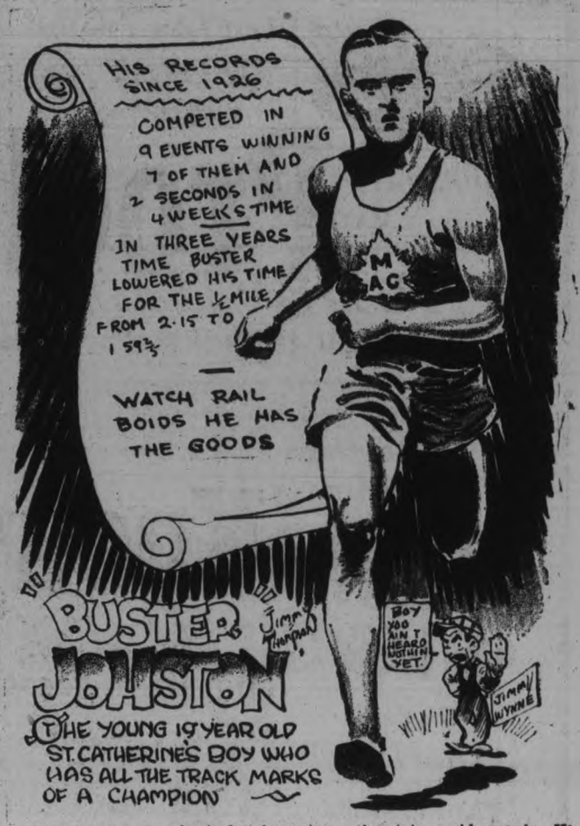
YOUTHFUL FLASH



Here is a runner who is fast becoming a threat to world records. He is William "Buster" Johnson, of the St. Catharines A.A.A. He is trained by Jimmy Wynne and since he jumped into the running game in 1926 by running 1,000 yards in 2.31 3-5 has performed consistently and well.

His record for 1928 makes interesting reading. It is as follows: Erie Beach, half mile in 2.03; Toronto Exhibition, mile open, 4.39; Toronto Exhibition, mile, 4.39; Toronto Exhibition, ½ mile in 2.02; Broadview Y.M.C.A., Toronto, won mile 4.49 and ¼ mile in 53 seconds; Hamilton Olympic Club meet, won half mile in 1.59 1-5.

In two weeks' time last year he won seven firsts and two seconds. This is quite a record for an 18-year-old boy, and his trainer promises that he will be out to do big things this year, so keep your weather eye peeled for him.

NEWS AROUND THE C.O.B.L. CIRCUIT

Clippings From C.O.B.L.

According to word from the headquarters of the Belleville club to-day there is a strong possibility that Harry Mills and Wilfred Ross two of the old timers with the local club will not be in uniform on Friday afternoon when the Deloro team comes here to open the season. Mills injured his ankle some time ago at the Canadian National yards and is not likely to don a uniform this year. Ross feels that he has been with the team long enough and is ready to hang up his spikes. Should either of these boys definitely decide to retire it will be a distinct loss to the local club, and their shoes will be extremely hard to fill.—Belleville Intelligencer.

Dr. Jack Shea, formerly of Queen's University and Deloro in the summertime, has taken up his residence in Belleville, where he will work as assistant to a local doctor. Whether or not "Jack" intends to play baseball this summer or not remains to be seen, but if the National Moguls can persuade him to come out, they will be strengthened in the one department of the team which badly needs strengthening. He will be eligible to play here under the student rule, as he graduated from Queens this year as a full fledged M.D. Jack did not achieve much success last year with Deloro but with that wily receiver, Peeney Mills, on the other end of the battery, he should be able to win as many games this summer as any other pitcher in the league, Inky Woods and Jeff Hardill included.—Belleville Intelligencer.

With Viny Utronki and Alex Weir to handle the relief end of the pitching assignments, Belleville will have a trio of pitchers which should hold their own with any in the league.—Belleville Intelligencer.

Announcement was made this morning that Bert Booth, well known Kingston baseball authority has been appointed convenor for the O.B.A.A. in this district, and has accepted the position.

Mr. Booth was responsibe for the starting of the C.O.B.L. club here several years ago, and has always been one of the outstanding baseball men in the city.

As convenor for the O.B.A.A. he will look after the handling of games for the C.O.B.L. team being operated locally by the 21st Battalion Club.—Kingston Whig Standard.

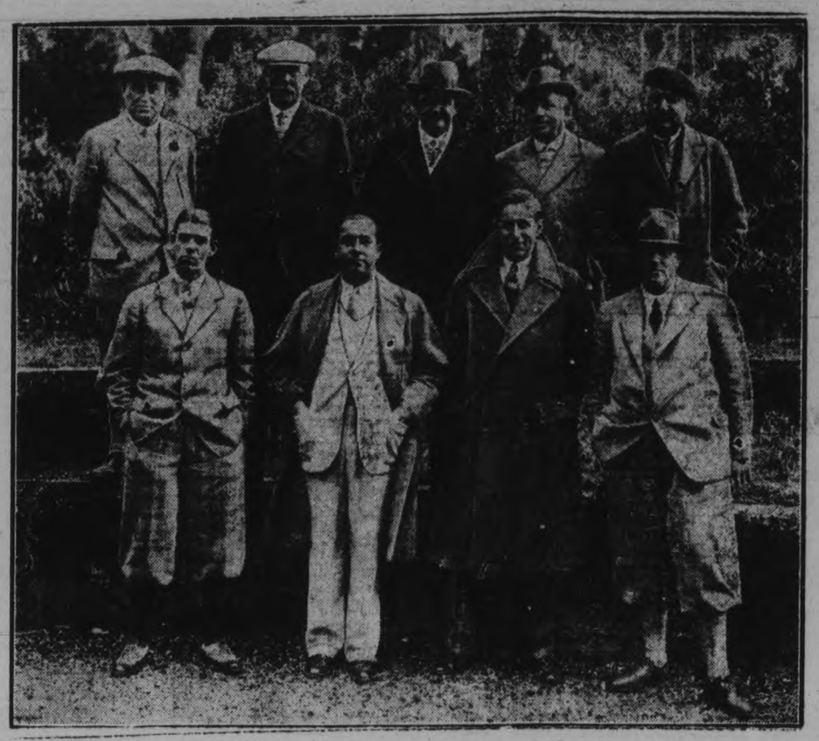
WINNERS OF BRITISH OPEN GOLF TITLE



The players in the photograph above have won the British open golf championship no less than 21 times. Harry Vardon has won it on six of these occasions. The championship was won this year by Walter Hagen. The following are the names of the golfers, shown in the photo, with the years they captured the famous trophy: From left to right (back row)—H. Vardon, 1896, 1898, 1899, 1903, 1911, 1914; J. Braid, 1901, 1905, 1906, 1908, 1910, A. Herd, 1902; J. White, 1904; A. Massey, 1907. (Front row)), G. Duncan, 1920; W. Hagen, 1922, 1924, 1928, 1929; J. Barnes, 1925; E. Ray, 1912.

Scores 71 In Final Round

Plays Brilliant Golf For Total of 207 in International Pro Tourney.

IN THIRD ROUND.

Gene Sarazen Also Plays Good Game For 54 Hole Total of 213.

ST. CLOUD, France, May 22.—(Canadian Press). — Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., won the French professional golf championship here to-day.

Smith won with a 72 hole score of 273, scoring 71 in his vnal 18 this afternoon. His four rounds were 66.66.70.71.

ST. CLOUD, France, May 22.—(A.P.)—The lead rolled up by Horton Smith of the U. S. contingent with two 66s for 132 in the first 36 holes of the international professional golf tournament here was threatened today by a brilliant round of 61 shot by Aubrey Boomer, the English star.

Boomer is a professional at St. Cloud and former holder of the course record with a 68. His 61 today was seven strokes under par for a total of 207 which was sufficiently low to make Smith's job, which seemed an easy one yesterday, a difficult one from then on.

Boomer, on the third round of the 72 hole championship, had two eagles and six birdies on his card and from after the fifth hole his average was only two over 3s. He was never in a bunker, all his approaches were squarely on the greens and he sank his putts "from all over the lot."

Plays Brilliant Game.

But Boomer was not the only one shooting record golf. Gene Sarazen also provided some of the fireworks, shooting a 67, giving him a 54-hole total of 213. He had birdies for four holes and never once was above par during the eighteen holes.

When Boomer finished his round of 61, he was shaking like a leaf and was so nervous that he said he could hardly sign his card. "I never putted like that before in my life," he remarked.

SMITH RETAINS LEAD.

Horton Smith, United States' pro, returned a score of 70 in the third round and led the field at 54 holes with a score of 202. Smith was five strokes ahead of Aubrey Boomer, the St. Cloud pro, in spite of Boomer's 61 on his third round.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

VAUDEVILLE, KEN MAYNARD, WITH HIS HORSE TARZAN, IN "THE LAWLESS LEGION" AND CHARLIE CHAPLIN, THE WEEK-END HOLIDAY ATTRACTIONS AT THE CAPITOL. THREE PERFORMANCES MAY 24TH, 2.30, 7.00 AND 9.00.

For the week-end holiday attraction at the Capitol, commencing tomorrow, the program will consist of vaudeville, The Musical Shermans, in a refined musical act. Charlie Chaplin in "The Vagabond" and Ken Maynard and his horse Tarzan in "The Lawless Legion" has been without a doubt designed and constructed for audience purposes only. It does not contain any especial moral lesson nor does it portray a phase of history but for real pulse throbbing thrill and action it beats anything this reviewer has ever seen. All of this refers to "The Lawless Legion" in which Ken Maynard and his horse Tarzan are the principal factors. This western star seems to have won a wide range of fans for there was not only a huge crowd but were of all ages, young, near young, and those not so young, and all were enthusiastic in acclaims. Some even applauded when some spectacular bit of daredevil work was enacted. There is no question this boy can ride.

"The Lawless Legion" is presented in such a novel manner that one doesnt stop to think about it except to wonder how Ken can do the things he does and still live to draw his pay-check.

The story tells of a community, because of drought find it necessary to find better grazing lands for their cattle. The only thing that stands in the way is a band of organized and notorious cattle thieves who have been operating through a particular stretch of land thru which the cattle must pass. The community in a mass meeting decided to trust their pooled herds with a man then resting in jail because of disturbing the peace.

The cattle are pooled and (there must be all of ten thousand) entrusted to the young man (Ken) and in turn he is tricked out of the entire herd. Of course he loses his popularity almost immediately, but he sets out to get them back again—he does too, but herein lies the story.

In the bandits' rendezvous he and Tarzan give the audience some real wild west riding. There are two particularly fine pieces of stunt work in addition to the fine cattle scenes and that is Ken when he is tied to a wild horse with his head dangling about the horses heels. The other is a close view of Ken driving a pair of fast running horses while standing on an iron rod connecting two wheels.

PANUCO CAPTURES FEATURE EVENT

J. F. Byers' Four-Year-Old Colt Wins By Three Lengths at Woodbine.

Toronto May 22.—Racing the mile in 1.40 1-5, Panuco, a 4-year-old colt by Tetrameter—Pamone, owned by J. F. Byers, and trained by T. H. McCreery, scored in hollow fashion yesterday at Woodbine racecourse when he met Grier of Spain, William T., Beau of the West, Butter John, Troutlet and Banton in the York Plate, a handicap open to 3-year-olds and upward. The York Plate was the feature on a program composed principally of events for non-winners and claiming races, which, however provided spirited contests for the large mid-week crowd.

Panuco was sent to the post with two victories at Jamaica racecourse to his credit. Both races were over a distance, and were won in commanding style. Away when the barrier was sprung, Panuco, ridden by Jockey McCoy, again raced into a long lead on the backstretch and maintained it throughout to win from Grier of Spain by three length, William T., which was well back in the small field during the early racing, moved up in the home-stretch and failed to win the second portion of the purse by a narrow margin. Banton and Butter John followed the pace set by Panuco, but gave way to Grier of Spain when the real racing commenced.

Sites for eight large irrigation projects have been selected by the National Irrigation Commission of Mexico, and work on some of these will be started this year.

Struggle Continues For Derby Positions

MONAHANS, Tex., May 22.—(C.P.)—Fights for first and third places in elapsed time in C. C. Pyle's cross-country race continued to-day as the runners headed for Pecos, 35 miles from here.

At to-day's start the lead of 21 minutes and 30 seconds held by Johnny Salo, Passaic, N.J., over Peter Gavuzzi, of England, remained unchanged since last Saturday. The two runners tied again on yesterday's 38 mile lap from Odessa, finishing in third place. Giusto Umek, of Italy, and Sam Richman, New York, third and fourth in elapsed time, respectively, tied for first place. Richman has finished first four successive days and cut the time between third and fourth places to a little more than 13 hours.

BIG SIX STANDING.

Rain, which washed out the whole major league schedule in the East yesterday, halted the duel between the three American League members of the Big Six. The National Leagues took advantage of the opportunity to make hits while the sun shone collecting six safeties among them. Paul Waner provided the sensation of the day by climbing out of the Big Six cellar with three hits in five times at bat.

CIRCULET IN BREEDERS' STAKES.

Circulet, the Seagram horse, who disappointed thousands by his failure to win the King's Plate, will have a second chance to show his heels this afternoon in the Breeders' Stakes. Circulet's failure in the Plate was denounced by some of his backers who may be classed as poor sportsmen as the horse certainly has had bad racing luck, and he must be given a chance to redeem himself before being consigned to the cheaper ranks of Canadian-breds.

Circulet will run against Shorelint, the winner in the King's Plate. Shorelint will carry 127 pounds, or 13 more than allotted to Circulet. There are two other horses in the race that cannot lightly be passed up, Lindsay and Vestip, the third and fourth horses respectively in the guineas.

WITH CANADIAN TITLE AT STAKE.

For the first time in many years, Marathon runners will be seen on the streets of Toronto on Victoria Day, when the championship of Canada will be conducted by the Monarch Athletic Club, the most energetic long-distance running organization in Canada. The race will start at the University of Toronto Stadium and will run along Bloor street to Yonge and then turn up Yonge street to Steele's Corners, where they will turn west. Arrangements have been made to have the assistance of the police of the city and county, as well as several members of the Provincial force to take charge of the traffic problem. Not since the days of the late J. J. Ward, who yearly staged a modified Marathon, which became known all over America, and which annually attracted an entry list of over 150 competitors, has there been so much interest stirred up in this city. Fifty-five entries have been received for this year's titular competition, which by the way, is the first occasion upon which the Marathon has been included as a Canadian championship event. While the runners are out on the course, a full program of athletic events will be held at the Stadium, and with some of the best athletes in the province competing, stirring competition should result. Not for some time have so many athletes of reputation competed here and considerable interest will no doubt be centred upon Tatham, the British track star; Oldag, the German champion; Ward of New York, and the two Finnish entrants, whose records are of such a nature that much may be expected of them. The Monarch Athletic Club members have worked unceasingly in order that the meet and Marathon race will meet with success, and although by choosing to hold their meet on May 24, they expect many counter-attractions, the local club is confident that success will reward their efforts.—Toronto Globe.

A HANDY HOCKEY HOMBRE.

Hooley Smith, the "Hagen of hockey," is expected to step out in a new role or rather in a resumption of an old role at Montreal next winter. It has been suggested and it is currently reported among the hockey experts down there, that the durable centre will be at right wing next winter again. While Hooley was always a centre before he came to Ottawa, it was as a right wing that he attracted the glittering eyes of the Montreal directorate.

It was his habit of jousting with Babe Siebert and tossing him jestingly over his shoulders and working a waylaying stick to advantage on the right rail that intrigued their eye. As a centre it cannot be said that he has been a conspicuous success, but still he is a mighty useful player, and one of those gamesters who enjoys himself the most when the milling is thickest. If Maroons had any intention of letting him go they have thought better of it. Hooley served many a neat and adequate pass to Nels Stewart last winter, and while his worth may not be revealed in a perusal of the records, he is still a topnotch performer.—Ottawa Journal.

W.M.S. MEET.

Members of Warsaw Convention Hear Report on Kingston Convention.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)

WARSAW, May 22.—Fifteen members of the Warsaw United W. M. S. met in the Sunday school room on Thursday afternoon at the special meeting called for Mrs. Herrington's report of the convention in Kingston.

The first part was taken up with means of raising the needed money and she stressed that the cause should be in mind rather than the allocation, then the allocation would take care of itself.

Another thing brought up was training young people to be missionaries. There is a great dearth of young people preparing for the work. The Temperance cause was discussed and it was urged that each auxiliary do all in its power to further the cause. The liquor people are working with all their might, but the temperance people are doing very little. Mrs. Herrington gave a brief resume of the mission work in the various fields, and spoke of Africa being better known, now that the book "Drums in Darkness" is being studied. At intervals during her talk selections used at Kingston were sung. Mrs. George Taylor and Mrs. Hawthorne sang a duet.

Club Meets

The Farmer's club met on Wednesday evening to discuss several matters of business. Among them were the orders for twine, and the excursion to Guelph.

It is decided that those who wish the benefits of the club must become members and pay the dues.

MODEL CITY IS DESCRIBED

Members of Church League Hear Descriptive Address On Zion City.

REGULAR MEETING.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, May 22—The very special feature of Thursday evening's league service at Zion was an address by Rev. R. Tate of St. John's United Church, Campbellford, dealing with his motor trip from Unity, Sask. to Kingston, Ont. and return and especially with his visit to Zion City. The model town where no one drinks, smokes, dances, plays cards or performs any one of the many cardinal sins. Policemen and doctors are not necessary. The law is observed and cures are effected by faith alone. Wealth is unbounded and an advanced system of profit sharing makes the poor man as wealthy as his rich neighbor. Mr. Tate gave many interesting sidelights into the religions and commercial life of this city and presented his facts in such a way that his audience was disappointed when he was forced to leave early to attend another meeting. Many of the interesting little anecdotes of his visit were necessarily omitted and these always add spice to an address.

Sixty league members were out to hear the address and the Hudson group led in attendance. In counting points, it was voted that only one member failed to attend church the previous Sabbath. Music by the Hudson group and a duet by Laura Watson and Evelyn Barnum were other program numbers. Rev. F. G. MacTavish gave the devotional address. The meeting was in charge of Gladys Petherick, missionary convenor.

Strength After Childbirth

"After my baby was born I was very weak and run-down. I was not able to do any heavy work but I had to be around on my feet all day. The strain proved too great and I was real sick for about two months. My mother advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I started to take it. You should have seen the change in me. I am now well and strong and in good spirits. I have taken the Vegetable Compound ever since if I feel my energy lacking. I also take Liver Pills and I find them a wonderful help for constipation." —Mrs. James E. Robson, Box 603, Fernie, British Columbia.

DEATH ENDS KINDLY ACT

"Dare Devil Orion's" last performance on the tightrope was to aid the family of an elderly man who had been killed by a truck. In private life "Dare Devil Orion" was Theodore Gappa, 62, a former tight wire star. He insisted in leaving a sick bed to perform at the fair at Southall, England, to raise funds for the family, but collapsed on the rope and fell 50 feet to the ground. Gappa's daughter met her death in the same way several years ago.

DISTRICT GRAND VISITS MARMORA

Masonic Lodge is Visited By R. W. Bro. J. O. Herity.

BANQUET HELD.

MARMORA, May 22 (Examiner Correspondence).— On Monday evening R.W. Bro. J. O. Herity, D.D. G.M. of Prince Edward, paid his official visit to Marmora Lodge, No. 222, A.F. and A.M. A goodly representation of brethren were also present from Belleville, Stirling, and Madoc. R.W. Bro. R. A. Backus, of Belleville, and R.W. Bro. T. E. Laycock, of Marmora, both Past D. D.G.M.'s of the same district, added to the distinguished nature of the evening. After the initiatory degree had been exemplified, R.W. Bro. Herity addressed the large gathering on matters in general, and commended the local lodge on its deportment.

The Fourth Degree was put on. Excellent catering by the ladies of St. Pauls Guild and an orchestra, under the direction of T. Llewellyn Jones, played various catchy selections prior to the submitting of the toast "The King and Craft,' by Wor. Bro. M. J. Tamplin, Master of Marmora Lodge, A.F. and A.M., No. 222.

Wor. Bro. H. W. Sabine, Past Master of the local lodge, most fittingly proposed "Grand Lodge." He referred to the many institutions which are building up this Province, which is unequalled by any other in the Dominion, and added that the Grand Lodge was an institution which appealed to everyone in a very fine manner. It was doing a real work for those needing assistance. In spite of the Scriptural injunction not to let the left hand know what the right hand was doing, things crept into the press, such as the donation sent to the Welsh Miners' Fund. In a Masonic Lodge, he mentioned, in conclusion, people of all classes can join together as brethren and experience great pleasure thereby. The distinguished guest of the evening, in responding, first paid tribute to the beauty and chivalry of Marmora and its district. In the delightful surroundings in which he found himself placed, he experienced a feeling of perfect peace. After some humorous remarks, the speaker said he would speak briefly about something much older than Masonry, and older than Christianity. What he would refer to was one of the commonest things in the world—friendship or brotherly love. The greatest feature of Masonry, he said, was its emphasis of the commonplace. By way of many fine illustrations Wor. Bro. Herity showed how much that is commonplace is only but partly understood. Thus it was with happiness. The author of that classic, "Adventures in Friendship," namely David Gracen, pondered over the question for weeks and then could not give a satisfactory explanation. His best approach to it was to say, "It is neither a formality nor a mode, but a life." The story of the Good Samaritan has come down to us as a classic for all time. Masons are members of an order whose basis is brotherly love and friendship.

Interspersed with the District Deputy's remarks was the recital of many passages of choice poetry. Next followed two exquisite violin solos by T. Llewellyn Jones. His choice was A Chant (Hindoo) by Karsov and Intermezzo by Raymond. The latter composition was suggested by words of Tennyson. "Here is sweet music that softer falls, than petals from blown roses on the grass. Mr. Jones received great applause for his skilful playing of these numbers.

Wor. Bro. Airhart, also a Past Master of A.F. and A.M., No. 222 was assigned the duty of proposing the toast to "Our Visitors, 'whom he welcomed most heartily. He also touched lightly upon the advantages of visiting other lodges. R.W. Bro. R. A. Backus, of Belleville, and Wor. Bro. G. Bailey, of Stirling, made suitable reply.

W. Bro. J. F. Baker was next called upon for a song and he pleased the gathering with his rendering of "Memories of France." Bro. W J. Cottrell took the toast to "The Ladies,' 'and Wor. Bro. Rev. W. P. Woodger, of Napanee, responded on their behalf. R.W. Bro. J. O. Herity then submitted "Marmora Lodge," and Wor. Bro. M. J. Tamplin made appropriate reply. The evening closed with "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem. The attendance of brethren and ladies at the banquet exceeded one hundred and sixty, the number of visitors comparing well with that of former years.

WEDDING SHOWER.

Miss Ethel Dudgeon Honored By Members of X. L. Mission Circle.

About thirty members of the X.L. Mission Circle gathered at St. James parsonage on Monday evening to tender to Miss Ethel Dugeon a June bride-to-be a surprise kitchen shower.

A short program was given, consisting of a sweetly-ung solo by Miss Geneva Sedgewick and a very humorous reading by Mrs. aHrold Bennett. Following this a contest followed into which all entered heartily and with much enjoyment.

The prettily-wrapped gifts, brought in by Dorothy Dudgeon and Jennie Smart were aboard a daintily decorated boat "Ye Old Ship Matrimony" whose gay pennants bore the names of the future bride and groom atop the heart-shaped sails.

The host of presents proved to be useful as well as well as lovely and in a few words the bride-to-be offered her thanks to the girls of the circle.

At the close of the evening, dainty refreshments were served by Circle members.

ST. JOSEPH'S GRADUATING CLASS IS HONORED

Six Nurses Complete Course

Graduating Class Bids Adieu To Its Alma Mater.

LYCEUM HALL FILLED.

Diplomas and Medals Are Presented to Young Ladies.

Surrounded by pink roses, with the faces of scores of friends smiling at them as they bade adieu to their Alma Mater, and a mild May night adding its benison of perfect weather for the occasion, the Graduating Class of St. Joseph's Hospital Training School for Nurses, held Commencement Exercises last night in the auditorium of St. Alphonsus Lyceum.

The big hall was packed to capacity, nearly five hundred people being present for the ceremonies which attend this annual event in the life of the Hospital over the river. Brief speeches, a valedictory address, some music, and a conclusion in a refreshment session and a dance, formed the program of the evening.

Made Perfect Setting.

The stage at the Lyceum was a bower of flowers, and the arrangement by the Sisters, carried out in their usual artistic fashion, made a perfect setting for the graduates in their crisp white uniforms and caps, with their arms filled with pink roses. A background of black was arranged with triangular trellises in white covered by trailing apple and plum blossoms. Tall palms and ferns bordered the stage and there was a profusion of wicker baskets filled with pink roses and pink carnations and tied with large bows of pink tulle. The color scheme of soft pink, dark green, black and white was most effective and pleasing.

Six graduates received their diplomas and medals last evening, five of them being present for the occasion. Sister M. Gonzaga was the sixth graduate. The others were Miss Patricia Mary Connelly of Peterborough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Connelly of Toronto; Miss Selena Teresa Aboud, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Aboud, of Havelock; Miss Marguerite Rose Convey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Convey, of Codrington; Miss Olive Mary Cowie, daughter of Mrs. Mary Cowie and the late Mr. Cowie, of Dickson street, Peterborough; and Miss Mary Frances Hennessey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Hennessey of Ennismore.

Dr. F. P. McNulty was chairman of the evening. Occupying seats on the stage were Monsignor McColl of Lindsay, the Rev. P. Costello, Dr. A. Moir and Dr. E. H. Wood.

Twenty-one Under-graduates.

Clergymen of the district and city churches were present in the audience, also Mayor and Mrs. Denne. Pupil nurses from the Hospital, twenty-one in number, wearing their blue uniforms, white caps, collars and aprons, were in the front seats.

Dr. McNulty, in his opening remarks, congratulated the graduates on the attainment of their ambition, after years of hard work. "No one ever does anything consciously for the last time without some sadness in the heart," he said, referring to their natural regret on leaving the Training School.

Speaking of two characteristics in nurses which are at times over emphasized, the qualities of cheerfulness and of loyalty to the physician in charge, Dr. McNulty asserted that two much cheerfulness on the part of the nurses was often resented by the patient, especially in the critical aspect of an illness. He recommended a little crossness occasionally in the nurse, so that the patient might be kept to the rule.

Loyalty To Patient.

As for loyalty to the doctor in charge, the primary loyalty of the

WILL REPLACE GUNS IN PARK ON NEW BASES

Parks Committee and Members of the Returned Soldiers Inspect Confederation Square.

DO WORK IMMEDIATELY.

Fire, Water and Light Committee Orders New Lighting in West-end.

The guns are to be put back in Confederation Park as soon as the proper concrete bases have been laid, according to a decision reached by the members of the parks committee of the city council and the representatives of returned soldiers appointed at a meeting of the returned men last fall. Two guns will be placed on either side of the war memorial, but at some distance from it on proper concrete bases, while the third and smallest will be set near the Murray street entrance to the Armouries. At the meeting last night in Confederation Square were all the members of the parks committee, and Lt.-Col. Gordon Hall, Lt.-Col. Douglas Lawrie Major James Winterbottom, and Captain J. A. Dewart.

It was left with the chairman, Alderman Walter Stocker and City Engineer Parsons to see that proper bases are built and that the guns be returned and repainted.

Alderman Stocker was also authorized to appoint a life-saver for the Inverlea bathing beach at the same salary as was paid last year.

The City Baseball league wrote to the committee, asking that it be allowed to play its games at James Stevenson Park this summer and the matter was left with the chairman and Acting Clerk Charles Curtis with power to act.

Information Bureau

Just as the meeting was about to adjourn, Alderman Huffman brought up the question of a tourist information bureau for the city of Peterborough. He said that at the last meeting of the executive of the automobile club it had been felt that the city should have an information bureau, but as the club had not sufficient finances to secure a building he suggested that the city procure the building and the club would look after placing a man in it. But as no money for this had been placed in the estimates, the matter was let drop.

A Fire, Water and Light committee meeting followed that of the Parks committee, with the chairman, Alderman Cotton, presiding. Ross Dobbin, manager of the Utilities Commission, submitted a report on the light necessary to improve the lighting on Sherbrooke, Bolivar, John Thomas, Mill and Princes streets and the additional cost would be $110 a year. Benson and Smith streets were also included in the plan and the chairman authorized to go ahead and have the Utilities Commission do the work.

Alderman Holland asked that a light be placed at the corner of Armour road and Douro street, and Alderman Cotton promised that he would inspect the place.

The St. John's Ambulance Brigade wrote suggesting that the council name a couple of men who might take up the course and hence be a great benefit to the city in time of accident or fire. The matter was left with the chairman, with power to act.

Those present last night were Mayor Denne, Aldermen Cotton, Phelan, Stocker, Huffman, McIntyre, Holland and Lowe.

STEAL MOTOR CAR

LONDON, Ont., May 23.—A thirty-mile chase by three police officers last night culminated in the arrest of two Detroit youths. Fred June, 19, and Thomas Heirs, 18. The youths had stolen a motor car and sixteen shots were fired at it before the boys decided to stop and surrender.

ENGLAND SWELTERS.

LONDON, May 23.—Eastern England generally sweltered to-day under a May heat wave of almost mid-summer intensity.

THE EMPIRE IS OUR COUNTRY

God save our Country, keep her great
In justice, honour, truth;
May Freedom's star in every State be bright as the hopes of youth;
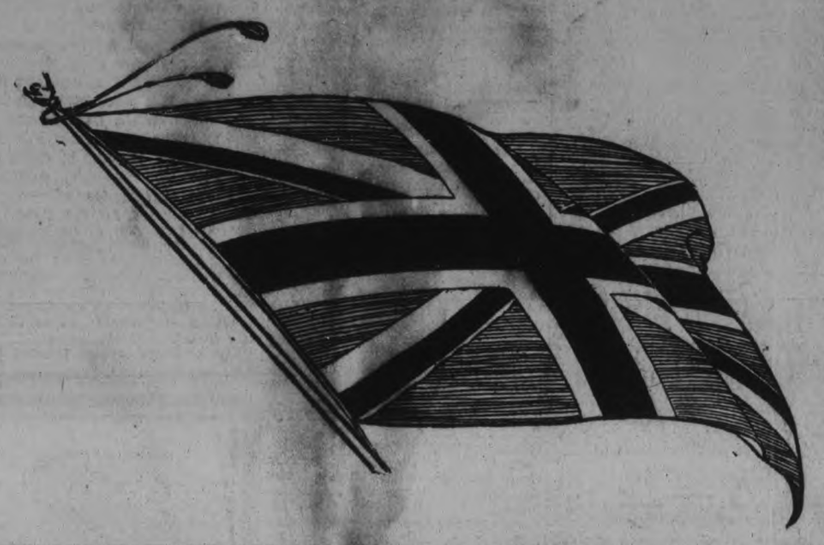
Hear, children of the Maple Leaf,
Whose voice would reach the dome,
The Empire is our Country,
And Canada our home.

CHORUS:
God bless our Empire
With heart and voice we sing,
God bless Canada:
God save our King.

The Mother Isle whence Freedom's rays
Are sent to light the world
Finds strength not known in other days
In daughters flags unfurl'd;
And faith, not fear, not law, but love,
Forbids us now to roam,
The Empire is our Country,
And Canada our home.

God bless our kindred nations all
Of every clime and race,
Where artic chilling breezes call
Or southern seas embrace:
They too, as we, with loyal hearts
Acclaim across the foam,
The Empire as their Country,
And each man's land his home.

COLIN J. ATKINSON.



Man Bids Farewell; Then Jumps 155 Feet

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 23.—(Canadian Press). — A man jumped 155 feet off the Manhattan Bridge over the East River and was drowned early to-day after bidding a passerby, "good bye, good luck, and God bless you."

A note found in a travelling bag left on the bridge read: "This belongs to Mr. Poul Liqunce, 304 Garfield Place, Brooklyn. Please notify the police." Friends told the police Liqunce, about 39 years old, and an engineer for the New York Edison Co., had been suffering from a nervous ailment for the last three months.

GERMAN LEADER DISCUSSES PLAN

Dr. Schacht Pays Visit To Leading Delegates of Allies.

EXPERT RESIGNS.

PARIS, May 23—(Canadian Press) Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, accompanied by Ludwig Kastle, successor to Dr. Albert Voegler, whose resignation as one of the chief German reparations experts was announced this morning, called at the experts' headquarters to-day and had talks with most of the leading delegates.

It was believed that the purpose of the visit was to clarify some of the reservations made by the creditor experts in the revised text of the report submitted to the German delegation.

Confirmation of previous reports that Dr. Voegler had resigned had a quick effect on the Bourse where there was a noticeable drop in values. Brokers themselves had difficulty in interpreting the effect of the resignation. Speculative shares suffered the most ,receding in some cases as much as 30 per cent. more settled issues also showed a drop.

Yielding to pressure from Rhenish and Ruhr Valley industrialists, Dr. Voegler informed the German government several days ago that he desired to be relieved from his reparations mission as he did not believe that the concessions which his colleague, Dr. Schacht, thought possible were acceptable to German business and industry.

Dr. Schacht, like Voegler, is understood here to consider the allied counter proposals impossible of acceptance in their present form, but it is reported that he inclines to the view that by negotiating and bargaining, some sort of a compromise may even now be found. Dr. Voegler and those behind him consider this futile.

TWENTY-NINE CANDIDATES ARE ENTERED FOR TEN SEATS IN MANCHESTER DIVISIONS

New Extension of Franchise Has Resulted in Women Voters Outnumbering Men.

CAMPAIGN IS QUIET.

Labor Party's Foremost Plank Stresses Increase in Old Age Pensions.

MANCHESTER, England, May 23 (By John F. Grime, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent). — Thanks to exceptionally warm weather the election campaign in Manchester is a very tame affair. The campaign is going along quietly and without exciting incidents.

Perspiring candidates are listened to outdoors with respect, but without enthusiasm. Indoors they face the depressing spectacle of scanty audiences straggling over school room benches. The candidate, moreover, usually has the additional melancholy reflection that after all he is preaching only to those already converted to his cause.

The honor of representing the ten divisions of Manchester is being sought by 29 candidates, and there are seven candidates for the adjoining seats of Salford. In Manchester ten Conservatives, ten Laborites, eight Liberals, and one Communist are in the field and in Salford there are three Conservatives, three Laborites, and one Liberal.

Women Outnumber Men.

Manchester is one of the districts in which the new extension of the franchise to the "flappers" has resulted in the women voters outnumbering the men. The total electorate is 464,262, and of these 245,807 are women.

The particular plank being stressed by the local Laborites is a proposed increase in state old-age pensions. They maintain the present pension is insufficient to enable a man to retire. The Conservatives are relying chiefly on the record of the Government. Premier Baldwin's picture is prominently displayed throughout Manchester and Salford, and the Conservative candidates are following his example in making no rash promises.

Right Hon. J. R. Clynes, the veteran Laborite and former Cabinet Minister, is making much of education in his campaign in the Moss-Side Division. He himself did not enjoy many of the advantages of education for he went to work at the age of ten. Those who know him are continually wondering how he ever added so much book-learning to his other experiences. On the subject of pensions he says thousands of widows are now debarred from receiving pensions by a host of technical regulations governing their distribution. Labor's policy, he says, is that the only qualification necessary for a widow's pension would be widowhood.

All Parties Same Aim

The Conservative candidate in West Salford, Commander F. W. Astbury, is magnanimous enough towards his opponents to say that all parties have the same aim, namely the betterment of the condition of the people and that the difference between them is only one of method. Nevertheless the commander's meetings are notable for

Safe and Sane 24th Is Chief's Objective

To-morrow is May 24th and with such day comes a form of celebration that is publicly enjoyed but once a year. Firecrackers and fireworks carry dangers with them and Fire Chief Gimblett issues a warning that every precaution be taken to make the danger as small as possible so that any unnecessary accidents or fires will not occur. Especially among children he would advise that their parents should not allow them to shoot off firecrackers or fireworks unless under supervision. A safe and sane twenty-fourth will be enjoyed by everyone.

To a certain element in Peterborough, between the age of 16 and 20, the Chief issues a strong warning that court action will follow if they do not curb their practice of throwing firecrackers at passing automobiles. Such a practice is liable to injure the occuupants of a car or to unnerve the driver so as to cause a serious accident. The first offender that is taken in will be taken to the police station where he will be treated with anything but leniency.

BIG SWINDLE IS UNCOVERED

Men Arrested in Los Angeles Charged With Using Mails To Defraud.

TUBERCULOSIS CURE.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., May 23. (C.P.) — What the Federal authorities called one of the largest "tuberculosis cure" swindles ever perpetrated in the west, was brought to light here yesterday wit hthe indictment of five persons on charges of using the mails to defraud.

Charles F. Aycock and Glen S. Jordan, named in indictments, were arrested and bond fixed at $10,000 and $5,000, respectively. Telegraphic warrants for the arrest of Adolph Beyer, George T. Lester and Martin H. Lester, were sent to the United States Marshal at Denver, Col.

Post Office inspectors said the "guaranteed cure" preparations exploited by the defendants, had victimized more than 10,000 persons to the extent of about $1,000,000 over a period of several years.

Government chemists and medical experts were unanimous in the statement that the perparations sold by the alleged combine were worthless in treating tuberculosis.

SCHOOLS HONOR EMPIRE TIES

Programs and Addresses Given in City and District.

THIS AFTERNOON.

Empire Day was observed in the schools of the city and district today. The great traditions and glorious history of the British Empire resounded through the school rooms in song and story. The names of the Empire's heroes and statesmen were recalled. Special stress was laid upon the fact that the children were of a race and members of an Empire that had ever fought for Democracy, Truth and Justice. An Empire that had blazed the trail of civilization and Christianity and stood proudly in the front rank among the nations.

The program followed that laid down by Ontario Department of Education. The teachers told of Britain's great part in history. Songs were sung by the children, who also gave recitations, read essays and played instrumental numbers. The classes were assembled in groups, two classes to a group, for the stories and songs.

For a short period in the afternoon the schools assembled outside the buildings, sang patriotic choruses and listened to a brief address on the subject of the day, "The Empire." Miss M. Rannie, supervisor of music, had taught the classes special patriotic songs for to-day.

The speakers at the schools included Rev. David Wren, Rev. C. V. McLean, Rev. J. D. Paterson, R. F. Downey and several members of the Board of Education. Some members of the Board visited the district schools.

In celebration of Empire Day, the children of the Junior Department of the Central School, held a celebration of their own in the kindergarten this afternoon.

Many patriotic choruses were sung by the entire choir of two hundred voices, while several recitations were given by tiny tots. These were interspersed by interesting selections, in a violin solo by Alex Carlisle, a song by twelve children an da unique demonstration of life in Bolivia given by Mrs. A. Haddow and her four children.

The Empire Day speech was most acceptably given by Mrs. J. A. McKone, who knows so well how to hold the attention of the small child.

The meeting which was open to parents, was much enjoyed.

Kiwanis Active.

In pursuance of the objectives for the community welfare and patriotism Kiwanis Club is taking a great interest in the Empire Day ceremonies in Peterborough city and district schools.

PRINCE HENRY WINS FAVOR WITH JAPAN

Duke of Gloucester Sailed Today On Empress of Asia.

MADE TO FEEL AT HOME.

Emperor Goes To Station To See English Prince Off.

TOKYO, Japan, May 23. (C.P.) — There is no doubt that H. R. H. the Duke of Gloucester, who sailed from Yokohama aboard the Canadian Pacific liner, the Empress of Asia, for Vancouver, B.C., to-day, captured the hearts of the Japanese people so well that it must be extremely gratifying to the Prince himself; a shade less completely, perhaps, than did his brother, the Prince of Wales, some six years ago; but then the heir to the throne is exceptional, in a class by himself.

The instant popularity that the Duke achieved when he arrived on May 2 to confer the Order of the Garter on Emperor Hirohito, is attested not only by the cordiality of his official welcome; not only by the warm words that greeted him at banquets and on other formal occasions, not only in the newspapers, but also, and especially, by remarks heard in the trains, motor buses and other public conveyances, on the streets, in clubs, and particularly where the young people gather.

"A splendid young man!" was the essence of the comment of the people in general.

See Prince.

Japan's reception of the Duke of Gloucester, as befitting his mission of bearing the Order of the Garter to the Emperor, was marked by the most elaborate possible procedure, as instanced by the fact that the Emperor in person left the Imperial Palace and went to the Central Railway station to meet him.

Such a step is taken but rarely during the reign of a sovereign of Japan, and was the first by the present Emperor since he ascended the throne. The last time was when he, as Crown Prince, and acting for his father, similarly greeted the Prince of Wales. No higher honor can be accorded a guest of the state in Japan.

Made to Feel at Home

On the other hand there was an atmosphere of refreshing simplicity during the Duke's visit; instead of profuse ostentation and too stiff formality, and the Duke was made to feel at home with a welcome of unmistakably frank friendship, not only for himself but as the representative of the British royal family, for whom it is no fiction that the Japanese entertain the highest regard.

Prince Chichitu, virtual heir to the throne of Japan, accompanied the Duke everywhere, not only in the manner of having to do so officially, but also taking a boyish enthusiasm and pleasure in it.

Clock-like precision marked the carrying out of every detail of the imperial household's arrangements for the nine days during which the Duke was the guest of the state. The remainder of Prince Henry's stay was more of a private nature, during which he had leisure to play golf and take other exercises and pleasures, and visit such places as Nikko, Miyanoshita, and Kyoto, as well as Gifu, where he viewed one of the famous sights of Japan, fishing small river trout ("Ayu") with cormorants —an extraordinary night scene that proved of such attraction to the Prince of Wales.

TAILOR FOUND DEAD

SAULT STE. MARIE, May 23.—P. J. McFarlane, a tailor, was found dead in his shop at Espanola yesterday. John Kennedy, who found the body, had called at the shop the previous evening and seeing McFarlane lying huddled on the floor had thought he was sleeping off the effects of liquor and left him there. When he called again yesterday and found the body in the same position he notified the authorities. An inquest will be held.

Increases Against Produce

Mooted Changes Provide Bigger Duty On Cattle, Butter and Potatoes.

SECRET OUT.

Attempt To Hide Alterations In Plans Fail This Morning.

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 23. — C.P.) — Republicans of the House Ways and Means Committee, following their efforts to agree on changes in the Tariff Bill, made their report to the House Republican Conference at a meeting behind closed doors to-day.

Among the changes which were reported to the conference was one of special importance to Canada, an increase in the duty on live cattle. The new rates are two cents on all cattle under 900 pounds and two and one-half cents on all over 900. The present rates are one and one-half cents on all under 1,050 pounds and two cents over that.

Other changes recommended include a two cent increase on butter, making the rate 14 cents a pound instead of 12 as at present.

Hides are given a duty of ten per cent, with 15 per cent on leather and 20 per cent on shoes. Still another important change having effect on Canadian imports is an addition of 25 cents per hundred pounds to the rate on potatoes as compared with the original bill. The increase has been demanded by Maine growers and others against Canadian competition and also against the Bermudas and other exporting countries.

In spite of the fact that these and other changes had been settled on by ways and means Republicans, efforts were made this morning to keep them secret until the Republican conference had passed on them.

The ways and means Republicans met Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday to agree on changes they would recommend to the bill in order to prevent the threatened agricultural revolt. It appeared clearly this morning however, that while they had appeased some opposition they had not quieted it all.

The corn belt members were much chagrined when they found that nothing had been done for them. They had asked protection against tapioca and sago and got none from the ways and means Republicans. They found, too, that instead of the rate on blackstrap molasses being increased above the two cent rate in the new bill as originally reported, even the original increase had been knocked off. It was declared that the three cent sugar duty advocates had made a combination with easterners interested in the use of blackstrap for industrial alcohol and thus left the corn-belt members high and dry. In consequence western farmer members for the corn states went to the conference to-day with blood in their eye and threatening trouble. They declared they had been "outraged" by Timber Lake of Colorado, champion of beet sugar on the ways and means committee.

IN REMOVING CURSE GYPSY TAKES $3,000

NIAGARA FALLS, One., May 23 (C.P.).—Believing there was a curse on his life savings of $3,000, Bede Cuddy, 23, Niagara Falls, N.Y., consulted a gypsy for having the curse removed, but instead of removing the curse, the gypsy is believed to have taken the money. At any rate Cuddy is now minus the $3,000.

In describing the incident to police yesterday, Cuddy said the gypsy took the money, mumbled a few words over it, and then fastened it up in a handkerchief which Cuddy was told to wear around his neck until Friday. He became suspicious, however, and opened the handkerchief yesterday and instead of thirty $100 bills he found thirty $1 bills.

TWO TRANS-ATLANTIC PLANE FLIGHTS MAY START TOGETHER ON ADVENTURE

OLD ORCHARD, Maine, May 23.—A simultaneous takeoff of two planes on trans-Atlantic flights, one bound for Rome and the other Paris, appeared in prospect today with announcement that the French plane Bernard-191 would be brought here from Roosevelt Field, N. Y. for its flight to the French capital.

Armano Lotti, Jr., backer of the French flight, after an inspection of the hard sand beach here said his plane would be flown as soon as weather conditions permit.

Meanwhile, departure of the monoplane Green Flash for Rome has been put over at least until tomorrow by stormy conditions over the Atlantic.

Women Have Majority Of 1,347,776 Votes

LONDON, May 23.—The electoral returns for the English and Welsh constituencies, completed yesterday, show women are in a majority of 1,347,776, on the political registers of England and Wales. The totals are 11,867,380 men and 13,225,156 women. In Scotland, however, the women have a comparatively small majority of 153,055, the totals being 1,413,602 men and 1,566,657 women.

TOULON, France, May 23.—(Canadian Press).—All the Graf Zeppelin's passengers left here for Cuers to-day in preparation for the anticipated departure of the airship for Friedrichshafen this evening.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, the dirigible's commander arrived in Toulon at 5.10 and announced that all passengers must be at the airfield at 7.30 p.m., for a start at eight o'clock (2 p.m. eastern standard time.)

The doctor arranged for the departure in a long telephone conversation with Captain Lehmann at the airfield. The decision to hasten the take-off was due largely to fear by weather experts that conditions were threatening to become unfavorable.

Immigration Policy Comes Under Fire

Amendment Moved In House

General McCrae Presents Want of Confidence Motion on Immigration Policy.

RE-ORGANIZATION NEEDED.

Peace River District Is Suggested as Best Solution to Problem.

OTTAWA, Ont, May 23.—(Canadian Press).—Debate on the immigration policy and performance of the government broke out in the House of Commons yesterday. A government supply motion furnished the opportunity for General A. D. McCrae, Conservative member for Vancouver North to present an amendment which was in effect a want of confidence motion directed against the administration. The amendment expressed regret at the "failure of the government to profit by Canadian experience in the colonization and settlement of the country."

It deplored "the fact that men and women have, during recent months been settled on western farms at great distance from transportation, educational, hospital and other necessities."

Finally it expressed the opinion that conditions can only be remedied by immediate re-organization of

SASKATCHEWAN LIBERAL REIGN THREATENED BY TORY CHARGES

At Least Eleven Three-cornered Fights Assured in Election on June 6.

124 CANDIDATES IN FIELD.

Liberals Have Been in Office For Quarter of a Century.

REGINA, Sask., May 23 (Special to The Examiner).—Nomination day for the general elections for the Province of Saskatchewan promises to provide more than a substantial list of candidates for the 63 seats of that province.

Already 124 candidates are in the field with promises of more. Adherents of the Liberal regime of James C. Gardiner number 55.

There will be some hectic times, eleven three-cornered fights are already assured, and numerous nominations are sure to be made before May 30, when the final list of candidates will be completed.

The province is in the throes of one of the bitterest political fights in its history. The elections on June 6, will decide whether Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Liberal Premier, is to be returned or whether there is merit in the series of startling charges made by the Conservative party.

The Conservatives boast of 41 standard bearers for their cause and the Progressives and other platforms make up the present total of combatants, exclusive of the Liberal candidates.

Liberals have been in office for a quarter of a century, or ever since the province was organized, and Mr. Gardiner has been Premier for three years, since Hon. Charles Dunning went to Ottawa.

Many Charges Hurled

In the heat of the campaign the enemies of the Government are firing charge after charge at the Gardiner administration, and many of the Cabinet ministers are included in the charges levelled.

Hon. T. C. Davis, Attorney-General, is charged with "protecting the bootlegger."

J. T. M. Anderson, leader of the Conservatives, alleges that the Government has failed to prosecute members of an illicit liquor ring, said to have operated in the province several years ago.

Mr. Davis fired back at Mr. Anderson the assertion that the "Bronfman issue" was in the hands of the Federal customs inquiry commission and was no longer a provincial issue.

At the same time T. G. McManus, a Moose Jaw man, who was formerly in the provincial civil service, has come out with charges of unscrupulous methods by the "Gardiner machine" wherein Government contracts were handed out to friends of the government. McManus is speaking with the Conservative leader at meetings.

An interesting angle in the election is the nomination of the Hon. George Langley, former minister of municipal affairs under the Martin regime.

LABOR LEADER ASSAILS HEAD OF AUTO MAKERS

Scores Statement of Sir Henry Austin As Intimidation.

WILL PURSUE POLICY.

Government Would Follow Program Best Suited to Country.

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., May 23.—Vehemently and emphatically, with 10,000 persons cheering him to the echo, Rt. Hon. Ramsay Macdonald last night declared that a Labor government would tolerate no capitalist intimidation on the repeal of the McKenna duties. It would carry out the policy it thought best in the interests of the country, and it would come to the assistance of every victim.

Since the opening speeches of the campaign, no statement by an leader had been awaited with such eagerness as that of Mr. Macdonald last night. It turned on the letter by Sir Herbert Austin, head of the Austin Motor Works on the outskirts of Birmingham. Under the McKenna duties British motor cars get a tariff preference and the Labor government in 1924 removed them, but subsequently the Baldwin government restored the protection. Eleven months later in a letter Sir Herbert declared

FIRE AT DIZZY HEIGHT

WINDSOR, Ont., May 23.—Fire more than 365 feet in the air on top of the Detroit tower of the Ambassador Bridge gave Detroit firemen a hard battle yesterday. The blaze started in a workmen's shop and for a time threatened the "catwalk," or working platform, by means of which the defective cables are being removed. Firemen braved the dizzy heights and put out the blaze, which did little damage.

George A. Gillespie, Peterborough, was elected president. Other officers included: H. Duplan, London, second vice president; A. S. Thurston, Thornbury, secretary-treasurer; G. W. NO ARBITRATOR IS APPOINTED Rumor That Chief Justice Taft Has Refused Position Is Denied.

OBJECTS TO PURSUIT

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 23. — (By Kennear S. Clark, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent). —Secretary of State Stimson has been working on the appointment of an arbitrator for the United States in the I'm Alone case. But he has not yet asked anyone to accept the appointment, he said yesterday.

The secretary's statement disposes of rumors that Chief Justice Taft haf been asked to serve as an Arbitrator and had refused. Interest in the case revived here to-day and officials in informal discussion directed attention of a clause in the revised statues of Canada which provides under certain conditions for the firing "at or into" a vessel which refused to bring to when ordered to do so by a government ship.

No Communication

It was said the I'm Alone was sunk by coast guard boats which were not in wireless communication with Washington. The fact that the Canadian vessel had been sunk was not known here until some time after the event. The boats which pursued and sank the I'm Alone may have been in communication with their own home station.

The schooner, as all suspected rum runners are, was on the the list of the coast guard stations and vessels which have orders to watch out for them.

The especial interest of Great Britain in the point of "hot and continuous pursuit" was recalled today. In the treaty of 1924 between Great Britain and the United States the retention of the three mile international limit was restated. Great Britain in signing the treaty indicated she did not object to pursuit and seizure up to one hour's sailing distance from shore. But she objected to pursuit beyond this point whether "hot and continuous" or not, unless the chase started from the three mile limit.

After Using Few Boxes His Backache Left Him

British Columbia Man Used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. A. H. McCabe Has Not Been Bothered Since

SHELBY, B.C., May 22.—(Special). The sterling value Dodd's Kidney Pills as a kidney remedy is shown by the following statement of Mr. A. H. McCabe of this town. He writes:—

"I suffered greatly from backache. After using a few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills the pain left me and I have not been bothered with my back since."

One of the earliest symptoms of kidney trouble is pain in the back. It in itself is the cause of a great deal of suffering. But Kidney trouble, unless give prompt attention, frequently develops into more serious form such as rheumatism, lumbago, dropsy and urinary trouble. To be assured of good health at all times the Kidneys must be kept in good working order. At first sign of trouble use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

FATE OF EXPERTS' CONFERENCE RESTS IN HANDS OF GERMANS

SOME CHANGES.

Only One Important German Condition Rejected By Creditor Nations.

PARIS, May 23—(Canadian Press) —The fate of the reparations conference was last night in the hands of the German experts' The creditor delegates said their last word in a revised edition of the conferences report which was presented to Dr. Hjalmar Schacht with a covering letter shortly after noon yesterday.

The report, as it stands, and the letter, accepted most of the conditions to which the German experts subordinated their acceptance of the annuities plan proposed by Owen D. Young.

The allied delegates rejected the German demand for the right to postpone payments within Germany on protected annuities upon their own initiative. They lifted the lien on German industrial enterprises and agreed that the Dawes lien on German railroads be considered as a second mortgage so as to facilitate financing them.

The creditors further granted the German demand that the unconditional part of the annuities for the first 37 years be reduced from Mr. Young's figure of 830,000,000 marks (approximately $207,500,000) to 660,000,000 marks, (approximately $165,000,000).

They demanded, however, that the unprotected part be increased after a certain number of years so as to reach 830,000,000 marks in the 29th year'

Dr. Schacht's demand that the Germans should have the right to call in at par at any time the bonds through which part of the reparations debt will be eventually mobilized, was rejected.

The creditor experts also refused to accept the German view as to combining payments by states successors to the Austro-Hungarian monarchy in the reparations settlement.

The creditor powers thus accepted most of the German conditions rejecting only one of those that is regarded as very important'

Who else wants cheerful windows?

"With Sunset it is possible to have a more attractive home, a more extensive, up-to-date wardrobe, at small expense. Bright, colourful Sunset helped me transform a rather colourless home. Gay curtains, harmonious draperies and pillows, and rejuvenated rugs put the sparkle of newness into old rooms. I have dyed unbleached muslin and other inexpensive fabrics, and the results have been surprising. Unbleached muslin especially looked like expensive material. I toned down a highly coloured rug, rehabilitated several bedrooms with colourful bed drsperies, curtains and cushions, and coloured linens for the dining room.

"Besides being economical, Sunset is a great time saver. From my old dresses, I frequently make garments for the children. Sunset-dye them and they cease to be despised 'hand me downs.' I brighten their faded sweaters, hose, and 'off colour' bathing suits. In kindergarten work, Sunset is ideal for colouring wooden heads, pegs, raffia and baskets, for colouring sand for project work, and for picture tinting. Using Sunset is the simplest, quickest, and most economical way I know of to beautify and brighten home and wardrobe. It has saved me many a dollar, and created an atmosphere of cheer in our home." — Mrs. M. Burns.

For fast dyeing use Sunset, 15 cents a cake. For beautiful tinting use Dytint, wonderful new tint, big box, 10 cents. Made in Canada.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 23. — In a lively somersault, the wheat market yesterday landed well above Tuesday's finish but only after outdoing every former low price record of the season. The brisk upturn of wheat appeared to be due chiefly to Canadian reports of drought and hot winds threatening to impair the new Canadian crop. All rye and corn values likewise cut under the bottommost level heretofore reached this season except for the May delivery of corn.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm 1-8c to 7-8c net higher, with corn 1-8c off to 1-8c up; oats unchanged to 1-4c down; and provisions varying from 2c decline to 5c advance.

Rapid gains in wheat prices yesterday followed receipt of messages telling of high temperatures and of excessively dry weather in some portions of the Canadian Prairie Provinces, especially around Regina and Moose Jaw. The messages added that there was urgent need of rain. Adding to the force of the subsequent advance of the market here was news that world stocks of wheat showed a decrease of 12,250,000 bushels for the past week. There was also much activity on the part of the spread traders here who were buying wheat future deliveries and at the same time making equal sales of corn.

Sunshine and warmth in the corn belt, with reports that planting of corn was making better progress in various sections, did a good deal to send corn prices downgrade in the earlier trading to-day, but the market afterwards recovered when wheat went higher. Oats duplicated the action of corn. Provisions were easy, responsive to a moderate volume of selling.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 23.— Due largely it was believed, to the oversold condition of the market, wheat prices here yesterday scored advances of 1 3-8c in all months. The first half hour of trading saw a liberal amount of wheat come forward, prices declining 3-4c. Good buying developed on the break, however, and the market regained lost ground.

In some circles it was stated that a serious lack of moisture in Western Canada, especially in Saskatchewan, was responsible for the forward movement of the market.

With very little export business accomplished and offerings light, cash wheat trading was quiet yesterday. Values were unchanged.

Oats advanced fractionally in an active mrket but barley continued dull and unchanged. Flax prices were slightly higher. Good inquiry for low grade rye and the advance in wheat forced rye futures ahead about one cent.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, May 23.—A distinctly firmer feeling was in evidence on the wholesale butter market yesterday, and No. 1 finest creamery was quoted at 37c per pound, with No. 2 grade 1c per pound cheaper. Trading was more active, and supplies of domestic butter were readily sold. The easing off of domestic production, due to the colder weather, has imparted a steadier feeling in trading circles, and large dealers stated that prices appear firm at the present levels. Butter that is reaching the market from local producers is sufficient to meet the demand of the trade, but a steady increase is usually looked for at this time of the year, and although shipments are not increasing there is no serious shortage of supplies.

Egg Trading Dull

Trading continued to be dull on the local egg market, and prices held steady, with dealers quoting country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered and cases returned, as follows: Fresh extras, 27c to 28c per dozen; firsts, 25c to 26c and seconds 22c to 23c per dozen.

Production continues to be active throughout the country, and fa "v heavy shipments of fresh eggs reached the market yesterday.

The cheese market was quiet and prices were unchanged at from 17½c to 18¾c per pound for No. 1 large colored, paraffined and Government graded supplies.

AMENDMENT IS MOVED IN HOUSE

the Department of Immigration and Colonization.

Greatest Problem To-day

General McCrae supported his amendment in a length speech. The immigration problem he declared was "the first and greatest problem of the government to-day." It could not be side-stepped. He was discouraged with that he referred to as the feeble efforts of the department of immigration. The government must overcome its chronic indecision on colonization matters. There must be an exhibition of courage and confidence.

The opening up and settlement of the Peace River district was suggested by General McCrae as a constructive solution of the immigration problem. He once more reiterated his belief in the colonization programme which he advanced in the House of Commons last year under which the government would be called upon to finance the sum of $30,000,000 with the object of settling 2,000,000 immigrants. General McCrae yesterday directed the attention of the house to the Peace River where, he averred, there was great tracts of fertile lands available for cultivation and awaiting the arrival of the immigrant.

The Prime Minister, General McCrae stated, did not appear to be very much concerned with the position of the Minister of Immigration. He estimated that there had been a net loss in Canada's immigration last year, as compared with the preceding years of 9,464.

The reply of Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration, was brief. He expressed doubt of the success of any immigration scheme involving the expenditure of many millions of dollars. Settlers should not be loaded up with a heavy financial loan. The Minister made strong denial of the intimation that his department had encouraged settlers to locate far from a railway—but, he pointed out, the Department of Immigration could not control the movements of adventurous immigrants who pushed out entirely on their own initiative.

Absorbed 166,000 Immigrants

Mr. Forke voiced his objection to a policy which would bring to Canada a greater number of immigrants than could be absorbed in the industries of the nation. In 1928, Canada had absorbed 166,000 immigrants. This was no small achievement. Of this number, the minister asserted, more than 116,500 were of British and Northern European nationalities. The number coming from Great Britain was 75,580.

Further criticism of the Government's immigration policy came from Hon. R. J. Manion (Conservative, Fort William), in the evening. He characterized it as a policy of national despair. The minister's speech had been " a most funereal wait." Dr. Manion advocated adoption of a fiscal policy in the Dominion which would result in the production of greater wealth and thus attract the immigrant to this country. In later debate, J. A. Glen (Liberal-Progressive, Marquette) advanced the view that most of the criticism as to lack of immigration into Canada came from those interests which profited by the transportation of immigrants. The West made no demand for increased immigration save among those persons with sufficient capital to maintain themselves until they were established in Canada.

LABOR LEADER

that if the McKenna duties were again removed "it would mean that we should have to reduce our employees at Longbridge—we might conceivably have to close down."

To this Robert Dennison, Labor candidate in the Kings Norton division of Birmingham, retorted that if the Austin or any other firm closed the Labor Party would immediately introduce legislation to carry on the works in the interests of the workers.

At last night's meeting Dennison presided. Neither he nor Mr. Macdonal made any reference to possible nationalization of the motor car industry. But the Labor leader spared no words in denouncing Sir Herbert Austin. "I think," he said, "we had better know where we are; whether at the general election we are to be subjected to threats by employers who happen to be presidents of Conservative Associations that if Labor is elected and Labor carries out its program, then they will close down their works and bring dire distress on the working people."

I.O.O.F. LODGES ATTEND CHURCH

Commemorate One Hundredth and Tenth Anniversary of Institution of Order of Oddfellows.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 23.—(Examiner Staff Correspondence).—In commemoration of the one-hundred and tenth anniversary of the institution of the Order of Oddfellows in Canada, the local lodge I.O.O.F. 249, and the Loch Lomond Rebekah Lodge together with visiting members from neighboring lodges attended divine worship in St. John's United church last Sunday evening. Special music by the choir marked the occasion and the minister, the Rev. R. C. Tait, himself a member of the order, preached a special sermon of particular interest to the members of the order. Under the direction of Mr. A. Hazel the church choir sang two anthems and there was also a mixed quartette. As a bass for his sermon, the Rev. Tait chose the parable of the Good Samaritan as recorded in the gospel according to St. Luke. The anthems sung by the choir were: The Radiant Sun (Lightwood) and Stars of Evening. In the latter number the duet part was taken by Miss Ruth Taylor and Miss Velma Runnels. Far From My Heavenly Home (Marston) was sung as a quartette by Mrs. H. O. Richardson, Miss Nellie Hoover, George Lucy and Harvey Donald.

Upon returning to the lodge rooms, brief addresses were given by several of the visiting members. A vote of appreciation was passed to the minister, the choir and the organist and to the official board of the church.

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestants

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestants, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or four tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and make digestion easy. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

CARS COLLIDE ON CHARLOTTE STREET

A slight mix-up shortly before two o'clock occurred yesterday near the corner of Charlotte and George Streets, which resulted in a damaged rear fender of the small coupe driven by Madame Merriam. Coming east on Charlotte Street she started to turn into the lane on the south side of the street near the corner of George, when a truck owned by Harris & Boddy, and driven by James Weir, was coming in the same direction behind the coupe. Weir evidently misinterpreted the intention of the driver ahead of him and received no signal as to the intention of turning, according to his statement. A collision resulted, with minor damage to Madame Merriam's car.

Don't Gamble on new car Lubrication

THE lubrication that is given to a new car has a very direct bearing upon the life and service that you are going to get out of the car.

The object of lubrication is to reduce friction to a minimum and only an expert knowledge of greases and their quality will achieve this purpose.

Thin cheap greases will eventually aggravate rather than reduce friction.

"WHIZ" GEAR GREASE contains those two necessary qualities—fluidity and rich smooth oiliness—that mean free moving parts and easy starting. In a new car, all moving parts are stiff and rough. Friction inevitably smooths these down, but in doing so, injures your grease. Right here is why "WHIZ" GEAR GREASE is so valuable—its richness—its body—have the strength and ability to resist the effects of friction.

And of course the correct grade of grease is just as important as the quality. Your dealer sells and recommends "WHIZ" GEAR GREASE.

AN APPROPRIATE MESSAGE.

"We Canadians have a kind of double citizenship. We love the land of our birth or adoption. We think, as its citizens, in terms of the whole Dominion. But we are also citizens of a still wider commonwealth—that far-flung Empire whose shores are washed by the Seven Seas. We cannot but have a world outlook. To-day we are partners in what has been well called 'The greatest political adventure to which men ever set their hand.' We are also learning to think in terms of the economic unity of the Empire. Let us think of it further as a great spiritual force for the promotion among men of peace and freedom, justice and equal law, religion and humane civilization. We are proud of our inheritance; we are determined to build worthily on foundations so well and truly laid.

"To our beloved sovereign now slowly winning his way, by God's blessing, back to health, we offer anew our heartfelt loyalty. His crown is the symbol of the unity, the continuity and the sane democracy of our Empire. God save the King, and make us all good citizens!"—Rev. Canon Cody in "Empire Day in the Schools" pamphlet.

STRIKING ADVERTISING.

The Dominion Life Assurance Company is to be congratulated upon its enterprise in striking an entirely new note in its advertising campaign for the present year.

A series of special advertisements, the first of which has already appeared, is to be devoted to depicting the history of insurance through the ages.

It is a subject that is full of color and interest, and as prepared from a study of history with all the romance carefully preserved, these advertisements have a flavor and an appeal all their own.

That they will attract attention goes without saying; that they will be read by thousands who would pass over an ordinary insurance advertisement with scarcely a second glance is almost as certain.

The Dominion Life historical advertisements are a departure from the usual field, and while serving to attract attention to the company, will at the same time prove generally interesting and educative.

GOOD ADVERTISING.

Peterborough's well-known musical organization, the Male Voice Choir, is off for New York to-day in search of fresh laurels, and out of their journey across the border the city they represent will obtain some valuable advertising.

The very fact that Peterborough has been able to send a large choir to New York to compete against some of the best men's choral organizations on the continent is in itself a most important bit of publicity, particularly as only two other Canadian choirs are making the long trip.

The choir's conductor, Martin Chenhall, and the choristers themselves have given lavishly of their time to hard work in rehearsal, and they deserve a great deal of credit for the spirit they have displayed.

To those whose financial support, along with the contributions by the members themselves, has made the appearance of the choir in New York possible, and to the employers who have co-operated by giving the choristers the necessary leave of absence, thanks is due.

Peterborough citizens will wish the choir every success in the competition, which is to be held on Saturday.

PLAY IT SAFE.

The Highway Safety Committee, well aware of the fact that there will be increased accident hazards on Ontario's highways because of the heavy traffic of the next few days, is making a special appeal for a safe week-end.

It is both timely and necessary.

Undoubtedly over the holiday and the following week-end motor traffic on Ontario roads will approach close to record proportions.

This condition will call for extra precautions on the part of all drivers during the period of unusual traffic, and The Examiner, in calling the attention of its readers to the Highway Safety Committee's request, would like to add its own plea for sane, careful driving.

Motorists should remember that there will not only be many more cars than usual on the highway but that the new crop of comparatively inexperienced drivers will be at the wheel of many of these cars.

Under the circumstances, taking chances is not only careless—it amounts practically to criminal negligence.

The habitual "cutter-in," the "road hog" and the speed fiend can cause a heavy death roll if they do not mend their ways over the week-end.

EMPIRE DAY.

The children of Peterborough's schools celebrated Empire Day to-day with appropriate songs and exercises—the idea behind the program being, as Premier Ferguson points out in the admirable booklet issued in connection with Empire Day in the schools, to fix in the memory of the pupils "some of the many great things for which the British Empire stands."

The Premier, as Minister of Education, does well to place such emphasis upon the celebration of this anniversary, and to tell the children as he does in a message of greetings in the official book.

"As Canadians you have the best reasons for honoring Empire Day, seeing that Canada is one of the free nations of the Empire and owes much of her fame abroad, to her close connection with the Motherland, and to the belief that all who make their homes in this Dominion are sure to enjoy the blessings of British rule."

It is fitting that every year Canadian children should be reminded of their good fortune in living in such an Empire, and the celebration is particularly appropriate in Ontario seeing that the Empire Day idea originated in this Province some thirty years ago, the first credit for the setting apart of a day for patriotic exercises belonging to Mrs. Clementine Fessenden, of Hamilton.

The plan is now followed in all parts of the British Empire.

BATTLE WARMS UP.

Temperance workers in Great Britain seem to have put aside their futile pea-shooters and to have gone in for howitzers. All the signs are that the tight little isle will be rocked this year by a real battle between the drys and the wets. The former, organizing along military lines, have designated their force as the Active Service Order and are making a special effort to interest young men and women voters. Five million young women will be added to the electorate this year and the reform leaders are intent upon enlisting them for the war. The Active Service Order makes three demands—local option for England and Wales, adequate public control of liquor supply in registered clubs, and Sunday closing of liquor bars. Recently, an open letter was sent to the leaders of the three major political parties, asking how they stood on tihese three points. Premier Stanley Baldwin, it is reported, contented himself in his reply with an essay on individual liberty; Ramsay MacDonald expressed himself as being favorable to local option, and Sir Herbert Samuel, speaking for himself and Lloyd George, called attention to the written policy of the Liberal party, which he declared went farther in favor of temperance legislation than any of its rivals. Rev. Henry Carter, founder of the Active Service Order, following receipt of the replies to the questionnaire, is quoted as having said: "We found that none of the political parties took the advanced step we hoped for and so we have changed our tactics. The temperance forces will support in each constituency, regardless of politics, the candidate who most forthrightly promises to support our policies. In this way, either in this election or the next one, we hope to get a House of Commons, the majority of which will be pledged to the reforms we have so much at heart." He pointed out, in justification of the need of advanced temperance legislation, that few, if any, countries in the world have ever spent so much on drink as Great Britain, the bill for 1928, according to a recent estimate, being $1,449,000,000, a figure but $100,000,000 less than the whole interest on the stupendous war debt and $250,000,000 more than the receipts from income tax. The amount spent on defense forces was less than half of the drink bill and the outlay for education approximately one-third of the cost of wetting whistles. It is interesting to note that the reform leaders are working for advanced temperance legislation and not for prohibition.—Hamilton Spectator.

THE FUTURE OF FLYING.

Mr. William B. Mayo, chief engineer of the Ford Motor Company, adds to recent announcements on the subject the interesting statement that the Border Cities have been definitely chosen as the site for the Canadian plant of the Ford-Stout airplane organization. The plant will be established here just as soon as the Canadian market seems to justify the move, Mr. Mayo adds. At the same time he prophesies that a start will probably be made within a year.

It goes without saying that the plant will be erected near the Walker Airport, in South Walkerville, in order to take advantage of the facilities of that fine landing field. Indeed, when the Messrs. Harrington E. and Hiram H. Walker stepped into the breach and cooperated with the Aero Club and the Aviation League in making a local airport possible, one of the strongest arguments for the establishment of the field was a location that also provided possible sites for airplane factories in relation to both the airport and railway shipping accommodation. On the latter score, of course, the arrangements are excelled, as the Pere Marquette is practically one of the boundaries of the airport.

In connection with the development of the airplane industry—and how it is developing these days—Colonel Charles H. Danforth, post commandant at Selfridge Field, Michigan, gave an address in Mount Clemens Monday night in which he alluded to the statement of Professor Worsley, of the University of Michigan, that the airplane never could replace the auto for distances of less than 500 miles. This, the colonel remarked, was a sample of the same sort of doubt that accompanied the early development of the automobile. The rapid development of municipal landing fields, he observed, and the research now progressing on the hellcopter, will enable airplanes to provide the cheapest and fastest transportation available.

Remembering, as Colonel Danforth has so aptly recalled, the predictions that one used to hear in the early days of the automobile, the wise man will be chary of prophecy in connection with airplanes. Mechanical development in this day and age has a nasty way of upsetting predictions. People laughed at the "horseless carriage," of course, and said it could never come into general use. It was too expensive, too dangerous, too this and too that. And, even more important, roads were not good enough even if it was found possible to improve the machines. Everyone knows what happened. The machines were improved and the public soon decided that new roads could be financed and built. Thousands and thousands of miles of them have been built and the yearly construction program goes forward at a rapid rate. Remembering, then, the history of the motor car and the downfall of the scoffers, is it not the part of wisdom to speculate on the practically unlimited possibilities of the airplane, instead of spending one's time trying to figure out reasons why certain things can't come about?

Mr. Ford, Mr. Mayo and other great leaders of industry are not talking about what can't be done; their interest is in what can!—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Make it a safe and sane Victoria Day.

Daylight saving, it is claimed, will save the citizens of Hamilton $50,000 on their light bills—another argument for summer time that is often forgotten.

BE-ELECTED PRESIDENT

A Thought

PRIDE IN WORK

Pride in our day's work gives us a feeling of satisfaction which nothing else can give. To feel when you retire at night that you have made a superb success of your day's labor, that you have completed a good piece of work, the best that you are capable of doing, a piece of work to which you are proud to put your name, and of which you can say, "There, I am satisfied. I will stand for that; I have stamped my character upon it, my manhood," will give to your night's rest greater repose and will cause you to arise in the morning with renewed enthusiasm to meet that day's demands.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE MORALIZE

We moralize because we are all born reformers. We resent being reformed for the reason that we are reformers in our own right. Trying to reform us is like carrying coals to New Castle, or selling snow to the Eskimos.

There is in all of us a desire to rationalize, to philosophize, to get at the bottom of reality. In its raw form this urge is none other than the instinct of curiosity.

Man is inherently curious. He wants to know the why of things. Even in the savage stage he tries to find out why the sun rises in the east and sets in the west, why it rains, why seasons of the year change, why we are born and why we die, why fire burns and water drowns, etc., etc.

In so far as our interest and curiosity are confined to the explanation of natural phenomena we are in the realm of natural science and have come to look to science for answers to these questions. But in so far as we moralize we are interested in the effects of the facts of life on the value of life itself. We are all moved by the appeal to leave this world a better place than we found it.

We moralize also because we like to draw practical lessons from the common experiences of life. There is a favorable reaction in the sense of being aa wise man, one who perceives the meaning and purpose and value of life. We hate to go through life like the animal who, so far as can be determined, never reflects why he is here and whither he is going.

Moralizing is also something of an indoor sport, a parlor trick.

We moralize to point the way to others. It is a great satisfaction to know that you have helped some one to attain a higher plane of existence. There is no special merit in bringing sorrow and trouble to others. The opposite has a favorable reaction because it puts the world under obligation to us.

Chivalry was founded on the idea of helping those in distress. The spirit of the crusader is illustrated in modern times through philanthropy.

We moralize because we would be philanthropists. We can't all be philanthropists for the simple reason that it takes a rich man to be a philanthropist and we are not all rich. But we can all share the philanthropist's elated feeling of munificence by moralizing. Hence we moralize. It is cheaper.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

WITHIN

It is within the blossom blows,
Yes, from the bud expands the rose;
And from within the warm earth yields
All of the splendor of the fields.
And what shall make us wise or great—
Our inner selves or outer fate?
Shall I seek honor from the rest,
Or is it something in my breast?

So let us seek approval—not
Approval of the polyglot
Opinions of the passing throng,
So seldom right, or right for long.
A man may call you fool, I know,
But, brother, does it make you so?
A thief may win the world's belief,
But is he any less a thief?

I have known men by men maligned
Still calm of heart, content of mind.
I have known men with crown and ring
Who knew how little they were king.
Although the crow'ds applause we seek,
One silent voice the truth will speak.
What chains we wear, or titles win,
The thing we are we are within.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

CHAPTER XLVII

He seemed so near to her thatshe sat up in bed and groped into the darkness with a shaking hand as if to find and touch him, but of course he was not there, and she lay back again trembling in every limb, her heart beating so fast it seemed like a live thing in her breast.

He must be thinking of her, that was what it was, she told herself, and because the affinity between them was so strong, his thoughts compelled her own. Until she saw him each hour would be an eternity. The last week had dragged away like an unhappy year.

"And yet I am happier than I have ever been, my dear," Ana said, and was not aware that she had spoken aloud until from across the room the General's sleepy voice asked.

"What did you say, Auntie Ana?"

"Nothing," Ana said breathlessly. "I was only thinking out loud."

"There'll be big bumpy seas tomorrow, won't there?" the General asked joyfully. "And we'll go down early and see them, won't we?"

"If you go to sleep again at once," Ana promised, and presently silence fell once more. Ana closed her eyes and tried to sleep, but her tumultuous thoughts kept her wide awake. She had been unhappy and hopeless for so long that the knowledge of the unbelievable happiness lying so near to her in the future brought with it a reaction which was almost more than she could bear.

To think that some day after all she might be Anthony Hambledon's wife!

To share her life with him, to sleep upon his heart—the thoughts were surely only tormenting dreams which could never really come true. And yet every moment must be bringing him nearer to her. Perhaps even to-morrow she would meet the worshipful love in his eyes and know that at last she had entered into her kingdom.

"I love you—I love you, oh, so much," she whispered to him through the darkness, and she held her breath as if for his answer, but she could only hear the furious voice of the wind round the cottage, and in the distance the roar of the sea.

And to her overwrought imagination the thudding waves seemed to be saying in a mocking voice that was meant for her alone: "Life Steps In—Life Steps In——" And Ana shuddered and pulled the bedclothes over her head, trying in vain to shut out the sound.

"I'll stay till after lunch, if I may," the First Prayer announced at break fast next morning. "Your little maid tells me there is a most wonderful sea—waves breaking clean over the Cobb—whatever that is—and up against the cottages on the parade."

"It always does that if there's much wind," Ana answered. "And there is a gale still blowing, even though the sun is trying to shine."

"I love the wind—it makes me feel rather mad," Jessica said dreamily. "Let's go down to the sea soon—what do you say, General"?

"Oh, he's been wanting to start since about six," Ana said smiling.

"I don't want any breakfast if nobody else does," the General said hopefully.

But Ana insisted.

"If you're going to battle with the wind you must eat a lot," she said with pretended severity. "An armymarches on its stomach, you know."

The General knew what that meant—his father had explained it to him, so he swallowed his breakfast in great mouthfuls and waited with what patience he could until Ana and the First Prayer were ready, then Ana buttoned him into his reefer coat, and fastened the flaps of his cap well over his ears.

"I wish I could walk," the General said painfully.

"All generals go riding into battle," Ana consoled him. "And your push cart is the same as a horse."

"We shall be blown away," Jessica said with a chuckle, as they opened the door and had to fight their way to the gate. "But I just love it. A wind like this blows away all one's cobwebs and nasty thoughts."

Going down the hill to the sea the wind was so terrific that both she and Ana had to hold on to the General's chair.

"Let it go," he shouted excitedly. "Let it run down the hill all by it own self, Auntie Ana."

"Yes, and let you end up in the sea," Ana said laughingly. "That would be splendid."

"I'm not 'fraid," the General insisted.

"No, but I am," Ana answered. They had great difficulty in rounding the corner on to the sea front.

The whole of the little town seemed to have turned out to watch the waves.

A man whom Ana knew slightly shouted to her to be careful where she went.

"It's all right up this end," he said. "But further along by Betty's, the sea's right over and you can hardly keep your feet."

Ana thanked him but she did not pay much attention. The wind seemed to have got into her head and, as Jessica had described it, was making her feel a little mad.

It was so wonderful, so elementary—she felt proud of the strength of the sea, and of its bold defiance. Nobody could harness those mountainous waves—nobody could say to them "Go back—come no farther."

Halfway along the narrow little sea front she stopped. "I don't think we ought to go on! Oh! look at that one!"

A larger wave than any of its predecessors had broken with a mighty crash against the row of little old Georgian cottages that stand like sentinel soldiers with their backs to the cliff, and a party of laughing girls and boys who had ventured too near, came dashing back, drenched from head to oot.

"Let me go there, let me, let me," the General screamed.

His cheeks were crimson and his eyes wild with excitement.

He began to struggle with the straps that secured him to his chair.

"Let me get out, Auntie Ana—I want to walk. I can walk!"

"I shall take you home at once if you're not a good boy," Ana threatened, but her eyes glowed with sympathy.

She knew just how he felt, for the sea madness was upon her too, and the wildness of the wind and the waves had taken possession of her heart.

She longed to feel the salt sting of the waves on her face, and the rough hands of the wind tearing through her hair

She half turned and looked toward the sea—a boiling cauldron of black waves tipped with spinning ghostly crests of white foam.

If only Anthony were here to share it with her! If only they could stand hand in hand in their newly found freedom, looking out over the wild waste of waters. The wind tore her hat from her head, and with an excited laugh she put up both hands to try to save it—and in that moment life stepped in once again.

"I am more powerful than the wind or the sea," it seemed to insist. "But the wind and the sea are my allies and will work for me——"

And the wind caught the frailty of the General's wheel chair from which Ana had momentarily taken her hands, and blew it like a wisp of straw across the uneven slope of the narrow parade toward its unguarded edge—toward the boiling cauldron beyond. And a great wave came (superstitious folks whispered to each other afterward that it was a seventh wave) and before anyone could take a step forward, or lift a hand to save him, the General was swept helplessly into the flying spume and thundering surf.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S MAY DANCE

Copyright, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

(By Howard R. Garis)

All the animal children in woodland, where Uncle Wiggily had built his hollow stump bungalow, were very much excited. Everywhere you went you would hear talk like this:

"Are you going?"

"Of course I'm going!"

"Are you going to dance?"

"Why, of course I'm going to dance!"

"So am I! Oh, won't it be fun with all the colored ribbons twining round the pole and shining in the sun like a rainbow or soap bubbles, and—and——"

"Good things to eat, too!"

"Oh, yes, Uncle Wiggily wouldn't forget that!"

The animal boys and girls were talking about the May pole dance for which Uncle Wiggily had sent out invitations a few days before. As I told you last night, the rabbit gentleman had set up a May pole in his bungalow yard and had fastened long streamers of many colored ribbons to the top so that they hung down to the ground. The boys and girls were to take hold of these ribbons and dance in and out around the May pole, weaving the ribbons so they would make the May pole look like the one in front of a jolly barber's shop.

"Did you ever hear of such a thing?" quacked Lulu Wibblewobble, the duck, to Arabella, the chicken girl. "My brother Charlie, the rooster, and Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow, the pupp ets and a lot of other boys are going to be in the May dance."

"So I heard!" cackled Arabella.

"Well, why not?" crowed Charlie, coming along just then with Jackie and Peetie. "Don't we boys want some of the good things to eat as well as you girls?"

"Oh, they're just going to be in Uncle Wiggily's May dance to get something to eat!" quacked Lulu.

"Well, aren't you going to eat too?" quacked Jimmie, her brother.

"Sure they are!" barked Jackie and the girl animals couldn't say they weren't for they were. But then, of course, girls like dancing better than do boys, though this time Charlie, Jackie and Peetie had even made up their minds to help twine ribbons around the May pole.

"For there's going to be swell things to eat!" whispered Peetie. "Bone lollypops and toasted marshmallows and gum drops and——"

"Corn meal cookies, too!" quacked Jimmie.

It was true. Uncle Wiggily had decided to have a little party when the children danced around his May pole and now all was in readiness. From their houses out ran the girl and boy animals, dressed in their best, for the Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hollow Stump School had said there were to be no classes this day in honor of Uncle Wiggily.

"All ready!" chirped the Song Sparrow, who, with the robin and other birds was to make music for the May pole march. "All ready!"

Then the girls and boys, each one taking hold of an end of ribbon, marched around the May pole to the music of singing birds, while Uncle Wiggily, with Nurse Jane Fuzy Wuzzy and his wife and the mothers and fathers of the animal boys and girls looked on.

Faster marched the children! Faster sang the birds. The colored ribbons, twining in and out looked like pieces of a rainbow fallen to earth. All of a sudden Uncle Wiggily shouted:

"I can't stand still any more! I'm going to dance, too!"

"No! You can't!" exclaimed his wife. "You have the rheumatism badly today and you have to limp on your red, white and blue striped crutch that Nurse Jane gnawed for you out of a cornstalk! You can't dance!"

"Yes I can!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "I see one end of a ribbon that no one has hold of! Here I go!"

Before anyone could stop him, the bunny gentleman, skipping and hopping on his rheumatism crutch, was among the May pole dancers, and though he bobbed up and down in the funniest way, it was so jolly that even the wise old Owl Bird laughed.

At last the ribbons were all wound around the May pole, making it look like a striped stick of candy. Then Nurse Jane set out the good things to eat and such a fine party as there was! It makes me hungry to write about it! The children loved Uncle Wiggily more than ever.

Then it grew dark and they all went to bed. Baby Bunty awakened once after she was tucked in, and asked for a drink of water, but she did that every night so it didn't count.

NATIONALISTS ARM FOR BIG STRUGGLE

Full Military Strength Will Be Used Against "Christian General.

NANKING, China, May 23. (C.P.)—The full military strength of the Nationalist Government moved north war dto-day to meet the threat of the "Christian General" Marshal Feng Yu-Hsiang, who seeks to extend to South China his overlordship of Central China.

In Nanking public demonstrations were held upholding the regime of General Chiang Kai-Shek and denouncing Feng, while the Government policy was declared to be "peace and unity. However unity is necessary before peace is possible."

Nanking ministers denounced Feng as responsible for "wholesale destruction of the nation's railways, disturbance of the peace of the country, and with precipitation of a grave situation which although most undesirable, the Nationalist government is prepared to deal with."

"Y" CAMPAIGN RAISES $8270

Final Reports Were Made at the Y. M. C. A. Last Evening..

$150 FROM C.G.E.

The Y.M.C.A. campaign to raise $8,000 to carry on the work of the Association went over the top on high, with colors flying. The campaign has been in progress during the last seven days. When the final chapter was written down last night on "the largest and most successful campaign in the Y's history," the total, with all reports received, reached $8,270.

The team captains and campaign managers met at supper with the Y's Men's Club to hear the final reports of their effort to put the Y.M.C.A. on a most solid financial basis.

"The old association is in better shape than ever before, thanks to the work of the men who gave their time and energy to putting it over," said J. F. H. Wallace, who had a great share in the campaign. Mr. Wallace made special mention of the $150 cheque received from the C.G.E.

"The thanks of the whole organization should go to Mr. Wallace," said Joe Wearing, "since it was he who conceived the inspiration of wiping off the debt and ha dthe courage to put the idea into force."

All Workers Thanked

W. A. Richardson, president of the board of the Y.M.C.A. thanked all the workers, recalling the thanks that had already been expressed at the meeting Friday night when he was apparent that the campaign was assured a complete success. He especially thanked them for the final effort that had pushed the sum past the $8,000 mark.

It was the final meeting of the season for the Y's Men's Club and Don Lapp, president, expressed the club's appreciation for the work of the canvassers. A presentation on behalf of the club was made to the Ladies' Auxiliary, who have supplied the suppers throughout the year, through its president, Mrs. D. Jordan.

PERMITS ARE BEING CHECKED

All Drivers Must Carry Permit Under Ontario Traffic Act.

VARIOUS TYPES

It is necessary that every person be the holder of a permit if they desire to drive a car. Last year there was a great deal of trouble arising from the operators of motor vehicles because they did not carry their cards. This resulted in many fines as well as inconvenience to the motorist. The police this year are starting a close check-up on all drivers.

Now that the motoring weather has arrived and that the country roads are much better than in the spring, the number of persons driving and taking long trips will be increased.

The following are the types of licenses required: There is first the instruction permit which is good for sixty days. Each person learning to drive must have one of these. Such permits do not allow the beginner to drive alone, but he must be accompanied by a person holding a regular operator's license in the seat with him. These are not issued to persons under sixteen.

The operator's license is issued to persons only over the age of eighteen, and if a driver has not had a permit before, he must now pass a test to show that he is capable of handling the vehicle. The penalties for neglect of this provision are laid down in the Highway Traffic Act as follows: "A fine of not less than $10 or more than $50 for the first offence, not less than $20 or more than $100 for the second offence, while any subsequent offence is liable to a fine of not less than $50 or more than $100, as well as the likelihood of spending a term in jail not exceeding thirty days.

"These permits must be carried and shown when asked for. The penalties for the failure to do so are fines of not more than $5 for the first offence, not less than $5 or more than $10 for the second, and for any subsequent offence a penalty of not less than $10 or more than $25 will be invoked, with the additional clause that the offender's license or permit may be suspended for a period of not more than thirty days."

For Professional Drivers.

The chauffer's license is for the professional driver. Such a driver is defined in the Act as a person who operates a motor vehicle and receives compensation for it. Persons between the ages of sixteen and eighteen to operate a motor vehicle must be the holder of one of these.

Any person operating a vehicle for gain is open to the following penalties for violation of this clause: Not less than $10 or more than $50 fine for the first offence; from $20 to $100 for the second, and from $50 to $200 for the third, with the danger of 30 days in jail.

These licenses must be carried and produced when demanded by the police. Failure to do so involves a fine up to $5 for the first offence, between $5 and $10 for the second, and up to $25 for any subsequent offence, with the risk of having the license suspended for not more than 30 days.

Harold Dunsford is the local examiner, before whom each new driver must appear and before whom each new applicant for a chauffer's license must pass a rigid test.

Owing to a cracking of the huge pinnacle rock on which it was built, fears are entertained for the safety of the ancient chapel of Et. Michael D'Aiguille at Puy, France.

Market Leaders Sustain Most Serious Losses On Toronto Stock Exchange.

OIL SECTION QUIET

TORONTO, Ont., May 23.—(Canadian Press).—Though declines never assumed serious proportions, prices continued to bend under the strain of inactivity on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. The most serious loses were sustained by the usual market leaders which to-day were almost ignored. International Nickel again held up and never got below 46½, with the noon price of 47½, showing a net advance of ⅛. Massey-Harris at 62, Page Hersey at 127 and Lake Superior at 15¾ were all more than a point lower, while Hamilton Bridge dipped two points to 51½ as did Canadian Industrial Alcohol to 27.

Oils were very quiet, with International Petroleum weakening 1¼ point to 48½, Supertest one to 30 and Canadian one to 43, Imperial and British American were fractionally lower.

Ontario Equitable Life came out four points to 56 while Dominion Bank was off 2 at 248, and Toronto 1 to 259.

GENERAL LIST RECOVERS ON NEW YORK CURB

RE-DISCOUNT RATE FIRM.

General Advance is Distributed Over Wide Assortment of Issues.

By Stanley W. Presnoil (Associated Press Financial Editor)

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 23.—Stocks rebounded sharply to-day under the influence of easier call rates and rumors that no change would be made in the New York Feedral Reserve Bank rediscount rate after the close of the market. It was the announcement that the Federal Reserve Council had recommended an increase from 5 to 6 per cent. in rediscount rates which caused yesterday's drastic reaction and wiped out more than a billion dolars in quoted values.

Recoveries in the general list today ran from 1 to 8 points, and were distributed among a wide assortment of issues. A few soft spots cropped out, presumably due to distress selling of weakened marginal accounts but most of the leading industries rails and utilities received strong buying support overnight.

Call money renewed at 6 per cent. For the first time since March 19. There was a plentiful supply of funds available money brokers estimating that $50,000,000 was being offered around midday, and the rate in the "outside market" was dropped to 5½ per cent. It was not believed, however, that the official rate would be dropped below 6, which has been the minimum rate since August 17, 1928, as another money squeeze is likely around the end of the month.

TELLS OF RESCUE.

Thomas Snowden, Sixteen-Year-Old Boy, Modest About Feat.

Thomas Snowden, 16, the rescuer of Janet Lindsay, who was one of the three survivors of the tragic boat trip at the Lock's Bridge last Sunday, tells The Examiner, in his modest way, of the part that he played in the rescue.

Living near the scene of the accident, on Otonabee street, he happened to be passing across the dam, when he saw the boat in difficulty above the bridge. He ran across the dam and to the bridge, but by the time he arrived there the boat had slipped away again so he rushed down the east shore of the river as the girls in the boat jumped. The boys were on the other side of the boat and he did not see them. Running down the bank to the shore he saw Annie Lucas swept down stream close in shore by the current, but he was too late to get her, however. Janet Lindsay was carried over the dam, and Tom waded out up to his chest in the treacherous current, risking the danger of stepping into an unseen hole and meeting the same fate as the others, grabbed Miss Lindsay and started for shore, where he dragged the gir lto safety.

"That was all there was to it," was the modest reply of Tom. "I was not afraid at the time but plunged in to try to save them if I could.

Wheat Values Drop Under Heavy Selling

CHICAGO, Ills., May 23.—(Canadian Press).—Selling out on the part of yesterday's buyers turned wheat values downward here early to-day. Selling was based on reports from railroad sources indicating, contrary to various advices, the Canadian moisture situation gave no reason for alarm. Opening unchanged to ⅜c off, the wheat market later underwent decided setbacks all around. Corn, oats and provisions were easy, withc orns taying unchanged to ⅞c down, and continuing to sag.

BOY WOUNDED IN HOLD-UP

Injury Discovered at Bowmanville School On Examination.

HIT BY BULLET.

TORONTO, Ont., May 23.—(Canadian Press).—Fired upon by a bank clerk of the Dominion Bank at New Toronto a month ago after they had attempted to hold the members of the bank up, it has just been discovered that the younger of the Lee brothers, of Lindsay, was hit by one of the bullets and has been carrying it in his arm since. Only this week was it extricated.

The bullet was discovered after the boy entered the school while he was being given a medical xamination. The boy admitted he knew he was wounded at the time, but said nothing about it, hoping it would get well.

The boy said he was hit while protecting his brother, having placed his arm around his brother's neck when the bullet struck him.

Blood poisoning did not develop.

The boys were sent to Bowmanville by Magistrate Keith in the county police court and are under the eye of members of Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs of Lindsay.

NEWBEC LEADS MINE MARKET

Advances to the Morning's High Mark On Standard Exchange.

GENERAL LIST EASIER.

TORONTO, Ont., May 23.—(Canadian Press).—Newbec mines, working in opposition to the dominating steady downward trend, supplied the main interest on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day. Losses, however, were mostly of a minor character and were largely sustained by the more expensive stocks. Noranda and Lake Shore both eased 25 cents to 51.75 and 24.75, respectively, while Dome lost 20 to 9.55. Sudbury Basin, Pend Oreille and Falconbridge were all from 10 to 25 cents lower. Newbec, in a turnover of more than 48,000 shares, climbed up 6½ points to 75½, the morning's high.

MOTORIST ACQUITTED

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., May 23.—A coroner's jury inquiring into the cause of death of Joseph Bouillion, six years old, who fell from the handlebars of a bicycle ridden by Alex Thompson, a newsboy, on May 11, returned a verdict last night that the boy came to his death by striking the pavement and fracturing his skull. No blame was attached to Albert Irwin, nephew of Mayor Irwin, who was passing at the time in an automobile. The evidence showed that the boy was not struck by the auto and that the motorist had no connection whatever with the accident. Irwin had been on $10,000 bail since the accident.

All companies catering to the building industry in Canada appear assured of continued active operations, in view of expanding building and construction programs. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics tabulated returns from 31 cities which granted building permits valued at $29,621,097 during April, as compared with $24,067,456 in the preceding month and $18,606,167 in the same month of last year. There was, therefore, an increase of $4,563,641 or 23.1 per cent in the first comparison and of $11,014,930 or 59.2 per cent in the second. The aggregate for the elapsed months of this year—$72,516,702—exceeds that for any other since the record was begun in 1920, while building costs continue lower than in most years of the record.

Pig Iron Output Lower

Production of pig iron in Canada during April amounted to 79,341 long tons, according to a statement issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa. This output was the lowest for the year to date, being 8 per cent. under the 86,176 tons of the preceding month but 6 per cent. over the 74,736 tons reported for April of a year ago.

During the month one furnace at Sydney, N.S., was blown out, leaving six furnaces in blast on April 30. The active furnaces had a capacity of 2,475 long tons per day, or 60 per cent. of the total capacity of all blast furnaces in Canada, and were located as follows: 2 at Sydney, N.S.; 2 at Hamilton, Ont.; and 2 at Sault Ste Marie, Ontario.

For the four months ending April the cumulative production of pig iron amounted to 347,220 tons, an increase of 23 per cent. over the 282,823 tons produced during the corresponding period of last year. During the first four months of 1927 production totalled 255,289 tons and in 1926, 227,248 tons.

The production of steel ingots and direct steel castings in Canada at 122,102 tons in April was the second highest output report since 1918, being only exceeded in the next preceding month when the tonnage was reported at 137,158 tons.

For the four months ending April of this year, production totalled 492,965 tons, an increase of 19 per cent over the 414,153 tons reported for the first four months of last year. During the corresponding period of 1927 production amounted to 330,659 tons and in 1926 to 260,394 tons.

Large Increase in Ontario Mineral Output

Total value of minerals produced in Ontario during the first three months of the present year jumped nearly 25 per cent. to $19,780,780, according to an official report for the period, issued Monday by the Ontario Department of Mines. This was largely due to marked expansion in the nickel-copper industry.

The total value of nickel and copper refined in Ontario at the province's sole refinery, that of the International Nickel Company at Port Colborne, was $7,369,172 during the three months. This is an increase of 69 per cent. over the corresponding period of 1928 when the total value was $4,349,925 and more than double the 1927 figure of $2,405,646.

Gold output decreased slightly, the total volue during the 1929 period being $3,089,192 as compared with $3,123,013 in the first three months of 1928. Silver jumped more than 50 per cent., the 1929 quarterly production being $1,309,864, as compared with $885,308 during the corresponding period of 1928.

NOT GUILTY.

The verdict of not guilty returned by the Parry Sound assize jury on May 17, in the case of 13-year-old Tony Tucker, charged with manslaughter of his father, culminated one of the most unusual cases ever brought before the criminal courts of Ontario. Young Tucker, who is shown above, the jury found, was justified in shooting his father, Anthony Tucker, aged 65, outside their home near Trout Creek on the evening of March 5 last.

Improvement In Flour Milling Business

Export shipments for the first 5 months of the flour milling year and domestic business during the period indicate a further satisfactory growth in business for the Canadian milling companies this year. Official export figures for the 12 months ended March, 1929, show an increase of approximately 2,500,000 barrels to around 115,000,000 barrels.

The proposed cut in the freight rate on flour will it is stated mean little to the Canadian millers as the U.S. roads will pass the cut along to the American mills; some benefit will, however, accrue on domestic business. Similar conditions apply in connection with the recent slump in the wheat market, but any advantage on domestic business from cheaper wheat will be offset largely but cuts in the price of flour during the past year.

St. Regis Paper Presents Report

Consolidated net income of the company and its subsidiaries in 1927 amounted to $1,133,594, equivalent, after preferred dividends to $2.04 a share on the average number of shares outstanding during the year and to $1.62 a share on the 587,780 shares outstanding at the end of the year.

The consolidated balance sheet, F. L. Carlisle, president of the company pointed out in his remarks to stockholders, show current assets on December 31, 1928, of $23,727,931, of which over $17,500,000 was in cash and call loans, against current liabilities of $2,576,732, a ratio of over nine to one.

The report, which represents for the first time a consolidated balance sheet and earnings statement of the company, shows that total assets amounted to $170,250,196, represented by the company's paper manufacturing and public utility properties in St. Regis.

ON BARGAIN COUNTER

Several oil issues look attractive at present prices. This applies to operations in vicinity of Home because of proximity of Home 2 to productive horizon. Calgary gave indications Monday of starting to discount expected good news on Home and such stocks as Mayland, Southwest ePtroleum, Calmont, A. P. Consolidated, Associated and East Crest are bound to receive a lot of favorabel attention. First two, Mayland and Southwest Pete, have had healthy reaction and with so little stock in hands of public should be among first to come back.

DALHOUSIE

Check on Dalhousie production figures April show No. 1 produced 359 barrels naphtha and No. 5 produced 1,218 barrels crude. Working capital $150,000 cash in bank. Value of output about $8,000 per month.

HOME OUTLOOK

Home 2 is now around 70 feet in limestone and may encounter productive naphtha horizon any time now. General view is that it will not be necessary to go deeper into lime than perhaps 150 feet.

RICHFIELD

When present financing is completed, Richfield Petroleum will have $225,000 cash on hand to carry on its operations in Waite Valley, which structure seems to rank second to Turner Valley among the active fields.

CALGARY WILL PLAY

Quite an extended development program under way at Pioneer in Michipicoten. Shaft being sunk to open up vein which was tested by diamond drill, results of which were not made public.

PATTERSON COPPER

Patterson Copper, Boston Creek controlled by Barry-Hollinger, now reported working on four levels. Good ore already opened on 125 and 250. May soon start shipping, according to press reports.

GRANADA

Reorganization of Granada in not distant future mooted. Has 500,000 shares in treasury. Good results being met with on 625 foot level may bring on re-financing early. Suggestion made that to overcome Federal share tax so far as possible, new shares may be $10 par value.

ONTARIO MINE OUTPUT

International Nickel refinery output up 69 per cent for first quarter 1929, and this played big part in carrying Ontario's three month mineral output to new high of $19,780,000, an increase of nearly 25 per cent. Gold output off slightly, with silver up 50 per cent.

THOMPSON-CADILLAC

George C. MacKenzie, secretary C.I.M.M., is new managing director Thompson Cadillac. George G. Campbell, late of Treadwell-Yukon and and Creighton mines staffs, succeeds Murray Kennedy as mine manager. Head office goes to Montreal.

TREADWELL-YUKON

Treadwell-Yukon understood to plan marketing about 10,000 tons of zinc concentrates by next October. At present there is stock pile of opproximately 4,500 tons accumulated during winter, and shipments will commence at an early date. Last year, copper, lead and zinc concentrates were shipped, gross value being copper, $71.21; lead, $76.52; zinc, $67.11, per ton of concentrates. These figures are based on 18c copper, 54c silver, and 6½c for lead and zinc.

INTERNATIONAL NICKEL

Frood and Frood Extension (Mond) shafts now connected at 2,800 foot level. Connecting drives had to be driven 2,500 feet to effect the junction, and accuracy with which work was carried out is demonstrated by fact that two drives met head on, operations being completed this week.

NEWBEC

Who is buying all the Newbec? In past ten days total transactions have amounted to 2,873,085 shares. Noranda's holding estimated around 300,000 and this fact coupled with interest Noranda people are taking in recent successful development is doubtless father of suggestion heard often of late that Noranda interests may be doing the buying.

CALMONT

Calmont officials report crude oil of greener shade as cleaning progresses. Still some caving to clean out.

SOUTHWEST PETE

Southwest Pete still going strong. New drilling at over 3,300 feet.

FOOTHILLS

Foothills No. 2 nearly drilled through cement and will be making new hole in lime very shortly.

HOME

Reasonable to expect Home 2 to make 15 feet per day. At this rate would reach depth where Home No. 1 hit huge production within eight days. Home No. 1 is 172 feet in lime. Home No. 1 well hit lime at 5,108 feet and production at 5,260 feet. Home No. 2 set casing in lime at 5,345 feet.

ILLINOIS-ALBERTA

Illinois-Alberta hit more gas, but will continue drilling. Considered very encouraging.

McLEOD

McLeod No. 2 now making new hole in effort to reach increased production in new horizon discovered by McLeod No. 4 well. Probably has about 600 feet to go.

PEND OREILLE SHARE EXCHANGE

Holders Pend OReille lead and zinc shares can now send endorsed certificates to Old National Bank Building, Spokane, and get share for share in new company Pend Oreille Mines and Metals. WEST DOME LAKE

Change in capital structure West Dome Lake may be proposed at annual meeting May 31. Company out of funds, capitalization $5,000,000 of which $3,000,000 went to Consolidated shareholders Cash put up by directors who took stock at 15c and shareholders at 10c now exhausted.

ONTARIO REFINING

While plans are not completed for new copper refinery at Copper Cliff, it is understood that plant will follow generally lines of Chrome plant of United States Metals Refining Company, an annual capacity of 500,000,000 pounds. Reported basis on which new industry was organized now confirmed. American Metals and International Nickel will share 80 per cent and Consolidated Mining and Smelting 20 per cent. Latter company invited Ventures to come in with them. Designed for 20,000,000 pounds yearly output, new copper refinery is to be erected so that capacity can easily be doubled.

LAKE SHORE

Development at 1,600 level Lake Shore has opened up large reserves of new ore. Average values over widths varying from 30 to 60 feet $20 per ton, and length of main ore zone at this level about 2,300 feet. Sections of ore reveal values up in hundreds of dollars to tone. As a result of depth developments, unofficial estimates place ore reserves now at over $200,000,000 down to 3,000 foot level.

WRIGHT-HARGREAVES

April earnings Wright-Hargreaves above March total while it is said first week of this month bettered any week of previous month. No confirmation officially of northern report of cut in mill tonnage to 350 daily.

HUDSON BAY

Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting has started construction of its power line Island Falls to Flin Flon.

SHERRITT-GORDON

Many are wondering when Sherritt, Gordon's report will be available. Gossip on Street attributes delay to two possible reasons. One is that there is strong accumulation of shares going on and it may be that it is not desired to interrupt this. Better reason, however, is that company may want more ground before revealing details of its development which are said to have bordered on wonderful. Just recently Premier and Sing Sing groups of 30 claims, with surface values principally in cooper, were acquired.

NEWBEC

Work on Newbec said to reveal even more favorable geology than was first expected. Porphyry which it was thought cut off further chances of ore to east now said to be only finger or tongue and extensions of recently cut high grade may now be encountered.

ARNO

Shareholders of Arno told at annual meeting plan was to put Coxheath mine in Nova Scotia into production as soon as transportation is arranged and will ship to Atlantic Coast smelter. While company has funds for present season's work, proposal was made to increase capital three to five million shares. No intention to immediately issue new shares.

NEWBEC

Newbec are drifting on their new ore body along its south wall to ascertain its southern limit. Intention is to drive in from main drift by short crosscuts running south at various intervals and get limits on north side.

Another gun in battle for control of Abana at meeting May 27th fired in form of further attack on policies of present directorate.

QUEMONT

Shares Quemont, Mining Corporation's subsidiary, appeared on Standard at $1.15 and closed $1.10. When company organized 1,000,000 shares were given for property which puts value on it of $1,100,000.

HOME TWO

Decidedly encouraging, distinctly favorable for bringing in of another naptha producer is comment heard on fact that Home 2 has encountered gas flow over 2,000,000 feet. While selling somewhat overwhelmed buying Tuesday, it is known that there was some very intelligent buying orders in market.

MALYAND-SOUTHWEST PETE

Mayland with 560 acres, and Southwest Petroleum with 960 acres and both now Imperial Oil operations, loom cheap at present prices. Selling below $10 the former is considered on bargain counter, while Southwest Peter has what is considered the choice piece of acreage in Southern Turner Valley.

A. P. Con., CALMONT

Two bargains because of tremendous posibilities as a hold are Calmont and A. P. Consolidated. Calmont has one well which may prove a big one and will drill give additional wells simultaneously. A. P. Con. has announced a campaign that will involve drilling of ten wells. Incidentally, this stock should do better if Home does the anticipated in a market upswing.

WRIGHT-HARGREAVES

Station being cut on 2125 level in north shaft of Wright-Hargreaves. Vein cut on 700 level which is probable upward extension of north vein found on 1250 in northeast claim. Two rounds taken out of new find and this gave high grade over five feet. Vein was very erratic in values on 1250. Tonnage cut to an average of 300 to 350 tons per day.

KEELEY

Have 23 feet of vein matter cut on 1600 level of Keeley Silver. Vein 8 to 10 inches wide and running 3,000 oz. silver to ton.

CONTINENTAL

Curtailed underground operations at Continental Kirkland. Only one machine working underground now and believed that this one will be stopped at end of present month.

NORANDA

Smelter tonnage at Noranda up again to 800 daily. Takes a little time to get back to full speed from a break down. Probable that from now on they will keep around 1000, as it is thought that they were forcing it too much at 1300. Concentrator is giving smelter a grade of ore around 16 per cent. copper.

McINTYRE

Employing Ontario figures for last quarter, gives McIntyre to its fiscal year end $4,212,112 for 12 months to March 31. For previous year total was $3,967,635.

RIBSTONE HAS WELL

Calgary Herald gives considerable prominence to report that Meridian No. 1 had struck crude ten feet below depth where 30,000,000 feet gas was struck last fall in Ribstone field east of Wainwright. Only bailing tests conducted and best recovery is 20 barrels an hour grading about 18 Baume. Depth 182 feet. Meridian subsidiary of Ribstone Oils. Meridian No. 2 passed through same sand getting only water.

OILS SPRINGG BACK

That oils were oversold yesterday was evidenced by sharp recovery which marked afternoon session at Vancouver. Gains were quite general and practically all good issues closed well above day's low.

DOME IMPROVES

Gold production figures first quarter 1929 show Dome output 136,700 tons, $7.57 per ton or $1,033,098 as compared with $960,437 for same quarter 1928. The grade per ton is also better than a year ago.

LAKE SHORE-TECK HUGES

Jump of $630,000 in Lake Shore's quarterly production, January to March, over year ago to 1,430,000 not occasion for surprise but drop in Teck Hughes of $136,000 to $1,246,365 is. Teck's tonnage was higher but $15.26 grade is lower. Lake Shore ore ran $14.59 per ton.

MAYLAND

Mayland No. 2 which was spotted as Royalite 25 to offset East Crest No. 1 spudded in. Being drilled with standard but will likely change to rotary at depth.

HOME

Home No. 2 well 74 feet in lime at total depth of 5,418 feet. Drilling steadily. Made 14 feet last 24 hours. Very satisfactory progress.

ROYALITE

Royalite No. 19 well 60 feet in the lime at 4,522 feet. Is cemented in at 4,462 feet.

FOOTHILLS

MAYLAND

Mayland No. 1 has made 13 feet of new hole since recent strike of crude oil flow. Now at 5,404 feet. Drilling steadily at Mayland No. 2 spudded in Monday. Union with Royalite acreage gives Mayland property extending completely across structure.

OKALTA

ILLINOIS, ALBERTA

Latest increase in gas at Illinois No. 2 slowing up drilling progress, but new footage being made steadily.

CANADA'S ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

The annual expedition by ship to Canada's Arctic islands will leave North Sydney, Nova Scotia, about July 20 next on the S.S. Beothic. The first port of call will be Codhaven, Greenland, after which the expedition will call at the different Government headquarters in the archipelago.

Over the Holiday

DRIVE Carefully

THE KEYSTONE OF SAFETY CARE COURTESY COMMON SENSE

Minister of Highways urges the co-operation of all drivers

To all who use the Highways:—

The first big holiday of the year is at hand. On Friday and during the week-end hundreds or thousands of motorists will be seeking pleasure along the highways of Ontario.

I want to appeal to them, and all users of the roads, with the utmost earnestness, that they will do all in their power to avoid a repetition of the heart-breaking tragedies that have marred holidays in the past.

A little carelessness, a moment's inattention, and lives have been snuffed out, perhaps of innocent little children, bringing to once happy family circles, a deep-rooted sorrow that time will never wholly efface.

Let each one of us determine that through no act of ours shall such a blight descend; that we will not permit the holiday spirit to override our sense of caution; that we will bear always in mind the maxim, "Eternal vigilance is the price of safety", and that by so doing we shall have no cause to reproach ourselves for having contributed, in any degree, to the ever mounting list of street fatalities and accidents. We will then be able to look back with pleasure to a holiday well and happily spent.

7 Rules for Safety

You must observe each one scrupulously all the time

1. Have your car in perfect mechanical shape, particularly Brakes, Steering Gear and Headlights.
2. Give your undivided attention to your driving. In passing traffic, be sure there is a place for you in the traffic line ahead.
3. When other motor vehicles try to pass you—let them pass.
4. In entering main streets or highways, or in approaching a railway crossing where a full view of the track is obscured—stop and look.
5. Don't "Loaf" where traffic is heavy.
6. Always signal before you slow down, stop or change your course.
7. Never back up before ascertaining that the road behind is clear.

SAFETY FIRST ELECTION ISSUE

Premier Comes To Defence of Device Which Flanks His Portrait.

"BALDWIN'S BLEAT."

LONDON, May 23.—(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Corespondent).—"Safety first" has ceased to be merely a Conservative slogan. It has become an election issue in this electoral struggle which is notable for having no single predominant issue. Its echoes now reverberate through the length and breadth of the country. Premier Baldwin has personally come to the defence of the device which flanks a huge portrait of himself on almost every billboard but the Liberals and Labor scoff at it as typical of what they term the Tory type of mind.

"Safety first," exclaims Ramsay Macdonald. "But whose safety first. Is it safety first for the tory party or is it safety first for the dweller in the slums?"

Sir Oswald Mosley calls it "Baldwin's bleat." Sir Oswald and his wife, Lady Cynthia Mosely are both Labor candidates. She is the daughter of Lord Curzon and is opposing Lt.-Col. John Ward, in Stoke-on-Trent Stoke.

"Safety first" is an appeal to cowardice. It is not an appeal to England," charges Sir Oswald, campaigning in Birmingham. "Why for the last four years Premier Baldwin has sat like a hypnotized rabbit in front of a snake."

Mr. Baldwin's retort is to compare the party slogan to the same slogan used at railway crossings. Safety first, he says has saved many lives but it has never hampered the progress of railways and he adds it is much better to spend a few minutes waiting on an English pavement than eternity in a tomb in Russia. So the noise of battle rolls on in every borough, county and hamlet.

Touring cars with a white spot painted on the sides to differentiate them from private cars, are being used as taxis in cities of the Netherland East Indies.

In Police Court

George Paul, alias Joe Ball, alias George Bartlett, the Indian who caused such excitement when he descended on the Curve Lake reserve one night last week, and who had been remanded for further investigation last Wednesday, appeared before Magistrate Langley this morning. His record showed that he had been in half a dozen jails and penitentiaries in the Maritimes. He disclaimed having ever been in jail before but he did admit that he had been in Nova Scotia, Newfoundland and the other places where his record showed that he had served time.

He could not say what had attracted him to this district and in view of the disturbance he had caused at the reserve and his criminal record Magistrate Langley sentenced him to three months hard labor in the county jail.

The English immigrant boy who had grown tired of farm work and had sought the city only to be picked up as a vagrant again appeared before the magistrate. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to one day's imprisonment during which time he will be placed on another farm.

Another English immigrant boy, aged 16, who had run away from the farm near Bethany was up on the same charge. This lad was forced to break into a store at Bethany to get money to run away, since the farmer refused to pay him. He was remanded for two days until his case can be further investigated.

Chief Newhall remarked that this is the seventh immigrant boy who has appeared in Police Court in the last four months. Special care to allow the boys every opportunity to make good has been given in every case.

A Warsaw young man, now working here, paid a visit home last Saturday and celebrated by getting drunk. He paid $10 fine and $5 costs.

BARBER SHOT AT DETROIT

Believed May Have Been Victim of Rum Running Gangsters' War.

RUNS INTO AMBUSH.

DETROIT, Mich., May 23. — (Canadian Press).—Medis Hull, 30, owner and operator of a barber shop was shot and killed last night when he unwitting drove his automobile intoa gangster's ambush at an isolated spot on Telegraph road. He died early this morning in Wayndotte General Hospital.

Police to-day were seeking to ascertain whether Hull was marked for death by the gangsters or was the victim of mistaken identity. They said reports had reached them that Hull's barber shop was run merely as a "blind" for rum running. They then advanced the theory he may have been slain in a gansters war.

PASS CONFIDENCE VOTE

GIRL ASKED FOR $50,000

Col. Lindbergh Comes To Rescue of Sister of Fiancee.

SIMILAR ATTEMPTS MADE.

WESTWOOD, Mass., May 22 (Canadian Press). — A $50,000 extortion and death-threat plot against Constance Morrow was the work of a person who has made several similar attempts to obtain money from prominent residents of this section, Peter J. Driscoll, police chief, said yesterday.

Letters in the plot against the daughter of the Ambassador to Mexico and sister of Anne Morrow, Charles A. Lindbergh's fiancee, were received several weeks ago by the 15-year-old girl, who is a student at Milton Academy. Fears for her safety resulted in a secret journey to New York, whence she went by airplane with Colonel Lindbergh and members of the family to the Morrow summer home at North Haven.

MEXICO CITY, May 22 (Canadian Press). — Dwight W. Morrow, American Ambassador to Mexico, yesterday refused to comment on the story published by a Boston newspaper that the life of his daughter Constance had been threatened unless $50,000 were paid.

The Ambassador did not seem worried, and was busy preparing for his departure to the United States. He expects to leave to-morrow or on Thursday.

MAY POSTPONE VISIT

VATICAN CITY, May 22.—A change in the date for the Pope's first official exit from the Vatican was forecast to-day in a semi-official note, which will be published this evening in The Osservatore Romano, official organ of the Vatican. The note says that His Holiness may choose June 6, instead of May 30.

With a cargo of 63,500 barrels of oil, valued at $1,750,000 and representing the capture of 732 whales, a vessel has just returned to Norway after a four-months' cruise.

ORATORY CONTEST.

Members of Campbellford High School Take Part in Junior Contest.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 22—There was a fair attendance at the junior oratorical contest in connection with Campbellford High School, held in the Assembly room of the school recently. And if the quality of the material and the manner of delivery of the addresses may be taken as a criterion, it is safe to say that the school will be well represented in the senior contest next year.

The president of the High School Literary Society, Russell Learmonth, occupied the chair. He welcomed those present on behalf of the society, and stated that the competition was for the silver cup donated by J. C. Fowlds, now of Oshawa.

There were five contestants, all of whom acquitted themselves with a great deal of credit. Frank O'Sullivan was the first speaker, his subject being "Canada and the Tourist"; Bernard Crosson followed on "Canada, Yesterday, To-day and To-morrow"; Harry Fowlds spoke on "Canada Since Confederation"; Wilhelmina Rusaw on "Canada, Yesterday, To-day and To-morrow," and Grant Meiklejohn chose for his subject, "Canada's Present day Needs."

Musical numbers rendered during the evening were, a piano solo by Miss Edna Connor; violin solo by Ronald Richardson; vocal solo by Marjorie Farrell; piano solo by Mary McGregor; piano duet by Roxena Wilson and Muriel Kingston; reading by Enid Richardson.

The judges were Rev. N. Clarke Wallace, Rev. L. M. Smith and S. A. Maguire. The first place was awarded to Miss Wilhelmina Rusaw, who wins the cup, with Harry Fowlds second, and Bernard Crosson third.

The cup and prizes were presented to the winners by Rev. Mr. Wallace, who complimented the speakers on their excellent addresses.

REGINALD GRANT.

COLBORNE, May 23.— (Examiner Correspondence.)—The death occurred on Tuesday, May 14, of Reginald Grant, after a short illness.

The funeral service was held on Thursday afternoon from Salem United church, the service being conducted by the Rev. J. P. Falconer.

GILBERT WILSON GRANT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, May 23. — The passing away of Gilbert Wilson Grant on Tuesday, at the early age of 25, cast a deep gloom over the village, since he was one of the most popular young men ever to reside here.

Death came after a lingering illness similar to that which occasioned the death of Wesley Grant, Wilson's father, last September. The deepest sympathy has been aroused for Mrs. Grant, and the five surviving children, in their sad bereavement.

The Grant family moved into this village from the northern part of Hastings county, in 1916, and have been counted amongst the most respected of citizens.

The deceased was given to a cheerful and bright outlook on life, and those who remember him as a member of the Young People's League of the United Church a few years ago, recall his abiding enthusiasm over things pertaining to the social welfare of that League. Besides his wife and family, his sorrowing mother, two brothers, and three sisters, survive him, Frank of Detroit, Jack at home, Mrs. T. Hannah and Mrs. T. Campbell of Rawdon Township, and Mrs. C. J. Jones of Detroit.

The funeral leaves the residence of Mrs. Wesley Grant, on Thursday at 2.30 p.m. for service in the United Church, the deceased being laid to rest in the Marmora Protestant ecmetery.

MADOC, May 22 (Examiner Correspondence). — At the Masonic Hall on Friday, an excellent and most enjoyable concert recital was put on by Miss L. M. Twenty-five numbers were given and each person took his or her part with quiet dignity and excellent manner, there being splendid attention, and one number followed another with smooth precision.

Several of the numbers were by junior pupils, and these did exceedingly well in spite of this being their first appearance as musicians.

George White acted as chairman, introducing the performers with a few words of welcome to the audience, and of explanation as to the object of the evening and the needs of the Public Library.

WHEN your brain says STOP—and your brakes say STOP—what do your tires say? The deep-biting, sharp-edged All-Weather Tread is your best insurance of STOPPING when you want to.

And your best insurance against blow-outs and other tire troubles is Goodyear SUPERTWIST Cords, which stretch more than other cords—recover from road shocks like rubber ropes—and lengthen the life of your tire.

At your Goodyear Dealer's you can make two indisputable tests of Goodyear superiority. The tread test — press your hand firmly on an All-Weather Tread tire—actually feel it grip just as it grips the road. MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

Dear Marion:

"I received the helps and they are all just fine. Thanks very much. I was rather pleased to read that you enjoy a walk in the woods or along country roads as I was beginning to believe that I was about the only one who did. Perhaps my friends think that is my way of consoling myself because I have no car. Well they are wrong this time. Though as you say, you like a car ride on a very warm day so do I. Nothing is much nicer than a car ride when I am tired after a hot day in summer, you get a breeze that didn't seem anywhere before.

Where are all the hints and recipes for the "Two of us' column? I will send something with this letter if I can think of something worth while.

"Here is a hint I just recently discovered, perhaps most of the readers know of it, but then some of the younger cooks will find it useful. When baking an apple or rhubarb pie, sometimes the crust gets done and the filling isn't finished. I have a pan with holes in the top like a steamer (is that what it is called)? It just fits a pie pan so I put this over the pie after the top crust is nicely coloured and the filling will cook up very quickly and thoroughly

When I use canned fruit or rhubarb for pie filling, I always sprinkle corn starch in with the fruit and this used up the juice so that you can cut the pie or keep it over without the juice soaking into the crust or running all over the plate..

I have just finished some cookies and while they taste very good I have seen some that looked a great deal better. Perhaps practice is a good remedy for such things.

"Now I must close this letter for now and get a little more work done before I am finished for the afternoon."

"Best of wishes to you and the page."

COUNSELOR.

I had to go to the dictionary to inquire about the spelling of that name, "Counselor", and this is correct.

I'm pleased to hear from another who enjoys walking—apparently there are many of us. It might be a good idea to organize a hiking club! Thank you for all your hints.

Dear Marion:

"I received the helps O. K. and want to thank you for them. I think I saw something a while ago in the column about ants, at least something to get rid of them and wonder if you would mind telling me again. (On the page)

"Since moving into our summer kitchen I have been bothered with them.

"Thanking you in advance,

I remain,

BETTY 2ND.

I don't recall the item you mention. "Betty 2nd". Was it in a letter from a neighbor, or was it one of the small items at the bottom of the page?

Dear Marion:

"Many thanks for being so prompt in sending the helps to me and also the pattern which I have not used yet. Some of the helps were for my daughter. I am enclosing a coupon for others please. I was one who wanted the pattern of the 'Mob Cap' and thank you so much for getting it. Sunday was a lovely day and a treat after so so much cold weather. I have just started my spring cleaning as it was too chilly to let the fire out. I have some tulips in blossom in spite of the cool weather. I am very fond of small children and take a lot of interest in my small grandchildren of which I have four. I enjoy your page and always read it.

"With best wishes for its success."

Yours truly,

FIDGS.

I'm pleased to know that the helps proved useful, "Fides". I try to choose those that will be of assistance to the greatest number of readers. Good luck in your spring cleaning!

Dear Marion:

"Here I am again, have not written for some time, but have been following the page every night and am enjoying it with ever increasing interest.

'Gwen' sure has the right idea about farmers' wives helping with the outdoor work. I agree with her, that if she likes that kind of work (as I surely do) she should certainly do all she can of it. And as for her weaaing overalls, I think that is really the best part of working outdoors. It gives you such a refreshing and free feeling. Oh well, I'm not a farmer's wife, but just an ordinary business girl, but spend some time during vacations on the farm.

"Say, Marion, I was just wondering if you got my last letter in which I enclosed 15c to cover charges on pattern of dress? I sent it a week ago last Tuesday and as I would like my dress for this Sunday, I was wondering if you ever got it. I know that if you did, it will be on the way. Maybe I'm impatient, but you'll understand why it is.

"I wonder if some of our neighbors would let me please have a recipe for date pie. I have one recipe which never seems to work out right for me, and I would just like to try someone elses.

Before closing, I just want to thank you for all your past favors and tell you that the Whatnot is really worth reading. So many things nowadays are really not worth printing.

"I second 'Highflyer's' remark, when she says that you are a good soldier, for you never seem to tire of us. Thanking you again and hoping I haven't taken up too much space, I remain

Sincerely,

RASCHA.

I'm sorry about that pattern, Rascha. It was ordered, all right, but didn't turn up apparently, so I sent through another request with S.O.S. on it. I'm glad you enjoy our pages, and uope you come soon again.

Fruit Pudding.

One and one-half cups milk; 1 tablespoon gelatine; 2 egg yolks; ½ cup sugar; teaspoon salt; 2 tablespoons of cold water; 3 egg whites, fruit.

Scald milk with gelatine and pour onto the egg-white which are mixed with sugar and salt. Return to double boiler and stir until the mixture thickens. Strain and cool. When the mixture begins to stiffen, beat until light and add egg whites beaten stiff. HER FIRST DINNER

By Barbara B. Brooks, Home Economics Department, Kellogg Company of Canada, Ltd., London, Ontario.

During the month of June probably more new homes are started than any other month in the year. With the establishing of the home, the bride takes up her duties as housewife and immediately the meal problem confronts her. If the budget will not permit her to hire a person to do the cooking, she must launch herself in the kitchen, grasp a spoon and a bowl and start mixing. But what? She often hasn't the slightest idea how to combine ingredients. Her friends have given her their favorite recipes, but many of them sound so complicated. However, in a few weeks she can master them with success.

In the meantime the first meals must be simple to give her an opportunity to build up technique in the handling of utensils and foods. Men prefer simple, well cooked dinners to fussy ones, so the wise woman will bear this in mind. Here is a menu planned to help the new cook prepare a simple dinner:

Mexican Meat Pie Vegetable Salad
Whole Wheat Rolls
Fruit Ambrosia Marguerites
Caffeine-free Coffee

The meat pie, baked in a casserole, will be the main dish of the meal and furnishes both meat and vegetables. Every day a leafy vegetable should be included in the menu. Head lettuce or a cabbage salad may be chosen.

In preparation for the dinner, the bride can plan to make dessert in the morning or at noon. Set the ambrosia in the ice box to become thoroughly chilled. The rice for the meat pie can also be cooked early in the day.

The marguerites can be mixed in the morning. To save fuel the oven should be lighted just once, so cover the pans of marguerites, place in the refrigerator, and bake just before dinner. While they are baking, combine the ingredients for the meat pie. The table can be set, flowers arranged, and the salad made by the time that the meat pie is done. About five minutes before the dinner is to be served, pour the boiling water over the coffee and let it steep or percolate from three to five minutes.

Mexican Meat Pie.

One-half pound ham; ½ pound veal; 2 tablespoons flour; 1 tablespoon fat; 1 onion; ½ red pepper; 1 cup tomato; 1 tablespoon chopped celery; ¼ bay leaf; 1 whole clove; ½ teaspoon salt; few grains of mace; few grains of pepper; 1 cup boiled rice.

Cut ham and veal in small pieces, roll in flour and brown in fat until golden brown. Remove meat from pan. Put in the chopped onion, red pepper, tomatoes, parsley and seasonings. Cook 15 minutes, being careful not to let the mixture brown. Add meat and turn in baking dish. Cover with boiled rice and bake in moderate oven (350°F.) fifty minutes.

Fruit Ambrosia.

One-half cup sliced canned peaches. ½ cup sliced oranges; ½ cup cocoanut; Mix well and put in ice box to chill.

Marguerites.

Two eggs; 1 cup brown sugar; ½ cup flour; ¼ teaspoon baking powder; 1-3 teaspoon salt; ½ cup nut meats, cut in small pieces; ½ cup All-Bran.

Beat eggs slightly, and add remaining ingredients in the order given. Fill small buttered tins two-thirds full of mixture. Bake in a moderate oven (370°F.) ten to fifteen minutes.

Caffeine-free Coffee.

One rounding tablespoon of coffee for each measuring cup of water. Pour boiling water over coffee and let it stand over a very low flame or percolate until of the desired strength (3-5 minutes.)

FAVORITE RECIPE.

Beefsteak.

(Contributed by "Happy Emma")

Take one cup of olive oil, put in frying pan and let get piping hot, then put in your beefsteak, which has been pounded, and fry. Keep hot fire under it, cook ,but not too much, turn out on platter and pepper and salt to taste. Do not apply salt and pepper until cooked as it spoils the flavor of the meat.

OLD SONGS

THAT PIECE OF SONG, That old and antique song we heard, last night.

The New House.

The little new house that was new last year
Isn't so new, but it's far more dear,
The little house that opened wide
Its low, white door to its groom and bride.

Something has happened, as you can see,
For the little house is as proud as can be.
Hark! You can hear the sound this minute!
The little new house has a baby in it.

"Paddle Your Own Canoe"

(Contributed by 'Beatrice')

I've traveled about a bit in my time,
And of troubles I've seen a few;
But found it better in ev'ry clime
To paddle my own canoe.
My wants are small, I care not at all
If my debts are paid when due;
I drive away strife in the ocean of life,
While I paddle my own canoe.

I have no wife to bother my life,
No lover to prove untrue;
But the whole day long, with a laugh and a song,
I paddle my own canoe.
I rise with the lark,
And from daylight to dark,
I do what I have to do
I'm careless of welath if I've only the health
To paddle my own canoe.
I'ts all very well to depend on a friend,
That is, if you've proved him true
But you'll find it better by far in the end
To paddle your own canoe.
To 'borrow' is dearer by far than to 'buy',
A maxim though old still true
You never will sigh if you only will try
To Paddle your own canoe.

If a hurricane rise in the midday skies,
And the sun is lost to view,
Move steadily by with a steadfast eye,
And paddle your own canoe.
The daisies that grow in the bright, green fields,
Are blooming so sweet for you,
So never sit down with a tear or a frown,
But paddle your own canoe.

Then love your neighbor as yourself
As the world you go travelling through
And never sit down with a tear or a frown
But paddle your own canoe.

NUNS CAN VOTE, BUT DO NOT.

Nuns will be given the right to vote in Strabane, Ireland, according to a recent decision of the Revisions Session, and in consequence the names of the nuns of the Convent of Mercy, Mount St. Joseph, were placed in the Parliamentary list. It was explained, however, that the nuns would not vote in any part of the world because it would be against the rules of their Orders to do so.

That Body of Yours

(By Jas. W. Barton, M.D.)

Green Vegetables.

You are being advised by health writers to try and eat some "green" vegetables every day, because of the vitamines known to exist therein. Although no one knows the exact chemical composition of vitamines it has been amply proven that they are a group of substances of most foods in their natural state of which very small quantities are absolutely necessary for the normal maintenance of the body.

Drs. J. W. Crist and Marie Dye, of Michigan State Agricultural College, tells us that the green color in vegetables is an actual guarantee of the presence of Vitamin A, which as you know is necessary to that body of yours if you are to maintain the health of your tissues, and to your boy or girl if they are to grow properly with strength of bone or muscle.

These doctors say that "In some mysterious way chlorophyll (the green coloring of the leaves) manages to capture, transform and render available to your body, the actual energy contained in rays of sunlight. These rays then are in carrots, beets, and radishes, because they are produced as parts of plants whose leaves are green. The vitamines, built up in these tops, are transported to the roots for storage. Similarly milk, butter, and cheese, have the same vitamine A from the herbs the cattle eat.

As a matter of fact Vitamin B is also found in green vegetables and it is this vitamin, you'll remember, that maintains the appetite and stimulates the digestive processes.

It prevents the "run down" condition with loss of weight in children and adults.

And green vegetables also contain vitamine D which prevents decay to teeth by supplying abundant calicum, or lime as it is usually called. It is this vitamine that is found in Cod liver oil which has greatly increased the demand for that product.

So the thought is that as green vegetables contain vitamine A., B. and D., all of which are essential to health, strength, and happiness, that at least once a day we should make them a part of our meal.

Remember, once a day is sufficient.

HISTORY OF WOMEN IS TO BE RECORDED

Viscountess Willingdon Endorses Plan to Preserve Memories.

Ottawa, Ont., May 23.—(By The Canadian Press.)—With the endorsement of Viscountess Willingdon there is now in course of preparation a publication designed as a permanent record and memorial of the women of Canada, past and present. The specific object of the book is to commemorate the work of Canadian women in the present generation—not only those who have achieved social prominence by public activities but also by those who stand behind the success of the eminent men of the community. It will contain short biographical sketches and portraits of those who have done something worthy either in the social philanthropic or any other field open to women's work. The letterpress is being prepared by Miss Mildred Low of this city, a well-known writer with wide experience. The work has been in course of preparation for more than a year now, and is on a practical basis with the promised endorsement of hundred of well-known Canadians. The book will not be for sale, but for presentation only to subscribers.

WORTH FAVORS LONG SKIRT.

French dressmakers have worked hard to bring back the long skirt, as hard as they did to induce them to wear short ones; the women are "so conservative." Thus declared Worth, the famous dress designer of Paris, while in London recently. "They cling to one fashion, and one of our biggest jobs is trying to break them away from it," he added.

Because Women Themselves Have Changed--

Washing Methods Have Changed, Too!

Women have become too progressive to be satisfied with out-of-date methods and ideas. Consequently washing to-day isn't half the job it used to be. Women now have the time on washday to do the housework they really want to do, or perhaps rest . . . or visit . . . or go shopping. And they're feeling stronger . . . looking younger.

But don't imagine they're less particular than their mothers were!

Look at a wash on the line that was done the modern way with Rinso. You'll never see whiter or brighter clothes anywhere. And the woman is in the house feeling fresh and cheery . . . likely enough she'll do much of the ironing that same day. And she won't be fagged out when husband comes home either.

The thicker, richer suds of Rinso are the modern magic that has made this happy change—

The suds are so rich you can actually soak clothes clean, with little or no rubbing . . . and certainly no boiling. In the homes where there's a washer . . . the thick, rich Rinso suds quickly absorb and hold all the dirt.

Are you—like most modern women—using Rinso? If you are not—then there's no better time than next washday to start enjoying the benefits it brings.

The Catholic Women's League was in charge of arrangements for the Graduation Exercises of the Training School for Nurses of St. Joseph's Hospital, held last evening at St. Alphonsus Lyceum. Decorations of the upper hall where refreshments were served were in the white and yellow of the society. The electroliers were shaded with yellow and white and the same colors were used for the tables, where silver baskets held white tulips and yellow daffodils and deep yellow candles were in silver holders. Two long serving tables were used, and coffee was poured by Mrs. H. M. Yelland, Mrs. G. H. Wood, Mrs. W. O'Brien and Mrs. F. P. McNulty. The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

AMONG the many neighbors' letters that come to me are sandwiched in a few that are different—they tell troubles that cannot be spread over a news sheet. I answer these personally, of course, but when a particular lesson is brought out I have used the letter as a text for an article.

* * * * * * *

To-day's Whatnot is based on one of these letters; a letter from a girl in her teens. She is employed as a maid, by a woman whom she describes as "God-fearing and honest," one who is "charitable, but whose guiding principle is justice."

* * * * * * *

My correspondent is well-educated and, I think, honest with herself and with me. She makes no excuses for difficulties in which she finds herself, but finds lots of reasons for the actions of her employer.

* * * * * * *

She has been employed in this home for a long time, and has always been treated with courtesy and respect. "No one could be kinder," she says, "than Mrs. ——; that is what makes it so hard."

* * * * * * *

Briefly, the story is this. The girl asked for occasional evenings and even afternoons off, when first she was employed. Then, on one occasion when her mistress was busy, she did her work and went out without disturbing her mistress to ask permission. Next day he told about it, and the mistress said it was quite all right as long as the work was done.

* * * * * * *

For months, now, she has been accustomed to going out two or three evenings a week, without asking permission. Other things have drifted along in the same manner—for instance, my correspondent has been ordering little things for the household work without referring to her mistress; she felt, in fact was made to feel, that she was one of the family.

* * * * * * *

Then, one afternoon when she was out, things happened in such a way that she was badly missed. I won't stop to recount them, but little trifles piled up into a mountain of annoyance—and her mistress "called her down," took away all her privileges, and relegated her to the kitchen.

* * * * * * *

The honesty of my correspondent is shown in her letter when she writes: "I know the kitchen should have been my place all along, and that I shouldn't have had more than one afternoon a week, and that I hadn't any real authority to buy things for the house. But I just drifted into taking these privileges for granted, and I was never checked up."

* * * * * * *

There's the crux of the whole matter. Justice, sightless to all but the facts before him, says the mistress is right in her checking up of this girl; but mercy, all-seeing, takes the previous circumstances into account, and finds the girl not so guilty as to require the stiff penalty inflicted.

* * * * * * *

The lesson is, of course, that mercy and justice must combine in judgment.

* * * * * * *

It is impossible to be just if one is not generous. None of us can see over our own height. We cannot see in others any more than we have in ourselves.

* * * * * * *

Let's not judge either of these parties, but search for the reason behind my correspondent's protest. Maybe, then, we may learn how to combine mercy and justice in our judgments.

* * * * * * *

In the first place, when we condone an offence or habit, should we then mete out justice as though we had never known the ultimate end of the offence? If we encourage laxity by our own habits or by overlooking it in others, should we then "jump" on them when the laxity happens to strike us on an unlucky day?

* * * * * * *

It is said that the only true principle for humanity is justice, but the kind of justice implied here requires as its complement protection and kindness. If we don't protect others, then we cannot condemn them.

* * * * * * *

And if we have not protected others by warning them along the way, then we should not unequivocally denounce them. It would be good judgment to tackle the items one by one, before they have piled up into a mountain that forces us to lose our sense of proportion in its contemplation.

* * * * * * *

It's the little things that count. If guidance is given to those under us in the little things, day by day, there will never be any need of such scenes as that about which my correspondent tells.

* * * * * * *

And we should beware, too, of allowing ourselves to drift into such situations as this girl. No matter how friendly one's mistress may appear, don't forget that she is your mistress—and see that you give her no cause or excuse for objection.

* * * * * * *

Mercy may be the prerogative of the judge; but good judgment is the property of any who wish to exercise it.

WOMEN LEADING TO HELP CHINA

League of Nations Officer Says They Are No Longer Subdued.

Winnipeg, Man., May 23.—(By The Canadian Press.)—"Women are prominent in the great effort being made by the progressives in China to lead their country along the path to economic and political success, and Canada cannot afford to ignore the efforts being made along these lines by this great country." This is the opinion of Joseph Avenol, deputy-secretary general of the League of Nations, who is visiting Canada.

"They are no longer subdued and cringing, these women of China," he added. "They are not self-effacing, like the women of Japan. They are like the women of the Western World. There are hundreds of Chinese students in the colleges of Europe and America and when these students go home, they take back with them their advanced ideas."

SAYS STONES LIVE AND DIE

Stones "breathe," live, age and die, announces a German mineralogist after an extensive investigation by X-ray and other methods. He found that gems possess characteristics closely resembling those of the human body. They absorb and eject carbonic gas, a function similar to our breathing. Crystals as well as granite and other hard rocks, will show signs of age in time, and finally will break up into sand, which he describes as their way of dying.

The Children Enjoy a "Room of Their Own"

I think that all children should have rooms of their own, if possible—or at least a special section of a room which they can call their very own. In this way children learn many valuable lessons in tidiness and neatness that stay with them all through life. The girls, especially, gain experience that will help them to make their "own" homes lovely places to live in. And when they can call their room their very own, pride of ownership will make them want to keep it clean.

In every way Mother should endeavour to develop in her children a love of good things. When planning the children's rooms, pictures are particularly valuable in this connection. Such inexpensive prints of the work of famous masters are sold today that you should never once consider putting in the child's room only the old, shabby pictures which are not fit for any other room in the house.

The furniture should be plain (simple furniture always improves a room) and not too much of it. Children soon lose interest in a room when it becomes a burden to keep nice.

And always give the children the sunniest rooms in the house. Dark or damp rooms are unhealthful. It is quite as necessary for their health, too, that the rooms be cleaned often. If you use Princess Soap Flakes you can clean them as often as you like without any fear of harming the pretty things. Princess Flakes are safe to use for washing anything that will stand the touch of plain, tepid water—curtains, bedding, windows, floors, woodwork, furniture. They contain no harsh chemicals or harmful free caustic to discolour the woodwork or ruin your dainty curtains and bedding.

The younger children will have lots of fun helping that lovely Fairy Princess who so magically makes all the dirt vanish and restores their little palaces to loveliness again. And Princess Soap Flakes will never make those soft little hands that are helping you red and sore.

Rag rugs are very attractive for use in children's rooms—and they, too, can be easily washed with Princess Flakes suds.

I use Princess Flakes for all my household washing tasks. Before choosing them, I experimented for years with other soaps and cleaners, but I have never found a more efficient household soap.

I will be glad to have a free trial package sent to you if you will just write me at 64 Natalie Street, Toronto 8, Ontario, enclosing 4c postage. If you have any washing problems tell me about them. I will help you in any way I can.

Making the Most of Your Lights

Dirt and dust collect on lights.

Your room is properly lighted only when electric light bulbs are clean, and with the bulbs frosted on the inside as so many are nowadays, it is the simplest thing in the world to keep them clean. However, it is not safe to use a lot of water, especially around the end where the connection is made, as the water will ruin them if it gets inside the glass. Just use a cloth that has been saturated in cool Princess Soap Flakes suds and wrung almost dry, as the glass in an electric bulb is extremely fragile.

Palmolive guarantees to replace any washable garment which by reason of its having been washed with Princess Soap Flakes, has been damaged in texture or its colour made to run, provided such garment has been washed in accordance with instructions. We suggest that you test garments in plain, tepid water to make sure they are washable, and that the colour will not run.

WHEN you are buying soap, always get this big yellow package of Princess Soap Flakes. They are the most effective soap you can buy, besides being the least expensive—the package is brim full—and because they are all pure soap without cheap chemical filler, a little goes such a long way.

CHOIR LEAVES FOR NEW YORK

LEAVE AT 3 O'CLOCK.

The Canadian National Station at three o'clock this afternoon was the scene of the departure of the Male Voice Choir which is to test its mettle at the gala concert and contest to be held to-morrow in Madison Square Garden in New York City.

Happily singing 51 members of the choir entrained as many spectators and wives waved bon voyage and the best of success. The Peterborough yell echoed throughout the car as the special C.N.R. train pulled out for Port Hope.

At Port Hope the special will connect with train No. 15 which will take the choir to Toronto by 5.40 and there the singers will transfer to special sleeping cars leaving Toronto at 5.45, arriving in New York at 8.10 to-morrow morning.

Large badges worn by the men prominently displayed the word "Peterborough" which will be worn during the trip so there will be no mistake as to the home of the singer when met in the metropolis.

The departure was one that was reminiscent of a football team leaving for a rival college, the members happy and full of determinations to carry off the highest honors. So the Peterborough choir set out for New York.

TWENTY-NINE CANDIDATES ARE ENTERED

"Who stole the baby's milk?" is the cry levelled at his speakers when they touch on the Conservative governments welfare scheme. To this the Conservatives reply that they spent $1,000,000 yearly more upon such services than the labor government.

Once a Liberal

Jerrold Adshead, Labor candidate in the Rushholme division of Manchester, was once a Liberal but now he says the absence of the reforming spirit which characterized that party in pre-war days has made him profoundly dissatisfied with it. He claims industry and commerce are moving inevitably towards a big combine which will hold the pistol to the Communits and demand big prices. Nationalization in Australia has proved successful, he contends, and the Indian nationalized railways are showing big profits. He adds however, that the socialization of industry will take a generation.

The Whitsuntide Holiday, which is a particularly popular festival in this part of the country proved something of a problem for all parties. Some fixed evening meetings and others made open-air speeches during the day in an effort to woo the fickle holiday crowds. The popular response in either case, however, was not large.

The contests in most of the local seats are expected to be very close. Looking over the district as a whole an advance canvas reveals that any candidate who secures a majority of 3,000 or more may consider himself very fortunate.

Fire Chief Gimblett Declares On River.

Men Can Be Used

The statement made in last night's paper that there were many volunteers at the dragging operations carried out in search of the victims of Sunday's fatal boat trip at the Locks bridge, was contradicted by Fire Chief Gimblett to-day. "There are many fishing, and many spectators, but there are no workers," he said.

Loaves of bread loaded with mercury were thrown on the waters and they floated directly down the east shore to a point opposite Rye's boat house, where they circled around. Here the drags struck what felt to be a body, but it could not be brought to the surface. Another half loaf with mercury was use dthis morning, which floated to the same spot, and here the work was concentrated this afternoon.

A cap was found along the shore just before dark last night but it has not been determined if it belongs to any of the victims or not.

Outside of the firemen there have been very few who have offered their services, and a number of men who are willing to help carry out the work could be used.

F. G. STINSON IS MANAGER OF CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Promoted On Entering Fifth Term As Secretary of Organization.

EXECUTIVE MEETING.

Reports Show Many Activities Well Carried Out By Committees.

A well attended executive meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held last evening at the Chamber of Commerce rooms. Frank G. Stinson was re-elected for his fifth term as secretary and appointed manager as well as secretary.

The by-laws of the chamber permit the appointment of a manager and a secretary and by the appointment of Mr. Stinson to the dual position it was felt that it was a move in the right direction and that matters in he future would be clarified. The secretaries of the chambers, in Kingston, Belleville, Oshawa, London, Windsor and other Ontario cities as well quite generally in the United States are also managers of the organizations. The executive of the Peterborough Chamber were convinced that they were merely following a well established business practice.

A communication was received and read to the meeting from Thomas A. Gibson of the department of mines confirming the appointment of Professor F. F. Osborne, a young Canadian geologist who has been teaching for some years in the States University in Iowa, to make a geological survey of the County of Hastings as well as parts of Peterborough County this summer, especially in the section around the old Cordova Gold Mines.

A communication was also read from Mr. Osborne, in which hope was expressed by him that the Chamber would extend every co-operation during the investigation. The executive of the Chamber decided to make possible during the investigation, the meeting with Prof. Osborne of any local citizens who are interested in mineral or oil deposits in Peterborough and Hastings counties.

C. S. Cummer, chairman of the finance and headquarters committee as well as treasurer of the Chamber presented a financial statement for April showing gross receipts of $943.76 with disbursements of $755.71. The net receipts for April 1929 were in excess of April 1928, exclusive of the bank balance of $251.55. The report was adopted and accounts payable amounting to some $200 was passed for payment.

The report of the special budget committee was also presented by Chairman L. A. Potvin, which was unanimously adopted, setting the disbursements of the Chamber for the 11 months ending February 1930 at $6,855 with estimated receipts at $10,138.76, indicating in the present year the possibility of a surplus.

The following is the report of the membership committee as given by the chairman, Charles Lacheur:

New Members and Subscriptions to the Activities' Fund.

Mowat, Alex; Micks, A. E.; Overend, F. J.; Turner, W. R.; Zavitz, A. S.; Rogow, Benjamin; Anthony, T.; Reg. H. Turner; E. L. Payne; J. A. McKone; W. H. Kidd; Standard Medical and Surgical Clinic, Dr. G. S. Cameron, Dr. J. M. McCulloch, Dr. F. C. Neal, Dr. A. Moir; Dr. F. P. McNulty; John A. Dewart; E. L. Ruddy (membership fee and $10 towards activities' fund); Thos. M. Dutton; Alpine McNab.

The above members are others than those who signed up for three years. A number of three year subscriptions have come in since the last report, including one from Stock's Bread Ltd. for $100.00.

Old Home Week

James Dutton, President of the Chamber, reported from the chair that he was appointed some time ago vice-president of Old Home Week Committee and had been in close touch with the general committee and the chairman ever since. The entire ballroom floor of the Canadian Legion Hall had been secured for registration, accommodation and general headquarters for the week. The committee in charge after investigation of other places decided upon this as the most favorable situation, as the Legion were renting the hall for a nominal fee and the location, away from congested traffic and in the centre of beautiful public buildings, was the more desirable.

J. J. Turner brought up the question of an arch over the Port Hope highway. A beautiful plan done in water colors was presented by Hornsby and Allen who estimated the outside cost of such an arch would be $1200. The architects offered the drawing and the supervision of the erection of the arch free of charge. However the cost of financing was the greatest obstacle and the matter was held over for further consideration.

New Organization

The secretary gave an outline plan for a retail merchants' section of the Chamber of Commerce to replace the dormant, retail Merchants Association. A petition of more than 100 of the leading merchants of the city asking the chamber to proceed with the organization of such a section was read. It was decided to call a meeting of the merchants in June at a dinner with the executive of the Chamber, when an organization could be started.

The executive also decided to call the attention of the Department of Railways and Canals to the need of further protection by lifesaving equipment at the Peterborough Lock dam. In the discussion it was suggested having ropes strung under the railway and under the highway bridge but so as not to close the channel. Another means was a tie boom from the east side of the channel to the east side of the river.

J. J. Turner inquired as to what steps the Department of Railways and Canals was taking in improving the Locks Bridge, now quite inadequate. He was informed by the chairman that surveyors were noticed in the vicinity the department was doubtless giving its attention to the question.

Copies of the Iroquois Trail were distributed by the secretary at the close of the meeting. Also he stated that in the April 25th edition of ten Cleveland suburban weeklies, representing about 60,000 subscribers, an article describing Peterborough, the Kawatha Lake and the Trent Waterway was publised as arranged when the secretary visited the Cleveland Sportsman's Show.

AUTO RUNS 59 MILES ON GALLON OF GAS

Automobile engineers who worked for years in an effort to reduce gasoline consumption have found the solution in a marvelous invention that fits all cars. An actual test made by one of the engineers showed 59 miles on a gallon of gas. Thousands of car owners have already installed this new invention. They not only report amazing gas savings, but are also surprised to find quicker pickup, instant starting, smoother running motors and disappearance of carbon. E. Oliver, 999—1551 E. Third St., Milwaukee, Wis. for a limited time is offering a free device to those who will help introduce it. They also need men everywhere to make over $100 weekly in their own territory taking care of local business. Write him at once for free sample and big money making offer.—adv.

BAD WIRING CAUSES BLAZE

The fire department received an alarm from Box 18 at 11.08 this morning and made a run to 153 Park street north, where a fire had started caused by defective wiring. A cord hung over a nook and used for an electric iron had become bared of insulation at the hook, causing a short circuit that burned the cord and scorched the ceiling, which was the only damage suffered.

In view of this fire Fire Chief Gimblett would call attention to the fact that such a wiring is dangerous and any other persons using similar wiring should have it carefully inspected as to whether the insulation has been worn off and steps taken to put any defective wiring into proper condition.

COURSES ARE COMPLETED BY SIX NURSES

nurse, so Dr. McNulty said, was to the patient. "Usually, the two go hand in hand, but sometimes the doctor needs checking up. The first loyalty should be to the patient."

The speaker recommended two characteristics as essential to a successful nursing career, the first being the development of an acute power of observation. "It is often of the utmost service to the patient and also to the physician when the nurse is able to detect, by such indications as an increased pallor or drowsiness or twitching of the eyelid, premonitory symptoms of advancing illness.

"The power of observation seems to be dwindling in this age and generation. Our slogan is not "See Canada first," but "See Canada fast," and the speed at which we live tends to lessen our powers in this way. Moderns are not as observant as the older people were. Nor do we observe the beauties of literature or of nature as they did."

The second recommended quality in a successful nurse was a sense of responsibility, developed to such an extent that the nurse would feel just as keenly as the physician over the death of a patient.

The address to the graduates was delivered by Monsignor McColl of Lindsay, whose appearance on the stage was welcomed as the return of an old friend and whose brief talk was replete with the kindly wisdom which characterizes the utterances of the Monsignor at all times.

"The first requisite in any undertaking is to know thoroughly what you are about to do. We characterize as ignorant that person who is without a proper working knowledge of his job. In the thorough training which you have received during the years just passed, you have gained a knowledge of your profession that should be complete in every detail.

"In the last analysis, the training comes down to a question of the nurse having the proper character. You must be honest and fair, interested in your work and consecrated to it. Nurses who receive the proper training are among the best disciplined women in the world to-day, and parents who complain of too much strictness in training should remember that discipline makes for exactness and proficiency in any line of work. Learners must be inculcated with the idea of determination to see the thing through, they must be diligent and faithful and obedient to instructions.

The Monsignor added a word of congratulation to the Sisters of the Hospital who had been instrumental in assisting the pupils to their goal, and also to the doctors in charge of lecture classes.

Diplomas and Medals.

In the absence of Dr. F. O'Reilley, chairman of the Hospital staff, who was scheduled to present the diplomas and medals to the graduates, the ceremony was discharged very ably by Dr. E. H. Wood, who spoke briefly to the young ladies, reminding them of the sunshine, humanity and thoughtfulness, combined with scientific knowledge, which they should bring to the discharge of their professional duties.

Take 3 six nurses

The graduates received their diplomas, tied with yellow and white ribbons, and the medals which show their allegiance to their Alma Mater, St. Joseph's Hospital, and which should always remind them, Dr. Wood said, to put into practice the principles and precepts taught them in its Training School.

The presentation of special prizes was made by Dr. A. Moir, who also spoke briefly to the graduates. He reminded them that a great achievement must always have a great desire behind it, and spoke of the self-sacrifice necessary to follow out the ideals of their noble profession and the sincerity and diligence with which it must be pursued. The speaker ended very appropriately by quoting the lines by Kipling which conclude with the words: And each in his separate star, shall draw the thing as he sees it, for the God of Things as They Are."

The prize for General Proficiency, presented by the Mother Superior of the Hospital, was won by Sister M. Gonzaga, and by reversion, went to Miss Patricia Connelly, in second place.

The prize presented by the Alumnae of the Hospital, for the best practical work during the year, was won by Miss Selena Aboud and the prize for Bandaging, presented by the Medical Staff, went to Miss Marguerite Convey.

A very beautifully worded Valedictory, giving a picture in poetical language, of the Training School, that was likened to a garden, with its sunshine and occasional showers, was given by Miss Patricia Connelly in a composed, softly dramatic style that brought her much appreciation from a pleased audience.

Musical Program.

The musical program of the evening added the last touch to a very pleasing affair and was thoroughly enjoyed and heartily applauded.

An opening Entrance March was played by Miss Hilda Sullivan, at the piano, and two violinists, Miss Norine MacPherson and Joseph Nolan. Vocal solos were given by Miss Ernestine McManus and Miss Geraldine Collins, singing "The Valley of Laughter" and "Wake Up!" and piano solo numbers by Miss Mary Reynolds and Miss Veronica Scollard, the latter playing a "Mazurka de Concert." A piano duet, Hungarian Rhapsodie, was played by Miss Agnes Grant and Miss Josephine Lynch. Miss Reynolds acted as accompanist for the vocal numbers.

Arrangements for the Exercises and for the reception which followed were in the hands of the Catholic Women's League. The president, Mrs. Myles Henry, and the past president, Mrs. J. J. Lynch, looked after the audience downstairs, assisted by ushers in Mrs. Frank Lynch, Mrs. W. Hickey, Miss Emma Corkery and Miss Norah Shevlin.

The furnishings of the stage were kindly loaned by Gerald McFadden and Lane and Eano.

EMPIRE TRADE IS EXTOLLED

BRITAIN'S RECOVERY.

Drawing a graphic word picture of the determined upward climb of Great Britain from her post war conditions and describing the great benefits to be derived by every member of the British Empire by closer trade relations within the Empire, George Wilson, Finance Commissioner of the City of Toronto, addressed the Kiwanis Club on the subject, "Intra-Empire Trade" at luncheon to-day. It was a topic in keeping with Empire Day and the speaker lauded Great Britain's glorious past and prophesied her equally glorious future.

Speaking of the difficulties that Great Britain has overcome since the war, the speaker said, "Great Britain has performed miracles in a quiet and efficient manner, in a way that has astounded the world. We have heard talk of the decadence of Britain and such stuff makes a Britisher's heart burn. The 'Gloomy Dean' last year, while on a visit to Canada, predicted that Great Britain was on the eve of bankruptcy; her industries disintegrated, she was on the verge of collapse. No one paid much attention to him, fortunately.

"What is really happening in Great Britain is that the average everyday citizen is paying in taxes four shillings out of every pound that he earns to aid in paying off the national debt. This amounts to eight millions pounds of taxation each year, and in four years the debt has been reduced by 875 millions. We don't need to worry about the financial condition of Great Britain," concluded Mr. Wilson.

The speaker admitted that the unemployment situation was acute in the Old Country. "But," he said, "the Englishman is a phenomenon to the rest of the world and a bit of an enigma to himself, and while he saves a million pounds in a week, he goes quietly about pretending he is broke. Great Britain accomplishes big things without telling the world about it."

"Old London is again coming to the fore as the money mart of the world," said Mr. Wilson. As an illustration of this he pointed to the City of Montreal borrowing ten millions of dollars from London against the competition from New York.

"Undoubtedly British trade is not as good as it might be. It is now but two-thirds of its volume before the war. But with the Safeguarding of Industries Act and swinging toward even further protection, it can be prophesied that the trade will soon be back to its former volume. The Empire Marketing Board has been established to foster Empire trade relations. At the Board's display at the Canadian National Exhibition, products from all the outlying points brought home to all those who saw it the amazing diversity of the Empire's products. This Board is spending one million pounds a year to aid inter-Empire trade."

Speaking of British investments in Canada Mr. Wilson said that in the past year a great many industries have sent out experts to discover the possibilities of establishing branch industries in Canada. It was stated that the sending of Sir Wm. Clarke, Trade Commissioner, to Great Britain would have the effect of aiding in the establishing of firms here. Canada was the first country to give preference to British goods and since that time Australia and other Dominions have followed this plan, said Mr. Wilson.

The Intra-Empire Trade agreements such as that between the West Indies and Canada have aided greatly in the bind of the Empire in the closer bonds of commerce, it was stated.

Pointing out the great market existing in Great Britain for Canadian diary products the speaker stated that Denmark sent 50 millions pounds sterling and Netherlands 40 million pounds of such products to Great Britain.

One of Canada's greatest companies the Canadian Pacific Railway, the speaker said, realizing the efficiency of British workmanship, has during the last two years placed order for 100 million of dollars worth of ships in British shipyards. This was done without even asking tenders from foreign ship yards.

Trade With United States.

The United States has always been a high tariff people and much of their prosperity is directly due this protection. Because of the diversity of its products the United States is almost self-sustaining. The increased tarrif aimed at our Canadian farm products is bringing home to Canadians that we must find another market for our products. There are no better markets than those within the Empire, stated the speaker.

What we do need, he continued, "is greater population to work the fertile soil of our West. There is a magnificent future awaiting us but we must work to bring it about.

The speaker issued the warning that a strong trade cannot be built up on sentimental preferential basis, but that some hard fast rule for the beenfit of all must be laid down by business men who understand the needs. "Some people have the idea that some day Free Trade will be established within the Empire, but I do not think that that will ever come," said the speaker.

Mr. Wilson concluded with a strong plea for the confidence, honesty and patriotism that have always been features of the British peoples.

R. T. E. Hicks-Lynne introduced the speaker, and to Harry Huffman fell the pleasurable duty of thanking him for his splendid address.

John R. Heron of The Examiner was booster and the prizewinners were D. Art Costello, Ted Outram and Dr. F. C. Neal.

I. P. McNabb, Lieutenant-Governor of Kiwanis, announced that nineteen member of the Kiwanis Club would address fifteen schools in the district during the afternoon. This was in connection with the Empire Day program in the schools.

Harry Huffman announced the Kiwanis Picnic to be held at Midland on June 19 which includes a boat trip in Georgian Bay.

Art Costello, chairman of the Dance Committee for Old Home Week, asked the Kiwanis Club support in the great social event of the celebration, the big dance to be held in the Armouries, at which the Paladins of Montreal will play.

The guests were James Turnbull, Art Costello and Frank Adams, city treasurer. Dr. C. B. Waite is the newest member of the club, and will be formally introduced next week.

TORONTO, Ont., May 23 (C.P.).—Roche Pinard, Quebec, a student at the Seminaire de Joliette, Joliette, Quebec, last night won the Canadian oratory championship for secondary school pupils. The contest was held at Arena Gardens here last night, with champions from seven provinces competing.

Leo Malania, a student of Walkerville Collegiate Institute, Walkerville, was awarded second position. Third place went to Miss Madeline Brunet, a pupil of St. Adolphe Convent, St. Boniface, Man.

As the result of winning the Canadian Championship last night, Roche Pinard will represent Canada at the International oratory contest to be held at Washington, D. C., on October 26.

Continue Campaign For Highway Safety

TORONTO, May 22.— Announcement was made to-day by Hon. Geo. S. Henry, Minister of Highways, and chairman of the executive of the Highway Safety committee, that the campaign in the interests of highway safety would be continued with renewed vigor at once.

As a start, Mr. Henry stated that an open letter over his signature would appear in many of the newspapers to-morrow, warning motorists and others using the highways to exercise unusual care and safety over this week-end. As Friday is a public holiday, the motor traffic during the week-end may be nearly doubled. It was pointed out that with increased traffic comes increased chances of accidents. The members of the committee were of the opinion that immediately preceding the first spring holiday was the most effective time to start this year's campaign.

According to Mr. Henry, every available means of reaching the public will be utilized by the committee —newspapers, radio, motion pictures and billboards. In addition, an official of the Department of Highways will shortly start travelling through the province with the object of interesting the various communities in the subject of highway safety.

While motor traffic in Ontario was 20 p.c... to 25 p.c. heavier in 1928 than in 1927, Highway Department officials point out that the fatal accident ratio was lower. They give a great part of the credit for this state of affairs to the educational campaign of last year. It is asserted by authorities that Ontario is far ahead of any other province in Canada or any State of the Union, in educative movement looking toward accident prevention.

PETERBORO PEOPLE RECOMMEND HUSKY FOR KIDNEY ILLS

Mrs. Bechdoldt Adds Her Endorsement To Those of Hundreds of Others — Expert Is Explaining This Medicine at Bond's Drug Store.

MRS. C. V. BECHDOLDT

Peterborough residents, in large numbers, are praising "Husky" as a wonderful medicine for the kidneys, and Mrs. Bechdoldt now adds her endorsement. She says:

"I suffered from a bad form of kidney trouble, which caused me to have very bad headaches and to feel tired all the time. I was so weak I didn't care whether I ever moved or not.

"My kidneys were continually acting. I wanted to sleep all the time both day and night, but my kidneys never let me sleep very long at a time. I never had an appetite and I suffered to some extent from constipation.

"Husky has so quickly regulated my kidneys that I feel it will be of benefit to others suffering this way. It has relieved the constipation and restored my appetite. I have been taking Husky such a short time it is remarkable the way it has helped me and I can heartily recommend it."

When catarrh or acidity irritates your stomach and kidneys and causes the delicate membranes to secrete mucus, take Husky. This mucus surrounds the food you eat, fills you with gas, constipates you and then your food sends poison, instead of rich, red corpuscles into your blood. Backache, weak kidneys, headaches, dizzy spells and tired, run-down conditions follow. Husky's ingredients cleanse the system of this mucus and soothe the irritated membranes. That's why Husky makes you feel better so quick and why a treatment of several bottles gives permanent relief and new strength.

Call on the Husky Expert at Bond's Drug Store to-morrow and let him explain to you how best and quickest results are obtained from this marvelous medicine. His information is free and an explanation of this medicine may lead you to relief just as it has hundreds here in Peterborough.

SIDELIGHTS ON ELECTION

(By Canadian Press.)

LONDON, May 23.—All parties are endeavoring to reach an intensive note in the six days remaining before polling on May 30 ends this election campaign. Premier Stanley Baldwin said last night he "feels as fit as ever." Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George is also going strong, but Rt. Hon. Ramsay Macdonald, who unhappily never enjoyed really robust health, confessed to a Birmingham audience last night that he had left part of his voice behind him.

Polling has already begun in some constituencies. Many naval and military men entitled to rank as "absent voters" have forwarded their ballot papers to the respective returning officers.

Speaking at Alnwick, Northumberland, last night, Viscount Grey said he was convinced the Liberal vote would be vastly increased. He said even 200 members would be enough to save the country from the "twin evils of Conservative protection and Socialist reckless expenditure."

Sir Austen Chamberlain, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, speaking at Birmingham, said: "It has been my effort to pursue not a party policy in foreign affairs, but one which spoke the mind and heart of the nation and which in all broad lines and great principles followed naturally the policy which my predecessors pursued and could be adopted by my successors to whatever party they belonged."

Sir William Joynson-Hicks, Secretary of State for Home Affairs, in addressing a Bootle election meeting registered a protest against Labor's Russian policy with a bang on the speaker's table which broke his rimless glasses.

Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, spoke at Epping and continued to enjoy the heckling which has been a feature of his meetings. He repeated in uncompromising terms his old argument that Lobar was unfit to govern. A questioner asked what about the unfair electoral law that deprived the Liberals of a fair representation in the House of Commons. Mr. Churchill admitted the grievance under the present law, but said he had no authority to make a further statement.

He reaches Montreal on the liner, Duchess of York on Saturday.

Price Of Gasoline Increased One Cent

With fine motoring weather finally arrived, there is something still to take the joys out of this pastime. Yesterday morning saw in the city a general increase in the price of gasoline at all the service stations in the city with the exception of one.

An increase of one cent in most grades, making the general range of price from 29 to 32 cents a gallon, was experienced. Imperial gas sells for 29, Ethyl 32, Shell 29, Shell Aviation 32, Marathon 29, Cyclo 32, British-American Super-Power 29, Peerless 32 while Conger gas still sells for 28 cents a gallon.

This is an increase in the wholesale and retail price, not the cause of a tax which is still xed at five cents a gallon, according to the local representatives of these gasoline companies.

CALL OF THE SOIL BRINGS HIM BACK

Man With Happy Home in Detroit Returns Again to Canada.

MONTREAL, May 23. — Cyrus G. Shaver, born and raised on a farm in the Pembina Valley of Manitoba, left Detroit in 1922. He did well, bought a title to a home and settled down in happy exile.

But the call of the soil was too strong. Recently he appeared in the land settlement offices of the Canadian National Railways in Winnipeg... Forty-eight hours after his arrival he had secured a splendid 320 acre farm near the town of Dugal, close to Winnipeg, with first-class buildings and much of its land under cultivation, which he purchased for $7,000. He has made arrangements to bring his family back to Canada with him to take up life in the province he knows so intimately.

OLD HOME WEEK.

The Community Dance Committee of Old Home Week is now pleased to announce that it has secured for the Feature Dance to be held in the Armouries the services of "The Paladians," direct from the Palace Theatre in Montreal, under the personal direction of Jerry Shea.

Jerry Shea is one of the outstanding musical men of this country and has had a wide and varied career. He is one of those fortunate humans born with a great personality and a natural musical talent, which has been developed to a remarkable degree.

At the age of 19 he was leading musical conductor for those famous producers Klaw and Erlanger of New York. Jerry Shea was the first man to introduce jazz music into the eastern part of Canada when he opened the famous old St. Regis Cafe of Montreal. At the present time Jerry Shea supplies all dance orchestras used by the Canada Steamship Lines, and was selected as the one to supply the music on the S. S. St. Lawrence for the entertainment of Their Royal Highnesses, the Prince of Wales, Prince George, and Premier Baldwin.

Jerry Shea's party, which will be under his own personal direction will be of fourteen people, and will include several entertainers.

In bringing Jerry Shea and his musical organization to our city the committee believes that it is going to give the public a rare musical treat.

Growth of Canadian Company Is One of Romances of Business Achievement.

Tip Top Tailors Limited have found it necessary to expand and its program has included the opening of a store in Peterborough.

The growth of this all-Canadian Company is one of the romances of business achievements of the past quarter century. Nineteen years ago the first TIP TOP store was opened in Toronto and so rapid has been the development that to-day it operates a chain of stores from coast to coast.

It seems incredible that a suit of any worth can be made to measure for the price of $24 but the policy of the TIP TOP TAILORS LIMITED has made it so. Every year a representative of the company makes a journey to the Old Country and carefully selects the best fabrics, and colors from the products of the largest mills in England. Buying is done on a large scale and therefore the price is lower than if it were purchased on a smaller scale. The great number of men for whom TIP TOP makes clothes also enables the price to be kept at a low level and the public receives the benefit.

In the new Peterborough store there will be an unusually large assortment of fabrics colors and styles from which the public can make its choice. It will be in the interest of the residents of the city to watch for the opening on May 26th.

Delicious with cold drinks—a rare summer delicacy. Buy them by the pound, or in handy packages.

LEAFS IN TIE WITH ROYALS FOR FIFTH PLACE

Rochester Winners 8 to 7

Leafs Drop Second Decision in Game That Sparkled With Smart Baseball.

ROYALS EVEN SERIES.

Circuit Clout Allows Baltimore Orioles 2-1 Victory Over Black Cats.

TORONTO, Ont., May 23.—(Canadian Press).—The Toronto Maple Leafs and the Rochester Red Wings battled 12 innings yesterday instead of 11 as on Tuesday, but the result was the same. The Red Wings won, 8 to 7, and dropped the Leafs into a fifth place tie with Montreal.

It was a game of thrills and more thrills. There was enough extra base hittingfi to satisfy the most exacting, fielding that sparkled and some that didn't sparkle. The base running was brilliant and otherwise.

EVEN SERIES WITH HERD

MONTREAL, Que., May 23.—(Canadian Press)—Elon Chester Hogsett, the Royals' sensational recruit pitcher, set Buffalo down with seven hits and the Royals evened the series with the Herd here yesterday 6 to 2.

Art Mills opposed Hogsett on the mound, and after giving up 11 hits and six runs retired with none out in the eighth when Tice's single through the box injured the wrist of his pitching hand.

ORIOLES WIN FIRST GAME.

JERSEY CITY, May 23.—(Canadian Press).—George Loepp, the Baltimore Orioles' centre fielder, broke up a 13-inning contest here yesterday.

A circuit clout over the left field fence gave the Orioles the first game of the series with the Jersey City Black Cats 2 to 1.

KEYS BEAT BEARS 1-0.

NEWARK, May 23.—(Canadian Press).—Chi Hawks, Reading first baseman, hit a home run into the left field bleachers in the eighth inning to give the Keys a 1 to 0 victory over the Newark Bears yesterday.

The defeat broke Newark's string of six straight victories.

S.T. LOUIS IN SECOND PLACE

INDIANS WIN OUT 7-4.

ST. LOUIS, May 23.—(Canadian Press).—The St. Louis Browns yesterday jumped into second place in the American League standing by taking the third consecutive game from the Chicago White Sox, 7 to 3.

PLAY SUPERIOR FIELDING.

DETROIT, May 23.—(Canadian Press).—Although Tiger bats met the ball yesterday with their usual vicious frequency, the Cleveland Indians showed a better brand of fielding and won 7 to 4. Ed. Morgan, with triples and a single was the principal cause of the Tiger downfall.

DELORO AND C.N.R.'S BATTLE TO A DRAW

Belleville Had Better of Game in First But Failed to Score.

MARMORA, May 23 —(Examiner Correspondence). —Deloro football team met the Legion team of Belleville on the latter's ground on Wednesday evening and an interesting game ended in a scoreless draw. Both teams were minus several regular players. Belleville had the better of the argument in the first half but in the second half, play became more even. Both goalkeepers gave a good exhibition in a game unmarked by penalties.

The teams:

Deloro—Goal, Green; backs, Murray, Cousins; half backs, Sanderson, Savage, Clairmont; forwards, Sprcul, Hipson, Wallace, Gresham, Brooks.

Belleville—Goal, Blaiter; backs, Milne, Taylor; half backs, Pickin, Colclough, Norridge; forwards, Howard, Brooks, Knott, Kennedy, Atkinson.

Referee—Charlie Jeffs.

LUCKY WIN FOR WOOLLENS FROM QUAKERS

Porridge Boys Were Up One Goal at Interval—Halves Excellent.

WOOLENS 2, QUAKERS 1.

Ten Minutes Before Full Time Whitely Gained Two Nice Goals.

Another large crowd of spectators witnessed the Woollens continue their triumphal victories for the soccer championship last evening at King Edward Park, when they defeated the Quakers in the last minutes of the game by two goals to one.

In the first half the Quakers were the superior team, in fact, the winners were very lucky to gain two points.

Woollens Forced the Pace.

The Quakers won the toss and compelled the Woollens to face the sun. Both custodians had to clear their charge in the early stages although the green shirts had the porridge boys confined to their goal area, that produced kicks a-plenty. Raid after raid by the Quaker forwards tested the opponents' defence. Exchanges continued even until the Quakers' right wing took up the offensive repeatedly to find the tactics unprofitable.

Missed Open Goal.

A few minutes later, Watkins broke away on the wing, evaded the defence nicely, and centred across the goalmouth where the whole Quaker front line missed the opening.

Montgomery Unlucky.

On the next visit to the Woollens area, the Quakers obtained a successful flag-kick that Montgomery cleared but Craig lobbed the ball back again into goal where the Woollens goalkeeper fisted on to the top of the cross-bar. It bounced on the stick and fell back into play to allow the Quaker player to head the opening counter. This setback proved an incentive to the Woollens and they peppered Fowler with all kinds of shots. Quick as a flash the Quakers' left wing transferred the play to the other end. Dixon went right through, then allowed Ward to finish with a lightning drive that Montgomery saved in the nick of time. Three minutes later the interval was announced, one goal to nothing in favor of the Quakers.

Half-Time.

After the customary respite, the players set a fast pace again in the second half. Craig took up the initiative but he didn't get any support thereby allowing the Woollens forwards ample time to test Fowler. On one occasion the Quaker custodian was beat when he run out of goal to clear. Craig returned in time to prevent a tally. On midfield play the Quakers gained the ascendency on the left wing. Williams made progress toward goal, then passed across to Ward who was a fraction late, Montgomery picking the ball away from his foot.

Opportunities Wasted.

Both goals went under bombardments that brought out the qualities of the goalkeepers. Time and again the forwards would break through to finish very poorly.

Whitely Two Goals in Two Minutes.

Mitchell took up the full back position and Whitely went forward to inside left position. His presence was soon felt when he equalized from a pass by Mayette. From the centre kick they went back again to gain the lead when Whitely performed the same trick when he accepted a pass from the right wing, with a low grounder that put the Woollens in the lead. In the remaining minutes the losers tried hard to equalize and were unfortunate in not making it a draw. Woollens 2, Quakers 1.

The Teams.

Dominion Woollens — Montgomery, goal; Read and Whitely, full backs; Mitchell, Hillman, and Venette, half-backs; Mayette, Taylor, J. Montgomery, Gore and Dundas, forwards.

Quakers—Fowler, goal; Honor and Armstrong, full backs; Budworth, Craig, and Pulley, halves; Watkins, Dyer, Ward, Dixon and Williams, forwards.

Referee—J. Middleton.

SOCCER TO-NIGHT C.G.E. VS BRINTON

Woollens Go to Deloro Saturday—Packers and Quakers Play at Home.

To-night at King Edward Park, the Brinton A.A. meet the Canadian General in first round of the Spalding Cup. Both teams will be at full strength. In the previous games the players have provided the fans with excellent soccer. Kick off at six o'clock. Referee A. Aitkenhead. All players be on time so that the referee will get the game going on time.

On Saturday afternoon, the Canadian Packing team meet the Quaker Oats in the first round of the Spalding Cup. Kick off at three o'clock. Referee Jack Clark.

The Canadian Packing executive have chosen the following players to represent them against the Quakers: Griffin, goal; Westwood and Downer, full backs; Wilson, Buchan and Bromley, halves; Carmichael, Beggs, Downers, Robinson and Foster. Reserves, Laidley and O'Halloran.

In all probability the Quakers will field a team that will make their opponents travel all the way because the porridge boys have provided superb soccer in all the games played but have not had any of the breaks.

The league leaders travel to Deloro on Saturday afternoon to play the Deloro eleven in the Spalding Cup in the first round. They have chosen the following men to play the alloted positions, viz: Montgomery, goal; Reid and Baxter, full backs; Mitchell, Wade and Vinette, halves; Mayette, Taylor, J. Montgomery, Gore, Whitely and Dundas, forwards.

DROP SIXTH STRAIGHT.

PITTSBURGH, May 23.—(Canadian Press).—Cincinnati lost its sixth consecutive game yesterday by dropping the opener of a series with Pittsburgh 11 to 2.

Ash, who started for Cincinnati was driven from the mound in the third inning and Donohue finished.

BANG-UP AFFAIRS

There is no doubt about it, long distance sprinting gets into your blood. This year theer is a newly estabilised race for the Canadion honors.

Although Canada has always been to the fore so far as this game is concerned, it has never declared a national champion. In 1894 the Hamilton Herald ran the first road race in the Dominion, two years before the Greek government decided to revive the Olympic games and three years before the running of the first Boston Marathon.

Athletes will be keen to have their names go down on record as participating in the first national championship road race. The even will undoubtedly bring out every marathoner of any account in Canada and also many from the United States. The race will be run on the 24th of May in Toronto.

The Fort William Times-Journal is conducting a 10-mile road race on the same day. This event also attracts a great deal of attention every year and was won last year by Clayte Webb of Fort William 56 minutes and 25 and 4-5 seconds.

MILL TEAM WITHDRAWS FROM LOOP

Many Matters Discussed at Executive Meeting of Campbellford Softball Association.

SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED.

First Game Scheduled for June 3 Between Legionaires and and St. Andrew's.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 23.—(Examiner Staff Coresondence).—Unless a good Samaritan comes along and supplies a softball team, the local association will have to start its schedule with only three entries This circumstance came about by the withdrawal of the Mill team, when their letter to this effect was read at the executive meeting of the Campbellford Softball Association held in the council chamber Tuesday night at eight o'clock. The other representatives in the league are of the opinion that a fourth team may easily be organized and steps are being taken to collect a team to enter the schedule and play the games scheduled for the Mill.

Things looked very business like at the meeting. The new home plate and pitcher's plate of white rubber have arrived and will be put down as soon as the diamond is ready. Then there are the three new bases ready to be used. The schedule has been drawn up, and the first game is scheduled for June 3 between the Legionaires and St. Andrews. All told there are twenty-four games not including the finals which are due to be played during the latter part of August. No games are slated for Old Home Week. But if any are desired to help with the program, the executive expresed its willingness to co-operate with the sports committee. Umpires this year, are to be furnished with rule books when they step onto the diamond to umpire a game. Their word is final and players who attempt to argue or use profane or abusive language will probably be suspended or expelled from the league. Every player must have signed his card before participating in any of the games and may be called upon to produce his card at any time by any of the officials of the association. Another feature this year will be the individual batting average record. This is to be kept by one of the officials and a prize will be given to the highest at the end of the season. Last year the games were played on the Agricultural grounds. This year the executive is laying out the diamond on the north end of the high school grounds. These grounds are being rolled and covered with loam to make them more suitable for playing.

Schedule and Umpires.

June 3—Legion vs St. Andrews (Farrell and Montgomery).
June 4—Mill vs Clerks (Tinney and Free).
June 7—St. Andrews vs Mill (Bush and McArthur).
June 1—Clerk vs Legion (Beatty and Blake).

PHILLIES WIN DOUBLE BILL

Philadelphia Ties With Braves for Fourth Play by Defeating Boston.

BOSTON, May 23.— (Canadian Press).—The Phillies went into a tie with the Braves for fourth place yesterday by taking both ends of a double-header from Boston, 6 to 3 and 13 to 4.

O'Doul, Klein and Whitney found six Boston pitchers to their liking, Klein batting in four runs in the second game. The Quakers made three home runs, Fresco Thompson clouting one in the first game, and Hurst and Davis in the second contest.

GIANTS HAVE CLOSE CALL

BROOKLYN, May 23.—(Canadian Press).—The Giants escaped a fall into the National League cellar yesterday by rallying to defeat Brooklyn in the second game of a double-header, 7 to 3 in ten innings after the Robins had taken the first by 3 to 2.

Central Ontario League Chatter

By F. D. C.

The Central Ontario League will open to-morrow what promises to be a most successful season.

The initial card calls for the Petes to invade Oshawa while the champion Belleville Nationals will entertain President Elliott's Deloro team at Belleville.

Both games should be good exhibitions. At Belleville the Deloro team may find one of their pitching aces of other years in the box against them in the person of Dr. Jack Shea, who is now located in Belleville.

The following squad will represent the Petes at Oshawa: Manager Swanston, Al. Heckman, Jeff Hardill, Fred Ash, Fred Hickey, Hap Harrison, Ray Rose, H. Hollingsworth, K. Mein, T. Holyman, Shiner Johnston, Jimmy Hall, Ernie Legon, Verne Beavis, Len Hollingsworth. The team will leave for Oshawa at 9 o'clock sharp, the bus leaving Lebarrs sporting goods store.

Manager Swanston has not made any announcements as to his pitching selection for the opening game but it would occasion no surprise were Jeff Hardill to get the call. The starting line up has not been announced as yet.

MUCH ABUSED DIAMOND KING

Opening of the baseball season brings up for study an interesting and recurring phenomena—and almost religious fervor with which the average citizen, attending a baseball game, will hurl vocal abuse at the umpires.

Everybody knows that the umpires are earnest, conscientious individuals, chosen because they are competent and honest. Everybody knows that they can see far better than the man in the stand what happens on the field. Why, then should they be the targets for so much criticism?

The psychologist perhaps could explain it easily. He would suggest we believe, that the average man is under too much repression. At home, at the shop or office, in his automobile—everywhere, he is compelled to hold his tongue and refrain from talking back, whether it be to his wife, his boss or the traffic cop. At the ball park these repressions vanish. He can take it all out on the umpire. The accumulated soreness of a week can be relieved by the simple process of yelling "Kill the big bum."

This may be hard on umpires, but it is probably very good for the average man's soul.—Belleville Intelligencer.

CHOCOLATE AND FIDEL LA BARBA BATTLE TEN FURIOUS ROUNDS

Battling Bon Bon Stamps Himself As Outstanding Gladiator of Championless Division.

FANS FAVOR LA BARBA.

Pacific Coast Slugger Puts Up Game Battle Against Cuban Bantamweight.

COLISEUM, NEW YORK, May 23.—Smiling "Keed" Chocolate, the battling Bon Bon of the bantamweights, waged a furious struggle last night to stamp himself as the outstanding gladiator of a championless division, but failed to convince entirely a crowd of 18,000 jammed in Jess McMahon's big boxing barn, that he is the master of Fidel Labarba.

The curly headed little Italian from Los Angeles, a former flyweight champion and student at Stanford University, lost the decision to the dazzling negro after a belting fest that swirled and eddied to rising volleys of cheers through the Coliseum's ring for ten hectic rounds. When the battle was over and the colorful negro's record of 147 battles without defeat still was unbroken, the cheers still were for the courageous, rushing slugger from the Pacific coast.

Bout is Close.

The voice of the crowd and the opinion of a majority of the ringside critics awarded Fidel at least a draw, and possibly the decision because of aggressiveness that never faltered, courage, and a big punching attack that was never entirely stilled by the negro's heavier weapons. The Associated Press score sheet gave Chocolate four rounds, Labarba foru and two even. One judge voted the match a draw, the other and the referee awarded the decision to Chocolate.

No Game in Peterborough.

Charlie Lloyd, vice-president of the local association, received the following communication from the President of the Football Association of Wales, which speaks for itself. He had communicated with them in regards to a game in Peterborough with the Welsh players that are travelling Canada this summer:

I am delighted to hear from you again and to know you are helping the game along in your vast continent.

Since the good old days Welsh football has made much progress and it is mainly to allow our old friends who have migrated to Canada the opportunity of seeing our players that we have undertaken the tour.

I sincerely regret I shall be unable to make the journey owing mainly to not being a sfit as I should like, but the 20 players will go out with my best wishes and a sincere hope that they will please all my old friends.

If it were at all possible I would be delighted to accompany.

I expect our secretary, Mr. Robbins, will be in charge and I should like you to make yourself known to him and for old times sake he will make you comfortable.

I hope to forward you full itinerary of the tour in a few days.

I have forwarded your letter to Mr. Robbins who will give it every consideration.

The games have been all fixed up by the Canadian Association and it may be possible on their arrival to help you.

On Thursday evening, the Brinton A. A. meet the Canadian General at King Edward Park. Kick off at six o'clock. This game was scheduled for Friday but the Brinton team desired the match for the previous night.

A Bishop, who injured his knee in the Deloro vs. Brinton game is confined to St. Joseph's hospital and had to undergo a minor operation. The doctors intimate that he may be confined to the hospital for some time. His club has arranged a dance as a benefit attraction on his behalf and it is hoped that the fans will assist this worthy object.

CIRCULET REDEEMS KING'S PLATE LOSS

Seagram Three-year-old Turns Tables on Shorelint, Which Finishes Fourth.

TORONTO, Ont., May 23.—Followers of the Seagram fortunes regained their lost prestige in full measure yesterday afternoon at Woodbine.

Circulet returned to meet the cream of the King's Plate field, in which he finished an ignominious fourteenth, and demonstrated that he was a good horse and true by scoring a brilliant victory in the Breeders' stakes.

And then Sir Harry, only Canadian-owned winner of a Coffroth, drove down on the wire in the twenty-fifth renewal of the King Edward Gold cup, while the two-year-old Freethinker, a product of a Kentucky purchase of a year ago, finished a threatening second in the Mount Royal plate.

Seagram minions left the track with creaky purses and the Waterloo establishment itself was richer by $7,570 for the day's engageemnts on the O.J.C. racing ribbon. Add to the above achievements the triple victory scored by black-browed Johnny Maiben, who was brought here from New York by the sachems of Seagram. Maiben rode both Circulet and Sir Harry and Clicked home on Senator Donat Raymond's Great Rock, winner of the Grafton plate.

The Rays are in fine fettle for their opener and they are all eager to get started on the long race. Manager Art Primeau has been grooming the squad throug h good weather and foul at Exhibition Park and confidence reigns in the camp. His lineup will be selected from the following:—Rogers, Collins, Kitchen, Barrie, Gordon, Batten, H. Nichols, Oscar Nichols, H. Corrin and Doug. Moore. "Sailor" Maudsley will likely go on the mound and attempt to fool the Oshawa hitters with his portside twisters. The "Sailor" has been getting in a lot of work in practise and he is ready.

It will be interesting to watch the Rays, last year's Intermediate finalists success in their new pastures. They have lost two of their star infielders in Hillier, now with Cogs and Scully, who is in London, but they have plugged all the holes. Doug. Moore will likely go to second and Ike Batten cover short.

STAR HOCKEY PLAYER UNDECIDED

Lionel Conacher, Canada's greatest all-around is still striving to decide whether he will take up professional boxing or not. He was in Windsor on Tuesday and consulted the advice of a former Peterborough boy, Harris Ardiel. Ardiel is president of the Windsor Motors and he was Conacher's mentor during his early years in the world of sport. He was manager of the Dominion Bank hockey club at Toronto when Conacher came up from junior ranks. Harris was also coach of the Argo football squad during the "Big Train's" best years, he was president of the Hillcrest Baseball Club when "Connie" did his slugging for that outfit and he was president of the Maitland Lacrosse Club during the time Lionel was the big noise with the gutted stick.

So naturally Conacher flew to his old friend and advisor to gain his views on the momentous question of stepping into the boxing ranks.

BOWLING CLUB OPENS SEASON TO-MORROW

The Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club opens its playing season to-morrow afternoon, with a larger membership and a more expeditious way of running off their schedule, one of the biggest years in history awaits the bowlers.

The work is progressing rapidly on their new greens on McDonnel street, but it will take all summer before the big plans of the bowlers for this property can be completed.

* * * * * *

GOLF COURSES IN GOOD SHAPE

The grand opening of the season will take place to-morrow. The greens at the Peterborouh Golf and Country Club are in great shape and it is expected that there will be a large crowd of golfers on hand.

It is understood that the new course has been staked out, but it is not likely that the new holes will be open to play this season. With the large addition to the course it is expected that it will now be of championship length.

The Beaver Meadow Golf Club is prepared for its grand opening to-morrow also. This club is young but during the four years since its inception it has increased steadily in membership and is now in a flourishing condition.

MANY ENTRIES FOR ATHLETIC MEET

Doug. Loomis of the Y.M.C.A. reports that the entries are coming in excellently from the outside schools for the big School Boy Track Meet to be held at Exhibition Park, Saturday afternoon. It promises to be the biggest event of its kind ever held in this city. Lindsay will send down a strong delegation and schools for miles around will be represented.

All arrangements have been completed at the grounds to ensure success. New jumping standards and hurdles have been bought, the jumping pits are built and the track measured off.

It can be expected that the athletic teams from outside points will bring down many adult supporters with them. The parents here should be on hand to see the students perform and show their support to the movement that will raise the standard of athletics in this province and give Canada a strong team in the next Olympiad in 1932.

BOXING COMPETITION AT BELLEVILLE

Belleville is to have a boxing competition on the holiday. The Canadian Legion which advertises the show has a program which includes competition in the 125, 135, 150 pound and heavyweight classes and a special six round bout between George Seamark and Jack Hatfield.

ROCHESTER HAS STRONGER TEAM

One would conclude from the way Rochester Red Wings have been smashing their way a round the circuit and especially by the manner in which they have taken the first two games of their series with Toronto, that they are at least 25 per cent. stronger than last year when they won the pennant. They have skill and that never-say-die spirit that carries a good team to the top. They have had a number of ninth inning rallies to win out finally just as they did against Toronto on Tuesday, after the Leafs had nabbed three runs in the first innings.

Canadian Racing Dates.

TORONTO, Ont., May 23.—(Canadian Press).—Dates for the Autumn racing meetings under the jurisdiction of the Canadian Racing Association were decided upon to-day at a meeting of the executive.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

The Musical Shermans on the stage—Ken Maynard in "The Lawless Legion" and Charlie Chaplin in "The Vagabond" on the screen, will be the holiday features on the Capitol programme commencing today.

The Musical Shermans, a refined musical offering, Charlie Chaplin in "The Vagabond" and Ken Maynard and his horse Tarzan in "The Lawless Legion" are the holiday attractions now being shown at the Capitol. Tomorrow, May 24th there will be three performances, at 2:30-7 and 9. The orchestra will be in attendance at all performances.

Ken has long been known for the thrilling stunts he injects in his pictures, but in this picture he surpasses them all.

Maynard has ample opportunity to display his ability in the saddle. In addition to his riding, there are some really spectacular scenes showing the cattle drive across the state of Texas.

The story is based on actual history, when an entire township in Texas moved their herds to the border for better pasturage. A band of organized cattle thieves, that has been operating around the territory for years, endeavor to steal the cattle in "The Lawless Legion," but Ken and Tarzan frustrate their plans.

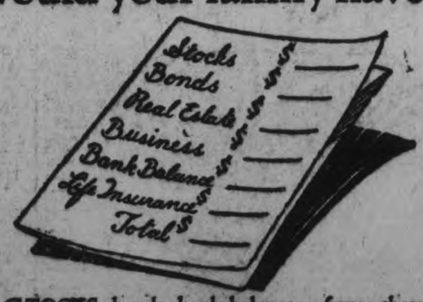
What "Carry On" Income would your family have?



STOCKS, bonds, bank balance—figure them all up. What is your business worth to your family? What is your real estate equity?

Five per cent. of the total represents the income your family would have to carry on the business of life.

Is it enough?

The problem is rather a stunner to most men. That's why some of them shrink from facing it.

But there is a way out. Talk to one of the recognized representatives of the Mutual Life about income insurance, or write this office.

CASE ADJOURNED UNTIL TUESDAY

Judge O'Connor Hears Evidence of Plaintiff in County Court Case.

SUING FOR WAGES.

Claiming $800 from the Henry Norman Payne estate for housekeeping services rendered to the deceased from May, 1920, until his death, in February, 1928, Luella Mae Wagar was in the witness box yesterday for three hours and forty minutes before Judge O'Connor in Surrogate Court.

With all the evidence for the plaintiff and several of the witnesses for the defendants having been heard the case was adjourned at 6.20 p.m. until 3 p.m., May 28.

The evidence of Mrs. Wagar went to show that by a written agreement between herself and Henry Norman Payne, she was to do his housekeeping and in return get $15 a month and board for herself and her children. This written agreement of which the deceased retained the one copy has been lost and neither party was able to bring it into court.

The plaintiff stated that during the years of her service she had only received $400 in payment. Her duties increased because Mr. Payne, a war veteran, was suffering disability and she was also forced to go out to work, besides keeping his house, because he did not pay her. She gave a receipt for the $400 she had received.

Other witnesses for the plaintiff gave evidence that Mrs. Wagar was hired as Mr. Payne's housekeeper and that at various times he had told them that he owned her money as wages. Alice Emery saw Mr. Payne pay Mrs. Wagar $300 and receive a receipt for $400, the other $100 having been paid previously.

M. Bedford, chief of the Pension Division at Ottawa, gave evidence for the defence, stating that Mr. Payne had been receiving a pension for his war service disability. This pension had been increased from $22 a month until it reached over $90 a month at the time of his death. The cheques showed that Mrs. Wagar had endorsed and cashed some. J. W. Fraser, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, certified to a cheque on Henry Payne's account for $488 made out in favor of Mrs. Wagar being cashed at his bank on November 12, 1927.

Alice Payne, daughter of the deceased, stated that Mr. Wagar had totalled her account and said that Mr. Payne owed her $300. She could give no evidence explaining the manner in which the account was reckoned nor what was said at the time.

This concluded the evidence until the further hearing.

WARN AGAINST FLIGHT.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 22.—(A.P.)—Despite favorable local weather conditions, the New York weather bureau to-day warned against any take-off on the two proposed trans-Atlantic flights.

Head winds and rain are reported a few hundred miles out over the ocean and squalls and cloudy weather would be encountered near the European coast, the bureau announced.

United States Pair Beaten In Doubles

PARIS, May 23.—(Canadian Press).—Helen Wills received the first setback of her 1929 tennis campaign to-day when she and her fellow-Californian, Edith Cross, were beaten in the women's doubles quarter-finals of the French championships by Lili D'Alvarez of Spain and Kea Bouman of Holland. The scores were 8-6, 6-4.

GERMAN EXPERT HAS RESIGNED

Allied Terms Fail To Satisfy Dr. Albert Voegler.

RESIGNATION ACCEPTED.

BERLIN, May 23.—(C.P.)—Dr. Albert Voegler, colleague of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht on the German delegation to the experts' conference on reparations at Paris, resigned that place today. The German government will accept his resignation.

Dr. Voegler returned here abruptly from Paris yesterday. Preceded by reports that he was dissatisfied with reparation proposals put forward by Owen D. Young, United States' chairman of the conference, and would refuse to affix his name to a settlement embodying them.

Dr. Ludwig Kastl, who has worked with Drs. Schacht and Voegler since the inception of the conference, will succeed to Dr. Voegler's place on the German delegation.

It was understood Dr. Voegler's tentative resignation was handed in some time ago but only became positive and irrevocable to-day when conditions of the allied experts' counter proposals to reservations of the German experts became known.

SHAKING HANDS WITH THE WEST

You have read whole libraries on the West ,you have thought about it, you have seen it in the movies and heard about it from friends, maybe you have even visited parts of it, but you can hardly say you have come into intimate personal contact with the West until you have seen its great prairies and mountains, visited its major cities and come into touch with those who are moulding its destinies. How can I do that you ask? It would take months and even years and my life and livelihood is in the East.

You can do it, simply, inexpensively and adequately by taking in the 6th annual "Across Canada and Back" tour. It is under the personal direction of Dean Laird, principal of Macdonald College and in the 21 days of the trip, you will visit, coming and going, the biggest cities from Winnipeg to Victoria, you will travel by rail and motor through the most parts of the Rockies, you will meet prominent men in western activities and you will return with a renewed zest for work and with a comprehension of the Dominion that you never dreamed you could possess. The Canadian Pacific Railway, under whose auspices the tour is run, will carry all the small responsibilities, hotels, baggage, motor trips, changes, etc., and you will have nothing to do but sit comfortably and enjoy yourself without a shadow of worry. Get aboard the Dean Laird tour of Canada and forget your troubles for three weeks.

For illustrated booklet of this marvelous trip apply J. S. Skinner, C.P.A., 343 George St., Peterborough or to Prof. Sinclair Laird, Box 226, Macdonald College, P.O., Que.

American Tourist Makes New Record

From San Pedro to Peterborough in an ancient car is the record of one tourist so far this year. In a Ford truck the trip was made to Toledo in 16 days, where the driver worked on the boats for some time, then came into Canada. Travelling out Charlotte Street in the city to-day the owned was stopped by the traffic officer as he had a for sale sign on the car. Being an American car, it cannot be sold while it has a California license, and after being duly warned by the official, the driver removed it.

"Must Be Another Joke," Says Tunney Regarding Breach Of Promise Suit

BRIONI, Italy, May 22.—(Canadian Press).—Gene Tunney, former world's heavyweight champion, thinks the suit of Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty, divorced wife of a Fort Worth Plumber, for $500,000 for alleged breach of promise to marry "must be another joke."

The one time pugilist, when informed that steps toward litigation had been taken in Connecticut, said: "I know absolutely nothing of the report."

He added: "It must be another joke. When I am sued I let my attorneys worry. I have all the worries I can handle right now here."

The present worries, although unexplained, were presumed to be a reference to the recuperation of his wife, the former Polly Lauder, heiress, after an operation for a serious appendicitis attack. She had previously been reported as progressing favorably.

DEAN OF CORPS WOULD FOREGO LIQUOR IN U. S.

Sir Esme Howard Is Willing To Give Up Right To Import Liquors.

PERSONAL OPINIONS.

Glad To Co-operate With Other Diplomatic Representatives in Washington.

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 25. — (Canadian Press).—Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador, is personally willing to relinquish the time-honored privilege of importing liquor into the United States enjoyed by foreign diplomats.

If the United States intimated a desire to cancel the privilege, he said at New York last nihht, he will be glad to co-operate with other members of the diplomatic corps in complying.

Personal Opinion

It was made clear in a statement issued by the British embassy here that the ambassador who is dean of the diplomatic corps, was expressing his personal opinion and was not speaking on behalf of the corps.

The ambassador's statement was drawn from him after he had been shown an article prepared for publication in a number of newspapers this morning dealing with correspondence between Sir Esme and James T. Carter, Lynchburg, Virginia, lumberman.

The article shows to Sir Esme, the embassy statement said, was incorrect. The embassy declined to make public the correspondence without the consent of Mr. Carter, who initiated it.

Three Children Are Badly Burned By Flaming Gasoline.

IN WINNIPEG SCHOOL.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 25.—(C.P.)—Flaming gasoline, scattered about by repeated explosions in the home of Steven Nikiforuk, principal of the school at Fisherbranch, Man., caused injury to five persons, three of whom are children, yesterdy.

Nikiforuk's 3-year old son, Walter, was so severely burned by the falming fluid that little hope for his recovery is held by hospital physicians. His 8-year old daughter Wuba, and 14-year old son, Michael, 8, required hospital attention but their burns were not serious.

Both the school principal and his sister-in-law, Miss Nellie Poraykm, received severe burns to their hands, but were not detained in hospital.

Bates was driving north on Stewart Street, and the accident occurred between London and Dublin, when the little lad dashed across the road without a moment's warning.

The car was stopped instantly and a doctor called. Dr. Howson attended the boy, having him first moved to the Clinic. It was reported that the lad was resting quietly this afternoon.

TWO CHURCHES ENDORSE UNION

Assemblies of Church of Scotland and United Free To Unite.

DUKE OF YORK PRESENT.

EDINBURGH, Scotland, May 25. — (Canadian Press Cable).—Yesterday was a historic day in the annals of Scottish Presbyterianism for the General Assemblies of the Church of Scotland and the United Free Church finally approved the basis of union of the two denominations. Negotiations had been carried on for 20 years. The union will be commemorated next October.

The centre of interest was in the United Free Church, where a minority took a stand in opposition to union on the ground that some connection with the State still remained in the plan and basis of union. This minority intends to form a Continuing Church when the United Free Church enters union.

The Duke of York, Lord High Commissioner, and the Duchess of York were present in the Church of Scotland Assembly when Rev Dr. John White moved that the overtures concerning the basis of union, having obtained the requisite approval by Presbyteries, should be converted into standing laws of the Church.

Closer Fellowship.

"To-day the dreams of former generations and the vision of the present generation are about to be realized," he said. "The chief thought of the Assembly to-day is one of deep gratitude to God, who has helped His people in this land into closer fellowship."

No repudiation of any valued element of Christian experience was involved in either Church, he declared; there was no surrender of the principles of the Churches.

Lord Sands seconded the motion, which was carried practically unanimously, only three votes being recorded against it. The result was received with prolonged cheering.

In the United Free Church Assembly Rev. Dr. Drummond moved for approval of the basis of Union, saying it was the most momentous step in the history of the Church since the Covenanting struggle. "It is gratifying that out of 1,440 congregations not one in ten has disapproved of Union on the basis and plan submitted," he said. "We are not asked to enter the Church of Scotland but to enter a Union into which the Church of Scotland is coming with us, and which will absorb us both."

Rev. D. M. Forrester and Rev. Jas. Barr moved and seconded an amendment that the Church of Scotland remain a church established by law, and that the General Assembly of the United Free Church could not take any further steps toward incorporat-

WIDOW SLAIN AND RICH MAN IS ARRESTED

Mrs. Edna Howe Stabbed To Death in Home At Brooklyn.

ACCUSED IS MARRIED.

Said To Have Been Suitor Of Victim Before She Married.

BROOKLYN, N.Y., May 28. — While her three children slept in an upstairs room, Mrs. Edna Howe, an attractive 34 year-old widow, was stabbed to death in her home early to-day.

George L. Taylor, 48, an electrical expert, was arrested and held on a homicide charge after Harry Lukey, an aged roomer who had worked for the late Charles Edward Howe, a corporation lawyer, had related events which followed Mrs. Howe's return from a motion picture show.

Taylor is a married man, reputedly wealthy and the father of several children. He was understood to have been friendly with Mrs. Howe before her marriage and to have resumed the relationshop after her husband's death last January. Mrs. Howe was left $50,000 in insurance and some real estate.

Lukey said that Taylor, in an intoxicated condition, returned to the house with Mrs. Howe. There was a quarrel in the sun parlor, he said, and Taylor came staggering into the kitchen, where Lukey sat. Taylor grabbed a large potato knife and staggered back into the sun parlor.

Police quoted Lukey as saying that soon after this he heard Mrs. Howe crying: "Don't stab me, George; Please don't stab me, George!"

Ran Into Hallway.

Mrs. Howe then ran into the hallway and collapsed, Lukey said. She was covered with blood and Dr. Frank B. Ring, a physician, summoned by Lukey, pronounced her dead when he arrived.

Taylor was arrested at his home and returned to the scene of the slaying. A nephew of the slain woman, Clifford Howe, 19, rushed at Taylor, shouting oaths, but policemen pulled him away.

The oldest child, Lucille, 9, aroused by the sounds in the hallway below, came downstairs while police were removing the body. She was quickly sent to her room. The other children are Edna, 6, and Charles, 3.

Police Commissioner Grover Whalen pronounced the slaying "a clear case of premeditated murder," when he arrived. During preliminary questioning Taylor admitted a quarrel but would not admit he stabbed Mrs. Howe.

Woman Swept To Death Over Niagara Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., May 25.—(Canadian Press).—A woman believed to have been Mrs. William F. Duke, fifty years old, of Niagara Falls, lost her life last night when she was swept over the American Falls. No one saw the woman enter the water, but tourists saw her as she floated under the Boat Island bridge and notified reservation policemen, who tried to rescue her with pike poles, but the swift current carried her over the crest of the falls.

Small Boy Has His Fun Without Causing Damage

"The quietest Victoria Day in years," was the way police officials referred to yesterday's celebration. "No damage, no fights, no accidents and only one drunk," was reported at the station.

However, the small boy has not gone into decline, and he held his end up nobly in administering a "kick" to the celebrations. Groups of them were to be seen with smoke-powdered faces letting off their "crackers." Tin cans were used over the giant "whizzbangs."

The police were called out to patrol the north and south ends when several groups became too noisy—otherwise May 24 was just an ordinary day to them.

BRANTFORD MAN MAY RECOVER

Four Motorists Are Killed at Level Crossing Near Windsor.

VISITING IN DETROIT.

WINDSOR, Ont., May 25.—(C.P.)—Charles Reid, 52, only survivor of a Brantford motorist party struck last night by a fast Michigan Central Railway passenger train at the Maidstone crossing, remains in a semi-conscious condition here in Hotel Dieu. He does not know what happened and the authorities haven't been able to secure a story from him. His wife, his 20 year old daughter, Ada, a Brantford telephone operator, and 11 year old Betty Parker, also of Brantford, were killed instantaneously.

The husband is suffering from a fractured skull and other injuries but hope for his recovery was extended to-day. Coroner Dr. J. W. Brien of Essex, has ordered an inquest for June 1 at Essex. A preliminary inquest was held last night before the bodies were brought into Windsor.

Failed To See Train.

The misahp occurred when Reid, driving east from Windsor, did not notice the west-bound express train approaching the Maidstone crossing. He had halted to permit the passing of an east-bound freight train and when it had passed, drove directly into the path of the fast passenger train. The Brantford automobile was carried several hundred feet and demolished and the bodies of the women and the child were mangled fearfully.

During a brief interval of consciousness, Reid was able to give his name to provincial police who communicated by telephone with his brother in Brantford. The officers were told that the Reids had been visiting over the holi day at the home of a relative, Mrs. Charles Scanlon, 2900 Montgomery avenue, Detroit. Reid's brother in Brantford could not account for the presence of the little Parker girl.

A report here to-day that Reid's car held five passengers when he stopped at a gasoline station near Maidstone has been found to be incorrect.

The Maidstone crossing is marked by a wig-wag signal, but it has been the scene of numerous fatal accidents, police say.

HARRY HOFFMAN IS ACQUITTED BY N. Y. JURY

After Fourth Trial Since 1924 Second Indictment Will Not Be Pressed.

JOB IS FOUND.

Divorced Wife Greets Him As He Leaves Prisoners' Dock.

NEW YORK, May 25.—Harry L. Hoffman, motion picture operator, was acquitted last night by a Brooklyn jury of the murder of Mrs. Maude C. Bauer, wife of an electrician, on a lonely Staten Island road on the afternoon of March 25, 1924. The verdict brought to an end a celebrated case in which the defendant had been tried four times.

It was at 6.58 o'clock that the jury filed into Supreme Court Justice Humphrey's court room in Brooklyn. An instant later the defendant appeared. He was leaning on the arm of his lawyer, Samuel Liebowitz, and seemed in danger of collapse. His face was pallid and he trembled.

He had announced, through counsel during the trial, that he would rather gamble on freedom or death, and rejected the offer of the prosecution to permit him to plead guilty on the lesser charge of manslaughter.

Only 40 in Court Room

Only forty persons, including reporters, were in the court room at the time. Leaning forward, Justice Humphrey addressed the spectators.

"If those in the court will agree to make no demonstration when the verdict is announced, they will be permitted to remain," he said. The room was in complete silence.

William Wallace, clerk of the court, got to his feet, and asked the age-old question:

"Gentlemen of the jury, have you reached a verdict?"

Reginald C. Thomas, foreman of the twelve jurors, replied in the affirmative. On his feet, a tall and distinguished figure, he announced:

"We find the defendant not guilty."

Still there was absolute silence in the court room. Hoffman and his lawyer rose to their feet, and instinctively, in an excess of emotion, embraced each other. There were tears in Hoffman's eyes.

Fach Not to Press Other Charge

The judge turned to District Attorney Fach and inquired if there were any other indictments against Hoffman. A gray shade passed over the defendant's face.

"There is one other," the prosecutor replied, and paused for a long moment. "But," he then said, "I am not disposed to press it."

Justice Humphrey discharging the jury thanked them for their "extreme patience throughout the case" And Foreman Thomas responded in a brief speech in which he thanked their courtesy. He apologised for the delay he, personally, had caused the trial when he was forced to remain at home one day on account of illness.

The jury filed out.

But as the door opened, the silence went too. A large crowd in the corridors of the building swarmed clattering in. There was another and still larger throng in the street, and it too sought admission. For a few moments the halls of the court house swarmed with excited humanity, greedy to take part in the drama for which they had been tardy.

Divorced Wife Greets Him.

Meanwhile, Hoffman, Liebowitz, and a group of relatives, friends and reporters made their way swiftly to the reporters' room across the hall.

There the freed man's former wife, Mrs. Agnes Rankin, with tears in her eyes, told of her gratitude for his release. She had divorced Hoffman and married again, but she announced her determination to seek a divorce from her second husband and make a new home for her first, now that his name and the name of their children was cleared.

CAHAN ATTACK IS CRITICIZED

Out To Discredit Government, Says London Weekly Newspaper.

NO GOOD CAN BE DONE.

LONDON, May 25. — (Canadian Press Cable).—The attack of C. H. Cahan, (Conservative, St. Lawrence-St. George, Que.) on the conduct of the I'm Alone negotiations in the House of Commons at Ottawa is provoking comment in London. The Nation, a weekly Liberal Review, says:—"No good can be done and much harm may be done by such utterances as those of C. H. Cahan who describes the sinking of the I'm Alone as either an act of war or deliberate piracy.

"The real object with which Mr. Cahan raised the question became clear when he went on to criticise the Canadian diplomatic protest as giving away too much to the United States. Parties concerned in the question have kept their heads and tempers admirably. Mr. Mackenzie King's reply should prevent any disturbance of the atmosphere by Mr. Cahan's outburst.

R. R. Hall, K.C., Makes Presentation For Local Choristers

Massed Choruses of 70 Units of the Associated Glee Clubs of America, Numbering Nearly 4,000 Men, Were Heard Last Night in New York.

FOUR ORGANIZATIONS FROM CANADA ARE TAKING PART IN GREAT EVENT

Peterborough Men's Gift Is Received With Loud Acclaim and Are Asked to Stand Up Followed By the Canadian Contingent.

Peterborough Male Voice Choir takes its share in the competitions at New York this evening, but already this city has been "put on the map" through the presentation to the American Association of Glee Clubs of a Canadian ensign by R. R. Hall, K.C., ex-M.P. It is expected that the result of the competition will be known to-night, and will be immediately bulletined at The Examiner office.

Section A of the contest was won by the Concordia Society of Wilkes-Barre. Eight clubs participated in this contest. Fourteen are taking part in the afternoon and evening competitions.

NEW YORK, May 25. (C.P.) — The massed choruses of seventy units of the Associated Glee Clubs of America, numbering nearly 4000 men, who came from 11 states and various Canadian provinces, gave a concert last night in Madison Square Garden before a throng of many thousands. The great chorus assembled for this event was made up of many glee clubs, all members of the association, which was formed in 1923 to promote nation-wide interest in choral and community singing which would result in the formation of singing societies similar to those of England, Wales and other European countries. The first Association concert in the New York district was held in Carnegie Hall with 540 singers participating.

The clubs participating in the concerts included the following, all members of which had come to New York at their own expense at a cost in excess of $71,500: Glee Club of the Royal Bank of Canada, Montreal, Quebec; Ottawa Temple Chanters; Peterborough Male Voice Choir, Peterborough, Ont.; Harmony Choir and Glee Club, Toronto.

Not an Ideal Place.

Madison Square Garden is not an ideal place acoustically for a musical event of the ordinary type, but last night its vast spaces, despite their resounding echoes, made a setting not inappropriate to the splendid power and sonority of the masses choruses, whose voices rang with thrilling effect through the enormous hall, much like those of a festival choir in a great Cathedral.

Under these circumstances it mattered little what music was chosen to display the tonal resources of such a gigantic vocal instrument. It was the stunning sonority and pealing volume of sound which aroused the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm. Among the items may be mentioned Beethoven's "Creation" hymn, Mendelssohn's "On Wings of Song," Bohm's "Calm as the Night," Elgar's "Land of Hope and Glory," Protheroe's "Laudamus," and the Brahms "Lullaby." Other selections of a more popular nature included Bartholomew's "Shenandoah," Davidson's "Reaper's Song," Oley Speaks' "On the Road to Mandalay," with incidental solo by Reinald Werrenrath, Dickinson's "Music, When Soft Voices Die," Reddick's "Sweet Canaan," Speaks' "Morning," Meal's "Drums," and Kremser's "Prayer of Thanksgiving."

Nanette Guilford, the Metropolitan soprano, sang Elisabeth's "Dich Teuer Halle," from "Tanhauser," the "Ernanif Involami" from Verdi's 'Ernani' and Musetta's waltz song from "La Boheme," while Mr. Werrenrath's contributions included the familiar "Give a Man a Horse He Can Ride," "Duna," and Sidney Barlow Brown's "Young Song From Paradise." Both singers coped with the unfavorable acoustics of the auditorium with marked success, and each received a genuine ovation from the audience, which encore them many times.

The first half of the program was conducted by Mark Andrews, a native of Gainsborough, England.

Ensign Presented

Following the official greetings to the assembled singers voiced by Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, Ralph L. Baldwin, one of the conductors of the concert introduced R. R. Hall, K.C., a former member of the Canadian parliament, who, represented the Peterborough, Ontario, male choir. Mr. Hall said that the Ontario city had contributed $4,000 towards the expenses of the trip, and presented a Canadian ensign on behalf of the choir to the association. The Peterborough men and then all the Canadian contingent, were called on to stand.

The association's second Glee Club contest is being held to-day at Mecca Temple, where eight clubs will be heard until noon, and 14 from 12.45 to 5 o'clock.

The Concordia Society of Wilkes-Barre with a score of 93 in a possible hundred marks again captured the "A" section of the Glee Club contest this morning. Eight clubs competed.

CANADA IS WELL RECEIVED BY EUROPEAN COUNTRIES

Sir Arthur Currie Returns After Year's Sojourn in Europe.

BROUGHT TO FORE.

Former Canadian War Commander Has Made Study of Post War Conditions.

QUEBEC CITY, Que., May 25. — (Canadian Press).—Looking considerably improved in health, following his year's sojourn abroad, Sir Arthur Currie, G.C.M.G., former Commander of the Canadian Corps and Principal of McGill University, Montreal, reached Quebec to-day on the Canadian Pacific ocean service "Duchess of York." Sir Arthur will continue on board to Montreal, where a reception from his former comrades of the corps await him.

Happiness on his return to Canada was uppermost in his thoughts, said the General. His absence had been lengthy, and its purpose not an unmixed blessing, but it had conferred on him the advantage of studying conditions in post war Europe. He noted with pleasure that Canada stood high in the regard of the old world nations. The Dominion loomed large in the eyes, not only of the Mother Country but of continental Europe. Her international activities had brought Canada considerably to the fore in recent years.

Chamber Of Commerce Makes Appeal For Support Of Empire Shopping Week

"The residents of Peterborough city and district are urged during Empire Shopping Week, May 25 to June 1, and in fact at all times, to buy Empire produce and manufactures, but always to keep in mind the fact that Canadian goods are Empire goods.

"Quality and price being favorable, Empire Shopping Weeks in Canada are meant to focus the attention of the Canadian people upon the purchase of—first, Home products; secondly, Canadian products; and, thirdly, Empire products.

"During Empire Shopping Week at least, the purchase of Home, Canadian and Empire products will be made easy by the retail merchants of Peterborough, whose stores, in addition to being suitably decorated for the occasion by material distributed by the Chamber of Commerce, will display prominently, the various lines of Empire goods, and I am gratified to say that most of our everyday requirements at least, are procurable within the Empire.

"Empire Shopping Week in Canada is endorsed by His Excellency, the Governor-General of Canada, and it has as chairman the Minister of Trade and Commerce, the Hon. James Malcolm, M.P. In addition the most prominent of Canada's social, commercial and industrial organizations are represented in the organization by their presidents and chairmen. That there is such unanimity of opinion in favor of Empire shopping is sufficient indication as to the worthwhile nature of the movement, and it behooves us as loyal citizens too, by personal example, promote the Empire sentiment to the fullest possible degree

LABOR HAS GAINED CONTROL OF SHEFFIELD CITY COUNCIL

Principles of Socialism and Municipal Ownership Put Into Effect.

TAXES INCREASED.

With Exception of One Division Women Greatly Outnumber Men Voters.

SHEFFIELD, Eng., May 25.—(By W. C. Thomson, Canadian Press). Staff Correspondent).—Although all three parties are strongly campaining in this great centre of steel and cutlery manufacturing with a Communist candidate thrown in to make things more lively national issues are being overshadowed by local problems in the present election campaign. The Sheffield city council has for some years been controlled by a Labor majority which has been steadily putting into effect the principles of socialism and municipal ownership.

Local taxes have increased and many householders are indignant because they have been compelled to provide themselves with garbage pails at their own expense. The pails are produced at a municipal factory. There is also a municipal printing plant and a direct labor department for the city.

Landlord And Plumber Come To Blows On Roof Of Building; Axe Wielded

An angry landlord and a hot-headed plumber were within an ace of gripping each other in a death grapple on the roof of a building in the centre of the city yesterday morning. Only the brawny arms of the red-headed plumber's helper prevented blood from being shed when he hastily took the menacing axe from the landlord's uplifted hand.

The plumber was ordered by the tenant, who was abiding by the city's bylaw, to build a vent in the roof to allow ventilation in his store. The plumber and his helper were busily engaged in the job when the landlord sternly ordered them down.

"It will take a bigger man than you to put me off," the proud plumber replied.

With anger eating at his heart and wroth the landlord climbed down, seized an axe in the yard and returned to the roof wielding it with mad intent.

That's where the red-headed plumber's boy decided to take a hand in affairs. He grappled with the man; took the axe from his hand and hurled it to the ground.

This morning, with cooler heads, the two combatants went into a conference with Chief Newhall. After a half hour's talk with the Chief, they left together, with every appearance of friendliness, the plumber to finish the job and the landlord to thank his stars he wasn't up on a charge of assault.

Lindbergh's Freshness After Flight Inspired New Type Of British Plane

LONDON May 25.—After two years of experiment and development Royal Air Force designers have turned into practical effect what they call the greatest lesson learned from Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's flight across the Atlantic in the Spirit of St. Louis, and the result is a new secret fighting cockpit in which the pilot sits in an entirely enclosed cockpit.

When aviation engineers examined Colonel Lindbergh's plane after his arrival at Croydon they declared there was little to learn either from the construction of his monoplane, from his navigation instruments, which enabled him to keep such a remarkably true course, or from his engine.

What interested them most was the fact that Colonel Lindbergh had shown so little physical fatigue, although he was not, from outside appearance at any rate, a particularly robust man.

They came to the conclusion that, apart from Colonel Lindbergh's grit, his amazing skill as pilot and as "natural" navigator and the reliability of his entire equipment, the success of the flight was in no small measure due to the design of the plane's cabin. Colonel Lindbergh sat there entirely protected from the elements, almost "blind" as regards direct forward vision, but in a flush of fresh air free from exhaust fumes and almost free from engine noise.

NINE KILLED IN ACCIDENTS OVER HOLIDAY

Three Die In Crossing Crash

Nine Lives Lost and Nineteen Injured Over the Holiday.

CHILDREN ARE VICTIMS.

Fireworks, Often a Potent Factor in Lists, Cause No Deaths.

TORONTO, May 25.—Accidents in Ontario claimed nine lives and 19 were injured on Victoria day.

In a level crossing smash late last night near Maidstone, Essex county, a mother and two daughters were killed, while the husband and driver, Charles Reed, of Brantford, was seriously injured.

Reed is in the hospital at Windsor. The bodies of Mrs. Reed and her two daughters had been smashed terribly, the head of one of them being severed from the body. One of the daughters was about 16 years old. Details as to their names and ages were not available at midnight as the Essex police have not secured a statement from the hospital.

Of the other victims, three were young children. Two of these were killed by motor cars. Fireworks, often a potent factor in 24th of May lists of killed and injured, caused no deaths and injured only three, according to available reports. There were no drownings.

Few Accidents.

In Toronto the holiday was remarkable for its comparative freedom from accidents. In the city proper, the sole fatality was the suicide of one member of a holiday party. Eight were injured but only one seriously and no injuries were attributed to fireworks explosions. Two fires, however, were traced to firecrackers but the fire department had a record light holiday for there were only 28 alarms compared to 54 last Victoria day.

Throughout the city suburbs there was but one fatality caused by a motor crash. Two children were reported injured playing with fireworks, both in Scarboro township. At Scarboro Bluffs, a small girl was accidentally shot through the foot.

Within the City of Toronto the holiday was the lightest in point of tragedy, crime and destruction in years.

A four-year-old child, Betty Downing of 126 Centre street, was the only person seriously injured in the city. She lies in hospital with a fractured skull, after having been run down by an automobile.

In spite of a volume of fireworks almost twice as great as that of last year, only two fires during the day were blamed on the use of the holiday displays, while from all causes only 30 fire alarms developed in the city during the 24 hours to midnight as compared with 52 last year. All fires were small and most caused by fireworks.

In the towns and countryside surrounding the city accidents were more frequent.

Killed at Long Branch

Edward Gross of 499 Quebec street, 20 years old, died almost instantly when his motorcycle swerved into a radial car at Long Branch, in the early morning hours. Fred Hart of 50 Claremont street, riding in the sidecar of the machine, escaped with slight injuries.

Gross, an employee in the Terminal Warehouse, was on his way to Huttonville with Hart to spend the holiday and, witnesses say, was driving his machine westward on the car tracks instead of on the highway proper. Motorman R. Parker, of 344 Sorauren avenue, Toronto, was not able to stop his radial car in time to prevent the head-on crash. Dr. Warren Snyder will conduct an inquest.

The death of Gross was the second in three weeks near this point, Charles Scott of 580 Manning avenue, Toronto, having died in almost identical manner on May 3. He, too, was killed in a head-on collision with a street car less than two blocks from the point where Gross was killed.

Bad condition of the highway in this section has been blamed for several accidents. The program for the widening of the concrete road has not been completed, leaving part of East Northumberland Prohibition Union Holds Annual Meeting.

PRESIDENT RE-ELECTED.

Fine Addresses Are Delivered By Speakers From Toronto.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 25 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Attendance was not a feature of the general meeting of the East Northumberland Prohibition Union held in St. John's United Church here on Thursday afternoon and evening. In the afternoon there was a business session. The Rev. F. G. MacTavish, minister of the Seymour United Church, presided at the opening devotional exercises in the evening. Mr. Lee, the president of the association, occupied the chair during the remainder of the evening. James Hales, K.C., Toronto, was the speaker of the evening. Addresses were also given by the Rev. Dr. Irwin, also of Toronto. Miss Mildred Curtis was the first to address the Union, and her oration won much praise from the others who spoke. Mr. Albert Hazel, organist of the church, and several members of the choir, were present. The pulpit and front part of the auditorium were decorated tastefully with flowers. Between the addresses, George Lucy sang a solo and there was also a duet by Mrs. Jones and Mrs. H. O. Richardson. The report of the nominating committee was presented by G. A. Kingston. Its acceptance appointed the officers for the district for the coming year.

Officers Elected.

President, Mr. Lee, Hilton; Vice-President, F. Huycke, Norham; Secretary, V. C. H. Becker, Brighton; Treasurer, R. C. Weston, Campbellford; Vice-President for Campbellford, C. W. Palliser; Vice-President for Hastings, R. C. Doxsee; Vice-President for East Seymour, Lindsay Anderson; Vice-President for West Seymour, W. A. Brown; Vice-President for Cramahe, E. E. Allan; Vice-President for Brighton Village, W. Bellamy; Vice-President for Murray, Ed. Wilson; Vice-President for Warkworth, Mr. Kelly; Vice-President for Percy Township, U. E. Wartman.

Following the adoption of the report of the nominating committee, the chairman spoke briefly.

James Hales, K.C., in his address, said carbon, hydrogen and nitrogen were each harmless elements, but in combination they were deadly poison. The gas which had caused such an appalling loss of life in the Cleveland hospital disaster was a combination of nitrogen and oxygen. A combination of all three, according to the high school chemical formula, C_2H_6O would make a man drunk and cause him to forget his duties to his home, his wife and his family. As proof of his statement, he referred to the recent shooting which occurred in the North Bay district. He claimed he had known clergymen to say that it was not the use of liquor as a beverage but its abuse as such that caused the damage.

Former Conditions Outlined.

For some time then, Mr. Hales dwelt on the conditions of years ago, when whiskey sold for as little as twenty cents a gallon. It was used in abundance then, especially at farmers' bees, when they were threshing, husking or raising a new barn. But the time came when these farmers, our forefathers, realized that it was not good, and its sale and use was confined to taverns. The stage coach was the popular means of travel then, and it was the custom of the travellers to enter the bar and treat all around while the horses were being changed. Since those days, however, there has been the Scott Act, the Duncan Act and Local Option. Then the victory was snatched from the prohibitionists. "There had always been much use of propaganda by the liquor interests, and now it was time for the temperance people to use it," he said.

"In the liquor fight there are three

Church Is No Place For Movie Fans, Declares Prominent Baptist Preacher

TORONTO, Ont., May 25. (C. P.) — "No man or woman is fit to be a church member who goes to the movies, and every preacher who goes ought to be turned out of the church, and his credentials taken from him," declared Dr. J. W. Gillon, Shawnee, Okla, speaking last night at the closing session of the fundamentalist Baptist Young People's Association of Ontario and Quebec at the Jarvis street Baptist church.

"Every church is full of men and women who are drifting today till it has no power left. Dead men are preaching to dead people."

"I would like a chance to dry you up," he declared amid applause.

Proceeding he asserted that the open saloon was bad, but the open picture show was worse. While disclaiming any suggestion that he himself was a scientist, Dr. Gillon referred to a statement made by a scientist to the effect that after two generations had been attending pictures, babies would be born blind.

LIBERALS FAIL TO HEAR SPEECH

Minister Arrives Just in Time To See Meeting Adjourn.

900 HANDS SHAKEN.

WINDSOR, May 25.—Unexpected diversion by Senator Gustave Lacasse of Tecumseh, who hinted at a "master mind" behind the affair, halted yesterday afternoon what had been billed as the annual session of the East Essex Liberal Association in the Belle River Town Hall.

The Senator, as First Vice-President and nominal head of the organization claimed that the meeting had not been called regularly and that its officers had been ignored. After exhaustive debate the gathering concurred with him and adopted the annual session be held next September. The date was not fixed.

Peaceful Till Then

The afternoon's session was sailing along with the wind until the belated arrival of Senator Lacasse. Peter Corbett, former president of the North Essex Association, was in the chair and four Honorary Presidents already had been chosen. They were: Senator Lacasse Edward P. Tellier ex-M.P.P.; Peter Corbett and E. N. Desmarais retiring Second Vice-President.

The Secretary-Treasurer, A. J. Gordon, had announced two vacancies, the residency, open by reason of the removal from the riding of Dr. A. H. C. Trottier, and the Second Vice-Presidency, occasioned by the ill health of E. N. Desmarais.

Ulysses G. Reaume had been nominated as President when Senator Lacasse protested. He wanted to know who had called the meeting and why. As the President had moved out of the riding he considered that he had become automatically the head of the association. The Secretary explained he had called the session at the instance of the sitting member, Edmond G. Odette, who wanted it held on the occasion of the visit yesterday of the Solicitor-General, Hon. Lucien Cannon.

Then Mr Cannon Arrives

Senator Lacasse, during his address, said he did not want to be a "figurehead" and insisted on having knowledge as to what is proceeding "within the inner circles" of the association.

The meeting adjourned harmoniously just as Hon. Lucien Cannon arrived, accompanied by district dignitaries of the Liberal Party. However, the Solicitor-General shook hands with more than 900 Liberals from all parts of Essex County.

LABOR LEADER SEEKS SOURCE OF PARTY FUNDS

Ramsay MacDonald Repeats Warning To English Employers.

NO COERCING OF VOTERS.

Declares Parliament Ought To Force All Parties to Publish Campaign Funds.

CREWE, Cheshire, May 25 (C.P.). —Issuing a challenge to employers and a desire to pass an Act of Parliament forcing political parties to disclose the sources of their funds were uttered by Rt. Hon. Ramsay Macdonald, in a speech in this big railroad centre yesterday. He had heard certain employers' organizations and leading individual employers were threatening that if their employees voted for Labor they would lose their jobs, the Labor leader said.

"If the employers, in order to get the safeguarding duties, threaten their working people that unless they vote with them they will lose their jobs, I will challenge that as being illigitimate," Mr. Macdonald declared. "In this fight we are up against cash on the other two side. I would like to pass an Act of Parliament that every political party and organization taking part directly or indirectly in elections should register themselves and, like the trades unions, should put in every year a full statement of income and expenditure.

Wants Source of Funds

"I would offer no limitation. All I would want to begin with would be to get the facts. I would like to get the source of the Liberal Fund and the Conservative fund, and to know how much money they are going to spend by election day. Why, it would amaze you. A quarter of a million sterling would be far too short an estimate. These people who cannot stand another penny in the pound taxation can pay fire insurance by subscribing to the Tory party," he said in attacking the employers.

"It comes to this: 'If you give us a £10,000 subscription we guarantee in our taxation and industrial legislation to give you the equivalent back'," Mr. Macdonald gave as a hypothetical or Liberal promise.

The Labor leader instanced Lord Melchett, the former Sir Alfred Mond, President of Imperial Chemical Industries. Lord Melchett told the shareholders that the company, by reason of the operations of the government's derating legislation removing the burden of local taxation, had received a present of $1,000,000 a year. That represented a gift equal of $20,000,000 in capital, Mr. Macdonald added.

Police Are Called When Two Men Stage Battle at N. Bennett's.

TO APPEAR IN COURT.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BUCKHORN, May 25. — A big fight marred a dance here when an uninvited guest forced his entrance at the festivities on Wednesday night. The dance was being held at the home of Napier Bennett, and it is understood that nearly everyone had received invitations to be present except Harvey Windover. A feud has existed between Windover and Bennett for months past, and when the dance was at its height Windover appeared at the front door. He issued a challenge to Bennett to come out and fight. Bennett immediately came forth and obliged Windover.

The two men battered each other severely and some of the guests fearing that someone might be killed, phoned to Peterborough for the provincial police. The men will appear in the police court, and it is stated that many prosecutions will follow the affair.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

MY FRIEND—if you will permit the relationship—before you shrug your left shoulder, or make room on your face for some suggestion of a supercilious smile, and with commendable restraint prevent yourself from muttering aloud, "What is this old-fashioned dominie going to dope out to his long-suffering readers today?" just read on patiently for a moment or so more and I will give your eyes the chance to feast on the most wonder-working word of this up-to-date age of ours. The word I am thinking of using is the word, "Modern!" Let the preacher preface all he has to preach with this word, or what this word usually stands for in preaching, and he will be considered scholarly even if he cannot tell whether a cow's horns are before or behind her ears.

An Up-to-Date Appreciation.

I read it in a popular magazine. It was the utterance of one of the most successful modern writers. What he is worth in dollars and dimes and cents I don't know, but it is far beyond anything I am ever likely to make as a preacher. I am sure he has made more in five years by writing than I can possibly make in fifty years of pulpit work. I believe there is more than enough in this world for us all, but I cannot get away from the feeling that somehow or other many of us get less than our share! A prizefighter receives for one hour's brutal work what a professor or a preacher cannot earn in a lifetime. One professor stood at a football game and said to himself, "It takes me forty years of intensive instruction, with all the vitality there is in me, to earn what is represented here in money at this one football game."

He had been writing about the reading of books, and in his last few paragraphs this is something like what he said: "There is another hint I can give you, whether or not you care to avail yourselves of it: The greatest and the best-told stories, the simplest and the sublimest philosophy, the grandest example of literary style—all are combined in one volume. That volume is the Bible.

The Best-Told Of All Stories.

"I do not know what your religion may be! nor indeed that you are interested in religion. Nor is it any business of mine. But whether you are a zealot or an atheist, you will find in the Bible (as actual reading matter) more of keen interest and inspiration and infinitably flawless literary style than in any other book ever written.

"Personally, I am a believer in the Bible, although I do not seek to thrust my beliefs on others. To me as a writer, its incomparable style and its power of telling tremendously dramatic stories in a mere mouthful of words would be enough to convince me of its inspiration, if nothing else did.

"Read it for its sheer interest, and not merely as a pious duty; and you will find it by far the foremost marvel in all the wonderworld of bookland."

The other morning, in the course of my reading, I found myself in the 12th chapter of the Gospel according to St. John. Perhaps you are already aware of the fact that it deals with the closing days of our Lord's life upon earth. But I wonder if you have noticed a very interesting touch which is somewhat comforting to the preacher who is often disappointed because of his failure to favorably impress all the members of his congregation!

How Some Are Impressed.

Jesus was praying: "Now is my soul troubled; and what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour: but for this cause came I unto this hour. Father, glorify thy name. Then came there a voice from heaven, saying, I have both glorified it and will glorify it again.

"The people therefore, that stood by, and heard it, said that it thundered: others said, An angel spake to Him."

Now, I have often heard it thundering; and at times I have thought that I have heard an angel speak—human, it is true, but to me, an angel—and I have never yet failed to differentiate between the two sounds. However, here is a case on record where the same thing appealed to different people in different ways. Let this fact comfort me when I fail to satisfy all of either the sheep or the goats.

Who Wrote Letters?

On the same week I received two letters, both of which bore testimony to the same message. To one, it had been the angel, and to the other, it had only been a storm! There was no name attached to either of the letters. It has been said that those who write anonymous letters are the cowardliest in character, the most venomous in motive, and the stupidest in intelligence of any class in the community. I am happy to say that the one that was unfavorable did not affect my appetite or spoil my digestion. It is perhaps just as well that the writer, either through absent-mindedness or through shame, did not give a name; but it would have been nice to have known the name of the other so that my very sincere thanks might have gone forth.

Let Me Choose All My Friends.

Here are the two letters to be classified as my readers see fit: "Dear Sir, I have been to your service last Sunday and I was surprised to hear a clergyman swearing the way you did. I think it is much worse than dancing. And I noticed you took the Lord's name in vain, which I did not like, as there were a good many talking about it as well as me. I do not talk about people, I rather help them. I hope you do not feel bad about it, it is only to help you. From a great Friend." Evidently, in this case, the preacher must have "stormed," and perhaps the "angel" wrote the letter!

Not Of The Same Feather.

Regarding this same service I got another letter which, in some respects, I think, is a very sincere exaggeration of my ability as a preacher. Here it is as it came to me, and I think I know the class to which it belongs: "Dear Friend, Pardon me for sending an anonymous letter. I want you to know what I say is genuine. If I told you it might take on a tinge of flattery. I enjoyed your sermon so much last Sunday night. May God spare your life for many years to fearlessly proclaim His message. You are a Jeremiah of the twentieth century. Yours in Christ. One who was there."

Put Them In Prison.

Here are two samples of anonymous letters which are as mean as they can be. Dr. George A. Gordon, minister of the Old South Church, Boston, received the following communication on a postcard one Monday morning: "What a liar you are, and what a lie you told in your sermon last evening; be a man next Sunday and tell the truth. From one who wishes you well." One morning, Dr. E. Winchester Donald, of Trinity Church, Boston, received the following letter: "Rev. E. Winchester Donald, D.D., rector of Trinity Church, and preacher to Harvard University: You are a damned fool. A Friend."

There is in the Franconia Notch a sheet of water called Echo Lake. If one is a superb singer, let him go there about sunset, and sing clearly and slowly:

"Nearer My God to Thee," and listen as the great mountains return his voice magnified, and the song glorified.

O' Brother Man, when you are hurt in your heart by some mean and cowardly attack, get to the mountain called Calvary, and sing in your own way, "Nearer My God to Thee." Never mistake truth for falsehood, beauty for deformity, or good for evil. Whatever others may fail to do never fail to distinguish between the thunder and the angel. —Allan Fairbairn.

Every man is a missionary now and for ever, for good or for evil, whether he intends or designs it or not. Perhaps our greatest danger in life is in easy satisfactions, low expectations, spiritual lethargy and moral inertia.

It is in vain for you to expect, it is impudent for you to ask of God, forgiveness on your own behalf if you refuse to exercise this forgiving temper with respect to others.

The Minister Remarks--

—In some families the head of the house has to sit at the foot of the table.

—The fire of love will often burn better when kindled by some gay young spark rather than by some convenient match.

—I've known some men to marry a vision only to discover that their vision was defective.

—I've known vanity to get such a hold of some folks that they were not natural even when they were asleep.

—If it is true, as asserted by the dean of a school for women, that college girls are not strong on marrying, why not abolish education?

—What a change would be effected if Governments could only see that prayer is more dynamic than guns or ammunition.

—Don't think that being on the level will always guarantee smooth travelling.

Think Of This And Act.

IF your life is right with God there will be no standing still or marking time in His service. It will be your experience to abound yet more and more. You will bask in the sunshine of Heaven and make it possible for God to smile upon you. See to it that you are always under the refreshing influence of God's spirit. Breathe throughout the day the atmosphere of prayer and let the Holy Spirit have right of way in your life. You may be able to neglect other things and still succeed as a Christian, but you cannot neglect the Word of God and make a success of your life. —A. F.

Let Such Men Alone.

ANY man who is unfamiliar and out of sympathy with the simple, little, common, everyday things of life, wh is nt in touch with the multitude and whose heart does not go out to the many, is a good man to let alone. No matter how plausible his arguments, give him absent treatment. Flee any man who does not have common sense, no matter how great his mental attainments.

TELL US A STORY

IT has been said that goodness moves in a larger sphere than justice! We have been told that the obligations of law and equity reach only to mankind, but kindness and beneficence should be extended to creatures of every species; and these still flow from the breast of a well-natured man, as streams that issue from the living fountain. A good man will take care of his horses and dogs, not only while they are young, but when old and past service. Thus the people of Athens, when they had finished the temple called Hecatompedon, set at liberty the beasts of burden that had been chiefly employed in the work, suffering them to pasture at large, free from any other service. It is said that one of these afterwards came of its own accord to work, and, putting itself at the head of the laboring cattle, marched before them to the citadel. This pleased the people, and they made a decree, that it should be kept at the public charge as long as it lived. The graves of Cimon's mares, with which he thrice conquered at the Olympic Games, are still to be seen near his own tomb. We certainly ought not to treat living creatures like shoes or household goods, which, when worn out with use, we throw away; and were it only to learn benevolence to humankind, we should be merciful to other creatures.

1. Would you please tell us the difference between a Fundamentalist and a Modernist.
2. Is it true that the Roman Catholic Church has placed a ban on the song, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere"? I believe it is often used at funerals, and I am wondering why it should be banned.
3. I am perplexed by that portion of the Lord's Prayer which reads "Lead us not into temptation," because it seems incredible to me that God should lead us into temptation with all its risks.
4. Will there be any greater reward in heaven for those who have always tried to do their best and live right than for the sinner who repents at the last moment?

How Does It Strike You?

READER! Let me speak to you through these lines in the frankest and friendliest way possible. You may think that I am "preaching" if you are so minded, but it is my profound conviction that none of us can have too much preaching of a scriptural and spiritual kind. Preaching—whether by speech in the pulpit, or by pen in the press—is something we can't very well afford to do without. It brightens our hope, strengthens our faith, clarifies our thinking, and enriches every part of our being.

You are a Christian? On what ground do you base your belief? Do you tell me that you have been baptized, that you have partaken of the Lord's Supper, united with the visible church? Then let me warn you that all this may be true, and you may even be ordained to the Christian ministry without being a Christian in the New Testament sense; and that is the only sense that will suffice in the hour when you will stand before the Judge of all flesh. Your faith must rest in the redemptive work of the Son of God and not in the ritual of any congregation. If you are to have a hope, well grounded and sure, it must be based upon the Sacrifice of Calvary and not upon the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. It is not sacramental grace, but sacrificial grace that you need to put you right with God. If you have been really made a partaker of the divine nature by regeneration it is something to be devoutly thankful for.

But that is only the beginning! You are to grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. And there is no way of realizing that growth apart from the study of the Word of God. What does the Bible mean to you? How much of its contents do you know? How much time do you give to the study of it? You will never get far by simply giving the sleepiest ten minutes of the day to a superficial glance at the most marvellous piece of literature known to mankind.

Do you know that 47 books of the Bible can be read through in less than an hour each? It would not be possible to spend 47 more profitable hours. 17 books of the New Testament can be read through in as many minutes each. That is less time than is usually given to a daily paper. Give the Book a chance! It will be the best investment of your time you have ever made. —A. F.

Drop all your plans, and just let God work out His own plan in your life, and wait for Him to work it out.

We should always take great trials and great temptations as the forerunners of great blessings and fellowship with God.

VICTORIA DAY.

Even although the weatherman is not always in a kindly mood, the Canadian people would be very much opposed to any proposal that the celebration of Victoria Day should be dropped.

While it is true that the original purpose of the holiday, i. e., the observance of the birthday of "Victoria the Good," is rapidly being lost sight of, the fact that May 24th is the first holiday of what should be the summer season and represents the first real escape from the thrall of old King Winter makes the date one of supreme importance to the people of this country.

Victoria Day, whether that name endures or not, is likely to remain a long time in the Canadian calendar as a holiday.

It is most happily timed, sufficiently far away from Easter and from Dominion Day not to conflict with either and at a season when usually Nature has put on her summer garb, and the atmosphere of summer, the glorious outdoor playtime of the Canadian people, is noticeable.

May 24th has been a Canadian holiday for close to a hundred years, and there is no present hint of a change.

THE RIGHT COURSE.

The Dominion Government, in deciding to pay the German reparations in full to those Canadians whose claims have been recognized by the commissioner who investigated, has adopted the only policy consistent with common sense and justice.

That could not have been said of the first decision, which was to pay only a portion of the claims.

This money has been paid over by Germany as reparation for war losses sustained by Canadian civilians and there is no argument that would hold water why the Government should not promptly turn over the amount to those whom investigation has proved to be entitled to reparations.

It is gratifying to see, too, that it is proposed to pay the accrued interest on these claims, a course that will in some measure recompense those Canadian citizens who have waited more or less patiently for eleven years to have justice done in this important matter.

The revamped bill should pass in Parliament without delay so that at last civilian war victims in this country may obtain their rights.

COMPULSORY INSURANCE.

The theory advanced by the St. Catharines City Council in opposing a proposal for compulsory insurance against motor accidents that such a policy would tend to greater recklessness and therefore more accidents, is of doubtful value.

It would be equally as logical to oppose fire insurance on the ground that such protection would result in more fires.

Compulsory accident insurance for motorists has obvious weaknesses, but the reason selected by the St. Catharines Council in opposing the suggestion surely cannot be included in the list of defects.

The chief argument in favor of compulsory insurance, of course, is the fact that there are people recklessly driving old cars on the highways from whom not a cent could be collected should they be guilty of causing an accident in which damages to others are inflicted.

Getting a judgment against motorists of this type is not of the slightest use, for they have no money and little else upon which a collection could be made.

It is to deal with that situation that compulsory insurance is advocated, not only by many layman, but more than once by leading jurists.

SEVEN RULES FOR SAFETY.

Hon. George S. Henry's seven rules in regard to safe driving over the week-end are of sufficient importance in view of the heavy traffic that is certain with fine weather are worth repeating and emphasizing. Here they are:

1. Have your car in perfect mechanical shape, particularly brakes, steering gear and headlights.
2. Give your undivided attention to your driving. In passing traffic, be sure there is a place for you in the traffic line ahead.
3. When other motor vehicles try to pass you—let them pass.
4. In entering main streets or highways, or in approaching a railway crossing where a full view of the track is obscured—stop and look.
5. Don't "Loaf" where traffic is heavy.
6. Always signal before you slow down, stop or change your course.
7. Never back up before ascertaining that the road behind is clear.

A strict observance at all times of these fundamental rules of safety would do much to reduce the accident list and to prevent those long lists of week-end casualties that have become an all too common feature of Monday issues of the newspapers.

Perhaps an eighth rule might be added: "Don't drive too fast."

There are times when fast driving on a good road is not a particularly dangerous practice, but high speed when the highways are thick with traffic, as is likely to be the case to-morrow, might well prove the cause of a bad accident.

Play safe so that you may enjoy many a week-end drive; it is a poor policy to try to gain a few seconds at the price of death or serious injury.

HONORING A DOG.

A doggie at Norwood has been decorated with a collar bearing the proud word "Hero" cut in brass. That was his reward for saving his young master, Glen Bedore, a few weeks ago when the lad was caught under a pile of logs which pinned him down. Glen's pet raised the alarm by his continual howling.

In this instance the dog was decorated by sixteen children of the primary class of the Presbyterian Sunday School. It was fitting that childhood should pay this tribute to the mute creation's representative. "The boy and his dog" are immortal as a figure of speech and as a group in literature, and it was well that childhood should sing the praises of the representative of the species which is so attracted to children.

This dog was representative of that class of millions of canines which somewhere in their make-up have love for mankind and especially childhood. The whole story of life is not told without a word for man's and childhood's friend of the canine species.

Dogs get many kicks in their time and they have an opportunity to hate men if they would, but they bear with men's infirmities and look with that steady gaze of fidelity into the face of their owners to discover if love is there.

It was a pretty thing for the children to do. Those who took part in the event will never forget the decoration of the dog which had saved life. They will love animals more than ever before.—Belleville Ontario.

A NOTABLE SAFETY RECORD.

(From the Detroit Free Press)

A good many years ago Mark Twain was quoted to the effect that railway trains were safer than beds, as fewer people died in them. The president of the American Railway Association now states that a person runs less risk of losing his life traveling on the railroads of this country than he does staying at home. As proof of this he cites the fact that last year 24,000 home fatalities occurred in the United States, against a loss of only 16 lives among 800,000,000 passengers carried by the railroads. When the safety of railway travel is compared with that of automobile travel an even more impressive fact is discovered. The average number of persons killed daily in automobile accidents during 1928 was five times the total number of passengers killed on the railroads during the entire year.

As far back as the '80s of the last century, John Fiske, a careful historian, stated that the loss of life involved in stage coach travel at the time of the American revolution was proportionately far greater "than it has ever been on the railways." When this statement was made, American railroads had a far less enviable safety record than they have since acquired. Under the pressure of enlightened self-interest they have made safety first a goal and then a talking point. They are now spending $40,000,000 a year to further increase the safety of rail travel. They have found that it pays. After all, what a passenger wants above even speed and luxury is to be delivered at his destination physically intact. The railroads have been able to guarantee that, with remarkable success, without sacrificing either speed or comfort.

The fact is that American railroads to-day are not only safer to travel on than they were five years ago. They are safer than the railroads in any European country. They still have accidents; but, relatively speaking, American genius has made a railway train about the safest place in the United States.

RADIO DEVELOPMENT.

Familiar enough in these days when new discoveries and inventions are the commonplace of life is the dislocation of employment that is their natural consequence. Examples of the hardships thus created can be found in all industrial countries, among the more recent being the small revolution brought by the popularity of the radio and the inevitable reduction in the number of good, bad and indifferent performers on the piano and other musical instruments. A recent examination of the situation in Germany, once regarded as the most musical of nations, showed that of the three hundred old-established piano factories, nearly all were running half-time only, with thousands of skilled workmen either laid off or occupied in the manufacture of radio mechanism. The German piano industry had already suffered severely from the effect of the British legislation for the protection of home industries, the McKenna duties having cut the importation of German pianos from 22,000 annually to a beggarly array of 1,500 last year. Similar effects have followed tariff adjustments in other countries, and the climax came when radio began to make large inroads in the sales within Germany itself.

Enquiries conducted by the United States department of Commerce have disclosed an amount of radio development that can only be described as astounding. The survey, international in its scope, warranted the estimate that at the opening of the current year not less than 20,000,000 radio sets were actually in operation throughout the world, about one-half of that number being credited to the United States. Great Britain and Germany, next in order at a long interval, were approximately equal with in round figures 2,600,000 sets apiece. France having about half that number. Canada's share was placed in the neighborhood of 400,000, comparing in that respect with Japan, 550,000; Argentine, 530,000; Sweden, 371,000; Austria and Czechoslovakia, 325,000, and 250,000 for Italy. Nearly all countries, too, have found it imperative to regulate broadcasting. Britain and most European countries having made it a Government monopoly. Outside the United States, practically every country levies a charge on radio sets—Canada charge $2, France five cents, Salvador $18, Great Britain $2.46, Germany $5.70, Australia $5.85, and Japan $9. The United States last year exported $12,000,000 worth of apparatus, Canada taking 44 per cent. The survey shows that only a fringe of the people living within range of the broadcasting stations has been reached, and the saturation point of the industry is still remote.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It is a long parliamentary session that does not contain a debate on immigration.

Remember, motor traffic on the highways to-morrow will reach record proportions. Drive sanely and carefully.

Election predictions in Great Britain are nearly as numerous as the candidates.

Old Home Week is just around the corner. From now on the work of the various committees will steadily increase and the co-operation of the public generally will be more and more necessary.

"All the plumbers—except those that forget their tools—will now be back at work," says the Globe. But don't they all forget their tools?

The United States Prohibition Commissioner denies that American border officials are lax in suppressing rum runners. But at least he'll have to admit that they're not very lucky.

A campaign to increase the present $100 limit now allowed on tariff-free purchases made by United States tourists abroad is being carried on over the border. We're for that.

A Thought

BEAR UP!

Bear up when waves of trouble roll,
And life's ship calls for strong control;
Hold fast the helm on duty's course,
And use faith's ultimate resource;
For to the strong in nerve and heart
Is granted heaven's unfailing chart.

Bear up when roads are rough and steep,
Bear up when roads are rough and steep,
When faltering footsteps crave a rest,
And clouds hang gloomy in the west,
For only those who face the night
Can hope for dawning's cheerful light.

Bear up when loved ones pass away,
And winds are cold and skies are grey;
When words of comfort do but seem
The babble of a restless dream—
For 'tis on those who strongly bear
That comfort steals all unaware.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

THE SEED PACKAGE

I wish the world were half as fair
As seedmen seem to think,
Because our pansies don't compare
With those in purple ink
Upon the package—and the peas,
Why those of theirs don't look like these,
And I am even some in doubt
Just how our turnips will turn out.

I wish the world were half as green
As is the world upon
The package, this delightful scene
That illustrates a lawn.
I sowed the seed the way it said,
And yet the dandelions spread.
The printed gress is fine and tall;
Ours doen's look that way at all.

I wish the world were half as gay
As packages of seeds
I wish that cosmos grew that way,
But all that grows is weeds.
But, come to think about it though,
I'm not much different, I know.
My goodness gracious, I'd be glad
If I looked like a clothing ad!

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

CHAPTER XLVIII

There followed confusion and panic and a nightmare of unreality.

"I just screamed, and screamed, oh, God, how I screamed!" was Jessica's hysterical explanation afterward.

"And I shut my eyes tight, so tight that I couldn't see any more. But Ana—oh, God, oh, God—Ana!"

Yes, that was it—Ana!

The only reliable witness, a weather-beaten fisherman to whom life and death were of no great matter, told how that Ana uttered no cry, but that she just flung herself after the boy, and snatched at him with both hands before a mighty wave beat them both suffocatingly down on to the beach, and then snatched them back exultantly to its bosom, with giant arms.

And then he quietly omitted to say that he risked his own life time after time in a desperate effort to save them, but he drew a hard breath before he added stoically:

"We only got the boy."

And it was barely an hour from the time they left the little cottage up on the hill, to the moment when Jessica, surrounded by a sympathetic crowd who bore the General in their midst, was back again at its door.

She had stopped screaming, but her face was gray and old, and she walked like a woman in a dream.

"Save her, for God's sake! Isn't one of you man enough to save her?"

She had heard someone raving in those frantic words a few moments ago, not realizing that she listened to her own tortured voice.

They had tried, they told her again and again they had tried but that it was hopeless—what was the good of throwing good lives after one that had already been taken?

"The little boy is safe," so they tried to comfort her in kindly ignorance. "Hot blankets and a warm bed, and he will be none the worse."

"Oh, God, oh, God!" was all that Jessica could moan in reply. She felt that she moved in a nightmare, that nothing was real, nothing, until as she dragged herself up the tiny pathway to the cottage door she realized it was open, and that a man stood there looking at her with an amazement in his eyes that changed suddenly to sharp anxiety.

He took a hurried stride forward.

"What is it? Has anything happened? Who are you? I don't know that I——"

Jessica raised her tormented eyes to his face, the eyes that has just seen Ana drown.

She tried to say in return, "Who are you?" but though no sound passed her lips, the man must have guessed the question she wished to ask, for he answered it at once, "I am Anthony Hambledon."

They told him for his comfort that Ana had given her life to save the life of his son.

They told him for his comfort that only her wonderful unfaltering courage and the goodness of God had made the boy's rescue possible. Anthony turned and looked into the face of the man who tried so clumsily to comfort him. "The goodness of God," he said harshly.

"There is no God in this hellish world."

Then he turned on his heel and walked out of the little house, and down the hill to the sea, bareheaded as he was. The wind had dropped a little, but mountainous waves still beat on the shingle and thundered against the battered parade wall. Knots of curious sightseers lingered in the gathering grayness, whispering together and watching the waves for the moment when they would weary of their sport and fling back the plaything they had snatched unto themselves.

People nudged one another and whispered as Hambledon strode past them.

"That's the boy's father. Only came home from abroad to-day—terrible thing if the boy had been drowned."

"And the girl?" someone else asked. "Who was the girl?" and the answer came almost casually, "Oh, nobody much—just a governess, I think. She used to look after the little boy."

Nobody much! but yet the very life and soul of the man who stood staring out over the tossing waves, a great cry going up from his broken heart—"Ana! Ana! Ana!"

And the answer seemed to be blown back to him mockingly—"Too late, too late! one little hour too late—life steps in—life steps in."

And he remembered his dream and how he had tried to explain it to Ana that last time they met.

"And the sea was there, great mountainous waves—and you were on the shore—close to the sea—and I knew if I could just get you into my arms it would be all right, and then——"

But he would never hold her in his arms again, never look into her eyes.

"And then—what?" Ana had asked. But he had known no more. He had not been able to answer.

But now he knew. His dreams were finished. He was awake, and looking into the dead eyes of ugly life.

He read the answer in the tossing sea, and in the cloud-blackened sky, and in the bitter voice of the wind, and in his own stark desolation—

"Life Steps In. Life Steps In."

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

Sunday, May 26, 1929.

(Copyright McClure Newspaper Syn.)

Sinister stars rule this day, according to astrology, which sees in the horoscope certain threatening signs.

Under this sway the mind may be easily turned into wrong channels causing indulgence in self pity and general faultfinding.

It may be difficult for the clergy to awaken religious aspiration by even the most stirring sermons, since egotism and self-sufficiency are prevalent while this configuration rules.

It is not a lucky day for those who would plan for the future since pessimism rather than confidence may color thought.

Under this direction of the stars those who read current history in the newspapers are likely to find fault with the government and with the existing order of things.

A positive attitude of mind that shuts out all that is in any way discouraging should be cultivated while this configuration prevails.

Severe storms may be expected and for this reason farmers should be on guard to protect their crops.

Weather conditions all through the year are likely to continue unusual, it is forecast, and in certain sections of the country absolute change of climate may seem possible.

Under this planetary government the judgment may be most unreliable and the tendency toward foolish decisions strong.

Stubbornness and refusal to listen to reason may be prevalent to-day and in the family domestic difficulties are likely to multiply.

It is not wise to push any important business matter while this rule prevails and for this reason the sway favors putting one's affairs in order for a busy summer.

Much travel is forecast and warning is given that the temptation to spend too much money will be difficult to resist.

This should be an auspicious day for gardening or getting close to nature in long walks.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS— by John Hix

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY KINDNESS IS A STRONGER MOTIVE THAN SEVERITY.

According to Aesop a dispute once arose between the North Wind and the Sun as to which was the stronger of the two. Seeing a traveler on his way they agreed to try which could the sooner get his cloak off him.

The North Wind began, and sent a furious blast, which, at the outset, nearly tore the cloak from its fastenings; but the traveler, seizing the garment with a firm grip, held it around his body so tightly that Boreas spent his remaining force in vain.

The Sun, dispelling the clouds that had gathered, darted his most sultry beams on the traveler's head. Growing faint with the heat, the man flung off his cloak and ran for protection to the nearest shade.

"Kindness effects more than severity."

We yield to kindness more quickly than to cruelty because we retaliate in kind. We like to "give to friend and foe more than we receive." One man's attitude is reflected in the attitude of the other. If a man calls you a liar he is likely to be knocked down. If he shows a friendly spirit he is more likely to gain your good will.

Kindness elicits co-operation: severity arouses antagonism. Once you antagonize a man he will go to any length in his opposition. This attitude is reflected in the common statement, "Millions for war; not a cent for tribute." It is the "principle of the thing" that gets you. In the language of motivation it simply means that when you are hit you hit back even though you are likely to get licked.

This is why a man will go to court and spend a thousand dollars rather than pay a small bill which he thinks is exorbitant.

Trying to influence another person by severe methods is like taking a castle by storm against a unified and determined enemy; kindness is like taking the same castle by means of strategy and co-operation on the part of the beseiged.

We yield to kindness rather than to severity because we are human beings and the more highly developed our heads and our emotions the more strongly are we so motivated. The lower forms of life may be handled more effectively by severe methods of disciplining. And even with them kindness is often more effective. There are animal trainers who never resort to harsh measures.

Kindness is a stronger motive than severity because it is impulsion rather than compulsion. It is a lot easier to marry someone w o wants to marry you than it is to marry a person who wants to marry someone else.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND JACKIE'S SURPRISE.

(Copyright, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

One day when Uncle Wiggily was hopping along a path in the woods which he had not been on in a long time, he saw lying under a bush a fine ham bone.

"Some tramp dog must have dropped this bone here," said Uncle Wiggily to himself. "I'll sit down and rest myself a bit and if the poor old tramp dog comes back looking for his bone I'll show him where he dropped it."

For Uncle Wiggily, being a rabbit, didn't gnaw bones as did puppy dogs, like Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow. Mr. Longears liked to eat cabbages, turnips, lettuce and carrots.

But after waiting for half an hour beside the woodland path, during which time no tramp dog came along, Uncle Wiggily said:

"Perhaps this bone doesn't belong to anybody. Some one dropped it who didn't want it, so I may have it, and I'll take it along with me for good luck. I'll give it to the first puppy dog I meet."

The bone was round, and, having come out of a slice of ham, had in it a round hole like a ring. Uncle Wiggily found a stick, thrust it through the hole in the bone and carried it along this way over his shoulder, like a pedler's pack.

Pretty soon Uncle Wiggily met Jackie Bow Wow on his way to school.

"Hello, Uncle Wiggily!" barked Jackie.

"Hello!" answered the rabbit gentleman. "Here's something for you, Jackie!" and he showed the puppy dog the ham bone on the stick.

"Oh, what a jolly surprise!" barked Jackie. "I was just wondering what I could eat at recess and now I know. Its going to be this dandy bone! Thanks, Uncle Wiggily!"

"That's all right," answered the rabbit gentleman. He gave Jackie the ham bone and said: "If I were you I wouldn't take it in school with me. You might accidentally take it out in class and before you knew it you might begin to gnaw it and the Lady Mouse Teacher wouldn't like that."

"True enough, she wouldn't," agreed Jackie. "Well, I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll bury this bone just outside the school yard and when it's recess time I'll dig it up and I'll let my brother Peetie help gnaw it. He'll be surprised, too."

"It's very kind of you, Jackie, to share your bone with your little brother," said Uncle Wiggily. "And I think it will be a good thing to bury it while you are in school. Then no one will take it."

So Uncle Wiggily hopped along with Jackie until they were near the Hollow Stump School, where the Lady Mouse Teacher taught the animal children how to study. The ground was soft just outside the school yard gate and there Jackie buried his ham bone.

"Come back at recess time, Uncle Wiggily," invited Jackie politely, "and I'll let you watch me dig up my surprise bone."

"That's very kind of you!" laughed Mr. Longears. "But I think I shall be too busy looking for adventures to come back and watch you dig up this bone."

However, as it happened, Uncle Wiggily couldn't find an adventure that day. So, after searching around in the woods for a long time, all of a sudden Uncle Wiggily head a bell ring and he said:

"That's the school recess bell. I might as well hop back and watch Jackie dig up his bone and surprise Peetie with it."

Even before he reached the school Uncle Wiggily could tell by the crowd around the gate that something had happened.

"I hope none of the Bad haps Chave tried to get in to pinch the tail of the Lady Mouse Teacher," said the rabbit to himself.

But as he hopped nearer he saw the crowd was near the gate. Standing in a circle were many animals, boys and girls and inside the circle was Jackie Bow Wow, digging with his paws as hard as he could.

"What's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Lots is the matter!" barked Jackie. "You saw where I buried that nice ham bone, with a hole in, that you gave me. Well, I came out to dig it up, but it isn't here. Some one must have taken it!"

"And a sad surprise it is, too!" barked Peetie, who had counted on having some nibbles off his brother's bone.

"I've dug and I've dug, but I can't find my bone!" whined Jackie. And then Uncle Wiggily looked at Jackie and said:

"There's your bone!"

"Where?" cried the puppy.

"On your tail!" answered the rabbit. And, surely enough, on Jackie's tail, as if it was a ring, was the bone with a hole in it!

"Oh, what a jolly surprise!" barked Jackie, and, wagging his tail, the bone fell off and he and Peetie gnawed it. Jackie had dug so hard in the dirt to find his bone that he scratched it up and it bounced over his tail, stuck on and he never knew it. But now everything was all right.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

Officials of the Amity Copper inform the Financial News Bureau that developments on the company's property in Boston Creek. They know nothing of the talked of smelter for the district but beleieve that this is too good to be true. The Patterson Copper, adjoining, is also understood to be securing good results.

Apparently the shareholders of the Red Lake Centre Mines were satisfied at the adjourned annual meeting Monday. Thi meeting was held over from two weeks ago to allow officials to be present. At the first annual meeting the stockholders were dissatisfied with the manner in which the company's affairs were handled and expressed their opinion in no uncertain terms. The Press was not allowed in to Monday's meeting but were later informed that an advisory committee had been appointed and affairs smoothed out.

With ore reserves suffcient for nearly two years' miling operations already in sight, construction has begun on the first unit for the mill for the Reno Gold Mines property at Sheep Creek, B.C. The building will be ready for installation of machinery upon its arrival at the camp early in June and it is expected that actual production will begin in July. The first unit will have a capacity of some 40 tons. The Reno is stated to be amply financed for its present program, some $250,000 having been made available by English interests that became associated with it last year.

The Frood (International) and Frood Extension ((Mond) shafts are now said to be connected at the 2,800 footlevel. The connecting drives had to be driven 2,500 feet to effect the junction, and the accuracy with which the work was carried out is demonstrated by the report that the two drives met head on, operations being completed this week.

The street hears that Granada may re-organize in the near future, especially in view of the fact that good results are being secured in work on the 625 foot level. The company has 500,000 shares in its treasury and it is suggested that to avoid the federal tax as far as possible that the shares be made of $10 par value.

George C. MacKenzie, secretary of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, has been appointed managing director of the Thompson-Cadillac while George C. Campbell, late of the Treadwell Yukon and Creighton Mines, succeeds Murray Kennedy as mine manager. The head office of the company will be moved to Montreal.

Chicago Wheat Prices Drop To Lower Levels

CHICAGO, Ills, May 25.—(Canadian Press).—All deliveries of wheat here dropped early to-day to a new low price record for the season. Rains in Canada and Argentina brought about increased selling and more than counterballanced the effect of unexpected steadiness shown by wheat at Liverpool. Opening ¼ to ⅞ lower, Chicago wheat values later recovered somewhat. Corn and oats tended also to decline, with corn starting unchanged to ⅝ off and later sagging all round. Provisions were firm.

DECLINE OF WEDNESDAY ONE OF MOST DRASTIC ON SINGLE DAY IN THE PAST FOUR YEARS

Very Few Issues Overlooked As Selling Pressure Carries Values Down.

REVIEW OF WEEK.

Volume of Trading Falls Off On Days When Prices Were Declining.

By A. D. O'Halloran.
(Special to Examiner, Copyright).

TORONTO, May 25. — It was a short week but a hectic one on the Canadian exchanges. Traders got their second dose of reactionary market and, if the first reaction in March did not teach them that security prices go down as well as up, they know it for a fact now. The decline of Wednesday was one of the most drastic on a single day in the past three or four years and comparable only to one or two days in March when the lists got contrary and undid most of the good work the lists had accomplished in the past six months. Selling pressure carried prices down and overlooked very few issues, so it was to be expected some sort of rally would follow and this took place on Thursday with the period closing somewhat above the extreme lows made on the preceding day.

The usual calls for additional margins went out in the interval. This was more true of Wall Street than of committments in the Canadian markets although those who were participating in both markets were caught between two currents, both swinging in the same direction but running individual courses on the respective exchanges. Dual trading left them open to protect two accounts and placed them in an uncomfortable position in having to provide additional funds for the weakened condition of their accounts occasioned by the drop in the market.

Light Trading.

The Canadian markets did not break so badly and it is just as well under present conditions. Heavy marginal requirements demanded by the brokers right along did more than anything else in preventing a wide open break. Forced selling took place on a small scale only and the volume fell off on the days when prices were declining. In fact Tuesday and Wednesday were the lightest trading days of the week on the Toronto Stock Exchange with total sales on Thursday, when the list improved about the same as Monday.

This week's reaction followed much the same course as in the preceding decline of March last. It will be recalled March opened with prices sinking gradually and the decline gaining momentum about the 22nd day of the month. May also opened with the list sagging and it was also the 22nd day of this month the bears got in their best work and selling pressure hit the list hardest causing prices to melt away quickly.

Following the March reaction the list went to work and made up a large proportion of the losses but the reaction this week carried the level back to almost the low point for the year. The markets went on holidays on Thursday, shortening the trading period by two days but there was a better feeling abroad on end and although nothing to boast about and traders are far from feeling secure.

Reactions Necessary

Experts will tell you reactions are necessary from time to time to improve the technical position of the markets and to keep them from going stale but there is no doubt traders would just as soon see the depression after they have lightened their accounts and put them in good shape to withstand the onslaught This procedure was adopted pretty well beforehand as the danger signals had been flying for some time and the warning heeded. Accounts were found to be well margined for Canadian securities and the forced liquidation that usually plays a prominent part in a declining market was noticeably absent. Selling took place in securities that were weakly held and other traders considered discretion the better part of valor and threw overboard what they had on hand to save profits, but the drop in values was not sufficient to impair most of the marginal accounts in the Dominion.

Brockers have demanded margins of from 30 to 60 per cent. and a number of houses have refused to carry certain securities other than a cash basis. The weak stocks have been weeded out of the collateral lists entirely and the large proportion of cash buying taking place daily on the Canadian markets did not leave the lists in a very vulnerable position.

In Hands of Public

Short selling, so far as industrial securities are concerned is a minus quantity and the bear attacks that would otherwise help to accelerate a decline are lacking. The Canadian markets to-day are in the hands of the public who have gained their education on the long side only and will have nothing to do with selling securities which they do not own in the hope of buying them back cheaper at a later date. For the long side of the market they are very much inclined to look to Wall tSreet for guidance. This is one of the bad features of the present situation. Wall Street is swayed by money conditions and movements there are based more on credit developments than on the merit of individual stocks.

Enough for what has already taken place. What of the future? It would be an unwise prophet who would try to predict the markets will probebly experience a period of inactivity and dullness for the next few months.

The summer months when the markets have a habit of turning dull are upon us and there is a feeling in financial quarters it would be well to let the market take its natural course. When the holiday season arrives traders turn to thoughts of vacation and do not want to have committments in a market such as we are experiencing to-day.

UNEASINESS FELT ON CURB

Prospect of Call Money Squeeze Provides Little Incentitve For Upward Movement.

LIST IRREGULAR.

(By Stanley W. Prenosil, Associated Press Financial Editor.)

NEW YORK, May 25. — Frequent shifts of speculative sentiment in to-day's stock market reflected the widespread uneasiness among professional traders over the credit situation. Prices opened irregular, turned abruptly downward before the end of the first hour and then made irregular recovery.

With the threat of higher federal reserve rediscount rates hanging over the market, and a "call money squeeze" in prospect for next week, there was little incentive for any general revival of bullish activity. On the other hand the drastic reaction in prices earlier in the week and the development of a heavy short interest also tended to discourage any major "bear" operations. The reparations crisis is a source of considerable discouragement to operators who have been hoping for higher prices.

Selling pressure to-day was most acute in the copper and motor shares. New low records for the year were established by General Motors, Nash, Hupp, Greene Cananae Copper, Cenro de Pasco and Granby. Packard Motors, which was widely tipped at the opening by several of the large commission houses, rallied nearly 3 points.

In the last year the United States tanned 70 per cent of all the goat and kid leather produced in the world.

LOCAL ENTRANT WINS AT TORONTO

Don Wood Winner of Class B Race in "Sea Flee" Regatta at Toronto.

TORONTO, May 25.—Lake Ontario gave the outboard racing men a rough reception when they inagurated the 1929 racing season down at the National Yacht Club course yesterday at noon. A stiff northwester churned up quite a stiff sea just outside the sea wall, where the races were held, and caused the postponement of the second race of the day, a Class C event, for the J. W. Maybees trophies. One event was pulled off before the lake became too rough, a five-mile race for Class B. boats for a set of medals offered by Charlie Turnbull of the N.Y.C.

There were more than 30 boats out for yesterdays races, the largest fleet ever assembled in Canada for a sea flea regatta, and 10 of them went to the post in the Class B. event.

In the Class B. race an outsider, Don Wood of Peterborough, won in the rough going. Doug. Farrow, in Miss Slo-Pok, the lead "pony" of the races, paraded the ten down to the starting Mark. Commodore Morrall of the N.Y.C. dropped the starting flag. Harry "Red" Foster, the well-known Beaches football player, and Stobie, Forlong hockey player, took his new boat, Gallopin' Ghost II., to the front as the flag fell, closely followed by Cecil Winter in Jumpin' Jimmy, with Don Wood, the ultimate winner, in Century Cyclone, and John Rogers in Miss Step-In II, right on top of the leaders. Foster held the lead around the first turn off the Exhibition Grounds, but, coming back to the starting mark, he drove his boat too hard and she split her planks and filled, and Foster landed in the lake. With Foster out of it Wood drove his boat into the lead and stayed right there. Rogers, who was in the second hole after Foster's mishap, clung to that place, and was beaten a hundred yards by Wood. Winter's boat also sprang a leak from the pounding, but he hung out long enough to finish before he went completely under.

SIGNS AND PORTENTS IN AIR, SAYS WHEAT MARKET OBSERVER

Analysis of Present Trading Conditions Reveals Issue Still Be-clouded.

POOLS BLAMED.

(By Thomas W. Banton, Special to The Examiner, Copyright.)

TORONTO, May 25.—There are signs and portents in the air. The action of the grain markets this week indicate that much anyway. But in what particular direction the signs point to, is as yet a little uncertain. It is like a man travelling along a road at night and not quite sure in which direction he is going. He reaches a cross road, and dimly perceives a sign post, but what it's directions to a bewildered traveller may be, he must be at some pains to find out. And maybe not until daylight breaks and the light of day dawns will he know for sure whether he has been travelling east, west, north or south.

The grain dealer and market speculator is just now in much the same predicament as our bewildered traveller. He has followed certain pointers and more or less explicit directions given to him by those who are supposed to be familiar with the ways and byways of this much travelled road, until he reaches a point where he suddenly discovers he has lost the trail.

Coming to the point of our illustration of the lonesome and benighted traveller, the follower of the market trails has for the past month or six weeks been travelling along a road bestrewed with signs, and all pointing to huge world supplies of wheat, in a world already more than well supplied for all its immediate requirements.

Rocks and boulders in the form of world record "carry overs" begin to obstruct his vision, until truly he is more puzzled and bewildered in a market of tumbling and crashing prices than even our benighted traveller.

With the opening of the markets this week, it soon became evident that the guide books were pointing in an entirely different direction to that which "the trade" had of late been directed to follow.

It was no longer along the road of over supplies; record "carry overs," and "farm relief" measures. That way destruction lies. Particularly if you have been "long" of wheat, and, deceived by the reiterated story of "Too much wheat, which nobody wants," have decided to "take your losses" and have "dumped" all your holdings at the bottom of the market.

That road has been almost abandoned. It's way was tortuous, and led to despair.

Perhaps the most effective blow in the smashing of the over supplies wheat bogey, was dealt it by the strong arm of E. B. Ramsay, manager of the Central Selling Agency of the Canadian Wheat Pool. Mr. Ramsay's official statement was made ostensibly in reply to the widely quoted remarks of representatives of certain "interests" well known to be definitely opposed to the operations of the Pool as being what they regard as an interference with the logical operation of an open market.

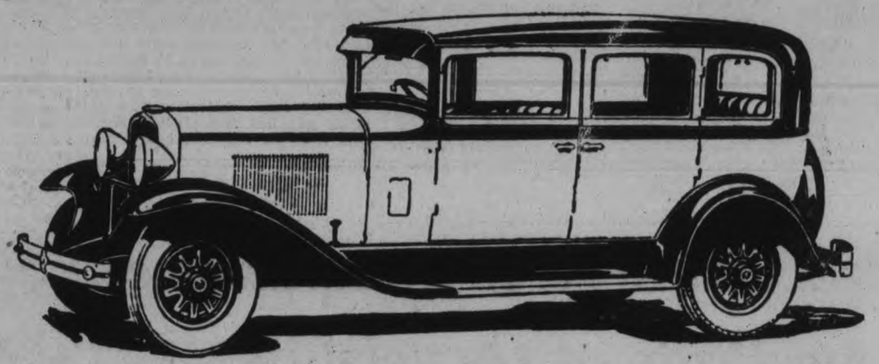
Have You Seen The VIKING



A NINETY-DEGREE V-TYPE EIGHT AT MEDIUM PRICE

ADVANCED ENGINE DESIGN

These desirable and exclusive new characteristics of performance are provided by the 90-degree V-type principle of eight-cylinder engine design, brought to a new high stage of development by the many individual advancements combined in the new Viking engine.

PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS

NEVER has there been a more significant motor-car event than the introduction of the New Viking. For Viking is an entirely new car—a product of General Motors . . and bringing to the medium-priced field the definite advantages of ninety-degree, V-type, eight-cylinder design.

The Viking engine delivers 81 horsepower with exceptional smoothness, amazingly agile pick-up, top-speed more than ample for any emergency and a mighty reserve of power for steep hills, long grades and hard pulling.

And the great Viking ninety-degree, V-type engine is mounted on a great chassis . . a chassis that is truly noteworthy for its strength and balance. The wheelbase is 125 inches. It is equipped with four-wheel brakes of the new internal-expanding type. Four Lovejoy hydraulic Shock Absorbers, synchronized with the spring action, assure restful riding comfort.

The bodies are the smartest, latest style-creations of Fisher Artist-engineers. In designing the Viking they sought distinction along the most difficult path . . the achievement of beauty and grace through simplicity. The result justifies their diligence, for the Viking takes its place among the smartest of cars, regardless of price.

Because it provides, at medium price, qualities of advanced design, beauty, luxury, performance and stamina heretofore found only in costly cars, the Viking is a value leader. If you haven't yet seen it for yourself, you have missed one of the year's most sensational automobile achievements.

Come in and compare it critically with any other car you've ever seen! V-229

CAMPBELLFORD, May 25 — (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Two people in Campbellford were lucky in the Legion draw held last week in Peterborough. Fred. Linton held ticket number 680 and won the cuckoo clock, which was the first prize. Mrs. M. H. Sergeant won the first prize for being the member's wife who sold the largest number of tickets. The draw was in connection with the Legion carnival held in the Peterborough Legion Hall last week.

Yesterday afternoon the steam-roller started work on the new soft-ball diamond on the High School grounds, and last night the players had their first practise tilt. To-day, the loam will be drawn and spread and as soon as possible rolled for the opening game scheduled for June 3rd.

The annual cadet inspection for the High School corps is scheduled to be held Monday at two o'clock in the afternoon. The date for the Public School inspection has not yet been set.

MISS EMILY GUEST IS SPEAKER AT JOINT INSTITUTE MEETING

Information Regarding Institute Obligations and Activities Heard By Millbrook Gathering.

GOOD PROGRAM.

Society Has Been Built Up in Ontario As Educational Institution.

MILLBROOK, May 25.—(Examiner Correspondence).— The public meeting held in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening, under the joint auspices of the Millbrook and Cavan branches of the Women's Institute, at which Miss Emily Guest, of Toronto, was the Departmental speaker, was well attended, and information regarding Institute obligations and activities was considerably increased by the time the hour of closing had arrived.

The chair was taken by Mrs. T. G. Harkness, president of the local branch, associated with her on the platform were Miss Guest, Mrs. R. M. Howden, and Miss Aileen Hunter, president and secretary respectively of the Cavan branch; Mrs. C. C. Garside, vice-president, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, secretary, and Mrs. T. H. Aiken, treasurer, of the Millbrook organization.

The brief program, which preceded the address of the evening, included piano duets by Mrs. (Canon) Allen and Miss M. L. Collins; and by Bryer Edmunds and Mary Burnham; violin duets by Kenneth Skitch and Ernest Powell, with Annie McMahon at the piano; and a recitation by little Bernice Smith, "Just as His Mother Used to Do."

The annual report of the Cavan Institute was presented by the secretary, Miss Hunter ,and listed 11 meetings held, 44 members enrolled, the average attendance being 28, with 98 present at the most largely attended gathering of the year; papers, demonstrations, report of delegate to the annual convention, flowers and fruit for sick and shut-in members and other residents, a banquet for the Kiwanis Club of Peterborough, care of needy, a loan library inaugurated, prizes for the school fair, assistance in connection with the girl's judging competition, a bazaar, supper, and play, were among the many undertakings mentioned winning words of warm approval from the departmental speaker who was present. A total of $355.64 was raised, with $131.36 now on hand.

Millbrook Report Read

Mrs. W. H. Armstrong read the report of the Millbrook Branch for the past year showing 97 members on the roll, 12 regular meetings held, with 26 as the average attendance, the plan of making three members responsible for the program each month having worked exceptionally well.

Flowers were provided for the Cenotaph and a wreath for Armistice Day; sick and shut-in members had been remembered with fruit and flowers; needy families in the community had been helped with wood milk, etc.; a dresser had been purchased for the Town Hall; help had been given with the Short Course last winter, and with the girls' judging competition; a 'Grandmothers' Day had featured the annual picnic, and the Saint Patrick's Day social evening was especially successful, as was also the banquet for the Junior Farmer's organization; help had been given in forming a Junior Institute, and Christmas cheer baskets were distributed last December; the amount in the bank at present is $430.42.

Miss Guest was greeted with applause as she rose, in response to the president's introduction, her address dealing chiefly with "Helping Boys and Girls in Choosing a Life Work" though with this she combined some instructive material on Institute efficiency.

Educational Institutions

"Ontario," she stated, "pioneered the setting up of a state department of homemaking with a cabinet minister at its head, and a certain standard to be reached or the government grant will be forfeited. "The Women's Institute is an educational institution and not a money making organization. The government will not consider any branch in good standing unless a satisfactory number of the homemakers, from 16 years and upward, are enrolled, and the monthly programs are sufficiently educative and broad in scope, making it clear that the whole community is being served."

The necessity of aying the annual feet promptly was emphasized, else names are omitted from the government mailing list, and certain privileges, such as receiving the fine literature and annual reports, will be withdrawn. "Years ago the fee was set at twenty-five cents so no one will feel compelled to stay away from the homemakers' centre because of money demands. Repeated efforts to raise the fee have invariably met with failure."

The Institute's responsibility to co-operate with the schools of the community was strongly urged, 'particularly by sending healthy, properly-clothed, well-fed boys and girls regularly and punctually, thus helping the teacher as well as the pupils.' Unique prizes were suggested such as one for the student of each sex who was present the most days in the year, on time, with the cleanest face, hands, neck, and teeth, the neatest clothes, and shoes, and the best-combed hair. This will abolish 'nine o'clock sickness', give the teacher a far better chance, and be a stimulus to the whole community.

"The Institute is non-sectarian, non-partisan, and each branch is self-governing; it is a force which is lifting the whole body of our country to a higher plane of intelligence and health. Its motto is 'For Home and Country' and its work principle 'Co-operation'. Its head is the Minister of Agriculture and its organization reflects the home all through. It searches out and develops local talent, and its programs are both cultural and practical. Founded in 1897 in Ontario, the whole British Empire is copying it, and now the sun never sets on the Women's Institutes, and our province was the mother of them all. You may be astounded to learn that Queen Mary is an Institute president, and Premier Baldwin once said: "Canada's greatest gift to England was the Women's Institute"; so we have a heavy responsibility, and this leads us continually on to t study culminating in greater efficiency."

Considering the question of a life occupation boys and girls may be divided into two classes—the thought type, and the action type. The former work more happily and readily with their minds than their hands, and the latter are the reverse. Professional men, writers, architects, judges, captains of industry, statesmen, inventors, etc., belong to the thought type, and yet those of the action type are more numerously, with perhaps bigger money returns, taking soils, mines, etc, and putting them at the service of humanity.

"Analyse yourself under four headings—temperament, tastes, talents, and health, and when you think of any particular occupation ask these questions; what is the actual work to be done? Do I like that kind of work? What will it bring me in money, living conditions, and what personal satisfaction will I get out of it? Is it a seasonable occupation? When you have looked into these and found out the answers, you will know whether to choose this line for your life work, and add also this question: 'What are the steps in the ladder of advancement?'

In closing the speaker emphasized the qualities which make for success, and especially the fact that no one can choose a life work for another, but only help in the choice and that opportunity for self-expression must be given.

The vote of thanks to Miss Guest who has a more than Dominion-wide reputation as a speaker of outstanding ability, was moved by Mrs. Armstrong and seconded by Miss Aileen Hunter. The local branch served homemade candy before the audience dispersed.

Bigger Built! Lower Priced! Higher Powered!

NOT in many years has a new car stirred up such an ever-growing tide of public enthusiasm as the new Whippet. But you will readily understand such success when you see and drive either the Whippet Four or Six.

With longer bodies, higher radiators and hoods, low graceful lines, one-piece full crown fenders, rich harmonious colors—the new Whippets establish a distinctly new style standard for Fours and light Sixes.

The new Whippet Six is the world's lowest priced Six with the important advantages of seven-bearing crankshaft, full force-feed lubrication, "Finger-tip Control", silent timing chain, extra long wheel-base, invar-strut pistons and oversize balloon tires. No other car offers all these features at such a remarkably low price.

"FINGER-TIP CONTROL"

The greatest advance in driving convenience since the self-starter. A single button, located in the center of the steering wheel, controls all functions of starting the motor, operating the lights and sounding the horn. No wires in steering post.

The new Whippet Four is the only Four combining full force-feed lubrication, "Finger-tip Control", silent timing chain, invar-strut pistons and oversize balloon tires.

A demonstration reveals higher speed, faster pick-up and greater power, together with ease of control and comfortable riding qualities never before associated with such inexpensive cars. And the new Whippets are well qualified to carry on their predecessor's unsurpassed reputation for dependable performance and operating economy.

The Tule Marsh Murder
By Nancy Barr Mavity

Story of a Missing Actress and the Taxing of Wits to Explain Her Fate.

CHAPTER 1

The disappearance of Mrs. Don Ellsworth ("Sheila O'Shay")—it was always printed in this fashion usually with the addendum that Miss O'Shay's son and dance hit, "Burn 'Em Up,", had made half a million dollars in royalties for its composer—had already been front page stuff for three days.

To be sure, on the third day, as on the first, there was no further information than the stark fact that the ever spectacular Sheila had spectacularly disappeared. But an essential factor in a big news story is continuity; the city editor's abhorence of a vacuum far exceeds nature's. Therefore, in pursuance of tactics technically known as "nursing the story along", the newsboys were unintelligibly shouting "Huckstry!" to announce that the Ellsworth mystery still deserved the name.

One of them, at the moment, was roaming the street under Dr. Cavanaugh's window, hoarsely reiterating, "All about the Ellsworth mystery! Latest news of the missing actress! Her-ald! Her-ald!"

Dr. Cavanaugh, reclining on the chaise-longue with a smoking stand nicely adjusted at his elbow and the Journal of Abnormal Psychology propped with its lower edge resting on the curve of his rotund middle, glanced fleetingly from the page before him to the window. He even let the Journal flatten itself out on his waistcoated arc for a moment, while he wondered at a human nature which rushes out to buy a paper, in order to find out that there are no further incidents to relate about people in whom the buyers have no personal interest whatever.

As he reached to pick up the magazine, the telephone on the flat-topped mahogany desk across the room set up a series of intermittent summonses, insistent as an alarm clock.

"M-m. I thought so. About time," Dr. Cavanaugh, grunted, heaving his large bulk from the chaise-longue. Before picking up the receiver, however, he drew a nickel out of his trousers pocket and laid it on the smoking stand. It was a habit of Dr. Cavanaugh's to bet with himself on his own judgment. When he lost, the coin was deposited in a small elephant-shaped box on the desk—but the coins in the box were few.

"Dr. Cavanaugh speaking."

"Dr. Cavanaugh, this is Don Ellsworth. I wondered—may I come over and talk to you?" The voice at the other end of the wire was embarrassed and yet urgent, speaking rapidly but with hesitations—the voice of a man who has held an impulse in check, only to act upon it suddenly in the end.

Dr. Cavanaugh reached out for the nickel and restored it to his trousers pocket. Then he leafed rapidly through the pages of the memorandum calendar that stood close to the telephone on the desk.

"Certainly. I'm rather full up for the balance of the week. Say Friday—at four?".

Dr. Cavanaugh viewed the mouthpiece of the telephone with a faint smile as he made this test of Ellsworth's patience. From what he knew of Don Ellsworth, Friday at four would not suit him at all. But he did not permit a trace of that smile to color his tone.

"But—I simply can't wait till Friday." The voice was more sure of itself now. If the speaker had reached his decision to call Dr. Cavanaugh against inner opposition, his impulse when balked from without, had gained singleness and strength. "It's urgent. Haven't you read the papers?"

"Only casually."

"It's about Sheila. I tell you, doctor, I'm almost wild. I'm at the end of my rope. Couldn't you let me come over now—tonight?"

Dr. Cavanaugh glanced mournfully around the room, its outlines faintly blurred in the gray haze of tobacco smoke. The students' lamp which he had brought from Germany in his university days and preferred to electricity as a reading light, beamed mellowly down on the comfortably dented pillows of the Chaise-longue, on the sober gray and black covers of the Journal of Abnormal Psychology. He had had a hard day, delving persistently, delicately, indefatigably into the dark recesses of the mind of a patient afflicted with hysterical blindness. A hard and baffling day, with nothing to show for it in the way of results—yet.

"The surgeon of the mind— an operation that takes a year —and the need of as steady a hand as if one were extracting a bullet from the heart muscle," he thought as his gaze briefly circled the room.

His heavy shoulders heaved slightly in an inaudible sigh. But it was like Dr. Cavanaugh that, once he had made his decision, he made no play of regret. He had scant patience with the form of self-aggrandizement which in granting a favor makes the recipient uncomfortable.

"All right, Don. Come along." The calm friendliness of his voice carried no hint of his relinquished evening's rest.

"I hate to impose on you like this. But Sheila—"

"If I hadn't been willing to see you, I'd have said so. I'll expect you in fifteen minutes."

And for fifteen minutes Dr. Cavanaugh was lost to the world, deep in an article on focal infection as a factor in dementia praecox.

Except for its outside entrance and separate door-bell, the room had none of the stigma of a doctor's office. It was furnished as a library, and the books which covered two walls with a mosaic of warm, variegated color by no means excluded fiction. The half-dozen pictures that marched in line above the bare tops of the bookcases were non-committal etchings—only the student versed in this somewhat austere art would have recognized these gray and white criss-crossed lines of ships and harbors and fragmentary streets as extremely valuable (and, an artist would add, beautiful) possessions. The chaise-longue, and the easy chairs were not too imposing to be comfortable. The only professional note on the wide desk with its worn green leather fittings was the unavoidable calendar pad—and even this was fitted with a cover and was usually kept closed.

But, for the matter of that, Dr. Cavanaugh was not an ordinary doctor. For his own purposes the room was as carefully equipped as an operating theater for a surgeon. Besides, although unobtrusively, it expressed his own tastes, and Dr. Cavanaugh had reached a professional eminence which relieved him of the necessity of impressing patients. His treatments were as expensive and as hard to obtain as Freud's—and, he occasionally admitted with a humorous squint in his brown eyes which absolved the remark of conceit, being without Freud's terrific single-mindedness of genius, they were sometimes more successful.

He had now, in the late forties, reached the point where he could afford to take only the cases which interested him. Those cases were as likely as not to be undertaken for no fee at all—to be written up later in one of those terse, stylistic monographs which brought a blaze of light into the dark thickets of bejardoned medical journals. They were also likely to bring him into court as the last resort alienist of a harassed district attorney or a psychopathic millionaire. They had even brought him into the Sunday supplements and the front pages of metropolitan newspapers, where headline writers had been known to refer to him as the "criminal psychologist" and feature writers credited him with an astounding wizardry.

His solution of the Barnes-Hill double murder, three years after the police had given it up, had extended his reputation to the laity, and had made his massive figure, his leonine head with its heavy features and surprisingly gentle brown eyes, fair game for the cartoonist. What the laity could scarcely appreciate—although the chief of police did—was the skill with which he contrived to put the explanation of that tortuous cats' cradle of facts into the hands of the authorities without making them appear to have been fools.

"I am not a chiminologist," he insisted. "The study of human motives has been my professional concern for a good many years. What I've picked up on the side is just a hobby—a hobby that happens to fit in with my professional interests. Clues? Well, we can't afford to ignore clues, though I'm no expert in that line. But the most revealing clues cannot be put under the microscope —they are in the workings of the human mind."

The cries of the newsboy had died away down the street when footsteps sounded on the flagged path leading around the side of the house to the office entrance. Dr. Cavanaugh rose and opened the door before the young man on the stoop had lifted his hand to the bell.

"Come in, Don. Take off your coat and have a cigar."

"This is awfully good of you, doctor. There's—nobody home?"

"Barbara is out for the evening. She will be sorry to have missed you. But if you wanted to talk to me professionally, it's probably just as well."

"Yes—I—"The broken sentences died out in a mumble as Ellsworth turned to lay his coat and hat across the back of a chair.

Don Ellsworth's face, as he turned to the light, was a curious blend of anxiety, embarrassment and the habitual self-assurance of one for whom money was accustomed to make all rough places smooth. The anxiety and the self - assurance remained, but it was impossible for embarrassment to linger in the impersonal, widely tolerant presence of Dr. Cavanaugh.

Don found himself relaxing in the encompassing arms of the chair and facing the older man with the relief of a child in a scrape who has found an understanding elder to whom to pour out his difficulties. A good part of Don's life, smothered in wealth since he first became known as the "millionaire baby", had been spent in getting into and out of scrapes, but they had all been in the tradition of such misdemeanors. The present situation found him without a code to indicate which way to turn.

"You read about Sheila—that she's gone? Vanished a week ago, without a trace. I've got to find out what has become of her!"

"A week ago," Dr. Cavanaugh said meditatively, clipping the end off his cigar and pushing the smoking stand nearer his visitor. "And the newspapers—which, I suppose, means the police—have had it for three days. Isn't your agitation a trifle—retarded?"

CHAPTER 2

"I wish to heaven the police could have been kept out of it altogether!" Don's heavy black brows drew together in a frown. He looked at the moment like a balked and sulky boy.

"Indeed?" The doctor's voice barely rose to make the noncommittal word a question. He learned more from his patients by letting them talk than by quizzing them, and by applying the same technic to the normal, or even the criminal mind, he had listened to some remarkable confessions unattainable by "third degree" methods.

He waited, in a silence which lapped the room.

"I should have come to you in the first place!" Don burst out at last, tapping his cigar nervously against the ash tray. "Only—well, it's all been such a mess. I hoped it could be covered up. I might have known! It's rather a difficult matter to discuss."

"Take your time," Dr. Cavanaugh settled back in his chair with the air of a man who does not even have to be patient.

The effect of this advice was to plunge his visitor into hurried speech.

"It was a week ago—a week ago last night, to be exact. Dinner was as usual. We always kept up a rather good front, you know. And Sheila rather enjoyed playing the young matron. It was a new role for her — her other marriages, she said, had lacked the brownstone atmosphere. She was in high spirits, as usual. Even when we were alone she never admitted by word or manner that — oh, well!" Ellsworth hesitated, and then went on, leaving the sentence unfinished.

"Anyway, I'm sure that she wasn't worried or apprehensive or particularly excited about anything. Sheila isn't the worrying type, and as for apprehension—if she thought there was anything for her to be afraid of, she'd clap her hands together in that way she has and go after it as an added thrill. But there was absolutely no sign of anything in the wind. I remarked when we had had our coffee that I was going around to the club—though as a matter of fact I didn't go, after all. I just took a long drive all by myself into the country, thinking about—things. When I left the house she was on her way upstairs; she said she was going to bed early and get a good night's sleep.

"Sheila left the lights burning in her boudoir. She didn't take anything with her, not even a suitcase. In the morning she just—wasn't there."

"That is the last I've seen of her. She left all the lights burning in her boudoir—they were still burning next morning. She didn't take anything with her, not even a suitcase. In the morning she just—wasn't there. You know Sheila?"

The doctor had listened without interrupting Don's recital by so much as a nod or a gesture.

"Not very well, unfortunately," he answered easily. "We haven't seen much of you since your marriage, you know."

"No," Don said abruptly and stopped.

"It was a mistake to be ashamed of your marriage," Dr. Cavanaugh observed impersonally. "It is always a mistake to be ashamed. It creates unnecessary difficulties. What you do, you do. Either don't do it, or stand by it. You always go on from where you are, you know—not back."

"I did stand by it, didn't I? God knows—" The young man's voice was harsh with emotion.

"Mrs. Ellsworth left, and you want me to find her?" the older man prompted imperturbably.

"I want anything rather than all this blare—the very thing I'd give my eye teeth to avoid."

"You did not report that your wife was missing, then?"

"I certainly didn't. If you knew Sheila—"

"I saw her several times before she left the stage—and of course, as you know, we've met casually once or twice since. But that's an insufficient basis for determining what she would do."

"She's charming, of course— terribly charming." The savage tone took all compliment from the words. "She's—vital. When she wants a thing, she simply gets it. And scandal means absolutely nothing to her. It isn't in her world. She wouldn't so much as laugh at it—she'd ignore it. It's even an asset to her, not a liability. She might go like that simply because she knows there's nothing I could—or would be willing to—do about it. She might do anything!"

"Oh, no," the doctor protested mildly. "The number of things a given person might do are strictly limited—by the person. But in this case there's another person involved. If you didn't report her disappearance, who did?"

"Mrs. Kane." Don's animosity toward Mrs. Kane was patent.

"Mrs. Kane?"

"She was Sheila's 'dresser', I think they call it. A hard-boiled old customer. When Sheila left the stage—when we were married"—his lips twisted wryly on the word — "she brought Mrs. Kane with her as a personal maid. She doesn't fit in with the rest of the staff, of course. Her manners are atrocious. She's always resented me."

"Doubtless your manner to her was not exactly placating."

Don swept the comment aside with an impatient wave of his cigar.

"I don't know why Sheila kept her. She's not the devoted old retainer type at all. I've heard her speak to Sheila in a way that would cost any proper servant her place at once. Impudent and surly. It was she who found the lights burning in Sheila's boudoir the next morning. She had the nerve to come and ask me where 'Miss O'Shay' was. Nothing on earth can keep her from calling Sheila Miss O'Shay. She knows I don't like it." Despite the anxiety which wrinkled his forehead, Don's injured tone was comically that of a spoiled child who is not used to having people do what he doesn't like.

"And then?" The calm voice was like a guiding hand, leading Don back from his disgruntled consideration of the failings of Mrs. Kane.

"Of course, when I found she was gone like that, I was upset. And she kept after me. I—I'm afraid I lost my temper." Don flushed uneasily. All who knew him at all well knew of the futile rages which seized him, often over trivial matters, and seemed so childish in retrospect.

Dr. Cavanaugh glanced at him obliquely under cover of applying a match to a fresh cigar. The child who destroys his toys—and afterwards cries to have them restored to him. The worst thing that could have happened to the "millionaire baby" was that they always had been restored, or replaced.

"Were you angry with Mrs. Ellsworth for leaving—or with Mrs. Kane for breaking the news to you, let us say, untactfully?"

"I don't know—both, I guess," Don floundered, "To tell the truth, I thought she might have done it just to create a stir. She loved to be the center of a sensation—it had been her life for so long. It might have been a sudden impulse, the idea that she could plague me into making a search for her, and then show up, laughing —with some fresh newspaper clippings to add to her collection. I wouldn't even be surprised if this Kane woman knew a good deal more than she is telling to me or to anyone!"

WEDDING BELLS

PEARSON—OVEREND.

The following clipping from The Daily Journal of Flint, Michigan, refers to the wedding of Miss Margaret Overend, daughter of Mrs. Mae Overend, of Flint, and the late Harry Overend of Peterborough:

Miss Margaret Louise Overend, daughter of Mrs. Mae Overend, 122 White street, and James M. Pearson, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Pearson, 615 Commonwealth avenue, were married this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Michael's church. Monsignor Patrick R. Dunigan performed the ceremony.

"The bride was attractively gowned in a white tulle-trimmed taffeta gown, made with fitted waist and full skirt, fashioned longer in the back. A large white hat matched her gown, and she carried a shower bouquet of briarcliff roses and valley lilies. Mrs. R. B. Tatham, jr., who attended her sister, wore an orchid taffeta gown made like that of the bride. Her large hat was of orchid, and her arm bouquet was of Coolidge roses and purple sweet peas.

"Norbert C. Pearson, brother of the groom, acted as best man, and R. B. Tatham, jr., and Lawrence Lacy were the ushers.

"After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served in Parlors A and B of Hotel Durant. Mr. and Mrs. Pearson will live at 325 Dartmouth street. The groom, who is a graduate of Notre Dame, is a member of the law firm of Pearson-Doran.

"Out-of-town guests for the wedding were Robert Rink, of Indianapolis; George Buckley, of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Larry Cunningham, Joseph Overend, and Miss Madeline DeLaney, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. P. Fertaw, Mr. and Mrs. M. McMulen, and Miss Joan Danhoff, of Saginaw; F. J. McFadden, of Peterborough, Ont., and John F. McFadden, of Calgary, Alta."

The motion, however, was carried by an overwhelming majority, only 39 votes being cast for the amendment. The decision was received with acclamation.

Both assemblies were crowded, some spectators having waited hours to gain admission.

Hold Garden Party.

The Duke and Duchess of York yesterday held a brilliant garden party in the grounds of Holyrood House Palace, which unfortunately was cut short by a drizzle of rain. Earlier in the day they visited Redford Barracks and witnessed a display by the Second Battalion of the Cameron Highlanders. The Royal couple were received by General Sir William Peyton, Commander in Scotland.

YOUNG PEOPLE PRESENT PLAY

Entertaining Program Provided By Members of Campbellford United Church Society.

MUSICAL NUMBERS.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 25. — Once again the Young People's Society of St. John's United church, scored a success when they presented a three act comedy in the basement of the church last Tuesday evening. The auditorium was filled to capacity and the attention and applause of the audience stamped the program with approval. The plot of the play has to do with love affairs and the sale of a small farm where oil has been discovered unknown to the owner. The humorous trend of the entire play, masterfully interpreted by the members of the cast, was a large factor in its success.

The other numbers on the program were Humoresque, a violin solo played by Ronald Richardson. His piano accompaniment was played by Miss Enid Richardson. Mrs. Frank De-Carroll sang, Somewhere (Leland), and for an encore, Nuthin, (Carpenter.) A. Hazel played the accompaniment. A piano solo by Miss Roxie Wilson completed the program. She played Heller's Tarrantelle. G. A. Kingston acted as chairman, and the Reverend Ernest Harston of Oshawa spoke briefly.

The cast for the comedy, Aaron Slick, from Punkin Crick, consisted of thirteen members of the society: Aaron Slick, Fred Palliser, Wilbur Merridew, a crooked speculator, Melvin Booth; Clarence Green, a mysterious young man, Walter Bibby; Mrs. Rosy Berry, an Oklahoma widow, Miss Velma Runnells; Gladys Merridew, a sweet young thing, Miss Nettie Forde; The Girl in Red, Miss Ruth Taylor; Little Sis Riggs, a regular tomboy, Miss Audrey Cassan; The guests at the hotel, Miss Verna Sanders, Miss Muriel Kingston, Miss Alma Simpson, Jack Boyd, Harold Booth and Paul Douglas. Mrs. C. W. Turner played the accompaniments for the musical portions of the play.

CLASS OF 40 WILL START AIR COURSES

Main Source of Supply For Air Pilots is From R.M.C. and Universities.

TWO GENERAL CLASSES.

Graduate Pilots Accepted By Force Are Paid $2,650 Per Year.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 25 (C.P.).—Training courses in the Royal Canadian Air Force will shortly be opened for 1929. A class of forty will be given training in flying during the next three months. Later, on courses will be undertaken in the mechanical and other branches of the force.

Commissioned pilots are of two general classes—permanent and non-permanent. Permanent commissioned pilots may expect a career in the Royal Canadian Air Force, whereas non-permanent pilots are appointed for limited periods of service, which may, from time to time, be renewed according to the demand for pilots. The pay of permanent and non-permanent pilots is, for all practical purposes, the same.

The main source of supply of prospective commissioned officers is the science faculties of Canadian universities and the Royal Military College. Undergraduates of these institutions who are British subjects, single, medically fit for full flying duties, under the age of 21 years and over 19 years at the commencement of the course, and who are recommended by university or Royal Military College authorities as likely to make efficient air force officers, are eligible for a course of flying training. This training is carried out during the summer vacation period for three successive years. Candidates selected for this course are appointed as provisional pilot officers in the non-permanent Royal Canadian Air Force. They are required to give an undertaking to complete both their college and air force courses before they can be appointed to the Royal Canadian Air Force, but are under no obligation to join the service after completion of training.

Receive $3.00 Per Day

Throughout their training these officers are paid at the rate of $3 per day for the first year, $3.50 per day for the second year, $4 per day for the third year, plus clothing, quarters, rations, medical attention and transportation to and from their homes.

Application for the above training is made through the university or military college authorities, who have full information on the subject. Priority in selection is given to applicants who belong to the Canadian Officers' Training Corps.

Candidates who successfully complete their R.C.A.F. training are offered permanent commissions in the Royal Canadian Air Force, and are given seniority for the time spent during such training.

Permanent commissions are given to graduates in applied science and to graduates of the Royal Military College. Applicants for such commissions must be British subjects, single, medically fit for full flying duties, under the age of 25 years, and recommended as fit for the duties and responsibilities of an officer. Such appointments are usually made in the Spring or early Summer, Canadian universities and the Royal Military College being advised of the vacancies in sufficient time for members of their graduating classes to avail themselves of the opportunity of joining the Royal Canadian Air Force.

$2,650 Per Year

Successful applicants are granted appointments in the rank of pilot officer. They are sent to an Air Force training station where they are given a thorough course in flying and in ground subjects connected with flying, and will, if able to qualify as pilots, be automatically promoted to the rank of flying officer in one year's time from date of entry. The total pay and allowances for permanent pilot officers of the flying list is $2,650 per year; of a flying officer, $2,900.

Applications for such appointments are made through the officers commanding military districts, or direct to the Department of National Defence, Ottawa.

Non-permanent appointments are made to maintain the air force at operating strength. The only persons eligible for such appointment are pilots of considerable and recent flying experience, who are recommended as likely to make efficient officers. Applicants for these commissions, while not limited by the same educational qualifications as those for permanent commissions, must have had an education equivalent to matriculation. Ex-war pilots are taken on in the rank of flying officers, but pilots selected who have had no previous commissioned service are taken on in the rank of pilot officer.

Applications for non-permanent commissions are made through officers commanding Royal Canadian Air Force stations or direct to the Department of National Defence.

The other class of pilot as previously mentioned is the non-commissioned officer pilot, more generally known as "airman pilot."

Must Be Recommended

Airmen pilots are selected from enlisted personnel. Before they can be selected, they must be qualified in their air force trade and be recommended by their officer commanding as being suitable in every respect and likely to make efficient pilots. They must be British subjects, under the age of 26 years, single, physically fit for full flying duties and be prepared to sign up for an additional period of three years from which they cannot be released.

Selection of airmen pilots is generally limited to the trades of fitter aero engines, fitter general, carpenter air riggers and rigger, although airmen in other air force trades, may, if considered suitable be given the opportunity of qualifying for their wings.

The pay of an airman pilot depends upon his trade grouping. He is, however, paid an additional seventy-five cents per diem for flying during training, and thereafter $1 per diem.

From the foregoing it is apparent that selection for airmen pilots is a matter of interior arrangement within the air force. Consequently, anyone not in the Royal Canadian Air Force and who desires to become an airman pilot, must first enlist, qualify in an air force trade, and by virtue of his work and training earn the recommendation of his commanding officer for training as an airman pilot. He is in competition with every other airmen in the force, who fulfils the general conditions for selection, and may only hope, through diligence and ability, to obtain the much-coveted flying training which is the equivalent of the best that can be had in any country.

LOSS IN LAMBS EASILY PREVENTED

Feeding of Potassium Iodide to Mothers is Advocated.

Goitre in lambs, joint ill in colts, sickly calves and hairless pigs—all these bitter Spring disappointments which many farmers face each year after year can be easily controlled. Scientists have discovered a sure preventative for all these troubles as well as other ailments in the regular feeding of potassium iodide, especially to pregnant animals. It may be mixed with meal or salt, and a little of it will lower to a minimum these losses which were once considered inevitable. In certain areas of the country where there is a marked deficiency of iodine in the feed and water, the regular use of potassium iodide in minute quantities in the water or food by both humans and animals is recommended at all times. These areas are known as goitre belts on account of the prevalence of this disease. When taken in time iodine brings all cases under absolute control.

"It is only a matter of time until every thinking breeder and owner of livestock in Canada is using potassium iodide in the feeding of his female stock," declares Dr. Lionel Stevenson, Ontario zoologist, and Mr. George B. Rothwell, Dominion animal husbandman, adds: "Speaking strictly as a practical stockman it would seem that in this drug we have, not a panacea in any sense, but an agent of preventative and curative properties, that makes its consideration one of absorbing interest."

A mixture of common salt and up to one per cent. of potassium iodide is usually used, which means a very cheap insurance indeed against the live stock losses mentioned. There is plenty of literature on the subject of feeding iodine to stock, which can be obtained through the nearest government agricultural office, experimental farm or from the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers Limited, either the head office in Toronto or one of the branches.

"O-KAY"

MILLBROOK, May 25 (Examiner Correspondence). — The three-act comedy, "O-Kay," given in the Town Hall on Monday, May 20, under the auspices of the Young People's Society of the United Church, drew a capacity audience and proved a decidedly popular entertainment.

While the audience was gathering, and between the acts of the play, piano duets were played by Mrs W. W. Jones and Miss Estelle Hetherington, and by two little girls, Bryer Edmunds and Mary Burnham, and were warmly encored.

The stage setting showed the living-room in Mrs. Whitman's home, and was quite attractive with easy chairs, library table with reading lamp, books, and papers, and two large floor lamps the switching on and off of the lights being an important feature of the play, which is a royalty one, certain scenes recuring absolute darkness for a brief period as the plot unfolded.

High lights in the play, which kept the audience frequently convulsed with laughter, were the fanciful ailments of Gram, otherwise Mrs. Henry Pembroke (Mrs. V. C. Lambert), and her continual doses from the large array of many-colored bottles and pill boxes on the table beside her wheeled invalid's chair; the infatuation of Gramp, her husband (Eddie Nattress) for his Ford car to which he was always adding accessories, and the grievance which both he and his grandson, Arthur Whitman (Henry Gray) constantly aired since they were regarded, the one as too old, the other as too young, to properly guard the household; the anxiety of Mrs. Evelyn Whitman (Jean L. Burnham) for the safety of her father and her son which led her to withdraw the charge from Gramp's shotgun, and from Art's revolver, to their great indignation when they made the discovery; the fad of Edith Whitman (Francis Jones) for writing detective stories her desire for a realistic experience leading to ridiculous complications when she induced her friend, Alice Borden (Wilma Fallih) to impersonate the Black Terror, who was blamed for stealing Gram's legacy of valuable jewels when the telephone booth, in the bottom of which they were hidden, disappeared during a time when the stage was in darkness, and the sudden interest of both Gramp and Art in the youthful and pretty detective, Kay Mills (Beatrice Jones) who was engaged to investigate the robbery.

The clever arrest of the real Black Terror (B. B. Dawson) by the young detective as she kept her night call, led eventually to a very funny climax when three others impersonating this notorious character, Fred Alden (Jim Larmer), Jim Hayes (Kenneth Fallis) and Eddie's friend, Alice Borden, were finally lined up against the wall of the living-room ready Gram to exclaim, "Say, what is this, a neighborhood picnic, or what?"

The final arrival of Captain George Whitman, who has been absent with his vessel for four months, and who comes in badly hurt having been knocked on the head by the Black Terror and robbed of his uniform, that 'bold, bad man having tried to pass himself off as the husband of Evelyn just home from his long voyage, led to explanations all round and a satisfactory clearing up of the whole mystery.

The various characters took their parts exceptionally well, and practically no prompting was required. Approximately seventy-eight dollars was taken in at the door, and a substantial amount will be added to the Y.P.S. funds when all expenses have been met.

NEWLY WEDS DIE IN COMPACT ON FERRY BOAT

Soldier Shoots His Bride And Himself at New York Battery.

NOTES TELL OF AGREEMENT

Preferred Death Together to Living Apart—She Took Blame.

NEW YORK, May 25.—Charles B. Canto, a private attached to the military police unit at Bedloes Island, and Jean Farrell, 21, were married in a little Brooklyn church last Friday night. Early Sunday morning they died in a suicide agreement after scribbling notes of farewell to the minister who joined them, the captain who commanded Canto's outfit and the sergeant for whom Mrs. Canto had gone to work to eke out her husband's monthly wages of $37.50.

The notes were found at their feet in the stuffy little upper deck cabin of the General Meigs, the Statue of Liberty ferryboat, about 4.30 a.m. when the woman's shrill shriek of final terror and the two shots from her husband's service automatic awakened half a dozen soldiers and sailors who were drowsing and waiting for the little craft to shove off from the Battery on her first trip of the morning.

One missive scrawled in pencil on a leaf torn from a notebook, was addressed only to "The Pastor, Grace Baptist Church, Sixth Avenue and Fifty-third Street, Brooklyn. It said:

"We intended to come out and see you this afternoon, but are going on a long journey and have not time to call."

Both signed their names to the note, but beneath her name Mrs. Canto had added a postscript. It said:

"Till death do us part."

A second note was addressed to Sergeant Charles Long of the Bedloe's Island unit, by whom Mrs. Canto for the past two days had been employed as a maid.

"We cannot live together here," the note said. "We prefer to live together in death. I, Jean, alone am responsible for this act and not Chick. Please forgive us and pray for us both. I forced him to do it, and if he fails I do not wish any charges placed against him."

The third note to Captain Wane, commander of the military police, virtually was a repetition of the one to Sergeant Long. Mrs. Canto and her husband had affixed their signatures to all.

Detective of the Marine Division, investigating the murder and suicide were unable to find anyone who saw the bridal couple board the boat. Half a dozen soldiers were sleeping in the lower deck cabin and one man, V. N. Unto, cook aboard the Naval Training Ship Newport, at anchor in the harbor, sat not twenty feet away from them in the tight little cabin on the upper deck when the fatal shots were fired.

He was awakened from a nap, he told the detectives by a woman's scream.

"Oh, mother, mother? Save me," he said he heard her cry, but before his feet hit the deck, the little cabin echoed with the two shots fired so closely together that they sounded almost like one. Unto found Mrs. Canto unconscious on a seat in the cabin, her head pillowed on her husband's coat. Canto, with a bullet wound in his head, had fallen over against her.

Canto Dies in Hospital.

Canto's revolver was on the floor, resting like a paper weight upon the farewell notes. A doctor was summoned hastily from Broad Street Hospital. He said Mrs. Canto had died instantly. Canto succumbed two hours later in the hospital without becoming conscious again.

I CAN DO A REAL DAY'S WORK NOW I TAKE "HUSKY"

"I Was Too Weak To Work, Was Nervous and Couldn't Eat. And Now This Medicine Has Given Me Health," Says Mr. Clayton.

T. J. CLAYTON

Peterborough people say they feel stronger and better in every way since using "Husky," the marvelous medicine being introduced here by Bond's Drug Store, and the merit of this medicine is further proven by the fact that similar reports are coming from Husky users throughout the Dominion.

T. J. Clayton, of 37 Britainia Ave., Toronto, writes: "I was in the British Army for nearly 20 years and during the World War I was wounded and gassed. I came back to Toronto after the war, but contracted pneumonia, and with the wounds and suffering from having been gassed, I was left in terrible shape. For 15 months I could not so much as walk across the street without becoming exhausted. I couldn't work and my nerves were all to pieces. I couldn't eat anything for days at a time, even a cup of coffee wouldn't stay on my stomach.

"I heard someone, who was taking Husky, praising it so highly I began taking it myself. I began to feel good again as I took it, and now I am working every day, doing hard work which requires real strength. But I have the strength to do it since I've been using Husky. I am glad of the opportunity to give this statement, telling what Husky has done for me, and I hope it will help thousands of sick people as it has me."

Start using Husky to-day and you, too, will soon be enjoying your food more, sleeping better and feeling stronger. The thousands and thousands in Ontario who have used this medicine will tell you how Husky tones up the system and strengthens you. An expert from the Husky Laboratories at Toronto is now at Bond's Drug Store to give free information about Husky. He wants to explain to everyone how best and quickest results are obtained from the use of this medicine. Call on him to-day. He will be glad to see you.

LADIES' CHOIR FOR ST. PAUL'S

Men Are Away at Big Musical Contest in New York.

The ranks of St. Paul's Presbyterian church choir will be depleted on Sunday—that is, the male section—almost all the men being members of the Male Voice Choir, which is in New York, bent on contest work, and taking part in the morning service in Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, which will keep them away from Peterborough until Monday at noon.

The ladies of St. Paul's church choir will be in their places next Sunday at both services, and under the leadership of [illegible], at the organ, will lead the praise.

The occasion is unique, but the lady choristers will uphold the reputation they have already gained, and are looking forward to giving good programs at both diets of worship.

In the morning, in addition to organ numbers, Miss Bertha Hill will sing "Let Not Your Heart Be Troubled," and the choir will be heard in the chorus, "Sweet Peace, the Gift of God's Love" (Bilhorn).

At the evening service, organ selections and the duet, "Consider the Lilies" (Topliff) by Mrs. Grace Byers and Miss Jessie Pattison, and the chorus, Kilpatrick's "Dear to the Heart of the Shepherd" will comprise the music part of the service.

DISTRICT CHURCHES

NORHAM UNITED CHURCH.

NORHAM, May 25. — (Examiner Correspondence.—At Norham United Church on Sunday evening, Rev. W. J. Mortimore, of China, gave a very interesting and comprehensive address on conditions in China. Starting at the rise of the Manchu Government, he outlined the causes that led to its fall and traced the course of the different factions and leaders. He told the story of bandit warfare and how the Christian church was affected by it. In many places the native Christians carried on to the best of their ability the work that had been dropped by the missionaries when they had to leave.

"At present," he said, "the missionary was wanted back and many missionaries had returned and were returning now."

Conditions were not properly understood in Canada because some newspapers tried to get the sensational headline and failed to follow up with the true condition of affairs.

BIGGER EFFORTS ARE URGED UPON PROHIBITIONISTS

classes of people engaged. The first was constituted of the people whose business it was to make, sell and traffic in the beverage. But all those who favored liquor are not in this category. There were some who would not stoop to such things. They are not all drunkards, though most of them like their social glass and are apparently good citizens. These people constituted the second class. They are the nearest approach which Canada had to gentlemen. Mostly they are men who had made enough money to retire and could associate with the higher up people. They are occasional drinkers.

"The third class is the 'temperance cranks.' He was certain that people referred to them as such. Their conviction is deep and strong and it is that liquor has no place in the community. If these people have any power at any time to discontinue it, they will do so." Hales then recalled the time when the Hon. Mr. Rowell had brought in the "abolish the bar" policy and other political events. He claimed he was unable to discuss temperance without going into politics since the politicians themselves had put temperance there. During the war the O.T.A. had been brought in as a war-time measure. The Conservatives had sponsored it. Later the Farmer Government had tried to enforce it. In his opinion, Premier Ferguson had treated the O.T.A. as though it were a child which he had found deposited at his doorstep and which he did not want. He had never heard the Premier say much in favor of the Act, but went on to detail the methods with which the Liquor Control Act was brought in.

He must, said Mr. Hales, pay his respects to a great man and a great Canadian, Canon Cody, who was a great friend of Premier Ferguson. He very much admired their "David and Jonathan" spirit, and the manner in which each applauded the other's action. The clergyman, he said, had gone to Manitoba to get first-hand information regarding government control in that province. Upon his return, he had reported that the people were satisfied. He did not mention that there were thousands who were not and that hundreds of names had been added to the interdict list since the Act came into force. He also claimed that the Canon did not report immediately upon return but waited till the opportune moment to make his utterance. This, he thought, was purely a political method.

Liquor, said Mr. Hales, has a marked tendency to make criminals. There was plenty of prohibition in the L.C.A., and he wondered that the Liberty League agreed to it. It was necessary to purchase a permit and then purchase liquor. When the purchase was made, it was only legal to drink it in certain places. If it were such good stuff, he did not see why it should not be consumed on the premises where it was purchased or on the way home from there. He thought the people had been listed by the Act and that the prohibitionists should get as many clergymen behind them as possible and also as many Conservatives, in order to defeat the issue at the next opportunity. People had believed that conditions would be better after the L.C.A. came into force. Instead, the liquor imports from across the Atlantic had increased three times their volume during the temperance era. He believed that the temperance people had been fooled over and over again, and stated that more people were coming to the temperance ranks than before. They would be able to change things at another election. They favored liquor control. They wanted to control its manufacture, and remove the profit from the private manufacturer. If liquor must be manufactured, he wanted to let the State have the profit and control. But he did not believe that it should ever be sold as a beverage.

"In conclusion," said Mr. Hales, "we are Canadians. We are interested in this northern part of the continent. We need not apologize for the part we have played in the affairs of the world. But our boys and girls must have every opportunity to become the best citizens, and this opportunity cannot be forthcoming at its best as long as liquor is allowed in the country."

Dr. Irwin was the chief speaker at the afternoon session. His remarks were somewhat brief in the evening.

"Much could be said about the effects of alcohol," he said, "which the younger generation knew nothing about." However, he recalled an incident during the local option campaign when he had been a minister in a small northern town. For several weeks he delivered addresses in the cause of temperance and created a great deal of interest in his addresses. People came in large numbers to hear "The last gun fired" which was the way they referred to his address on the evening preceding the voting. According to the statistics of that village of six hundred souls, seven men had met a violent death directly attributed to alcoholic beverages. Twenty young men had become conspicuous failures through the use of strong drink. Eighty-seven families had been hit and hit hard by liquor. Several businesses had failed from the same cause. Young people had not first hand knowledge of such conditions, he claimed.

Had to Place Restrictions

Britain's control of liquor during the war was his next topic. He claimed that the Imperial government had not been able to get sufficient munitions to their troops in the line until restrictions had been placed on the sale of liquor as a beverage. Alcohol is not a stimulant, he claimed, but a narcotic drug. To give liquor to a person who has fainted, was a dangerous practice, he claimed, which might depress the heart. It would be much better to burn feathers under the nose of the stricken person. And it would be much safer.

Briefly the reverend doctor described the life of a child, touching on the years of education and careful training it received in order that it might go out into the world as a good citizen. He illustrated his remarks with incidents from his family life. The oldest nerves, he said were the strongest nerves and alcohol had a strong affinity for the nerves. It paralysed them, paralysed part of the brain. Made a man foolish and robbed him of his judgement. As an illustration he told of a Scotsman whom he knew to be careful as the Scots are reported to be. When this man got drunk, he wanted to treat all the children to ice cream. The youngsters got to know about it and as soon as the man got a bit tipsy, he was sure to have a following of children looking for a treat.

Carefully then, the doctor described the various stages through which a man passes when drinking till eventually he falls asleep and snored. It was not a joke, he said, that the man snored, but a good sign. If the man were to consume 0.6 per cent of alcohol into his bleed stream he would stop breathing and die. The medical men would bring in a diagnosis of death due to acute alcoholic poisoning. Even so he said, alcohol was considered the most useful liquid known to the world, with but one exception, water. In a short time, alcohol would, he claimed, remove all the knowledge and careful training which a young person had taken years to acquire. Then, "Easy is the decent to Hell." There were many so-called social reforms, he said, but Temperance was the one great "Central Reform" which effected all others.

In closing, he stated that the temperance people were endeavouring to deal candidly and in a sane and unbiased way, with the liquor question.

Organize Forces

Mr. Burr of Bloomfield, the district organizer, spoke briefly explaining how he proposed to organize the temperance forces in the district. He also moved a vote of thanks to the church, the choir, the organist and those who had been so good as to decorate the church with flowers for the occasion.

Miss Millrend Curtis, Warkworth, was the first speaker of the evening. Her remarks won her several compliments from the professional speakers who followed. "It is a question which young people of today must face. Important as this personal phrase might be, there are more than these selfish interests at stake" she said. "There is the possibility of the rising generation being dominated by alcohol, and the effect which this condition would have on the country is universally known. Temperance," she claimed, 'was a political issue at the present time and it must be considered as such. Alcohol must be destroyed by the same weapon. She was not, however, interested in it from a political standpoint. In spite of the fact that the O.T.A. had done much good, had been replaced by the L.C.A. The former was a worthy measure. It had done great good, she claimed, having removed the drink from the hotel door step and the distress from many homes. It had increased the efficiency and general output of industry. Premier Ferguson had agreed with this and has stated these facts. Yet he had been responsible in a large measure for replacing the O.T.A. with the L.C.A.

As minister of education, he recognised the value of temperance, and had sent an eloquent letter to the schools of the province exhorting the teachers to teach temperance. This she said, was not necessary since the teachers were required to teach it. She thought it would be more consistent if the worthy Premier sought to remove the evil. It was much the same she said, as placing a child on the highway and telling it to play there, watch out for the cars but do not get run over.

Speaking of the Liquor Control Act, she wondered if it were control when a man is allowed to buy a permit and then buy his liquor and drink it in a hotel bed room, or in a roadside shelter; when Ontario spent million dollars a week in liquor; when 220,440 permits were issued during the first four months the Act was in force; when drunkenness among women had increased 53 percent; when there was more drinking than ever before and when the jails, hospitals and asylums were full. What, she asked, would happen if the government lost control?

Supporters of the act argued that the province received increased revenue. Did dollars offset destitution? Could souls be bought for dollars and cents? Could a person's future be reckoned in dollars and cents?

The people had voted on the plebiscite in 1924, for what they wanted. But the result had been a bitter pill and a blow to party loyalty. There were none so blind as those who would not see, she claimed, and many of them were recovering their sense of vision. They cursed the way they had voted. In support of this statemnt Miss Curtis recalled an incident where a man had lost several members of his family in an automobile accident caused because the man at the wheel had been drinking. Then there was the North Bay shooting affair of recent date.

People had been told that the volume of bootlegging would decrease. In the province of Saskatchewan, it had increased 111 per cent. In British Columbia and Ontario, there had not been much change. She wonders if the laws must be made to cater to the profiteers and law breakers. She did not believe in legalising law-breaking or wrong doing. Could men be put in as law-makers till the people were sure of their principals?

The future success of the Liquor business depended on the young people she said. An officer of the Ohio Liquor League had said. "Success of the business is dependent on the creation of an appetite for drink. Men who drink, like all others will die. If no new appetites are created, the counters will be empty. There is an open field for the creation of appetites. It will be necessary to do some missionary work among the boys. I make the suggestion that nickels spent in treats to boys now will return in dollars when the appetite has been formed." Thus were the future victims plotted against.

In closing Miss Curtis made a strong appeal to the citizens of the country in the interests of temperance as a safeguard for the future generations. When the time comes, she pleaded, to mark your ballots in the next election, vote in the best interests of your country for its future greatness. Thank you.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright,
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet,
Or dims the radiant light,
No unkind word our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind,
But each shall seek the common weal,
The good of all mankind.

CAVAN

In her address to the Bethany Cavan and Mount Pleasant Women's Institutes at Bethany on Friday afternoon, Miss Emily Guest, in an interesting manner, described the reason for the beginning of the Institute and the struggle on the part of a few women, led by one, to get it established.

It originated from the real need for help in one women's life.

She told the story, how a young woman striving in an inexperienced way to conduct a home and care for her baby, found her knowledge quite—inadequate for the situation. When she sorrowfully realized this, she resolved to do what one woman could in one woman's life, to remedy this state of affairs and make it easier for other young women starting in homes of their own. She brought the matter before members of Parliament, asking for teachers in Domestic Science to be provided for the girls, just as there were teachers for young men at Guelph.

Her efforts led to the organization of the Women's Institute and later to the establishment of McDonald Hall, at Guelph for training girls in Domestic Science.

Just as it was the dire need of one woman, that caused the Institute to be formed, so it has continued to help and develope the womanhood of Ontario, first, then all the Provinces of Canada, until now the movement is world wide.

Another point stressed in Miss Guest's address was to get the young girls to join the Institute and where possible, to form Junior Institutes.

It is only in a few rural centres that the latter can be done.

In many country districts there are not enough girls to be found on the farms, or in the villages to form a Junior Society. The rural districts are bare of young people. They are either at school or those having completed their school courses, have taken positions in cities or towns.

There are several fine short courses available for girls. With demonstrators ready to come to any institute centre where enough for a class can be gathered.

It is well worth while for any young girl to join an Institute after all. The very finest calling is the art of home making—not merely keeping house, but home-making, and an Institute gives very real help along this line.

AT WARSAW

Six girls only, appeared at the coaching class conducted by Miss Hopkins on Monday afternoon. The number was disappointing, but it is hoped many more will attend on Monday the twenty-seventh.

Hitherto, these classes have been limited to girls from fifteen to twenty-five years of age. The women of the district are invited as well as the girls this year. The invitation did not come until the Saturday before the class, and one lady, the vice-president was present.

The department feels that the instruction is worthwhile for the women, and that if they really see what is being taught, they will be more anxious to have their daughters attend.

The subjects taught are lunches, good dressing, and household arrangement, especially living room and kitchen plans. Last year a kitchen which was intended to be dining room also, was planned. This year it is simply a working kitchen. There will probably be judging at Lakefield Fair this year. Peterborough will hold the usual judging contests, and there will be the team and open judging in Toronto.

Many seem to have a wrong idea regarding the nutrition. It does not mean as many suppose, new recipes for cakes, pies and other things, nor even instruction in how to cook various articles of food, but it does embrace a judicious selection of food, with proper preparation, and then its utilization to the best advntage. Special time and thought are given to planning family menus, which will show a well balanced selection of building foods, energy producing foods, growth and protective foods, at the same time considering the season and farm resources. School lunches are dealt with, because in the country, they are of necessity so generally used. In the housing study, what is considered the best arrangement of windows and doors for lighting, labor, comfort and convenience are discussed.

Interior furnishings and decorations are discussed. Members of the class will be asked to bring plans of their kitchens and living rooms.

The choice of clothing in respect to the individual build and complexion, also the location and suitability are discussed. Colored charts are used. Material to be used is important.

No charge is made. In Warsaw the Institute room is used, as the Institute considers it part of its work.

This year, for the first time, there are to be morning classes. However the notices first given were for the afternoon only, and Miss Hopkins did not come until the afternoon.

That Body of Yours

(By Jas. W. Barton, M.D.)

FOODS PREVENT DECAY IN YOUNGSTER'S TEETH.

I often wonder if as parents we give enough attention to what our youngsters eat.

They seem healthy enough, get outdoors to play, and certainly eat enough food, and yet there seems to be an early decay of the teeth. In former days it was taken for granted that the teeth in some families decayed early anyway and there was nothing really that could be done about it.

But now our physicians not only tell us that the food eaten affects the teeth, but they are able to prove it.

Drs. M. Mellanby and C. L. Pattison took a group of twenty-one children whose average age was about 5½ years, and by adding vitamin D to their diet, checked the beginning of decay at new points.

Simply adding cod liver oil to the food intake gave these results.

Milk and egg yolk are also rich in vitamin D.

Now what foods cause early dental decay?

Diets that have too much sugar, white bread, potatoes, and other starchy foods.

Dr. Harvey J. Burkhart, Director of the Rochester Dental Dispensary, recommends the use of uncooked green vegetables and fresh fruits in addition to the milk, eggs, and cod liver oil, mentioned above. Another point overlooked by parents is that children need meat. While it is perhaps true that many of our office workers or others engaged in light employment eat too much meat, nevertheless a youngster needs meat to help build his growing tissues, and lean beef, lamb, chicken or fish should be eaten by the youngster every day. Eggs of course can take the place of meat to a large extnt. The thought is to get some vitamin D into the youngster every day if he is going to grow real healthy teeth that can ward off decay. Eating the right food is the only way to do this.

If the youngster rebels at vegetables and fruit and wants to eat starchy foods and candy, see that he gets a desert spoonful of cod liver oil at least once a day.

Good chewing candy or taffy is not so bad, as this makes hims use his teeth, and the more use they get to chew, the better for teeth and gums.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

Here are some rules of good form concerning weddings that are offered to answer a number of questions that readers have recently asked:

The bride chooses her own bridesmaids and other attendants from among her own friends. However, if the bridegroom has an unmarried sister, it is usual for the bride to include her among the attendants, even though she may not be well acquainted.

The bride should not expect to name any of the ushers, though the bridegroom should include the bride's brothers in the list.

It is not customary to have the bridesmaids' bouquets sent to their houses. These bouquets with the ushers' boutonnieres are sent to the bride's home where they are distributed in good time before the ceremony.

Bridesmaids and ushers should call on the mother of the bride within a short time after the wedding, and should also call unbidden upon the bride within a short time after her return from her wedding trip.

The bridegroom pays for the bride's bouquet and the boutonnieres for the ushers, but he does not customarily pay for the bridesmaids' bouquet. The bride or her family pay for them.

If you receive an invitation to a wedding ceremony, but not an invitation to a wedding reception, you are not under any obligation to send a present. An invitation to a wedding reception with or without an invitation to the ceremony is usually followed by a gift from the one invited.

THE SECRET.
(Contributed by "Red Wing".)

The whispering wood
Has guessed that I love you

The birds have been telling,
The wild roses knew—
They all have discovered
It, dear, except you.

"THE JOCKEY HAT AND FEATHER".
(Contributed by 'Beatrice')

As I was walking out one day,
Thinking of the weather,
I saw a pair of roguish eyes
'Neath a hat and feather;
She looked at me,
I looked at her,
It made my heart pit-pat,
Then turning round she said to me:
"How do you like my hat?"

CHORUS

Oh, I said, it's gay and pretty too,
They look well together,
Those glossy curls, and jockey hat,
With a rooster's feather.

She wore a handsome broadcloth basque,
Cut the latest fashion;
And flounces all around her dress
Made her look quite dashing:
Her high-heeled boots as she walked on
The pavement, went pit-pat,
I'll ne'er forget the smile I saw
Beneath that jockey hat.

She kissed her hand, said "Au Revoir",
Then I was a goner;
Before I'd time to say "Good-Bye",
She was round the corner.
I tried that night, but could not sleep,
So up in bed I sat,
And right before my face I thought
I saw that jockey hat.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:

I am enclosing coupon for the helps marked and hope I am not too late. Could you ask any neighbors if they have a favorite recipe for a cocoanut pie?

I wanted to write a longer letter telling you how I appreciate and how much help I get from your pages but I cannot spare more time now and I do not want to miss these helps. I have no recipes or help I can send that would benefit anyone as much as those that are already printed from time to time as I am not half as wise as most of our neighbors.

I try never to miss the women's page in case I should miss some good advice and have tried lots of recipes and have very seldom had a failure with any of them. It gives one more confidence to try such recipes as we know they have actually been used by neighbors living around us.

Well this is a longer letter than I thought I had time for, and my small son is bothering me, which is partly the cause of this weird writing, so I will quit, hoping you can read this Marion and very many thanks in anticipation of your sending me the helps and of helping me in my request.

Wishing the neighbors and yourself the best of good luck and success and long life to our page, I am

Most sincerly,

It is very nice to know that you get so much help from our columns. I'm inserting your S.O.S. as requested.

"Dear Marion:

Just a note to order pattern No. .. and fashion book for which I enclose change and stamps also for helps marked.

It is not as bright and warm as it was six years ago today Marion. Well I remember, for this is our wedding day and hubby away from home working for the first on the first. Please don't think he does not work on our wedding day for he does but he is off working on the county road, where generally he is at home on the land.

Many thanks for the helps and the last pattern was dandy but I cannot see how they can be brought into Canada so cheaply and yet be so good, when we can't get 'made in Canada' ones for the same.

Must close wishing every success to every department.

Sally II"

Lots of people wonder about the patterns, "Sally II". We would all rather have produced in Canada goods, but so many people would be without things if we made it a rule. Congratulations on your sixth wedding anniversary — may you enjoy many more together!

"Dear Marion:

Here I am again asking for more helps. Thanks for last ones received

I enjoyed your "Whatnot" tonight very much, perhaps because my own family is young. I certainly am a firm believer in a well balanced diet for children. There are so many children allowed to eat just whatever takes their fancy. Don't you think if a child is trained properly in the beginning he will not want to sit down and just eat pie for one meal and perhaps two or three pieces of cake for the next meal, topped off with a cup of tea?

I would like to see a few more letters in our page from mothers with young children.

I am enclosing a recipe for lemon pudding which is a real favorite in our home.

Wishing you continued success, I remain Just Eve"

Thank you for your interesting letter, "Just Eve." I, too, enjoy the neighbors' hints on children. Most of us are helped by the various ideas. Write soon again.

"Dear Marion:

Just a line to thank you for your nice letter and to ask your forgiveness for the delay in writing you, but I have been so busy getting caught up with my sewing, etc., that I have neglected the more important things.

Well Marion I am quite an inexperienced housekeeper as I have only been keeping house for six months, but I will do the best I can to help "Our Women's Page." I am enclosing a couple of old favorite songs also a couple of recipes we like.

Also would like the helps I have checked below. Hoping I am not asking too much and wishing you success with the "page".

I am, Sincerly Yours
'Sunbeam'".

I'm glad that you find our pages helpful, "Sunbeam," and that you found time to write again. Thank you for your enclosures.

"Dear Marion:

Please find enclosed a two-cent stamp I omitted in my last letter when I requested some helps. I enjoy the neighbors' letters on farm life. I lived forty-five years on a farm. If only space allowed I would love to tell you about my dumb friends there. I loved it all. But the same thing that applies to success on the farm applies to success in the city. The chief thing that is the matter with some families is that they do not do teamwork. The husband pulls one way, the wife another, the children in as many different directions as they are in numbers. There is no unity of purpose, no co-ordination of energy, no common goal that they get nowhere. This lack of teamwork in the home is the more remarkable because no one is stupid enough not to realize that the success of almost every undertaking depends upon a number of people working harmoniously together, helping each other substituting, functioning almost as one individual, in order to achieve a certain purpose. No general could win a victory without royal officers and a united army at his back. No business prospers if the employers are disgfuntled and fighting among themselves, and each is afraid of doing some part of the other's job. No one gridiron star wins the game. It's team work that does it. And this is just as true in the home as it is outside of it. Whenever you see husbands and wife who work together shoulder to shoulder, you see a happy and prosperous home. Innumerable ones of the big fortunes of our day were founded by men and women who get married on the shoe string and lived for the first few years above the store and the wife not only helped her husband to start by doing all her own housework but by serving behind the counter. And that recipe for success is just as infallible now as it was fifty years ago, and gives the same results, just as long as both of them give all their intelligence and strength to furthering the same end, just as long as both of them are willing to work for it and sacrifice for it, they are invincible. They are headed for success and nothing can stop them. But the worst effect of the lack of teamwork in the home is on the children. It is the ruination for them because conflict of authority nullifies all discipline and control. It does not take long for the children to find out that they can appeal from father's verdict to mother, and that while their parents are fighting out the question they can do as they please. Also, they discover that nine times out of ten mother is their partisan, except when they interfere with her plans, and they can count on wheedling father out of the thing he has denied them, and that she will connive at helping them to deceive him. Bringing up children is no one-person job. It takes the united effort of both the mother and father, working together to do it properly. They have to hold up each other's hands when it comes to dealing with the headstrong youth of today. But when they do, they turn out the fine men and women that are the hope of the country. And when they don't the result is the wild girls and boys that bring their parents' gray heads down in sorrow to the grave. It isn't always easy to do teamwork, it requires a lot of submerging of the ego, of denying oneself the pleasures of bossing, of giving up one's own tastes and prejudices for the general good. But it pays. And the most important decision that any young husband and wife can make is to resolve to do teamwork.

I received the helps this morning, thanks Marion, they are splendid.

A receipe for happiness—
Take equal parts of kindness, unselfishness and thoughtfulness.
Mix in the atmosphere of love;
Add a spice of usefulness,
Scatter a few grains of cheerfulness;
Season with smiles,
Stir in a happy laugh,
And serve to everyone.

Wishing you continued success,
Lucinda."

Your whole letter is a recipe for happiness, "Lucinda", that will be an inspiration to all who read it. It should be clipped out by every mother, and tacked up over the kitchen mirror for all to read. Teamwork counts in life—and as you say the organization without it is failing.

The Mirror of the Mode

By Mary Marshall

Fashion demands much greater attention to the matter of evening wraps now than ever before. In the days when we still believed that all sorts of dangers lurked in night air, the idea was to get just as quickly as possible from home to the place where we intended to pass the evening hours. Now we loiter on our way and in warm weather the more time we spend in the open the better we like it.

Many of the new evening dresses have special wraps, made of matching or harmonizing material. There are crisp light-weight taffeta dresses with taffets capes that come just to the elbows. There are chiffon wraps for chiffon dresses suitable for very warm weather. And so simple are many of these new evening wraps that they do not add a prohibitive price to the dress they accompany.

Many women feel, however, that to have many evening wraps is an extravagance. If you feel that way about it then the one evening wrap you choose should be suitable to wear with any of your evening dresses. There is something to be said in favor of black for this generally useful evening wrap, but for summer time lighter tones are more appropriate.

Transparent velvet is still used—but satin crepe lends itself better to the new silhouette. The sketch shows a simple model of this material, made without a lining. Wrap, circular ruffles and attached scarf are all made with the shiny side of the material exposed. Egg-shell tint or any of the light beige tones go well with almost any color and are usually becoming to sunburned complexions. Hence they are excellent shades for the evening wrap.

See Foot note.

The three-quarter length cape with scarf collar is appropriate for summer evening wear. This model of egg-shell tint crepe satin is made without a lining. (Copyright McClure Newspaper Syn.)

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

TO-DAY starts Empire Shopping Week, and as the idea is so much in line with letters which have recently appeared in our column, I think it is worthy of a little special attention.

* * *

Deep in our hearts, though perhaps seldom discussed, is that inborn sense of the worth that belongs, of right, to people of British birth and heritage. It comes to us without our volition, but by its value imposes on our will, the responsibility of carrying on in the same spirit.

* * *

All Canadians are British in that wide sense of forming part of the citizenry of the Empire. We have that sense of worth by season of the blood of our British or Canadian forefathers, who had the stuff in them that makes sturdy citizens, pioneers, explorers, scientiest, schoolmasters, poets, authors, musicians, statesmen, heroes, ministers, missionaries, noble women and martyrs.

* * *

We all share that great blood-strain. We all share in the civilization that produced these men and women.

* * *

And what is civilization but a background of great souls? We aim not at money, not at power, not at any mundane thing for itself alone, but at character—the rest follows. We want to perpetuate the best in that British civilization, and to carry it on to deeper and better development, to find its finest flowering in Canada, in geography the centre of the Empire, in influence what Canadians can make her to the Empire of the future.

* * *

As a proof that we really share in this great background—at once British and Canadian—each one of us can think of the many people in Canada carrying on with great devotion to duty and love to fellow men, perhaps unheard of outside of their small community, yet no matter what their station in life they are deeply respected and held as exemplars to others. In them, and in people like them, are the seeds of the great and noble deeds we all admire.

* * *

Every Peterborough district mother has in her hands the thread of Empire. She can, by the training she gives her children, inculcate in them the spirit of Empire that will raise up a strong Canadian-British generation to further strengthen the bonds of Empire.

* * *

And she can, by her buying, assist the commercial growth of the Empire. Commercial bonds are strong; few differences can arise between two countries that are inter-dependent in commerce.

* * *

* * *

No attempt is being made to upset economic laws. It is merely that the people of British countries throughout the Empire practically without exception because of their intimate political association with one another and because of the friendliness and feeling of kinship arising out of that association of interest, exert a preference for goods produced or made in their own country and in other parts of the Empire.

* * *

There are, of course, occasions when we cannot hold fast to the rule. There are things to which we are accustomed, or which we require, that we would have to do without if we refused to buy other than Empire made goods.

* * *

We all know instances. The rich have no excuse, but those in what is usually called the "middle class" (where most of us belong) must watch our dollars, and even Empire sentiment cannot always prevail over the sometimes extensive difference in price.

* * *

That does not excuse us from the urge to buy, whenever possible, goods manufactured or produced in the British Empire.

* * *

In fact, there are good reasons why we in Peterborough, should strain the point of cost a little. When we buy British-made goods we encourage Britishers everywhere to buy Canadian-made goods.

* * *

In Peterborough we have a dozen industries that depend upon the export market for their business—and their greatest business is done with the British Isles. If Peterborough people buy Empire goods, then the Empire will reciprocate, and Peterborough will benefit.

* * *

It seems a slogan well worth carrying into effect, next week and every week: "Whenever possible to you, buy Empire goods."

* * *

Your first choice should be goods manufactured in Peterborough; next, those manufactured in the Province of Ontario; next, those produced in Canada; and finally, those manufactured in the British Empire.

* * *

If we all help, the movement will be successful, and business will benefit. Not only that, though that is very important, but the Empire will be drawn close together—an end devoutly to be wished.

SAYS WOMEN ARE INFERIOR

Members of Legislature Debate Mental Capacity of Stenographer.

NEED PROTECTION

Winnipeg, Man., May 25.—(By The Canadian Press)—A staff writer on the "Free Press' describes the scene in the Manitoba Legislature when Mr. Ivens and Mr. Bachynsky debated two questions of women's mental capacity for 35 minutes. A stenographer's salary was one question. Should she get the same as a man?

Women, Mr. Bachynsky declared, were inferior to men. The member for Fisher is no woman-hater. He hastened to explain that. But honestly compelled him to say what was on his heart. Women were inferior to men. Moreover, he shuddered to think of the delicate flower of woman hood being exposed to the ruthless brutalities of commercial life. They should be sheltered and cared for and protected, and Mr. Bachynsky threw out an enfolding arm as much as to say that he would like to look after them all.

Mr. Ivens considered Mr. Backynsky a Rip Van Winkle. It was nonsense to say that women were inferior to men, and to prove his point he laid before his audience the following list of women who stood pre-eminent in their fields, he thought:

Music, Kathleen Parlow; Parliament, Margaret Bondfield, Agnes McPhail; Reform, Jane Adams; Journalism, E. Cora Hind; Poetry, Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

To name, he added, only a few, Mr. Bachynsky rebutted vigorously. Confining himself to music he affirmed his opinion that the following names equalled and perhaps surpassed that of Kathleen Parlow: Wagner, Schubert, Irving Berlin, Beethoven, Kubelik. To name, he added, only a few.

The stenographer was allowed her salary because of all this or notwithstanding.

PARENTS ATTEND EAST CITY SCHOOL

Empire Day Program Is Big Success at King George School.

Empire Day celebrations took place in King George school in a very fitting manner. The teacehrs had worked hard and the results were very gratifying. Over 100 parents and friends gathered to watch the ceremonies on the lawn.

The first part of the program took part in the rooms from 1.30 to 2.15. In the Senior IV and Junior IV a talk on the Anglo Saxon people was given by the principal, J. E. R. Munro and T. Miller. In Sr. III a talk on the flag was given by Miss G. Stinson and Miss B. Chambers. In Jr. III and the second books a talk on loyalty was enjoyed by Miss M. Squire while in the first and primer departments stories were told by Misses G. Kelly, F. Pammett and M. Eastwood, while in the kindergarten Misses E. Tudhope and E. Richardson told the youngsters stories here.

From 2.15 to 3.00 o'clock the ceremony took place on the lawn when the following songs were sung: Land of Hope and Glory, Rule Brittania. The Empire is Our Country, and others by the whole school led by Misses Eastwood, Tudhope and Mr. Munro.

Mrs. E. Wand sang Land of Hope and Glory with the entire school joining in the chorus. The national anthem brought the afternoon to a close.

HOME HELPS

Rhubarb

When your pantry shelves hold nothing
With the least appeal to you;
When your diet needs more mineral,
And some vitamines are due,
Then it is you should bedeck you
In your gayest, springiest garb
And hie you to the market place
To buy some fresh rhubarb.

Rhubarb is here in all its fresh allure. In the garden it is about six inches long. Fruit stores and markets show it the regulation size.

It is one of the articles of diet the use of which is rapidly substituting the spring tonic which was considered so necessary a few decades ago. It can be cooked in a great variety of ways and is palatable and nutritious in all. Its beautiful colouring supplies the psychic factor so necessary in a well-balanced diet.

Plain stewed rhubarb is a capacity in which it is readily accessible and one which it is hard to improve. An ordinary helping of this supplies about 140 calories of food value.

Stewed Rhubarb

4c rhubarb.
1c sugar.

1—Wash rhubarb, peel, cut in one inch pieces. If very tender skin may be left on.

2—Put into saucepan or double boiler; add sugar, mix well, cover; let stand 20 to 30 mins.

3—Cook slowly without stirring until tender.

NOTE—Rhubarb may be cooked in covered baking dish in moderate oven.

Rhubarb Marmalade

2 lemons.
1 lb. figs.
8 c. sugar.

Too Much ACID

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief. Please do that—for your own sake—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any drugstore.

WOMEN TEACHERS DON'T SPOIL BOYS

English Schoolmasters Deplore Lack of Men Teachers—Others Disagree.

Winnipeg, Man., May 25.—(By The Canadian Press)—Do boys taught by women school teachers become girlish? Emphatically no, according to Manitoba teachers of both sexes. Teachers attending the Manitoba Educational Associations congress here failed to agree with schoolmasters in England who deplored the preponderance of woman teachers in British schools. "It would not be fair to say the boy students become effeminate because they are taught by women," said Wilfred Sadler, principal of Maple Leaf junior high school here. "I have known boys who have gone as far as Grade 9 without having a male teacher, but they were not noticeably girlish." "I have never had occasion to resort to bribery to keep discipline or get better results in the classroom," said Mrs. J. T. Teeple, Foxwarren, Man.

Boys from 13 to 16 years of age would be better if they were under male teachers, but as the educational system is at present it is difficult to get enough male teachers, "said S. J. A. Gardner, of the Technical college.

When your Children Cry for It

Mothers, who take one simple precaution, are seldom worried. With a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria in the house they can do what their doctor would tell them to do, when baby is fretful, feverish, colicky, constipated or stuffed-up with cold—give a few drops of this pure vegetable, pleasant-tasting preparation. It comforts Baby and soothes him to sleep in a jiffy. It's perfectly safe for the youngest infant. Use it freely—and as often as needed, specialists advise. A more liberal dose is all it takes to comfort and relieve older children, when feverishness, bad breath, no appetite, colds, etc., show they need a good purging. The mark of genuine Castoria is the Fletcher signature on the wrapper. Look for it to avoid imitations.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF EVERY MOTHER

The child in the home is a never-failing source of joy, but, at the same time a never-failing responsibility to the fond mother. It not infrequently happens that minor ailments of the child distress and puzzle her. She does not know just what to do, yet feels them not serious enough to warrant calling in the doctor. At just such times as these it is found that Baby's Own Tablets are the mothers greatest help and friend.

Most childhood ailments arise in the digestive tract—the bowels become clogged and the stomach sour. Baby's Own Tablets are a never-failing relief for this condition. They are a mild but thorough laxative and through their action on the stomach and bowels they banish constipation and indigestion; tweak up colds and simple fever; allay the pain accompanying the cutting of teeth and promote health-giving sleep. Concerning them Mrs. W. Jenning, Mackay, Ont., writes:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets and think so highly of them that I would not be without them. Please send me your little booklet on the care of children."

How I Was Freed of Hemorrhoids

after 25 years of suffering

"I had protruding piles or hemorrhoids for over twenty-five years," writes Dr. H. S. Hussell, Graduate Veterinary Surgeon, of Upper Chaslo, N.B. "I bought medicines from all parts of the world and went under the knife twice—at Portland, Maine, and Sherbrooke, Que. I had spent hundreds of dollars and was about to go to the hospital at Campbellton, N.B., for another operation, but was in such a weakened condition that the doctor advised me to wait a few days.

"My wife happened to pick up Dr. Chase's Almanac and read about someone being freed of piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment. I got a box, was so much better next day that I ordered three more boxes. In one week I was able to resume my practice. It is now four years since I have felt any effect of the piles, so I feel justified in believing the relief permanent."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is the standard, time-proven treatment for piles or hemorrhoids. Dr. Hussell's experience is similar to that of many thousands of people who have been positively freed of piles by this soothing, healing, antiseptic ointment. All dealers or The Dr. A. W. POORLY SUITED FOR POSITION

Conservative Weekly Says New Blood is Needed in Baldwin Cabinet.

CHAMBERLAIN CRITICISED.

LONDON, May 15 (Canadian Press Cable).—Sommenting on Sir Austen Chamberlain's recent announcement that Premier Baldwin had asked him to continue in the Foreign Office and that he had accepted, the Saturday Review, a Conservative weekly, says:

"We have never concealed our belief that Sir Austen at the Foreign Office is a very square peg in a round hole and we cannot feel there is adequate compensation for his re-appointment in the reported decision that Sir William Joynson-Hicks is not to continue in the Home Office and perhaps will not be in the Cabinet at all.

"We sincerely hope Mr. Baldwin will make room for some new blood in the next Cabinet. It should be drawn from the younger members of the last Parliament who served so faithfully and so well and for the most part without reward."

Meanwhile, both Sir Austen Chamberlain and Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, prospective Laborite Foreign Minister, are both so confident of victory they are said to be already packing their grips to attend the Council of the League of Nations meeting at Madrid next month.

LABOR PARTY GAINS CONTROL

gained an unenviable notoriety for hooliganism at political meetings. Many gatherings were broken up even before proceedings started. This year the Socialists are enduring the, to them rather novel, experience of being heckled. The interrupters appear to resent the increase in the Sheffield police force which has been effected since the socialists came into power in the city council.

Men used to outnumber women on the voters' list here by 40,000. But the position is now largely reversed. With the exception of the east-end division of Attercliffe women now predominate in every Sheffield riding and their votes are being largely sought for.

Strongly Criticized.

Apart from the local issues the main fight seems to centre around the merits of the Conservative proposals of derating and safeguarding, both of which are criticized by Labor. Meanwhile a seperate warfare is being waged between the Liberals and Iabor. One Socialist candidate quotes Ramsay Macdonald as saying: "Nor will the country take the Liberal party seriously. During the whole of the last parliament that party never cast a united vote on any subject of importance." The Liberal candidates retort that the Socialist leaders are hypnotized by nationalization and the miners to-day are suffering for the folly of such leaders.

Among the labor candidates is Arthur Ponsonby, descendant of a long line of aristocrats who was once himself a page of honor to Queen Victoria. He has represented Brightside since 1922. Another Socialist, Cecil Wilson, also a member in the last house, belongs to one of the oldest and most famous Sheffield firms who refine precious metals. Whether or not Attercliffe returns him again all Sheffield will agree this particular family of Wilsons have a great reputation for public service and fair dealing. The solitary communist candidate, G. Fletcher, is also a capitalist. He is a master baker.

SEARCHERS FAIL TO FIND BODIES

Six Days of Continued Dragging of Otonabee Have Been Fruitless.

VOLUNTEERS SCARCE.

Six days of continual dragging have not revealed the bodies of the unfortunate trio that met their death by drowning at the Locks bridge last Sunday.

The volunteers have been very scarce and the work has been carried on by a faithful few who have been almost continually on the job since the day of the accident. The firemen in their off hours have unsparingly given of their time and have been constant workers.

In the dragging operations to-day the grappling irons brought to the surface an old four pound grappling hook that has been in the water for a great length of time. Part of a vice was also pulled to the surface.

The work of searching for the bodies is still going on with hope that soon one, or all, of them will be recovered.

SIDELIGHTS ON ELECTION

(By Canadian Press.)

Mrs Winston Churchill addressing a gathering of women at Buckhurst said: "My husband for four years has been the nation's housekeeper. He really has worked very hard."

Mrs. Stanley Baldwin in a message to the women of Central Hackney said:—"I appeal to the women to help my husband in maintaining peace in this country building up the nation's health and promoting its industry. I pledge my word you can trust him absolutely."

Lady Pearson, better known as Gladys Cooper, the noted actress, is helping Captain Ian Fraser, Conservative candidate in St. Pancras, North, in his campaign. "Frankly I do not take much interest in politics" she says, "because one cannot believe the word of any of the parties. But in the Premier we have a man who takes the common sense point of view. He does not make promises which cannot be fulfilled."

Liberals of the city of London had invited all Conservative ministers and candidates to Cannon Street Hotel to hear Professor John Maynard Keynes speak on the Liberal unemployment plan. Professor Keynes was one of the committee of experts who drew up the scheme.

Right Hon. Thomas Shaw, Labor candidate in Preston, aroused hearty cheers when in an incidental reference to the Earl of Derby's family he remarked, "The Stanley's are the best of English aristocrats."

A young man wearing a bright red felt hat was one of the highlights at the market this morning. He attracted a great deal of attention and stood it remarkably well.

They are destined to be friend in butter or boiled in milk and a little quart basket of them costs 20 cents.

Another vendor had quart jars of preserves; plums and raspberries, at 40 cents a jar.

From Hastings came a truck this morning, bringing potted plants; lobelias and geraniums and sweet alyssum, and big hanging baskets. One of these held a fern, priced at $2, and its companion was a basket of ivy and petunias at $1.50.

Upstairs, there were plants galore in little pots; forget-me-nots and sweet william, phlox, Oriental poppies, gaillardia and garden heliotrope, at 10 cents apiece. In the open section, there was plenty of choice in tomato and cauliflower and cabbage plants and many varieties of flowers.

Potatoes were quoted at 60 cents a bushel, asparagus at 15 cents a bunch and rhubarb was priced at 3 bunches for 25 cents. Red raspberry canes were 35 cents a dozen and Columbia berries were 75 cents a dozen.

MacMillan Outlines Arctic Expedition

PORTLAND, Me., May 25.—(Canadian Press)—Donald B. MacMillan, explorer in an address here last night briefly outlined plans for his projected expedition into the Arctic this summer.

The schooner Bowdoin will leave from Wiscasset Harbor June 22. The summer will be devoted to exploration of unknown sports in Labrador and Baffin Land. He expects to return in September.

Terrifying Ghost Moans From Locked Bedroom Reveals Aged Starving Woman

HALIFAX, N. S., May 25. (Special to The Examiner.) — Awakened by low moans from a room of the home which he just that day moved into, Alexander Clark hastily donned his clothes and rushed out of the house for assistance.

A police sergeant hearing his cries, asked him what the trouble was.

"There's a ghost in my house," replied Clark.

The sergeant accompanied Clark back to his home. Approaching the door of one of the rooms he too heard the moans. Putting his shoulder to the door he broke it down and found a very old woman lying across the threshold.

The furnishing of the room consisted of a broken table and a cot with its mattress sagging to the floor.

The old lady was later identified as Mrs. Jane Curtis, once a well-known nurse in the city.

Mrs. Curtis had no relatives and no money, and when the tenant from whom she had sub-letter the room moved away, she had locked hersef in, and in the rush was forgotten.

She is now over eighty years old, and when she was removed to to the hospital, it was found that she was suffering from hunger, not having had anything to eat for some days.

And so Mr. Clark's terrifying ghost turned into a harmless hungry old woman, if not into a fairy princess.

HOW TO PAINT YOUR SCREENS

There Is a Trick To It If You Want a Satisfactory Job.

Those who have tried to paint their screens, only to have the mesh fill up, will be glad to receive this practical advice from The Choate Hardware, Hunter Street East.

Here are practical suggestions for getting satisfactory results: "Paint on liberal coating of paint on both sides of screen. Then drop the screen a couple of feet onto a solid surface, which operation will jar off any bridges across meshes." Most of the trouble with screen paint is due to the fact that users reduce the paint so far to overcome bridging that no paint film is left. This method overcomes that difficulty.

WICHITA, Kas., May 25.—(Canadian Press).—Owen Hoagland and Gene Shank, commercial pilots, took off in the monoplane "Miss Ranger" at 8.45. o'clock in an attempt to surpass the refueling endurance flight record set by army monoplane Question Mark.

History of Peterborough

Written by Thomas W. Poole M.D., and Published in Peterborough 1867

CHAPTER VI.

The Peterborough Militia in 1837.

As the time approached when the refusal of the demands of the Upper Canadian Legislature for administrative reform were about to produce armed resistance to the Government, the country was flooded, first with petitions for signature demanding redress, and then with patriotic appeals inciting people to assert their just rights, and force from an unwilling Government the concessions so urgently needed, and since that day so completely granted. The occasion of township meetings and other gatherings were very generally turned to account for the distribution and discussion of these documents, and even our own inland and then comparatively remote settlements were not forgotten by the emissaries or friends of the agitators. But in the county of Peterborough there were few who openly sided with the movement, and when the moment of danger arrived, the population, with rare unanimity, rushed to arms in defence of the Government.

During the winter of 1836, several of our people took part in an adventure which is worth narrating. Mr. William Lyon McKenzie had called a meeting of his friends and sympathizers, in the court house at Cobourg, or Amherst, as it was then called, which, on learning its object, the loyalists in the surrounding country determined to frustrate. To avoid exciting suspicion of their design, a grand ball was convened at the Government house, Peterborough, which was largely attended, and as the night began to wane, the leaders announced their wishes and intentions, and with sleighs in readiness, they started for the front. In Monaghan and Cavan they were joined by reinforcements, and at Bloomfield George Elliott, Esq., a major in the militia, and afterwards M.P.P. for the county of Durham, joined them on horseback and was recognized as their leader. On approaching the court house at Amherst, they found that their friends in the vicinity had secured possession of the building, locked the doors, and were signalling them with handkerchiefs from the windows. A large crowd, among whom was McKenzie, was without, threatening violence if longer refused admittance. Major Elliott, on horseback, closely followed by a long line of sleighs, in compact order, dashed up between the crowd and the court house steps, interposing a wall which, to attempt to force, was seen to be useless. An attempt was then made by the agitators to hold an open-air meeting, but it was subject to constant interruptions. Among more discordant sounds, a bugler was mounted on a wood-pile and ordered to play "The Rogue's March" and other tunes supposed to be appropriate to the occasion. Mr. MacKenzie at one time was threatened with violence, and found it necessary not only to abandon the meeting, but to secrete himself until he could accomplish a safe retreat from the village.

During the first days of December, 1837, the proclamation of His Excellency Sir Francis Bond Head, calling out the militia of the Province to assist in suppressing the rebellion which had just broken out, was promulgated in Peterborough, and within less than 24 hous nearly two hundred volunteers, armed and equipped as best they could, started for the frontier, under command of Colonel McDonell, accompanied by Captain Cowall. Along the route of their march to the front they were joined by other companies under their local officers, and when they arrived at Port Hope they found several other bands of loyalists there, which swelled the numbers of the little army to about one thousand strong.

The loyalty and devotion thus shown by all classes, in every part of the country, was a tribute unmerited by the Government of that day, but was not the less honorable and praiseworthy on the part of those who offered it. Many of these noble volunteers left their homes and families at a moment's notice, and under the most trying circumstances. At that season of the year preparations for the coming of winter were far from completed. Few had yet provided their winter's wood, and many left their families with but a scanty store of provisions; so that had their absence been protracted, as seemed in every way probable, many of their loved ones must have suffered severely from cold and hunger. The trials of the hour were increased by the arbitrary measures and unnecessary severity exercised by some of those who thus found themselves "clothed with a little brief authority." Men who happened to be at a little distance from their homes were refused permission to visit their families to effect a change of clothing, or make even the most temporary arrangement of their affairs If they demurred they were threatened with imprisonment or confiscation of their properties. Such were the circumstances under which many of our brave people turned out in 1837, abandoning their homes and their families, in the depth of winter, to fight, perhaps to die, for the country they had adopted as their home! What must have been their feelings as they trudged along the weary way to meet the foe, as they thought of their own poor equipment, the dangers which awaited them, and the trying circumstances in which their families might be placed before they could return—if ever they did return!

Many who could make such sacrifices are deserving of double honor; and though their campaign was a bloodless one, they have, by their acts, achieved a fame of which the people of any country might be proud, and which posterity will not forget.

A Family Re-union

The old home town is to celebrate
By holding an "Old Home Week."
And over the earth with microscopr
Doth now all its children seek.

If you left here fifty years ago,
As if it's but fifty days,
It matters not how much you have learned
Of all the world and its ways.

Whether the road has been rough or smooth,
Or has it been up or down,
'Tis all the same—you are wanted soon
Back here in the old home town.

But you are one who has done their best,
And the world has helped you much,
And you've helped it, too, in such a way
That it's looking for more such.

But whatever you have accompliahed,
It was here you got your start,
In the old home town where you were born,
Thus it is doing its part.

Then don't come home to the old home town
To show what the world can do,
But show the world what the old home town
Is doing for it through you.

'Tis true it is called a city now,
And it is living the part,
But with all its modern improvements
'Tis the same old town at heart.

The earth is great but the world is small,
Like life it is "but a span,"
One need not travel yet see it all,
It is in the heart of man.

So, on your calendar mark the date,
And with all your might do seek
To plan your work so that you may come Back home for the "Old Home Week."

—Helen Blade, 591 Park street.

FROM PERU.

Miss Janet Purvis, who is teaching school under the engagement with the oil company owning concessions at Talava, Peru, at a point along the sea coast, writes thanking the committee here for the invitation to attend Old Home Week, and adds:

"This is an oil camp, situated on the coast, and all the interior is a desert. Our only claims to beauty are the sea coast and the foothills in the distance of the Andes Mountains.

"As the country is without rain for thirty years at a time, vegetation is very scarce, and as for grass, there is none. We have every facility for sport here, tennis, bathing, golfing, etc. One pecularity of our golf course is that there is not one blade of grass on it. Being less than four degrees from the equator and directly on the sea, we have a delightful climate all the year round." —F. H. D.

INTERESTING LOTS.

(By H. D. Baker)

To the passerby the lots at the corner of Donegal and Dublin streets may seem ordinary fields, but to some of the old neighbors living near they recall many memories.

The McFaddens and the Blodgetts, who were among the first to settle permanently in this part of the town, tell how these fields were once cultivated by some of the early settlers. The wild apple trees now growing around the fences are the remains of one of the first orchards in Peterborough. The picturesque old hawthorne tree in the corner of the field was brought out and planted by settlers a hundred years ago.

Downie street creek, now but a stream, was then of considerable size. Each year the water came over the hills to the north, flooding the fields, till the few settlers were obliged to abandon their homes and move to the higher land around Elm street. Only thirty years ago this creek rose till it was even with the lower floors of the houses at the base of the hills. Even to-day there is so much water around in the spring that many of the cellars of the residents are filled with water, one family in particular having not been able to light their furnace for the past two months.

In digging in the fields a block west of the course of the present stream, you will find the old bed of the creek, comprised mostly of stratified rock. The water in the spring lies in the field long after the surrounding land is dry.

The land to the south of these fields, along McDonnel street, was all swamp. The late Mr. D. W. Dumble was one of the first to reclaim some of his land, by dragging earth down from the hills around his house and filling in the swamp to the south of his land.

Little is thought while driving along McDonnel street to-day of the changes in the land around these corners.

LEFT HERE 50 YEARS AGO.

R. W. Reynolds writes from McLouth, Kansas, U. S. A., and tells us that he left this part of the Province fifty years ago. He was born near Norwood in the year 1847, and left that locality in 1870, and has lived at the place indicated above ever since. He regrets that at his age he is unable to be present. No doubt some of our older residents in the township may remember his forbears, though the time is far distant.

Historic Peterborough

(By F. H. Dobbin)

Letters from many who receive invitations state that the writers left Peterborough with their parents at a time when as mere children their impressions of the old home town were rather crude and incomplete. So they have little conception of the city of to-day, and brief reference may be not out of place to prepare for the expected visit, July next.

Peterborough is a hand-made city, literally hewn out of the hardwood forests of the now Midland District of the Province of Ontario, Canada. At the time of early settlement it was a part of the Colborne District, for purposes of such municipal direction and government as prevailed at the time, and afterward.

The sturdy pioneer settlers had the most difficult of jobs to clear the lands and subsist on sparse earnings and cultivate the soil in the crudest way. The first settler came on the ground in 1829, viewed the locality, saw possibilities for making use of the water power from the river Otonabee, and returned the year following and built a small and shaky sawmill, cut a quantity of boards and built himself a dwelling. He was Adam Scott, from the neighborhood of Port Hope, at that time known as Smith's Creek. The site of Peterborough was known for several years as Scott's Plains.

Growth followed, rather slowly. An influx from the British Isles, known as the Robinson immigration, brought over 2,000 souls to live in the hamlet and be located on the surrounding townships. In 1826 the town plot was surveyed, and the name Peterborough adopted, as a compliment to Hon. Peter Robinson, so ably associated with the bringing in of the Irish settlers.

First a moderately successful agricultural centre, Peterborough grew rapidly and became a place of considerable importance in the development of the lumber and timber business, both manufactured for the export trade to the U. S. and Britain. Fifteen large lumber cutting mills were located along the river Otonabee and the product was shipped by river and over Rice Lake and drawn in wagons to Cobourg and Port Hope, to be sent forward by water carriage.

Peterborough was incorporated in 1850, having in the intervening years grown to the status of a town, and was equipped with the details of municipal government, and made remarkable progress. Schools and places for worship were provided. Merchants came and located and prospered. Hospitals were established, and the old wooden sidewalks abandoned for those of concrete construction. Then, in after years, came the luxury of paved streets. Brick dwellings had long been the rule in a wooden country, stone giving way to brick.

The city stands in a wide depression surrounded by hills of considerable height. Such form a windbreak, modifying the inclemency of the wintry winds. Never since the settlement has Peterborough suffered from storms of wind and floods, such as cripple and deciniate other parts of the continent. All such climatic violence seems to be shut off.

The city has never hesitated to expend money for civic betterment. All public utilities are supported liberally with results that make the city a delightful place in which to live. The prosperity of a town or city depends on the steady employment of its residents, and barring the extreme winter months, employment is continuous.

The business area holds the most modern of shopping facilities. Its streets are profusely lighted. It owns water, gas, electric light and power, all self-contained. Civic services for the maintainance of order, the suppression of fire, the regulation of traffic and other beneficial services are maintained.

The Peterborough old boy or girl returning will spend a delightful holiday, or it will be his or her own fault. Every facility will be provided to make living in the city agreeable. Ample parking space, conveniently located and guarded, is already provided. Those who wish for accommodation other than at local hotels, should write the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, Peterborough, that service being taken over by the local Board of Trade.

Petes Lose Opening Game In Central League

BAD FIRST INNING BEAT PETES IN OPENING CENTRAL BATTLE; DEFENSIVE LAPSES ARE COSTLY

Oshawa Wins at Home 7 to 3 in Opening Tilt of Season.

MANY NEW FACES

Hardill Pitches Fine Ball in Hopeless Cause.

By F. D. C.

A couple of defensive flaws in the first inning of yesterday's Central Ontario League opener at Oshawa made possible a cluster of five Motorist runs and spelled defeat for Manager Swanston's Petes in their 1929 debut.

As the final count was Oshawa 7, Petes 3, it will be seen that the wobbly first inning decided the ball game.

A wind-swept fly that started foul and was blown into fair territory in left field as Red Legon tore madly over for it, a fumble by Shockey Mein and a missed third strike by the Petes' pilot himself were the breaks upon which the big innings was built.

Any one of these plays made successfully would have retired the side in the first case without a run being scored and in the second and third with only two counters instead of five.

It was a battle of right-handers, with big Matty Matthews opposing Jeff Hardill, and although the Petes' gunner fanned twelve and gave only three complimentaries, as against six walks by Matthews, the first inning defensive lapses beat him, particularly as the Petes couldn't say it with base knocks often enough to recover the lost ground.

With ordinary luck Hardill would not have been scored upon in the first frame, and Oshawa did nothing with him after that except in the eighth when they bunched three hits to earn a final pair of counters.

Matthews, despite his wild streak, kept the Petes' hits scattered until the ninth, and was given faultless support by his teammates, who played errorless ball behind their big heaver.

Manager Mat Suttons of the Motors fielded a re-vamped line-up with a number of new faces so far as Central Ontario League ball is concerned, and encouraged by the opening inning good fortune, his new machine gave a fine account of itself.

Outside of Matthews on the hilltop, Jimmy Quinn is behind the bat and Gord Young at third, there was a strange appearance to the Oshawa array. An outfield of young players, including Doc Rowden, the hockey star, and an infield that included McCallum, shifted to first base from second, and Elliott, moved out to the keystone sack from catching duty, was responsible for their altered aspect.

The Petes, too, showed changes, Manager Swanston giving some of his younger recruits a chance to win their spurs, and the rookies looked good. "Red" Hollingsworth, the former Royals second baseman, made a nice debut at shortstop and broke into the hit column as well, while Beavis and Len Hollingsworth showed themselves most promising outfield prospects. The game demonstrated that the Petes have an abundance of good material out of which to develop a winning combination.

It was a remarkably well played ball game, considering the training disadvantages the teams have encountered. Oshawa contributed a fast double-play, and Elliott and Matthews did some smart fielding. The Petes' feature play was Legon's running catch of Matthews' foul fly in the first inning.

The opening ceremonies followed the usual line with the civic dignitaries trying to show that they used to be good ball players themselves. The mayor threw in a speech for good measure, and then Umpire Ken Colling started the real doings.

Their First Inning.

The Petes were harmless in the first but the Motors were something else in their half. Hardill paved the way for the bad inning by walking Carver and after McCallum had sacrificed by dusting Elliott's shirt with a fast one. With two on the sacks Legon dashed far over the foul line to make a sparkling catch of Matthews' foul fly and the trouble seemed over. Rowden raised one in almost the same place but the wind got hold of it and blew it into fair territory and Legon converted it into a double by over running the smash. Mein erred on Young's roller and Rowden went to third. Then came the second bad break. The third strike on Quinn, which should have retired the side, got away from Swanston and Young registered. Hardill wild-pitched Young home with the fourth run of the frame and Little provided transportation for the fifth by a Texas Leaguer to centre before Grey struck out.

Oshawa did not move a finger during the next three frames while the Petes threatened but got nowhere. Harrison led off the second with a single through short but Ash hit into a double play.

In the third stanza passes to Hardill and Swanston and Rose's single to left filled the bases with two out but Hap Harrison's high fly was sotk for Rowden.

Ash started the fourth with a single to right but was freed at second on H. Hollingsworth's bunt and Beavis in turn forced Hollingsworth on a tap to third.

Rowden's single in the sixth on a slow roller to short was the first Oshawa hit after the opening frame and didn't mean anything.

The Petes finally broke into the run column in the seventh. With two out Mein and Hardill walked and Jimmy Hall, who had replaced Legon in the sixth, signalized his return to the Peterborough team by crashing a solid single to left to score Mein. A nice sop by Elliott on Rose's hot roller stopped the rally.

Oshawa wasted two hits in their half but came back with three safeties in the eighth to drive home a pair of runs. There was one out when Matthews beat out a third base tap and Rowden shot a double to second. Young walked to fill the bases and Quinn spanked a single over second to score a couple.

The Petes staged a belated rally in the ninth. "Red" Hollingsworth got his initial senior hit, a sharp single to centre and Len Hollingsworth walked. Heckman batted for Mein and drove a torrid single to left scoring R. Hollingsworth. Hardill tapped to Matthews and L. Hollingsworth was caught going home. Hall lifted one to Matthews but Rose singled over third, scoring Heckman. Rose stole second, but with the count 3 and 2 Swanston fanned, swinging, and the game was over.

NATIONALS WIN OPENING GAME

Defeat Deloro 7-3 Before Central League Crowd of 1,200 Spectators.

WEATHER HAMPERS PLAY.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., May 25 (C.P.)—Belleville Nationals, provincial champions last season, surprised all and sundry by taking the opening game of the Central League here yesterday afternoon by disposing of Deloro 7 to 3. The game was played amid weather conditions that were hardly suitable to baseball, a chill west wind hampering players and making it extremely uncomfortable for the 1,200 spectators who braved the elements to watch the champions stretch their string of victories.

Brooklyn Robins Win Opening Game of Series

BROOKLYN, N.Y., May 25 (C.P.)—Doug. McSweeny halted the Phillies here yesterday after Watson Clark was knocked out of the box in the eighth by Homer Peel's line drive, which injured one of the pitcher's fingers, and Brooklyn won the opening game of the series, 3 to 2. Win Ballou was Clark's immediate successor, but was rushed from the scene after he had passed one batter, filling the bases.

ATHLETIC MEET HELD IN OMEMEE IS BIG SUCCESS

Douglas Brandon, of Monarch Club, Lindsay, Wins F. G. Sandy Cup.

SOFTBALL TOURNAMENT.

Track and Field Events Are All Closely Contested.

The Athletic Association of Omemee was responsible for the fitting celebration on the 24th of May that was held in that village yesterday at the Athletic grounds. A miniature fair ground with a bingo booth, a cocoanut game, and a hot dog and coffee stand, where hundreds of people met to spend the holiday, was the setting of the field.

The outstanding events of the day were the five mile marathon race, for a cup donated by F. G. Sandy, M.L.A., and the softball tournament for the cup donated by Dr. G. N. Earl, of Omemee. The five miles were covered by Douglas Brandon of the Monarch Athletic Club of Lindsay, in the winning time, with Andrew Perry of the same club not far behind.

A team from Toronto, representing the Victorias defeated, first, the Monarchs, of Lindsay, and then the Bridgenorth Wildcats for the Softball cup.

The events were started off when the Little Britain brass band headed the parade of Public school children from Omemee and the surrounding schools to the Omemee Atheltic Association field. During the whole afternoon the band supplied the spectators with music that was much appreciated and made many forget the cold wind that swept across the field.

Softball Tournament.

The games of the Softball tournament attracted the most attention. The first game was between the Monarchs of Lindsay and the Victorias of Brethren 1b; Houzer 2b; Cuthbert 3b; Snclair ss; Crervar cf; Hussy lf, p; Tamblyn rf, p.

Score by innings:

Toronto	1510600
Lindsay	0001010

The second game was between the Bridgenorth Wildcats and Omemee, and the same story can be told as in the first game. Omemee, playing their game of the season, were always at the mercy of the Wildcats, who won the game by a 16-3 score.

The teams lined up:

Wildcats: Dormer 1b; Bradshaw 3b; Connors c; Forsythe p; Gillespie 2b; McWilliams cf; Curtis lf; Jopling rf; Scates ss.

Omemee: Coby c; Widdis 1b; Wilson 2b, p; Brown 3b; Adams lf; T. Parsons rf; McQuade cf; McGinnis ss, F. Parsons, p.

Score by innings:

Wildcats	2330161
Omemee	1010010

The final game developed more into a pitcher's duel, as the score indicates it was the better game, Toronto winning on a 3-1 count. Ross pitching for Toronto had nice control, with 16 strikeouts to his credit while Forsythe for Bridgenorth had eight. The Toronto team had the edge slightly over the Wildcats, and played a steadier game, which was largely responsible for the win.

The teams lined up as follows:

Toronto: Barnes c; Lee cf; Tishler 2b; Ross p; Allen 1b; Bathgate 3b; Reeves ss; Middleton lf; Thurston rf.

Score by innings:

Wildcats	00000010
Toronto	0200100

The scores of the other ball games that were played were as follows:

The game between the Omemee High School and the Lindsay High School: Omemee 9; Lindsay 3.

The result of the girls' game between Omemee and Fraserville was Omemee 6; Fraserville 9.

The results of the track events:

NEW YORKER IS NEW CHAMPION

Fred Ward is Winner of Canadian Nattional Marathon Championship.

TORONTO TRACK EVENTS.

TORONTO, Ont., May 25 (C.P.).—Fred Ward, Millrose Athletic Association, New York, won the first Canadian National Marathon championship sponsored by the Monarch Athletic Club, Toronto, and feature event of a splendid track program at University Stadium yesterday.

The course was over the regular Marathon distance of 26 miles, 385 yards. Ward's time was 2:46:38 4-5.

G. Ruotsalainen, Montreal, finished second in 2:47:25 4-5; Frank Hughes, Olympic Club, Hamilton, third; Jack O'Reilly, St. Mary's A.C., Toronto, fourth; John Cuthbert, Y.M.C.A., Guelph, fifth, and Percy Wyer, Monarch A. A., sixth.

While the marathoners were out on the course, the shorter distance and spring events were held on the Stadium track. Hamilton Olympic Club runners made a strong bid for honors all round, capturing the one mile when Dave Griffen finished first, and the three mile, won by W. Hornby, in a close finish with his club-mate, H. Webster.

Don Rivers, of the South Collegiate, London, Ont., won the 100 yards open final in a sensational finish against Dudley Powell, of the West End Y.M.C.A., Toronto.

W. G. Tatham, representing the Achilles Club, London, England, won the 880 yard open. Tatham was a member of last year's British Olympic team at Amsterdam.

Dudley Powell captured the 200-yard open, and Miss Kay Wheatley of the Canadian Ladies A. C., Toronto, won the 100-yard open for girls.

Giants Take Second Straight From Braves

NEW YORK, May 25.—(Canadian Press).—The Giants made it two straight from the Boston Braves by winning here yesterday, 7 to 3. Both of the starting pitchers, Ben Cantwell and Jack Scott, were forced out of the game by injuries.

Ott hit a line drive against Cantwells right knee in the first. Scott was put out of action in the fourth when his right wrist was struck by one of Brandts inside shoots.

Village Team Provides Stiff Opposition For Visiting Club.

SNAPPY BALL.

Double Play By Cognawagas in Final Inning Gives Them Decision.

Cognawagas are off to a good start in the East Peterborough League as a result of their 6 to 5 victory over Bethany in the opening game played in the western village on the holiday. Contrary to the expectations of some, Bethany, strengthened by three Peterborough players, gave the Cogs a run for their money, and furnished proof that they will be stiff opposition during the season. Bethany chased two runs across the plate in the last innings and only a snappy double-play nipped off the tying counter.

Although the game was close throughout it was free of any really sparkling plays. A wintry wind blew across the diamond, chilling fans and players. Considering the lack of practise of both teams, however, it was a remarkably good exhibition of the summer pastime.

Ralph, formerly of the Lockworks' team, took up the pitching burden for Bethany and he twirled a smart game, keeping an even stride that kept him out of trouble and allowed but nine hits. Vanest pitched the first four innings for the winners, and he dug himself difficult holes in the first, third and fourth innings and he was lucky to escape with only three runs against him. In the second innings Vanest retired the three batters in order on strikes. Casey Masterson was moundsman during the last three innings and, except for the sixth, Bethany took a liking to his offerings. Bethany collected a total of twelve hits, among them two doubles, and only snappy fielding kept the Cogs in front.

Bethany First to Score

Bethany went to work in the first innings, nabbing three hits and one run. McGee singled over third, and Riley went to first when Hillier chose to throw McGee out at second on his roller. Dawe and Phillips singled cleanly and Riley was home with the first run. Jones retired the side when he grabbed Staples' foul near third base. The Gogs hadn't done anything in their half.

Vanest was hit by the pitcher, Hillier was out on a foul to Reyonlds. Cripps walked. Both runners crossed the plate when Riley muffed Bob Ross' hard grounder, and the Gogs had two runs. Vanest fanned McBride, Reynolds and Ralph in order.

With one down, Jones singled in the third; Rooke singled and Jones scored when McGee dropped Hillier's long fly. Although Bethany crashed out three hits, a fast relay in from left field from Grant to Rooke to Frost caught the runner at the plate and their chances evaporated.

The Cogs had no opportunities in the fourth and Bethany tied the score. McDonough crashed out a two-bagger with one out. Reynolds was out when Ross made a great catch of his high foul. Ralph drew a walk from Vanest and McDonough came in on a wild pitch. McGill's long drive dented the centre field fence, and Ralph scored.

Cogs Take Tead

Cogs got the extra run in the fifth when Rooke singled over first, went to second on Vanest's sacrifice, to third on Hillier's clout, and over the plate on a passed ball. With one out, Bethany threatened in their half, when Dawe and Phillips both hit cleanly, but Staples and McBride both flied out.

Ross hit and scored on Billingsley's sacrifice and Grant's single. Masterson struck out Reynolds and Ralph, and McGill was retired at first unaided by Rooke.

Cogs made it six in their half of the seventh. Masterson, after going to first on a hit, moved around on Hillier's walk and a passed ball to cross the plate on Cripp's drive. Bethany made a desperate effort that nearly brought results in the dying moments of the game. With one down, Riley singled and was safe on second when Jones threw low to second to get Riley on Dawe's roller. Phillips hit to right field and Billingsleys throw home was wild; Riley and Dawe crossing the plate and Phillips landing up on the third. Staples hit to Masterson, who threw quickly to Rooke, and Rooke threw to Ross, who touched Phillips out as he slid in at the plate. The game was over.

Bethany used their old infield of Dawe, Riley, Phillips and Staples, and they all turned in sterling performances. Dawe, accepting twelves chances at first without a mistake.

Bob Ross supplied a steadying force to the Cogs infield and they all worked smartly. Jones at third and Hillier at short promise to add a good deal of punch to the Cogs.

Phillips was the big hitter of the game, with three safe clouts, while McGee, playing his first game with Bethany, got two along with McGill, Riley and Dawe. Jones and Rooke each had two hits for Cogs.

TIGERS VICTORS AFTER 21 INNINGS

Game is Short By Three Innings of Setting New Baseball Record.

CHICAGO, Ills., May 25.—(Canadian Press).—It took George Uhle 21 innings to achieve his eighth victory of the season yesterday. The Tiger ace defeated Ted Lyons 6 to 5 after three hours and 31 minutes of hard work.

The game was the longest of the season and was three innings short of the record which is 24 in the American League.

Lyons was hit freely but a stout heart and spectacular support brought him through.

The Tigers found him for 24 hits. The Sox came from behind twice to remain in the game.

Doc Rowden with three safeties, and Ray Rose with a pair, were the only batters to get more than one hit. Rowden's first double was lucky, but he kissed the second right on the trade mark.

Morrison batted for Grey in the seventh and got a hit. And while he was still thinking about it Swanston and Heckman picked him off first base.

Chicago Cubs Regain National League Lead

ST. LOUIS, May 25 (C.P.). — A three-run batting rally in the eighth inning in which Bill Sherdel was driven from the mound enabled the Chicago Cubs to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals 5 to 4 yesterday and regain the National League leadership.

Jim Bottomley, Cardinal first baseman, had a big day at bat, poling two homers and getting a double.

FEATURES OF OPENING GAME

A remarkable feature of yesterday's battle was that Ash was the only member of the Petes' starting line-up who played against Oshawa on Victoria Day last year, while only McCallum and Elliott of the initial Oshawa line-up yesterday were in last year's opening line-up.

A year ago the Petes started the following line-up against the Motorists: Holyman s.s., Johnston 3b., Jake Hall lf., Ash 1b., Wilgar c., Heckman p., Smith c.f., Batten 2b., Turner r.f., while the Oshawa line-up was Wolfe c.f., Kellar 1b., Williams r.f., Dainty p., Sutton 2b., T. Morrison s.s., Fair lf., H. Morrison 3b., Elliott c.

Thus of the eighteen players who began the first game on Victoria Day last year, only three were in action when yesterday's game began. And to make it still more worthy of note not one of the three played the same position yesterday as he did in the 1928 opener.

Mein made the Petes' first error and also their first run, Red Hollingsworth drew their first base on balls, Hap Harrison made their first hit and was the first to strike out. Jimmy Hall was the first Peterborough batter to drive in a run, and Beavis was the first to steal a base.

There was one for the book at Oshawa yesterday when a teamster with a wagon load of sand drove on to the field half way through the battle and insisted that he had been told to dump it in front of the Petes' dugout. "Orders was orders" with that bird and for a while it looked as if Umpire Colling and the Oshawa officials were not going to be able to persuade him that some other time when there wasn't a ball game on would be a more suitable occasion to deliver a load of sand.

A little wild to start with Jeff Hardill soon levelled away and despite the tough breaks of the opening frame he twirled a mighty nice game of ball, setting down 12 of the enemy on strikes. One of them was the veteran Reg Fair who batted for Morrison in the eighth. Hardill only threw three to the old timer.

LEAFS SPLIT DOUBLE BILL

Toronto Club Winners in Morning Affair 8-5, But Drop Afternoon Decision 6-5.

KEYS SWEEP SERIES.

TORONTO, Ont., May 25.—(Canadian Press).—After prodding Jack Berly and Paul Derringer for 14 hits to defeat Rochester 8 to 5 in the morning game yesterday the Leafs lost the afternoon affair 6 to 5, largely through the ineffectiveness in the first inning of their starting pitcher, Lefty Abe Martin, and Fred Bedore's silent bat with men on base. As it turned out, however, Jimmy Collins' home-run drive over the left field fence in the sixth with Walter Leverenz on the pitching throne was the Red Wings margin at the finish.

WIN HOLIDAY PROGRAM

MONTREAL, Que., May 25.—(Canadian Press).—Buffalo continued its assault on Montreal pitching yesterday afternoon and a great holiday crowd of 15,000 swallowed a bitter pill as the Herd captured both games of the closing twin bill of the series, 9-4 and 5-1.

Lefty Williams outpitched Bucalew in the first game while the Royals fielded badly in the bargain. Fowler hit a home run with two aboard in the sixth to tie the score, but the Bisons put on another vicious batting display in the eighth and scampered in with an easy win.

KEYS SWEEP SERIES

NEWARK, May 25.—(Canadian Press).—Reading made a clean sweep of its three-game series with the Newark Bears by taking the final contest yesterday, 6 to 2.

Chick Davies and Ed Holley waged a pitching battle until the ninth inning, when Davies weakened and the Keys scored six runs on five hits and an error.

CATS TAKE THIRD GAME.

JERSEY CITY, May 23.—(Canadian Press). Jersey City took the third game and the series here yesterday from Baltimore, 8 to 2.

With the score deadlocked in the sixth, the Black Cats came to bat in their half of the seventh and scored four runs on Fritz Combe who went in for Clarkson.

MAKES NEW RECORD

PARIS, May 25.—The French flier, Lenoignie yesterday beat the world's height record for a plane loaded with half a ton, reaching a height of about 31,000 feet at Valla Conlay. The previous record of the German, Schinzinger, was just over 30,000 feet.

MOOSE SWAMP CANUCK CLUB IN JUVENILE BATTLE 32-7

Victors Play Flawless Ball To Take Decisive Decision From South-enders.

HEAVY HITTING.

The baseball team which is being sponsored by the Loyal Order of Moose in the Juvenile City League swamped the Canuck team 32-7 in the opening game of this series at the Exhibition Grounds yesterday afternoon.

The Moose are a well balanced team and every member did his share of the heavy hitting which netted them a high total, but the main factor in the lopsided score was the fact that the Canuck outfielders were unable to catch even one of the flies, while the Moose fielders played almost flawless ball, Dallin being especially brilliant in left field, accepting 7 chances without an error.

Cuthbertson, McCullough and Foley supplied most of the heavy hitting for the winners the former being able to slap out three three-base hits and two safe bunts. Whatley, McCullough, Sproats and Dallin each came through with a two-bagger, all of which came with men on bases.

Dinesen, who started on the mound for the Canucks pitched nice ball but was given very poor support. He struck out four men in three innings and was nicked for ten hits and two walks, which the Moose stretched into thirteen runs. He was replaced at the first of the fourth by McIlwain, who had one strike out, one walk and was touched for fifteen safe hits, bringing the total runs up to 32. Of the two pitchers Dinesen was the best and if given any kind of support could have made the game a great deal closer than it was.

Ernie Jones did the hurling for the Moose for the whole of the game. He passed one, and allowed seven hits, being unable to secure a strike out His teammates gave him sterling support while Whatley, behind the bat, played a great game. The only weak bit of playing exhibited by the winners was done in the infield. Sproats on second fumbled a couple while Cuthbertson made two wild pegs to first.

Ran Wild on Bases.

The Canuck catcher Lazure was slow in his peg to second and third and as a result the Moose ran wild on the bases while the two Canuck hurlers completed the disaster by making a long wind up with men on bases. The Moose backstop, Whatley, on the other hand, had his throw to second well in hand, which made stealing a risky practise.

The teams:

Canucks—Willshaw, 3b; Rogers, cf; McCarroll, 2b; Price, ss; Lazure, c; Mesley, 1b; Burke, 3b; Thirnbeck, rf; Dinesen, p; McIlwain, p; O'Brien, rf.

Umpires—Vince O'Connal at the plate; H. McFadden, Jr., on the bases.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

JOAN CRAWFORD, SCREENLAND'S QUEEN OF JAZZMANIA, WITH NILS ASTHER, WILL BE SEEN AT THE CAPITOL MONDAY, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY IN "DREAM OF LOVE".

Joan Crawford, screenland's living symbol of jazzmania, has deserted the ranks of flapperdom for the exotic heights of romantic intrigue in "Dream of Love" which comes to the Capitol, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The shingle-bobbed, sun-bronzed dance-suppled madcap of cinema-land comes before us in this modernization of "Adrienne Lecouvreur" famous old French play, and plays the dramatic role in which the great Sarah Bernhardt starred for many seasons in European capitals.

Fred Niblo sponsored Joan's metamorphosis and screened the seventeenth century play upon a lavish nineteenth century scale with a revolutionary Balkan kingdom as the colorful background for the romantic theme.

Nils Asther, who captured so many feminine hearts in "Her Cardboard Lover" is seen opposite Miss Crawford and joins with her in giving performances of striking strength and dramatic power. Certainly, they are magnificently capable as the strolling gypsy player and incognito prince, and with such players as Aileen Pringle, Warner Oland and Carmel Myers in the elaborate supporting cast, the screen play brings out some splendid character portrayals.

The assignment of Miss Crawford to the leading role in Dorothy Farnum's adaptation of the stirring drama is believed to mark a turning point in her career and the young player's determination to justify the producer's faith in her ability is amply in evidence. Never before was Joan more beautiful on the screen and the warmth of feeling with which she endows her characterization imparts added charm to her delineation.

Revolutions, gay court functions and intimate boudoir scenes supply a world of thrills and suspense in the sparkling production.

"THE LAWLESS LEGION."

The Capitol had large audiences for three shows yesterday, with a double performance in the evening. There is a popular western feature, a Charlie Chaplin comedy and a snappy vaudeville team in the Musical Shermans, who give some of the best music heard on the Capitol stage for some time. They are a clean-cut, refined pair of players, and their music last night brought them repeated and prolonged applause from a very pleased audience.

The Musical Shermans play Hawaiian guitars and banjos, and they do it so well that their hearers encore them more than once. They have a repertoire of popular numbers and the man in the act gives some imitations that are extremely clever and include a recitation by a little girl of "Mary's Little Lamb," the nocturnal conversation of a pair of cats and a bulldog on the back fence, the return of the intoxicated gentleman to his home, late at night, and a very amusing bit that imitates a fife and drum band.

The comedy is a resurrected Chaplin farce that illustrates the well-known mannerisms of the famous star and brings in his blonde lady assistant Edna Purviance, and the Mephistophelian giant with the crooked eyebrows.

Ken Maynard, in "The Lawess Legion," has to take second place to his superb white horse, Tarzan, who is really the premier actor in the picture. The beautiful animal does some expert stunts and makes a wonderful adjunct to a thrilling Western feature picture, which has all the elements of romance and quick action and intrigue that are familiar to lovers of this type of production. It tells the story of a band of rustlers who make away with a huge herd that is being driven from a drought-stricken area, to fresh pasture lands. Ken Maynard, as the hero, Bob Stanley, is drugged with doped coffee and his companions blame him for the loss of the herd. He goes, single-handed, to the outlaws' nest, and does some wonderful deeds of derring-do before he achieves his purpose, in the return of the herd and the capture of the heroine, Mary Saunders, a part played by Norah Lane. But Tarzan remains the hero of the piece.—Jeanette.

Gore Plays Well Behind the Wicket For Peterborough C. C.

The St. Edmund's C. C. of Toronto played the local club at the Oval yesterday afternoon and in a keen game were victorious by 26 runs. The Peterborough team batted first and it was soon evident that runs were hard to get. The wicket was on the soft side and the ball travelled slowly in the field. The first wicket fell with only 2 runs on the board, Hamilton being bowled. The next wicket fell at 12, Jefferson being caught close to the ground. Gore scored 3 and was then out l.b.w. Dyer was clean bowled without scoring and four good wickets were down for 17 runs.

Thorpe and Dunkerley raised the score to 24 before the former was bowled by Dean after scoring 10 runs. Stuart and Mitchell left with the score at 26. Dunkerley and Elliot, by careful cricket, added 20 runs for the next wicket, before the former was caught. Monkman was given out l.b.w. after scoring 1 run. Imming kept up his end while Elliot added a few more runs, the innings closing at 53; Elliot being top scorer with 11 runs to his credit. The bowling and fielding of the St. Edmund's team was good. Dean took 3 wickets for 7 runs; Simmons, 3 for 14, and Rigby 2 for 16.

Make Poor Start

The visitors also made a poor start, losing 2 wickets for 4 runs. Wright being well caught by Mitchell, and Williamson smartly run out. Lister and Hunter carried the score to 16 when Dunkerley, who had taken the ball from Elliott, clean bowled Hunter. The next partnership added 16 runs, when Jefferson bowled Jackson, who scored 12 in very quick time. Simmons and Dean batted freely, although both were very lucky, being missed in the field off Sharp chances. As a matter of fact, the latter played on to his wicket off Thorpe's bowling before he had scored, but the bails were not removed. The Peterborough score was passed with 5 wickets to spare. Rigby and Wright made a useful stand and the score was finally brought to 73, when Thorpe accepted a hot return from Wright close to the ground with one hand, to end the innings.

Mitchell, a new man on the Peterborough team, made two brilliant catches at point.

The Peterborough club played smart fielding; Gore doing well behind the wickets, not allowing a single bye during the innings. Thorpe claimed 3 wickets for 14 runs; Jefferson, 2 for 13; and Dunkerley, 2 for 17. The showing of the Peterborough team was excellent considering that, due to wet grounds, they haev been unable to practice. They will, no doubt, give a good account of themselves before the season is over. The return game will be played in Toronto on Civic Holiday.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

This here billy-doo is being writ Thurs. p.m., so, of course, I ain't able to say much about the ball games, if any, what Peterborough teams in scheduled to play Victoria Day. 3 of the local clubs is due to start, the Central Leaguers in Oshawa, the Rays in a Lakeshore League tussle in the same place, and the Cogs in the western suburb of Bethany, this latter being a E. P. League battle. Right now I'm calling all 3 to win, so by the time the customers look this over they'll be able to see what a good prognosticator, or what have you, I'm turned out to do.

As I said last week, Mac, this oughta be quite a season. I can't remember when they was so much enthusiasm in the Petes' camp so early in the year, or when the lads was in better shape for the opener. They been getting a lot of work in spite of the cold breezes, and right now they look good. The young material is coming along nice, the Petes has 2 red-heads on their team, which is always a good sign, and all in all they oughta put up a tough argument all the way. They're due to open their local season here next Sat. with Deloro, and with Prexy Elliott's re-vamped team as the initial attraction, the first home game of the year oughta be a real drawing card. Better get over yourself and give them a look over, Mac.

In the other series they's going to be lots of baseball, Mac. The E. P. League has Bethany, Hastings, the Cogs and Crescents lined up, and the league will likely provide plenty of excitement for Exhibition Park fans. The Raybestos gang in the Lakeshore loop is tackling some new teams, but despite a coupla losses from last year's outfit, the brakeline gang has picked up Mister Lam. Collins and Mister Ike Batten to fill the holes, and should get some help in the heaving department from young Mister Kitchen, who used to be on the turtle back for the Royals in the junior serious last season.

With the City League also perking up with some keen competition promised, it looks as if hardball in this man's town had the softball variety fairly on the run, which ain't something over which I'm going to shed tears.

Golf scores is getting quite a play in the headlines these days, Mac, and I notice where this Mister Boomer, the British star, did 18 holes in the French tourney in 61. If the lads keep on whittling down their records like that it won't be long before the Hagens and the Compton's will be able to go around like the flappers in almost nothing at all.

I hear fishing is showing a decided turn for the better around these parts—in fact, the lads is able to land a average of 1 pickerel for every plug they lose, which is considered a pretty fair record. This, of course, is only hearsay. I ain't been out myself and I ain't seen a pickerel, so I got no 1st-hand knowledge. Likely some of the lads called around when they was nobody home to our house. In case they happen to drop around again and find me out, they can just put the fish up somewheres where the cat can't get at it. Meanwhile I'll get along with butchers' meat and such.

Well, Mac, if to-morrow's games ain't rained out they oughta be something to talk about for next week—so for the present I'll just buzz off.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

BRINTONS AND C. G. E. DRAW SPALDING CUP

Ben McMaster Marksman For the C.G.E. in First Half.

TWO GOALS EACH.

James Evened Up the Count From Penalty Kicks Seven Minutes to Go.

On Thursday evening, the Canadian General and Brinton soccer teams battled to a 2-all draw in the first round of the Spalding Cup. The Electric boys had the game won until seven minutes to go, when the defence gave away two penalty kicks that James converted. A good crowd faced the inclemency of the weather the full time of the game.

First Half.

Ben McMaster set the ball arolling for the Canadian General. Cherrill on the right penetrated the defence to gain an unproductive flag-kick. Figg punted clear to his forwards that made progress towards Brinton's goal, where the full backs nullified their attack.

C.G.E. Opened Scoring.

On a visit by Brinton forwards, Wade upset their intention by carrying the ball along the line until within shooting distance. He landed it right in goal, where Curtis saved but couldn't prevent the rebound going through off the centre forward. Both goals went under different rails without anything tangible being done. Although Bolton had the most spectacular save from Cherrill's right footer, while at the other end Mitchell skiffed the cross-bar with a fast drive, with the goalkeeper up in the air to save the ball. The Brintons now came into the picture through very aggressive tactics that found a stubborn defence.

Erratic Shooting.

Time and again, the respective forwards would carry the attack right up against the custodian, instead of having a try at goal before getting too close, otherwise the ball went for nought. Eventually the Canadian General settled down to the game in real earnest when Blowers repeatedly made openings that provided the left wing with opportunities galore.

A Snappy Goal.

He manoeuvred the play to his desire and passed the ball to the centre forward, who made no mistake with a first timer along the ground. Encouraged by their success, the Canadian General forced the issue in no minor measure, in fact, Curtis putting in a brilliant piece work in the goal from the shots ranged at him. Half-time: C.G.E. 2, Brinton 0.

Half-Time.

On resuming, the Canadian General added the pressure right away and kept the Brinton goalkeeper busy for a while. A foul kick outside the penalty area looked dangerous for the carpet boys, until Curtis saved a hot drive for the inside of the post. Bolton performed likewise in goal at the other end, when Sharman picked the far corner of the upright. On midfield play, the C.G.E. halves forced the issue and kept their forwards plied with openings that found the goalkeeper right on the spot.

Bolton Brilliant.

As time wore on, the Brinton forwards would evade the full backs, only to find Bolton unbeatable. Quick as a flash, James worked inside the defence to be stopped at the critical moment.

James Scored From Penalties.

At last the C.G.E. full back, Figg, gave away a spot kick when he took the man instead of the ball inside the dreaded area. From the penalty kick, James beat Bolton wholesale, and within the next two minutes, he emulated the same dose upon the custodian with a rocket drive about waist-line height, to even up the count. It was impossible to see the ball in the remainder of the tussle. Final—C.G.E. 2, Brinton 2.

The Teams.

Brinton—Curtis, goal; Lucas and H. Curtis, full backs; Bayliss, Hawthorne and W. Jones, halves; Cherrill, E. Jones, James, Sharman and Creighton, forwards.

Canadian General—Bolton, goal; Wade and Figg, full backs; Robb, Mann and Blowers, halves; Rankin, J. McMaster, B. McMaster, Mitchell and Burgess, forwards.

Referee—A. Aitkenhead.

Mrs. C. M. Westmacott Is Hostess to Members of St. Thomas' Church Society.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, May 25. — Mrs. C. M. Westmacott, president of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of St. Thomas' church, entertained the organization for its May meeting, the gathering being at her home on Monday, May 20, at 8 p.m., the large attendance showing the interest and enthusiasm for the work.

Rev. P. W. A. Roberts took charge of the opening worship period, and the president occupied the chair for the remainder of the evening.

The officers' reports showed a commendable activity, and the letter received from the fourteen-year old Indian girl at the Mackay School, The Pas, Manitoba, thanking the Auxiliary for the bale, which contained a complete outfit of clothing, for this secretary.
child for the year, was read by the Business items included discussion regarding the holding of a garden party in June, a special meeting to be called in the near future to make further arrangements.

The resignation of Miss B. M. Turner as the Junior W.A., was regretfully received, and the matter of appointing a successor to this important position, was left over for the present, as the boys and girls have discontinued their meetings until fall.

The main feautre of the meeting was the report of the recent diocesan W.A. convention held in Toronto, the delegate, Mrs. H. R. Scott giving a very interesting and instructive account of the proceedings during the three days she had spent in attendance.

The usual half hour with the study book was dispensed with on Monday evening owing to the time devoted to hearing and discussing the report so ably presented by Mrs. Scott.

The hostess, assisted by Miss Macnamara, served dainty refreshments during the social hour enjoyed at the close, and the usual votes of thanks were passed before the gathering dispersed.

The May meeting of the Auxiliary marked the closing of the W. A. for the summer months, the next regular gathering to be in September, the time and place to be announced later.

Personals.

Miss Elizabeth Dixon was the guest of Mrs. C. M. Westmacott over the week-end, coming from Toronto by motor.

Mrs. Jessie King spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Allen, motoring from Toronto on Saturday, and returning to the city on Monday evening.

Mrs. Will Anderson of Peterborough, spent the week-end, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. George, Anne street.

JUNIOR BRANCH HOLDS SHOWER

Interesting Program Is Given At Meeting of St. George's Junior W. A.

CERTIFICATES PRESENTED.

A handkerchief shower and collection of small articles for a fish pond was held by the Junior branch of the Women's Auxiliary of St. George's Church in the church basement on Wednesday evening. A large number (able).—Commenting on Sir Austen of handkerchiefs and small gifts were received in readiness for the Junior Auxiliary booth at the sale of work in the fall. After the opening hymn and members' prayer, a program of varied items was given by the members as follows: Vocal solos by Beatrice Curtis, Ruth Farr, Arabella Thompson and Tommy Parkes; a duet by Agnes Sturgeon and Ruth Farr; recitations by Doris Ferguson and A. Sturgeon, and pianoforte solos by Marjorie Sims and Beatty Ferguson.

An intermission was made in the program, when certificates and pictures were distributed to those who had passed the examination on the missionary study book last month.

Mrs. Hughes stated that eleven girls and boys had taken the examination and nine had succeeded in passing.

The Rector was asked to hand out the awards to the following successful candidates: Marjorie Sims, Hazel Jones, Ruth McBride, Agnes Sturgeon, Ruth Farr, Theodora Johnston, Tommy Monk, Stanley McBride, Bernard King.

Three of the senior girls who motored to Toronto and attended the junior service in connection with the annual meeting, then gave some account of their visit and the impressive words of the two addresses given by the Lord Bishop of the Diocese and the Ven. Archdeacon Fleming of the Arctic.

Refreshments were afterwards served by Mrs. Hughes, Mrs. J. McWilliams and the senior girls, and the meeting closed with prayer.

SCHOOL INSPECTOR ADDRESSES PUPILS

Empire Day Was Fittingly Celebrated at the Queen Alexandra School.

Empire Day was observed at Queen Alexandra School Thursday afternoon by the pupils and teachers of the school. There was a good attendance of parents. An excellent program was provided, the feature being a talk by R. F. Downey, County School Inspector, on an appropriate Empire Day subject that was of great interest to both the young and the older people present. The pupils joined in singing several patriotic songs in a manner that showed much preparation.

The program was as follows:
"O Canada."
"Ye Mariners of England."
Recitation by Jean Kerr.
"The British Grenadiers."
"Men of Harlech."
Playlet, "A Wreath of Britannia."
Mr. Downey.
Trio.
"Rule Britannia."
National Anthem.

SIDELIGHTS ON ELECTION

(By Canadian Press.)

LONDON, May 25.—Numerous instances of whole families, including the youngest children, being placed on the electoral register have occurred due to mistakes by the parents in filling out the forms. But in Sheffield an unborn babe was actually entered by the father. It arrived afterwards and fulfilled the proud father's confidence as to its sex, and was duly enfranchised.

In an interview to-day Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George predicted that the aggregate vote for the Conservatives would be 6,500,000; the aggregate Liberal vote 7,000,000 and the aggregate Labor vote 7,500,000.

For the first time in history a member of the French Chamber of Deputies participated in the British general elections when Henri Haye, member of Versailles, at Chiswick last night spoke in support of Col. Grant Morden, Canadian-born member of the last parliament. He did not want to talk of politics but rather to support an old friend, M. Haye said. He had fought besides British soldiers in the war and wanted to plead for peace.

Sir Herbert Samuel, Chief Liberal organizer, at Llandudno last night, ironically commented that the Conservative slogan of "safety first" suggested as new British emblems, Britannia with an umbrella, or St. George and the rabbit, instead of the traditional St. George and the dragon.

Hon. George Lambton, well known race horse owner and trainer, speaking at Oldham, offered the following estimate of the three political leaders: "Baldwin, sound in wind and limb. He has never failed when called on for a big effort; Lloyd-George, a good looking horse with a flowing mane and tail but a roving eye. He has done some wonderful things but even on his best days he is an uncertain runner, just the sort of horse to catch the mugs and flat; MacDonald, showed good form at times but has been ridden by two many jockeys, some of them foreigners and not even Germans. He has been trained by different trainers and therefore has acquired some bad habits."

Viscount Casterleigh, Conservative candidate in Darlington, and A. Sheppard, his Labor opponent, propose to play each other a game of tennis Saturday with J. J. Richardson, the Liberal candidate, as umpire.

Rt. Hon. Lloyd George delivered what has been called one of his mountain rhapsodies during his Welsh tour in enlarging on his unemployment scheme. He said, "We have in these mountains the most beautiful scenery in the world, especially when the sun shines, but I like it also in its storm, in its angry mood when it is tossing it main of clouds and shaking them in the face of the elements. There is a grandeur, a glory and a sublimity about it then. There is purer and more glorious gold lying resplendent in the heart of these hills than in any mine in the world. Let us then drive our shafts to touch that gold and start a gold rush from the teeming populations of Manchester, Oldham, Birmingham and the ends of the earth."

The Communist party has issued a statement urging the voters in ridings where there is no Communist candidate to write "Communism or some similar slogan" across the ballot paper.

EIGHT PERSONS INJURED.

MENDOZA, Argentina, May 25. — Eight persons were injured, some seriously, in a series of strong earthshocks early this morning.

Many buildings were so badly shaken that their walls were cracked and in some cases walls fell, causing casualties.

Could Not Sleep Heart Would Start Pumping and Pounding

Mrs. Fred P. Averill, 136-12th Ave., Calgary, Alta., writes:—"I was bothered so much with my heart I could not sleep. I would waken up in the night screaming, and my heart would start pumping and pounding.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

A person who publicly preaches, what he knows to be false, cannot respect himself nor command respect from those who know of his course of action. Doing this for monetary considerations, position, or some other selfish purpose, cannot be regarded as an honorable act. It is also absurd to do evil, with the hope that good may be the result. Excuses may be given, but it is an act of injustice to deceive the people.

It is mean and contemptible to speak untruthfully and act unjustly. The foregoing somewhat strong language belongs only to those who wilfully teach error, and not to those worthy characters who are preaching what they honestly believe to be the truth. M. T. BUTCHER.

FRENCH DEFEAT U. S. CHAMPIONS

Tilden and Hunter Put Up Great Fight in Doubles Championship.

ALL-FRENCH FINAL

PARIS, May 25.—(C.P.)—Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter of the United States los their first 1929 battle with their old French rivals to-day, losing to Jean Borotra and Rene Lacoste in the semi-finals of the French doubles championship. The scores were 6-3, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3.

The smashing victory over America's first and second ranking stars assured an All-French final for the titals as Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon eliminated the English team of J. C. Gregory and I. G. Collins earlier in the day in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.

Tilden and Hunter put up a good fight and managed to check their opponents' attack long enough to win the third set, but the younger team packed the greater endurance and came back with a rush that would not be denied.

WEDDING BELLS

WHITE—WINN.

A pretty wedding was solemnized Thursday afternoon by Rev. Father Costello, when Irene, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Winn, was united in holy bonds of matirmony to Arthur White of Peterborough.

The bride looked charming in a powder blue georgette dress with large picture hat to match, black satin shoes and carried a bouquet of ophelia roses and carnations.

The bridesmaid, Miss Florence Winn, sister of the bride, wore a dress of madeline blue, blonde trimmings with large hat and hose to match, black satin shoes and carried a bouquet of carnations and ferns.

Jack Phelan supported the groom.

They left on the 5.15 train for a brief honeymoon. On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

LEGGETT—ROWE.

COLVILLE, Sask., May 25.— Scott Presbyterian church at Coleville, was the scene of a pretty spring wedding on Tuesday morning, May 7th, when Miss Ethel Rowe, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rowe, of Peterborough, became the bride of Rev. Arthur Leggett, of Kindersley, Sask.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Gardner Dickey of Rosetown, Sask., and the bride was given away by Mr. John Brent, of Coleville, Sask.

The bride entered the church to the strains of the bridal chorus by Lohengrin. played by Miss Beulah Brent, of Coleville. The bride looked lovely in a French gown of white satin back crepe and wore a veil of silk embroidered net arranged in cap effect and caught at the sides by orange blossoms. She carried a lovely bouquet of Columbia Roses.

After the ceremony had been performed the congregation sang "Blest be the tie that binds," and while the register was being signed Miss Brent played Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

A dainty wedding breakfast was served in the church home where Miss Rowe has lived for the past sixteen months, by the ladies of the church, assisted by Misses Gladys Close, Marion Farris and Dorothy Laing.

The happy couple left by car for Saskatoon amidst a shower of confetti and the sincere good wishes of a host of friends from Kindersley and Coleville.

The bride's going away gown was of poudre blue flat crepe silk with hat to match. She wore a navy blue coat with mole fur collar, with shoes, gloves and bag to match.

In Police Court

That Victoria Day passed peaceably in the city was indicated by the very light docket that greeted Magistrate Langley this morning. A local man pleaded to being drunk on Perry Street last evening, and he was fined $10 and $4.50 costs.

A young man of an adjoining township pleaded guilty to consuming liquor in other than a residence, namely, the Lakefield Road, and he paid a fine and costs amounting to $20.

"I'm guilty, I'll admit it. I won't tell a lie," were the Washingtonian principles as expressed by a Buckhorn man when he answered a charge of being drunk on the road in the Township of Harvey. He paid a fine of $10 and costs of $5.

Male Voice Choir Arrives Home

Local Choristers Are Given Rousing Welcome on Return

Members of Choir Are Greeted With Cheers and Congratulations As Train Pulls In to the C.N.R. Station At Noon To-day.

BANQUET IS BEING PLANNED BY BOARD OF ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH FOR TUESDAY

Pictures Are Taken and Choir Renders Several Numbers To Large Crowd of Well Wishers Who Were Present at the Station.

The returning Peterborough Male Voice Choir arrived home at noon to-day after their victorious New York trip, in which they were placed third in the final competition on Saturday of class B in the gala choral contest there.

A crowd of friends, and wives of the members of the choir gathered at the Canadian National station shortly before twelve o'clock to welcome the members as they arrived.

When the train pulled in the men of the Choir were greeted with cheers and congratulations. The members leaning out of the car windows cheering and waving a welcome in reply to the ovation they received.

On leaving the car they were welcomed on every hand with hearty handclasps and slaps on the back, all going to show how glad and how happy their well wishers were that the trip had been one of success and one which would make Peterborough known in musical circles.

Tired as they were the Choir lined up along the south wall of the station to have their picture taken by Fred Roy and Alex Darling who were on hand to secure an official picture of the victorious return.

Sang Several Numbers.

After the picture, the men stood up and gave song to their feelings, glad to be home again after the hectic trip, the refrain of Home Sweet Home echoed over the city, followed by another number depicting their happy feeling when they sang the catchy little song "One More River to Cross" and then in tribute to the honor that they brought upon their home town and their native land the stirring strains of "O Canada," were sung with great feeling.

Martin Chenhall, Sr., A.R.C.O. leader and trainer of this successful organization, as he stepped from the train was given a great reception and at the close of the singing of the choir at the station he led the members in three hearty cheers for the men of the city, who made the trip possible, and to whom the great-

Prince Of Sagan, 19, Shoots Himself; Mother, Anna Gould, Forbade Marriage

Paris, May 27—The Duchess de Talleyrand, who was formerly Anna Gould, announced last last night that her 19-year-old son Howard, Prince of Sagan, is near death in a private hospital, after shooting himself a week ago.

The young prince attempted suicide because his parents had refused their consent to his immediate marriage to a French girl he met recently in Southern France, where he had been attending school.

"The Duke and Duchess de Talleyrand" the statement from the youth's mother reads, "regret keenly to announce the critical illness of their son, Howard de Talleyrand, who is not yet 20 years old. He shot himself because his parents refused their permission to marry until he was 21.

"The shooting took place in our home and our son was taken to a hospital in the Rue Puccini. Dr. Hartel, an eminent Parisian surgeon, was summoned at onec and operated to remove the bullet in the region of the heart.

"The operation was successful but pleurisy developed afterward and our son is now in an extremely grave condition.

"We wish to emphasize that we had no objection to the girl, but only opposed the marriage because of our son's age."

At the hospital it was said the Prince had only the slightest chance of recovery. Pleurisy has developed in the wound caused by the bullet, which went between the lung and liver.

The Prince informed his mother that he wanted to marry only a few minutes before he shot himself. When the Duchess told him he was too young he threatened to kill himself unless she gave her immediate permission, but his mother did not take him seriously.

As soon as she left the room she heard a pistol report and rushed back to find the boy had attempted to make good his threat.

Roadster Turns Over After Skidding At Hill-Top

Mrs. Hunter, 229 Kingston Road, Is Victim of Accident—Had Motored To Visit Daughter On Saturday and Was On Pleasure Drive.

THREE PASSENGERS IN RUMBLE SEAT MIRACULOUSLY ESCAPE ALL INJURY

Mrs. W. J. Webster, of Lakefield, is Rushed to Hospital Seriously Hurt—Coroner Dr. Young Called in Absence of Dr. Smith.

Mrs. J. Hunter, 47 years of age, 229 Kingston road, Toronto, was instantly killed, and Mrs. W. J. Webster of Lakefield was seriously injured, when the roadster in which they were driving skidded and overturned near Huggins' school yesterday afternoon. Three other passengers escaped unscathed.

Mrs. Hunter motored from Toronto on Saturday to spend the week end with her daughter, Mrs. C. F. Webster, at Lakefield. On Sunday afternoon she set out for a pleasure drive with Mrs. W. J. Webster, her daughter's mother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Hutt, and Ducie Chads. Mrs. Hutt is a daughter of Mrs. W. J. Webster, and Ducie Chads is her grandson. The Hutts and the Chads youth were occupying the rumble seat when the accident occurred, and none of them was injured.

It was just outside the village, at the top of the hill near Huggins' school, that the car skidded, and turned over.

Dr. Alex Fraser, who was called to the scene of the accident, found Mrs. Hunter dead, and Mrs. Webster so badly injured that he had her rushed to hospital in Peterboorugh.

Coroner Dr. J. C. Smth being absent from the village in New York, Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young of Peterborough was summoned. It is not yet know whether there will be an inquest.

FLOODS THREATEN PELEE ISLAND AS WATERS RISE IN LAKE ERIE

Five Thousand Acres of Land Or Half of Island Are in Jeopardy.

HIGHEST IN 100 YEARS.

Four Foot Bank Is All That Is Holding Back the Great Waves.

WINDSOR, Ont., May 27 (Canadian Press).—Five thousand acres of land, half of Pelee Island, are in jeopardy to-day with only a slender sandbank between the land and the waves of Lake Erie.

Ralph Harris, ex-Reeve of the island, telephoned to Windsor to-day that the situation was dangerous in the extreme.

Fear that the fate which overtook three hundred farmers at Erieau two weeks ago may be theirs to-day, is urging the Pelee Islanders to desperate measures.

The water, highest for nearly 100 years, threatens to top at any moment the tall sandbank which is the island's only protection. Within the bank, the land is 5½ feet lower than the lake level. If the flood rises over the bank, nothing can save 5,000 acres from complete inundation, Mr. Harris said. The bank is about four feet wide at the top.

DR. R. P. MACKAY PASSES AWAY

83 YEARS OLD.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., May 27. —(Canadian Press).—Rev. R. P. MacKay, a former Moderator of the Presbyterian church in Canada and for 48 years secretary of the Foreign Mission Board of the Church, died at the home of his niece here early to-day. He was stricken with a heart attack Saturday upon his arrival from Toronto and failed to rally.

The body will be taken to Toronto for burial from his home there. Mr. MacKay had come to conduct Sunday services in a local church. He was 83 years of age and was well-known throughout the dominion. He was a noted advocate of church union.

Born in the township of West Zorra, of Highland extraction, Dr. MacKay received his very early education in a little log schoolhouse on the corner of his father's farm. He lated attended Normal school, Toronto; Knox College, and University of Toronto. He was inducted in Knox Church at Agincour, and in 1994 he became minister at Parkdale Presbyterian Church, Toronto.

Dr. MacKay was appointed secretary of the Foreign Missions Committee of the Presbyterian Church in 1892, which post he filled until Church Union.

He served as president of the western section of the Pan-American Presbyterian Council and also as president of the conferenec of the Foreign Missions Board of North America with headquarters in New York City.

The body will be forwarded to Toronto to-day, where funeral arrangements will be completed.

LABOR PARTY IS CONTESTING TEN DIVISIONS IN LIVERPOOL

Veteran "Tay Pay" O'Connor Carried Other Seat By Acclamation.

Conservatives Handicapped.

Liberals Are Concentrating Their Strength On Five Divisions.

(By W. Innes Hutchison, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.)

LIVERPOOL, England, May 27.—Ten of the eleven divisions of Liverpool are being contested in the general election, the exception being the stronghold of Irish Catholicism, Scotland division, represented for so many years by the veteran "Tay Pay" O'Connor. Originally Mr. O'Connor was threatened by a young Communist who, however, was unable to produce his election deposit on nomination day. The result would have been the same in any case and "Tay Pay" would have retained the proud position of "Father in the House of Commons."

Labor's desire to increase its hold on this great seaport may be judged from the fact that they have a candidate in each division, including J. H. Hayes, former Metropolitan policeman, who has been the member for Edgehill for a number of years, a riding in which there are many railwaymen. Joseph Gibbons has represented West Toxteth, the home of the dock workers, for many years, and the return of these two Laborites is confidently expected. But Labor is working for a good deal more than this and some shrewd judges will not be surprised if they capture one or two other seats.

Conservatives Handicapped.

Conservatism to some extent, is handicapped by the absence of familiar faces like that of Sir Leslie Scott, the eminent barrister, who is not fighting in the Exchange division this year, Colonel Woodcock, Bristol solicitor, who has retired from Everton, Sir John Pennefather, the cotton magnate, who is not contesting his old riding of Kirkdale, and Sir H. W. Chilcott, who is leaving Walton.

The death of Sir Archibald Salvidge, for many years a leader of Conservatism, has bereft the party locally of inspiring leadership.

The Conservative candidates include Sir James Reynolds, a great figure in the cotton market and a leading Catholic layman, in the Exchange division. He is opposed by W. A. Robinson, Laborite, who is also a Catholic, and the fight between these two is expected to be very close. Sir Hugo Rutherford, who is trying to re-capture Edge Hill for the Conservatives, is a son of the late Sir W. W. Rutherford, who represented a Liverpool seat for many years.

Chances Are Good

Derwent Hall Caine, son of the famous novelist, is standing as a Laborite in Everton and has a good chance of winning. His racy, trenchant style of speaking is going over well. The Conservative opposing him is Miss Margaret Beavan, formerly Lord Mayor of Liverpool, and known through her social work as the "Little Mother of Liverpool." In 1924 the Conservative majority in this division was reduced to 630 and it is believed Miss Beavan will have a hard task to keep the seat for the party.

The Liberals are concentrating their strength on five divisions, making five triangular fights in the ten contested seats. Hugh Rathbone, who bears a name honored in Liverpool for many generations is the Liberal nominee in Wavertree. He won the seat in 1923 but was badly defeated a year later. Mr. Rathbone re-

Believed Lindbergh Will Wed In Mid-June

ENGLEWOOD, N.J., May 27. —(Canadian Press).—Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow and his family were gathered at the morrow estate here to-day in preparation for the wedding of his daughter, Miss Anne, to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh. The date is yet to be announced. Newspaper guesses have been mid-June.

When the Ambassador arrived home yesterday from Mexico City on vacation, he smilingly declined to divulge any information. He would not discuss reports that Plutarco Elias Calles, who was president of Mexico when Lindbergh first met the Morrows, would attend the wedding.

FOOT CAUGHT IN ACCELERATOR

Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young Orders Inquest Into Death of Mrs. J. Hunter.

RIGHT SHOE OFF.

The true cause of the motor accident, in which Mrs. J. Hunter of Toronto was killed near Huggin's school house, Lakefield, may never be known and in the absence of any definite explanation, Provincial Constable H. Thompson has built up a theory that sounds very plausible. This theory was only advanced after a detailed investigation of the circumstances of the accident.

It is his theory that Mrs. Hunter stepped on the accelerator in mistake for the brake. The car swerved sharply first to the left and then the right side of the road before it turned over, indicating that it had been travelling at a fast rate of speed.

It was found, too, that Mrs. Hunter's right shoe was off although her foot was not injured in any way. This it is thought would show that she had got her shoe caught between the accelerator and the starter, and perhaps it was while trying to extract her foot that she pushed the accelerator down.

Constable Thompson's theory was only voiced with a great deal of reticence. Yet it is the only explanation so far advanced that would indicate what happened in those few seconds before the fatal accident.

Mrs. Hunter had not been driving a car very long. She only obtained her driver's license on May 16 of this year.

Dr. T. W. H. Young, coroner, told The Examiner at noon that there would be an inquest into the death of Mrs. Hunter.

Broken Telephone Pole Left Suspended On Road

The [illegible] of a driver on the Lakefield road near the Grove School was almost the cause of a serious accident at nine o'clock Sunday evening. The motorist, whose name was not discovered, travelling at a fast rate, crashed into a telephone pole on the turn of the road near the school. The pole was snapped off near the base. Still held up by the telephone wires the pole swung out to middle of the road and, although it offered great danger to other motorists, the driver failed to stop and give the warning. A motorist, approaching from the direction of Lakefield, crashed into the pole unable to see it because of the dust. The occupants escaped injury and the car was little damaged.

LOCAL CITIZENS GIVEN CLAIMS

Russell V. Copping Will Receive $4,000 From Canada Under Reparation Agreement.

THREE AWARDS MADE.

The reparation agreement by Germany to pay $6,000,000 of damage done to Canadians and to their property outside German territory, or in occupied or invaded territory, by means of illegal warfare as against the civilian population, has been felt in Peterborough.

Three local parties, having proven their claims before Commissioner James Freil, K.C., have been granted by the Dominion Government the amount of their damages with interest dating from 1920.

The claim of the late Russel V. Copping for $4,000, negotiated by Gordon and O'Brien, was granted. Mr. Copping lost his mother and father when the steamer 'Lusitania' was torpedoed by a German submarine and sank with great loss of life. The claim for personal property was entered by the son, Mr. Copping, and was proved by the above mentioned law firm. Hattie B. Copping, wife of the late Mr. Copping, is named as the person to receive the money for the damages.

Shipment Is Sunk.

The second claim granted is to Robert Fair and Company. This firm had a shipment of linoleum coming from Scotland on the steamer 'Carthaginian, which was also sunk by a German submarine at sea. Through neglect this shipment was not insured, so a claim for damages was entered and proven by Mr. Fair before Commissioner Friel and an amount of $194.23 was granted to him.

The third claim was by James L. Rowland, and handled by J. F. Strickland, for property damages. Mr. Rowland was employed as a spinning foreman of the International Harvester Company at Croix, France, outside of Lille, and lived with his wife and family at Croix.

On August 24, 1914, he was advised by the British Consul to take the train from Lille at once as the Germans were advancing on that centre. He was not allowed to take anything but the clothing on his back. The house and the contents were left, and some of the American employees of the factory moved these contents to a place of storage in the mill, from where they disappeared.

For this personal property damages amounting to $1,393.50 were awarded.

The Weather

Yesterday was the finest day we have had this season. The weather conditions were ideal. The temperature was up to 69 degrees, and it began to look as if the "good old summer time," were really here at last. This morning the thermometer was down to 39 degrees, with a strong suspicion that white frost had paid another visit. The trees are rapidly assuming their leafy dress, but the process is later than usual—probably from a week to ten days.—W. P.

28,072,795 ELECTORS.

Women Voters Exceed Men By Over One Million.

LONDON, May 27.—(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—With the 300 more candidates in the field and nearly six million more voters on the list than in 1924 this will be Great Britain's most costly election. The general election in 1924 cost $4,605,625. It is estimated that this year each candidate may spend six pence per elector in his riding if he is running in a county seat and five pence if he is contesting a borough riding. In two-member constituencies each candidate is expected to spend three pench three farthings for each elector.

A compilation of election statistics shows there are 492 seats in England, 36 in Wales and Monmouth, 74 in Scotland and 13 in Northern Ireland. The minimum required for any party to win the election, without counting the speaker is 308.

The total electorate this year consists of 14,791,813 women and 13,280,982 men. Compared with 1926 there is an increase of 5,824,727 of which 3,151,021 are women.

There are 1729 candidates seeking election of 304. Women candidates number 68, an increase of 27. Seven members were elected acclamation a decrease of 23. In 444 constituencies there are three-cornered fights and four-cornered in 26. Of the 615 members elected to the old parliament 511 are running again.

Liza Lacelles, French Domestic, Placed Under Arrest By Toronto Police.

WELL EDUCATED.

Had Two Boy Friends and Both Wanted to Borrow Money From Her.

TORONTO, Ont., May 27 (Canadian Press).—Having two "boy friends" and $500 proved so complex a situation for Ziza Lacelles, 24, a French domestic on Bathurst Street, that she is now in jail for lack of $500 bail. Both her men acquaintances wanted the loan of $500 Miss Lacelles inherited from her parents' estate. She was in a quandary as to which one to give it to, and finally, at the instigation of the one man, she lent him the money and then staged a fake hold-up to "cover up" the loan from the other man.

The young woman stuck to the story of the hold-up, which she declared took place at Bloor and Church Streets yesterday morning, until she broke down under close questioning by the police. She had maintained that Saturday night she received a telephone call, supposed by her to be from a boy friends, to bring the $500 with her and to be at Bloor and Church Streets at 7 o'clock yesterday. While standing on the corner, she said, two men approached her. They bound her securely, then carried her across the street and put her inside the house in which she was found by A. W. Wardell, who released her and then communicated with the police.

Admits Hold-Up a Fake.

After admitting to police that the hold-up was a fake, Miss Lacelles described how she loaned the money to her acquaintance and walked with him to the house, where he fastened her hands and feet.

The woman is well educated, it is said. She was born in France and came to America in 1916, attending Harthill College in Minneapolis. From the latter city she went to Montreal, and three years ago came to Toronto.

The Ottawa Temple Choir, 76 strong, finished a single point behind the winning unit in the "B" class contest—the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Glee Club of Baltimore—while the other Canadian entry, the Peterborough Male Chorus was placed third.

RADIO AGENT KIDNAPPED BY ARMED THUGS

Toronto Man Robbed of $111 and Left Tied to Tree in Country.

CAR IS COMMANDEERED.

TORONTO, Ont., May 27.—(C.P.)—C. L. Murray, local radio agent, was robbed of $111 in cash, a cheque for $17, his watch and motor car, by two armed thugs Saturday.

Murray was sitting in his car, parked at Wellington and Scott streets, when the robbers appeared. They commandeered the car, subduing Murray by pressing revolvers against his side and drove through downtown streets and thence to Thistledown, about 18 miles from the city. Here they took their victim from the car and tied him up to a tree with stove pipe wire and stripped him of his valuables and money.

The radio agent finally worked loose from his bonds, ran a half mile to the farm house of Percy Barker and telephoned Toronto police, who immediately broadcast a description of Murray's car and warned police in the suburbs to be on the alert for it.

Car Is Found.

Saturday night the car was seen parked on a street in York township and yesterday was handed over to the police, but so far no trace has been found of the robbers.

Relating his experiences to police Murray said the thieves cntinually boasted of the hold-ups which they planned. The stolen car was to be used along with a faster machine equipped with automatic guns for one of the biggest hold-ups ever "pulled off" in Toronto, the thugs told their victim.

Boarding House Keeper Is Shot As She Enters Home With Armful Of Wood

SUDBURY, May 27. (C.P.)—Mrs. Rosie Pashanuk, aged 31, a Sudbury boarding house keeper, was shot through the left lung last evening at seven o'clock, while entering her back door with an armful of wood, and died a few minutes later. Peter Myhal, a former roomer, was arrested by the Sudbury police, who stated that he admitted the shooting.

The shot was fired from the upper window of a house on Minto Lane, 300 feet away. The bullet entered the woman's back below the shoulder blade, and passed through the lung. Dr. G. R. Jones was immediately called but the woman died within a few moments of his arrival.

Trouble between Myhal and the dead woman brought him into the police court several months ago when he was acquitted of a charge of petty theft.

Mrs. Pashanuk had been separated from her husband for some time.

Following the shooting the police started a search for Myhal, who was finally found walking quietly down Station street. He surrendered quietly.

FORMER SLOGAN FORMS BASIS OF LABOR ATTACK

"Hang the Kaiser" Phrases is Subject of Much Sharp Questioning.

ADDISON DISMISSED.

Lloyd George Says He Promised to Thrash Kaiser and Helped Do It.

LONDON, May 27. — (Canadian Press).—The slogan attributed to Rt Hon. David Lloyd George in some sections many years ago of "hang the kaiser", and the alleged dismissal from his cabinet in 1921 of Rt. Hon. Christopher Addison, who had been appointed the first Minister of Housing two years previously, were two old issues on which the Liberal leader was sharply questioned during political speeches Saturday.

"Ramsay Macdonald says I proposed to hang the Kaiser," Mr. Lloyd George said. "I promised to thrash the Kaiser and I think I helped to do it. I ask Mr. Macdonald to give the place, date and occasion on which I ever promised to hang the Kaiser. I will tell you what I did: I pledged myself that when the peace treaty came to be drafted I would incorporate a clause for putting on trial those guilty of the war. I got that incorporated in the Versailles Treaty.

Fled to Holland.

"The Kaiser fled to Holland and there was no treaty enabling you to dig him out. We could not get him without making war on Holland, and I never promised to make war to put the Kaiser on trial."

In allusion to his alleged pledge to "make the land fit for heroes to live in," the Liberal leader went on: "I say quite frankly I have my faults, but I am no braggart. What I did do, speaking on a purely non-political occasion, was to refer to the great heroism of the troops and say, 'but let us all do our best to make this land fit for heroes to live in.' That was not a pledge; it was an appeal."

Not Disgusted.

As for Dr. Addison, the Liberal leader was asked: "Is it not a fact that Addison left the party because he was disgusted with the way you handled his housing scheme?" Dr. Addison had a reputation as a medical man, but was unknown in higher politics until his appointment at a time when the housing shortage was acute. The question was met by Lloyd George with the statement that he would be regretfully be obliged to give the facts of Dr Addison's withdrawal.

"He had charge of the housing scheme and, in my judgment and the whole of my colleagues, he was making an utter mess of it" Mr. Lloyd George explained. "Quite frankly, Dr. Addison got the sack because he was no good. He then joined the Labor party."

Dr. Addison replied to this saying: "The plain fact is Lloyd George, at the time had decided to surrender to the reactionaires. This outburst is only an attempt to stop the ignominy attaching to him for the betrayal of his pledges."

BIG CAMPAIGN IS NEARLY OVER

Great Britain Has Been Flooded With Tidal Wave of Oratory.

NATION IN EARNEST.

LONDON, May 27. — (Canadian Press).—Three more days of strenuous political fighting start today and then the polls will be opened to 28 million electors in the British elections of 1929.

"This is the dullest election I can remember," says Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

But Premier Stanley Baldwin says: "The nation is in earnest over this election. They want facts and argument, not rhetoric."

Whether the election is dull or not, the country has never before seen such a tidal wave of oratory, real or otherwise. Such floods of propaganda, such manoeuvres and stunts to coax the hesitant vote, have never before been indulged in.

Loud-speakers connected by telephone lines have relayed speeches by the leaders to halls in a score of cities.

Three thousand miles of trunk telephone wire was employed in relaying one of Lloyd George's speeches to 28 separate audiences, comprising 150,000 people. And, although limited, more than was the case in the United States elections last year, the wireless in Britain has carried the political message direct to many homes.

Nor could the patient elector escape the oratory merely by tuning out. Resourceful canvassers by the score added new perils to politics by appeals over the elephone for votes.

FORT WORTH MAKES RECORD

Monoplane Remains in Air 172 Hours, 31 Minutes and 10 Seconds.

PROPELLER BATTERED.

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 27.—(Canadian Press).—Having smashed all sustained flight records, Reginald Robbins and his co-pilot, James Kelly, brought the monoplane Fort Worth to the ground here, yesterday afternoon a few minutes after 4 oclock, only after a battered propeller had started to shake the engine and the plane badly.

The plane had been in the air 172 hours, 31 minutes and 10 seconds, almost a day longer than the famous Question Mark, whose record was surpassed by 21 hours, 51 minutes and 10 seconds.

Robbins and Kelly, by their feat, eclipsed the best mark for single motored, dual motored and tri-motore plans, and lighter-than-air machines and all records for crews regardless of size.

History of Peterborough

Written by Thomas W. Poole M.D., and Published in Peterborough 1867

CHAPTER VI.

The Peterborough Militia in 1837-8 —Continued.

On the organization of the militia of the county, which took place some time before the breaking out of the rebellion, about 250 stand of muskets, with flint locks, and the usual bayonets had been sent to Peterborough. These were served out to the volunteers, but the greater portion were armed with their own guns or rifles. Prepared ammunition was not to be had, and considerable ingenuity was shown by several of the militia in making cartridges; while most had to supply themselves with balls or large sized shot before leaving home. One of the new muskets was carried on the march for a day or two before it was discovered to have no touch-hole and was consequently useless for present purposes.

Arrived at Port Hope, the steamer Traveller was anxiously looked for as affording the most speedy and convenient means of reaching Toronto, but she passed by on her downward trip without entering the port, although guns were fired and other signals made to attract attention. Just before setting out from Port Hope, on foot, for the capital, a despatch was received intimating that as the rebels were dispersed, the services of the militia were unneeded, and permitting them to return to their homes. A detachment was, however, sent into the county of Victoria, to scour the townships in the neighborhood of Lindsay, under the impression that the rebel chiefs might possibly attempt to escape through the country in that direction. Some ludicrous scenes took place among these impromptu soldiers, and not a few persons were subjected to annoyance by proceedings altogether arbitrary and unwarranted. An old man proceeding through Smith with a few bundles of hay as provender for his stock, was detained on the road at the suggestion of one of the company, humourously offered, that his load might possibly conceal a rebel. The team and vehicle were surrounded by a guard, bayonets thrust here and there into the load, and only after a most careful reconnaissance, he was allowed to pass on his way, wondering much no doubt at the adventure which had befallen him.

Within a fortnight after these events, and in consequence of the occupation of Navy Island by insurgents and American sympathizers, orders were received for the dispatch of a battalion from the Newcastle District, to proceed westward on active service. The militia of the various townships of this county, under command of Col. Brown, at once mustered in strong force, and marched without delay to Toronto. This battalion was chiefly composed of the militia of the townships of Otonabee, Douro, Dummer and Asphodel, and marched into Peterborough, under the officers of their several companies, to the number of 800 strong. After billeting round for a night, as best they could, they were drawn up next morning in front of Col. Brown's quarters in Ashburnham, and a selection made of 350 of the most active, to the greater number of whom muskets, haversacks and cartouch boxes were served out, and then, vacant offices of companies having been filled up, by persons named by Col. Brown, they commenced their march for the frontier. The remainder of the battalion was left behind as a reserve under command of Col. Crawford.

The men under Col. Brown proceeded 17 miles the first day and halted for the night at Mr. Joseph Graham's tavern in Cavan. The second day's march brought them to Mr. Bletcher's tavern, three miles in the rear of Port Hope, and on the third day, notwithstanding some delay for the purchase of necessary articles in Port Hope, they found themselves 16 miles beyond that place on the Toronto road. Here the magistrates gave in charge a prisoner—an American—charged with using seditious language, who next day jumped from the sleigh in which he rode, ran into the woods and attempted to conceal himself beneath a log, but was recaptured, and with several other prisoners subsequently taken was conveyed to Toronto.

At Highland Creek there were strong rumors of rebels in the vicinity, in consequence of which they were kept out in scouting parties during the greater portion of the night. The roads were in a very unfavorable condition; and not till late in the evening of the fifth day did they reach Toronto. Here they were at once billeted in comfortable quarters, and after a day's rest, passed a most favorable inspection, and were warmly complimented for their gallantry and patriotism by Sir Francis Bond Head.

Soon after, a new battalion, known as the "Queen's Own," was formed from the several battalions then in Toronto, and was officered by men chosen from the officers of these battalions. Adjutant Bentley was at its head, Col. Kingsmill was next in authority, and Col. Brown became major of the new battalion. The supernumerary men were permitted to return to their homes, and those selected to join the Queen's Own remained on frontier duty until the May following, when they were discharged, and the battalion disbanded. Col. Brown, who took so prominent a part in the militia movements at this time, was a gentleman who after a period of service in the 21st Royal Scotch Fusileers came to reside in the vicinity of Peterborough as an agriculturalist, in the year 1830, and was appointed by Sir John Colborne to the rank of lieutenant-colonel of the battalion known as the 4th Northumberland Fusileers, which he had assisted to organize, and which was mainly composed of men from the townships already mentioned.

We had hoped to be able to insert in this brief record of that period the names of those brave men in this county who at the call of the authorities abandoned their homes and their families in the depth of winter to assist in maintaining the authority of government, and putting down armed bands of insurgents, but in the absence of official muster-rolls, were we to trust to the mere memories of individuals, many worthy names might possibly be overlooked, and, through fear of injustice being done by inserting a partial and incomplete list, we have been reluctantly obliged to forego the pleasure of inserting any, except those residing in Dummer, which will be mentioned in connection with that township. But if the names of more of these men do not appear, not the less will be remembered the proud record of the Peterborough Militia of 1837 and 1830, which will be handed down in the records of the country as a brilliant chapter in the history of the past and a bright example worthy of imitation in the future.

THE RETURN

O'er the cool green meadows skipping,
Through the fields of daisies white,
Down the ooxy fern banks slipping,
Wander I in sheer delight.

Silvery fish are ever darting
Up and down the laughing brook,
Pale anemones unstarting
From each damp and shady nook.

Through the trees the sun is peeping,
Flecking gold upon the flowers,
In a nest three birds are sleeping,
Mother guards in treetop towers.

Through the wide world long I've wandered,
Lured by treasures bought of gold.
Here in sylvan delles are squandered
Wealth undreamed of, peace untold.

"THEM WERE THE DAYS!"

R. C. Brown is a Simon-pure, dyed-in-the-wool old home boy himself (and he doesn't care who knows it), and writes that he will set all chores aside and come along to meet the hundreds of old friends he knows. At least ten homes are open to take him in. He writes:

"I can never forget the old home places and the many happy days on the old farm, and at the old swimmin' hole, camps at Stoney Lake, sleeping under the stars, bigosh, fishing on the river and roaming the bush for partridge. In the fall, shooting groundhogs with my old friend, Josh. Collins. I would look these all up on the old farm and have them located and ready when Collins came along with his rifle. Boys, them were the day! It is just such memories that bring back the old boys and which are never forgotten. Every man has just such recollections and cherishes them always." —F. H. D.

DANCE COMMITTEE MAKES UP PROGRAM

Feature Dance Will Be Biggest Social Event of Week.

Working on the biggest feature event of the Old Home Week celebration, the Community Dance Committee has almost completed arrangements. The chairman, D. A. Costello, announces that outstanding features, including the bringing of one of the most noted orchestras in Canada, are planned, and the big dance will be one of the most important social events ever held in the Central Ontario district. "It will be unquestionably the smartest thing of its kind ever held in this community," he says.

Tentative arrangements are also being made to dedicate certain nights of the street dancing to parts of the county—Monday, Smith and Ennismore; Tuesday, Douro and Otonabee; Thursday, North and South Monaghan; Friday, Peterborough. There will be two orchestras for street dancing, one for the round dances and another for the square dances.

TO MOTORISTS FROM THE WESTERN PROVINCES

In a letter to the Old Home Week office James S. Milloy, at one time of The Examiner staff, but now secretary of the Greater North Dakota Association, writes the following suggestions to motorists, applicable especially to all who propose to travel from the Western Provinces of the Dominion:

"This office (North Dakota) serves many thousands motor tourists each year, conducting the largest information bureau between Minneapolis and St. Paul, and the coast. As you know, practically all motor tourists from Western Canada going to Ontario swing down through North Dakota and Minnesota, and are generally served by this organization with highway information from North Dakota east.

"If you have special literature incidental to the Peterborough celebration I will be glad to place this literature in this office, as well as in our branch offices in the other nine principal cities of North Dakota."

Mr. Milloy will be glad to serve all coming to Peterborough during the summer, and his assistance will be of special value. —F. H. D.

CHILDREN NOT DISAPPOINTED.

Mrs. Harriett Billington, writing from Riverside, California, says something of her memories of the old home town, and regrets that circumstances will prevent coming home to the celebration.

"Comparisons are odious. We, who for years thought there was no place like Peterborough, had so instilled that idea into our children that we were almost afraid when they went back home to see for themselves. We were so pleased when their verdict was quaint, lovely, alluring, historic, picturesque, according to the boy or girl eyes that saw and tried to envision father and mother in the old setting.

"Not one criticism to make us feel out-of-date, so we are glad that the old town meets all demands of our modern sons and daughters. Living in Riverside for many years, we appreciate different types of beauty and opportunity here, and I who had lived in Winnipeg since 1886, have learned to appreciate and love the optimism of the Western Provinces." —F. H. D.

Landmarks And Lichts

(By F. H. Dobbin)

You of former years, say from 1871 onwards, who are the real Old Home Week boys and girls, what do you expect to find to-day in Peterborough that you will recognize as associated with your childhood and after years? People, of course, are here who will remember you if you remember them. Possibly a tax on memory for both.

Many who went away, as you did will be back for a brief visit. It is this hope of seeing those we knew in the years that have fled that brings folk together. That is the inspiration and the urge. You will meet those you hope to meet and may only find in such occasion.

Buildings and scenes at one time familiar to you, many can be recognized. For there is land enough about this city to permit of additions without pulling down what has been put up to yeoman service in earlier years. But the centre of the city has altered, mightily. Fire has destroyed and replacements followed. Buildings wear out, just as clothes and raiment. New demands are made for modern uses.

The era of wooden buildings for business passed long ago. Many of the first substantial structures of brick have been levelled. To-day there is intense activity to pull down the barns and build greater. The front (George street) is a revelation in replacements. No unsightly poles carrying wires obstruct the view. Corner locations have been glorified by higher and more imposing structures. The shops and stores are equal to those of the premier metropolitan centres. Brilliantly lighted at night the picture is one to attract and satisfy.

School buildings, ever an index to the prosperity and enterprise of the municipality equal and in cases surpass those of more pretentious places. Churches, replacing more modest edifices, proclaim the generosity and substantial contributions of the congregations. St. Paul's, George Street St. John's—those of earlier building—are all here to welcome you. St Andrew's, Trinity, Mark Street, Knox All Saints', St. James are all younger but sturdy and faithful to purpose. Old St. Peter's still adorns the hill at west Hunter street, but enlarged and improved.

The Armouries, Collegiate Institute (a gracious and well equipped building) adorn Central Park, with Murray Street Baptist and the Public Library opposite the square. East and west the march of improvement has made its way. Factory buildings that you saw as a child, many of them are here yet, some unoccupied because the electric power used has made the shore of the river no longer eligible. Beautiful parks adorn the city. Jackson Park, that you knew as Quarry Park, has been glorified and made a real rural benefaction. Inverlea Park the river shore below the Auburn residence section, is a children's recreation ground and bathing place crowded in the warm weather. The Nicholls Oval, crowning the east bank of the river, is a very fine recreation area, grassed, shaded, pathed and walked to perfection. Central Park is now known as Confederation Square, and is a breathing place of distinction and enjoyment, surrounded by public buildings, the most important in the city.

If you wish to see how ruthlessly old and one time familiar localities may be changed, just walk to the end of Simcoe street and look up and down the river. The magnificent plant of the Quaker Oats Company almost obscures to Court House Hill. The one-arch splendid bridge spanning the river in one leap stands in the foreground. Riverside Park takes the place of factories and dwellings that once thronged the shore of the river opposite. To the south numerous industrial plants show smoke-issuing chimneys sending billowy smoke plumes, indicating busy occupations carried on within.

The shore line is obscured by railroad buildings and the understructure of the rails that connect with shipping sheds and rooms, upstream. That which was once a beauty spot and luxuriant sward is given over to business and industry.

But we cannot keep the old and do without the new. We must make progress, even if we sacrifice the ancient landmarks.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 27.— Wheat came closer Saturday to $1 a bushel than ever before this season, but the market unexpectedly proved skittish, and jumped to above Friday's finish. Instead of a general rush to sell taking place because of rainfalls in Canada, buying broadened out after moderate declines had carried prices down to an all-around new low recor for the season. Opinion appeared widespread that relief from moisture shortage in Canada was only transient, and that the real crisis for the Canadian crop would come in June or July.

Closing quotations on wheat were irregular at 1-8c. net decline to 1-4c. advance, with corn unchanged to 1-2c. higher, oats 1-4c. to 7-8c. down, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 22c.

Not only were downpours announced Saturday from throughout Canadian wheat territory, but showers also were reported in Argentina, where dry weather has been retarding preparations for the new Argentine wheat crop. However, advices were current from authoritative sources that the amount of reserve moisture in Canadian soil has been altogether inadequate, except for immediate purposes, ontwithstanding that official records showed more rainfall since April 1 than was received during the same time last year.

Liverpool is Factor.

Unlooked-for steadiness Saturday of wheat quotations at Liverpool helped promote rallies in the wheat market here, despite messages asserting the relative strength shown at Liverpool was due to buying on the part of American traders who previously had been selling. Another stimulating factor was evidence of better demand for cash wheat on this side of the Atlantic, as indicated by 7c a bushel advance in premiums for hard wheat.

On advances Saturday in wheat values here, however, selling enlarged and the market was devoid of aggressive support. Moreover, export buying Saturday of wheat from North America lacked volume, and Argentina continued to undersell competitors. European reports on the transatlantic crop outlook, though, were less favorable and Kansas advices also were less unanimously auspicious than they were a while back.

Corn Prices Rally.

Corn rallied with wheat on account of good shipping demand and prospects of less auspicious weather. On an early downturn, though, influenced by favorable conditions Saturday for field work, September delivery of corn dropped to a new low price for the season. Oats were depressed by scattered selling out on the part of holders of May contracts. Provisions developed firmness as a consequence of strength displayed by hog values.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 27.—Rains in Western Canada and the weakness at Chicago Friday while the local market was closed were the factors in the decline that carried wheat prices down 2 1-8 cents to 2½ cents in the first hour of trading here Saturday. The market received good support near the close and came back to finish 1¼ cents to 1⅜ cents lower for the day.

With export business reported good and Canadian and American millers taking an interest in the market, cash wheat trading was active Saturday. Prices held firm.

A little demand for oats was the only business transacted in the coarse grains. Oat prices were fractionally lower. Flax and barley were unchanged, but rye weakened fractionally.

Modern Service worthy of a Modern Car

New Model A Service Policy Established By Ford Dealers Throughout Canada

Carrying our policy of modern service worthy of a modern car still farther, every Ford dealer in Canada will give every Ford car buyer free service at 500, 1000 and 1500 miles. ¶ No charge will be made for labor incidental to this service, except of course, where repairs are necessary through accident, misuse or neglect. The only charge is for new oil. ¶ You know that proper care of your car during the first few hundred miles will lengthen its life and prevent unnecessary trouble later on. ¶ This free service at 500, 1000 and 1500 miles ensures expert attention while your car is new and is entirely in addition to our usual warranties, which will be continued.

CLEAN, CAREFUL, COURTEOUS SERVICE

Modern traffic demands a car not only designed and built to meet modern conditions but, through proper maintenance, kept up to the highest degree of efficiency. Proper care and attention is especially important when the car is new.

In every feature the Model A Ford car has been designed to meet the demands of modern motoring. It is fast and comfortable on trips between cities over smooth pavement, or in remote districts where paved roads are impracticable. It is agile in the congested traffic of busy streets and sturdily built to suit the many uses to which it is put on the farm.

And, equally important in today's automobile transportation, the Ford car is backed by an outstanding service organization rendering a modern, efficient service, in keeping with the high quality of the car itself. Our organization has been built upon the creed that it is our duty not only to make a good automobile, but to help the owner get the greatest possible use over the longest period of time, at a minimum of trouble and expense.

Throughout Canada, wherever you go, you will find efficient Ford service. Ford dealers are equipped with modern machines specially designed for Ford service work, their mechanics are Ford specialists, trained under direct factory supervision; parts made in the Ford factory are used wherever replacements are necessary; flat rates for labor on all operations ensure economy and enable an accurate estimate of the cost of any job.

Our service department is continually seeking better, quicker, more efficient methods of service for Ford cars. As soon as the advantage of a new system, a new machine or a new operation is proven, it is established throughout the organization.

In so far as possible, service operations on Ford cars duplicate similar operations in the manufacture of the car in our factory.

Ask your Ford dealer for full particulars.

ONE WAY TO STOP THEM.

At the Cataraqui crossing on the Canadian National Railway just west of Kingston recently an American tourist raced the International Limited over the crossing and won with a few seconds to spare.

His recklessness, however, cost him something, for a vigilant traffic officer arrested him and he was fined $10 and costs for negligent driving.

A few more "speed cops" like this officer would do a lot to avert grade crossing accidents.

Nothing has been said of the reaction of the tourist to his fine, but the chances are that he thinks the traffic officer was unduly officious, and he'll probably go home and complain to his friends and the scurvy treatment he received.

If he is wise, however, the incident will be of value to him: it will make him think a little when he sees a railway crossing sign, and judging from his daring in matching speed with the C.N.R.'s crack train when a miscalculation meant certain death, he is of the type that needs to do some thinking.

Racing trains is a hobby that should be discouraged by every means possible, and apparently the traffic office on duty in the Kingston are has hit upon an effective way of making the practice less general.

AN INTERNATIONAL TRIUMPH.

The success of Peterborough's Male Voice Choir in winning third prize in their class in the competitions of the Associated Glee Clubs of America at New York on Saturday is a gratifying revelation of the progress that is being made in this city along musical lines.

This international victory is perhaps the most outstanding achievement ever accredited to a Peterborough musical organization, inasmuch as it was registered against competition from many States of the Union and with a score less than four points below that of the first place choir, Baltimore.

The triumph of Peterborough's choir in scoring such a record in an international competition reflects the greatest credit upon its conductor, Martin Chenhall, upon the members for their faithful attendance at practice and the loyal spirit they have shown, and upon those men with vision who encouraged and supported the visit of the choir to New York.

The success achieved will be a stimulus to the Male Voice Choir to strive for still greater honors, and an encouragement to all Peterborough musicians, in the evidence it gives that musically this community can hold its own against strong competition.

The winning of an award is gratifying, but after all the prize is not the most important feature of the choir's showing.

The real value of the trip to New York is to be found in the advertising it has given Peterborough and in the contribution it has made toward a better understanding between our American cousins and ourselves.

International good-will is strengthened by such things as the cordial reception given Canadian choirs in New York and the graceful incident in which R. R. Hall, K.C., presented a Canadian flag to the Associated Glee Clubs on behalf of the members of the Peterborough choir.

EMPIRE SHOPPING WEEK.

This is the week set apart for the stressing of the desirability of purchasing made-in-the-Empire goods, and The Examiner hopes that as a result of the campaign there will be a quickened interest in the subject and a practical adoption of the principle involved.

Talking about Empire goods is, of course, a good thing in itself, but it means very little if it is not followed by action along that line.

In Stratford recently the City Council furnished a demonstration of what Empire Shopping Week should be by deciding to supply the city's fuel wants with either Alberta or Welsh coal in preference to the American article.

That was a move that gives emphasis to the whole idea behind this Empire shopping campaign, and unless Canadians in general take a similar attitude in the matter the desired results need not be expected.

For us the Empire begins in Canada; for us in Peterborough it begins right here in our own city.

That is the whole idea.

If Canadians learn to buy the products of their own city first and, where these are not available, those of their own country and, in the absence again of these, to purchase goods from other parts of the Empire, the results will be far-reaching in their effect upon our own prosperity and that of our fellow-citizens of the far-flung British Empire.

During this week—and afterward—remember that fact when you are buying.

TAKING CHANCES.

In spite of record traffic on Ontario's highways, the percentage of accidents over the holiday and the week-end was not as great as was anticipated, although the record was serious enough to justify fresh efforts to secure greater attention to safety first principles.

There was one serious accident on the holiday because one of the seven rules for safety published by the Minister of Highways was ignored.

A motorist who passed another car on a hill found his automobile squarely in front of a bus as he reached the top with the inevitable result, a terrific collision and several people seriously hurt.

Passengers on a bus on the Kingston highway Friday morning saw the violation of another of Mr. Henry's rules, although fortunately in this case there was no accident.

As the bus travelled rapidly westward an east-bound motorist swung out to pass a string of other cars also heading east, with the result that he found himself in front of the bus and unable to get back into line.

A terrible smash-up was averted by inches, the "cutter-in" travelling at a 50-mile-an-hour speed shooting between the bus and the first car of the line with not six inches to spare on either side.

Only the quick action of the bus driver in promptly putting on his brakes saved the situation.

A driver of that type should not be allowed to touch a wheel.

His recklessness came within an ace of precipitating a triple pile-up, involving at least two automobiles and a bus, and the east-bound cars were following so closely that the second in the line might have also been involved.

He took a desperate chance to gain nothing, because the traffic was so heavy that successfully passing one group of cars simply meant falling in behind another group round the next corner.

The "cutter-in" who is unable to judge correctly as to his ability to pass another car safely or who is reckless enough to take a chance has no business on the highway, and traffic officers should give him especial attention.

CANADA'S HISTORIC SITES.

(From the Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph)

Several years ago the Canadian Government appointed a commission, called the Historic Sites and Monuments Board, with a view to preserving and marking sites of historic interest throughout Canada. Dr. J. H. Coyne, of St. Thomas, has been one of the members of the board. It has done a splendid job at little cost. It has located many historic places that had already been forgotten, or almost forgotten, and has had them suitably marked with cairns and memorial tablets.

During the past year several historic sites in Western Ontario were remembered by the board. Few people know that Turkey Point, on Lake Erie, in Norfolk County, was the spot where the famous Jesuit missionary, Dollier de Casson, and party encamped in 1670. It was selected by Gen. Simcoe as a site for a fort and naval station in 1795. A fort called Fort Norfolk was built in 1812 and served during the war as defense for that part of Upper Canada. The site of the fort is now suitably marked.

A cairn with tablet was erected near the pavilion at Point Pelee Park to commemorate the several early events which took place there. These include the encampment of Dollier and Galmee, April 1670; the landing of Brock's forces on August 12, 1812, on the way to the famous attack upon Detroit; the defeat of an American detachment on the beach by Wyandottes during the Pontiac and a skirmish in 1838 during the Mackenzie rebellion.

At McKee's Point, Sandwich, a cairn has been erected to mark the starting point of Gen. Brock's expedition to capture Detroit.

In 1927 there was erected a cairn to mark the home of Sir John A. Macdonald in the township of Adolphustown, and a tablet was affixed to his boyhood home in Kingston.

This leads us to remark that London has lost a real opportunity to secure the home of Sir Adam Beck as a permanent memorial to the hydro knight. The day will come when London will be sorry that the London City Council was so short-visioned as to pass up the opportunity.

DOING ONTARIO PROUD IN LONDON.

It is good news that at last the great and wealthy Province of Ontario is to have a decent office building at the heart of the Empire. Mr. Ferguson's announcement that an imposing five-storey building is to be erected at a cost of $250,000 will be welcomed by everyone familiar with the situation. For many years Canadians visiting London have been shamed by the meagre quarters occupied by the Provincial Agent General on the Strand. The building is so narrow that a good-sized man almost has to turn sideways to get into it. Such limited facilities suggest to the passing throng that Ontario is either impoverished or parsimonious. The Ontario building appears the more inadequate because it is overshadowed by the huge and imposing Australian headquarters just across the way.

We know that the Premier and Hon. W. C. Noxon, Ontario's able representative in England, have long been discontented with this situation and that they have been working towards the provision of an Ontario building more in keeping with the population, wealth and dignity of a Province which in natural resources and ultimate potentialities equals even the larger European nations. Action would, no doubt, have been taken sooner but for the difficulty of securing a large enough site upon the Empire's busiest thoroughfare, leading from Trafalgar Square to the Bank of England. The Government has been able to purchase the land upon which the present office stands together with the adjoining lot and contracts have already been let for an edifice that will show forth Ontario with proper impressiveness.

The location is an excellent one as it faces "The Aldwich Island" at the confluence of the Strand, Fleet street and the Kingsway. Not only will this new Ontario Government building in the heart of London present Ontario adequately to the British world, it will give the Agent General and his staff space in which to carry on their highly important task of attracting British capital and British people to this Province and of broadening the British market for Ontario products. We believe that there has been no more prudent investment of capital by any Ontario Government than that involved in this prudent departure. A reproach to Ontario is being removed. Henceforth people from this Province will be proud to walk along the Strand.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

There are complaints in Toronto about pedestrians disregarding traffic signals. The trouble is not by any means peculiar to the Queen City.

The ascendancy of the home-run team of Ruth and Gehrig is being threatened by the Simmons-Foxx combination.

In connection with Empire Shopping Week keep in mind the fact that for Peterborough the Empire begins right here at home.

The Unionists triumphed in the Ulster election last week, which is much the same sort of thing as saying the Conservatives carried Toronto.

Canadian labor organizations have been asked to take a stand against compulsory vaccination—something labor might well be advised to leave alone.

Old Home Week preparations should have first place in everybody's mind during the next five weeks.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY PEOPLE DRINK INTOXICATING LIQUOR

By Mehran K. Thompson, Ph. D.
Author of The Springs of Human Action

The difficulty of enforcing the prohibition laws against intoxicating liquors leads us to inquire why it is that men want to drink something that is classed as a narcotic, a drug, a poison and prohibited by law.

Habit and social customs and traditions are in part responsible for this situation. Some of the causes may also be attributed to the spirit of independence and the claims of personal liberty, the desire to do the thing that you are told not to do because it challenges your personality. These are the obvious reasons that we are all familiar with. There are other causes.

The most important reason, however, is a psychical as well as a physical cause. The effect of alcohol is to remove the natural restraints and inhibitions and to give the individual a feeling of well being and a blissful forgetfulness or at least indifference to the cold, hard realities of life.

No doubt a great many drink in order to drown their sorrows. This argument has greater force than most people realize. It stands for a basic force in human life that goes by the name of defence mechanism or the release mechanism.

There are two ways of meeting a difficult situation. One is to attack and overcome it. The other is to run away. We are not always successful in attacking. It is sometimes necessary to beat a retreat in our personal affairs just as an army does in battle. Heavy drinking is one avenue of escape from distressing experiences.

The cause is not confined, however, to those instances when a man is overwhelmed by a great calamity or an accumulation of hard luck. It operates also as an incentive to escape the trifling ordinary irritations incident to our work-a-day world. Drinking is an effort to escape the monotony of life.

And because the effect of alcohol is to numb the finer sensibilities and remove the ordinary inhibitions, people often drink to make a good time all the merrier by going into it with total abandon.

If people of the world ever quit drinking alcoholic liquors it will be because there is no longer a necessity for escaping from the cold hard realities of life and the monotony of the common task and the trivial round. Or else it will be because men have discovered other and better means of escape, such as a ready hobby or possibly another beverage which produces the effects of intoxicating liquor without actually making a man drunk.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson? Write him care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

TUESDAY, MAY 28, 1929

Lucky conditions may be enjoyed today by dwellers on the Earth, according to astrology, which finds that benefic aspects rule.

It is a day primarily favorable to merchandising and should be exceedingly good for retail trade.

Buying is subject to the best direction. Bargains may be available.

There is a sign of promise to those who invest in real property and home owning should be a much desired achievement under this planetary government which inclines toward stable financial policies.

The sway should be fortunate for farmers who will send the products of their land to far countries, it is forecast.

Mining is rather well directed at this time when the seers prophesy discoveries of moment in more than one western state.

Gardens and gardening should benefit from this positing of the stars which indicates the attainment of superb effects in many American country estates.

Under this sign there is promise of revival of old ideals of modes and manners. The newer generation will turn to chivalry and modesty as prized characteristics, it is prophesied.

While this is not an auspicious day for love-making it is favorable for fine comradeship between men and women.

Next month is to bring serious crisis to the British empire, astrologers foretell, and communistic propaganda will add to the problems of the government.

In the United States the summer is to be a period of general happiness and prosperity. National progress will be manifested in many great enterprises.

The President of the United States is subject of planetary influences that assure for him the most enthusiastic co-operation in economic policies.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year fortunate in financial matters and generally prosperous.

Children born on this day probably will be versatile in their gifts, courageous and truly intelligent.

William Pitt, British statesman, was born on this date 1759. Jean Louis Rudolph Agassiz, naturalist, 1807, claimed this as his birthday, so did Pierre Gustave Beauregard, 1818, Confederate general. J. I. Guillotin who invented the apparatus that bears his name also was born on this date and first saw light 1735.

The Tule Marsh Murder

By NANCY BARR MAVITY

Story of a Missing Actress and the Taxing of Wits to Explain Her Fate

THE STORY THUS FAR:

Sheila O'Shay, formerly a popular actress, and now the wife of the young multi-millionaire, Don Ellsworth, disappears, leaving no trace behind her. Don visits Dr. Cavanaugh the famous criminologist, and confesses that his married life has been very unhappy.

CHAPTER 3

"You must remember that your distrust of Mrs. Kane may be founded on nothing more objective than your personal dislike of her," the doctor suggested. "You are not particularly given to discounting your judgments in the light of your emotions, are you?"

Don accepted the mildly voiced criticism with sulky dignity.

"I should hardly say that my wife's personal maid was important enough for personal dislike," he said.

"She may be very important indeed, for all we know. At any rate, if her object was to rouse you to a display of wrath, she evidently succeeded. Can you recall exactly what you said? I don't mean to be hard on you — your reaction was doubtless quite normal." This time the doctor's smile was definite, even genial. "Whatever it was I've in all probability heard a good many worse things. And I don't regard it as my job to indulge in moral judgments on my fellows. The most I'm likely to say to you is that you were unwise."

"Well—I—I finally told her I didn't know and didn't give a damn! She turned her back and left— and the next think I knew, the police were ringing the front doorbell and asking impertinent questions. I told them as little as I could." There was a certain satisfaction under Don's harassment.

"And did you?" the doctor asked.

Don looked up from a moody contemplation of his shoe.

"Did I what?"

"Give a damn?"

The young man leaped to his feet, his hands clenching and unclenching at his sides.

"Look here, you can't—" he began chokingly.

Dr. Cavanaugh did not move a muscle from his relaxed position in the big chair.

"Never mind," he said quietly, "I apologize. It was your own statement, you know. Now what, precisely, do you want me to do in the matter?"

"I want you to get me out of it with a minimum of publicity. Everything I've ever done—and it hasn't been much—has been razzed by the papers. If I got lit after a football game at college, or took a chorus girl to dinner, it was spread all over the country. I can't stand any more of it. I can't, and I won't. Just because I happen to have money, my wife can't even leave me without their getting out extras about it."

"If she did leave you," Dr. Cavanaugh amended, so low that he might have been only thinking aloud.

"But—" Don's face was a study in angry bewilderment.

"There are other possibilities. I doubt, in fact, if the one you have mentioned would be the first to occur to most men in your position."

"Well, she couldn't very well be kidnapped from her own boudoir, in a house full of servants. And by the same token, she couldn't have met with an accident, or have been held up by bandits without leaving a trace. I did not mean to speak harshly of her just now, when I said she might have staged a vanishing act to plague me. She wouldn't set out deliberately to hurt anyone—she merely wouldn't notice whether they were getting hurt or not if they got in her way. And you must remember that Sheila was used to the most complete freedom of action. She wasn't the sort of pesron you could put in a bottle and keep there. Suppose she turned up in a week or two and announced that she had merely gone away to pa ya sudden visit and that it was surely her own affair, not that of the police. A pretty fool I'd look!"

"Yes," Dr. Cavanaugh agreed softly, "but, you see, she hasn't turned up."

"No-o" Ellsworth admitted slowly. "But I still think Mrs. Kane may know where she is."

"My dear man, beware of obsessions!" The doctor's tone was almost bantering. "However, you may be quite right, of course—she may."

"I've even thought every day that I might get a letter from Sheila, herself, with an explanation."

"And if she did leave you—you'll have to pardon me for being very personal—would she have any reason that you know of? If you let her see as plainly as you have let me see that you regarded your marriage as a failure, the knowledge could not have made her particularly happy, could it?"

"She'd never have left me just because I wasn't enthusiastic about our marriage," Don said with bitter emphasis. "She was getting very much what she wanted out of it—until she decided that she wanted something else. I did think of that, of course — that she had gone with another man. She could turn any man she wanted blind and crazy, I know, because she did it to me—and the names of some of the others have been public property. Only, unless it was some one out of fthe past, I don't know who it could be. Sheila had not the slightest desire to give me grounds for divorce. I really think, in a way, that she wanted to settle down—play the great lady. At any rate, there hasn't even been a shred of gossip about her in that respect—and when there isn't any gossip about Sheila you can depend upon it that gossip looked around pretty closely before giving it up."

"Your own opinion seems to be, then, that your wife must have left of her own free will because there was no way for her to be removed against it; and that, on the other hand, she did not leave either alone or in an elopement because she was satisfied with things as they were. That seems to be rather an impasse."

"It is. And it's just because, the more I think of it, the more impossible it all seems, that I've had to seek somebody else's advice on it."

"As I understand it, since Mrs. Ellsworth's departure is already in the public eye, the only way to turn that eye in some other direction is to find out what has become of her; and, if possible, to do it before the activities of the police stir up more publicity. Is that a fair statement of the situation?"

"If you put it that way—"

"I do. That's the bare bones of it, as I see them—and if you come to me at all, you mustn't expect me to put the ruffles on them." Dr. Cavanaugh's manner, for the first time, was authoritative. The smile which warmed the sternness of his words did not mitigate the fact that he was laying down terms, to be taken or left. "And why, by the way, did you come to me?" he added.

"I hoped you'd be able to tell me what—what she'd be most likely to do," Don said meekly.

"I don't know enough about her to do that off hand. I'm no magician, you know. Any science, even such a muddled science as psychology, must have its laboratory material. I couldn't undertake the case professionally. There's too little to go on. But simply as an unofficial adviser, I'm willing to look into it—if you're sure you want me to."

"Of course I'm sure! Didn't I tell you—"

"Wait a moment." The limpid browneyes took on the polished hardness of agate. "If I go into this at all, it is to find out the facts. Suppose the consequences prove more unpleasant that those you are now facing."

"They couldn't be much more unpleasant," Don looked suddenly tired and white. It is a severe handicap to be brought up to consider the world your tame kitten—and then to find that it has claws. "Any fee that you choose to name, of course—and I'll be glad to leave a retainer—"

"There'll be no fee about it; if for no other reason than because you and Barbara used to be pretty good friends."

"You know—about Barbara—I—"

"You did what you had to do —or thought you had to do, which amounts to the same thing. Besides, there is another reason. It is barely possible that this affair may become too big for our private handling. The police have been known to avail themselves of my services. I shall certainly do nothing to invite such a request, but if they should appeal to me, I must feel absolutely free. However, let's cross no bridges. We'll hope it won't come to that."

"I hope not," Don agreed fervently. Meanwhile, what would you advise me to do?"

"This Mrs. Kane—is she still in the house?"

"Yes—we're on a plane of — armed neutrality, at present. But I couldn't very well ask her to go—"

"Don't. She knows your wife perhaps better than you do—certainly better than I do. That means that she may be useful, whether she wants to be or not."

"You think—"

"I have no reason to think anything—yet—"

Dr. Cavanaugh's leisurely emergence from the deep chair left Don no alternative but to rise also.

"I wish I knew more—" he said as they stood in the open doorway.

"Perhaps you know the old Elizabethan recipe for cooking hare. It begins, 'First, catch your hare.'"

And with this dubious reassurance, Don had to be content.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND JIMMIE'S JAM

Copyright, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

(By Howard R. Garis)

Once upon a time, as Uncle Wiggily was sitting on a stump, behind a mulberry bush, to rest himself, he heard voices talking. Now the old rabbit gentleman had good ears for listening, for they were very long and sharp. He was always listening for he never could tell when he might hear some of the Bad Chaps coming to catch him.

However, this time, it was none of the Bad Chaps. The voices Uncle Wiggily heard as he sat on the stump behind the mulberry bush were those of Jimmie Wibblewobble, the duck, and Sammie and Susie Littletail, the rabbits.

"What kind of jam is it?" Uncle Wiggily heard Sammie ask.

"It's strumberry jam," quacked Jimmie the duck.

"I guess he means strawberry jam," said Sammie the rabbit.

"That's what I said—strumberry jam," spoke Jimmie. Then Sammie and Susie laughed for, no matter how Jimmie tried, he couldn't say "strawberry jam." He always called it "strumberry."

"But it will taste just as good," said Susie.

"Sure!" agreed her brother Sammie. "Only I like ramberry jam best."

"I guess you mean raspberry jam; don't you?" asked Susie with a funny little giggle.

"That's it—raspberry jam," said Sammie.

"Well, the only kind of jam, we got now in our pantry is strumberry," quacked Jimmie. "And if you'll come with me I'll boost one of you up through the window on the outside and you can lift out the pot of jam and we'll all eat it. Come on to my house now."

"Oh, what fun we'll have!" cried Susie.

"Lots of fun!" agreed Jimmie.

"It's more fun climbing up the outside way to a pantry window and reaching in to get jam than it is to go in through the kitchen and the door the regular way," spoke Sammie.

"Sure it is!" said Jimmie. "Anyhow, the only way we can get this strumberry jam, is to climb up from the outside."

"My goodness!" thought Uncle Wiggily to himself when the animal children had hurried away from the bush behind which he was hiding. "This is dreadful! Jimmie is going to help those two rabbits take jam out of his mother's kitchen pantry without telling her. That isn't right. Jimmie is nearly always a good duck, but something bad must have gotten into him to make him do a thing like this."

Uncle Wiggily thought for a moment, twinkling his pink nose, and then he said to himself:

"I'll have to teach those jam taking children a lesson. I'll hop across the fields a short way and get to Jimmie's house ahead of them. If they can climb up to the jam pantry window by the outside way I can do the same. I'll take away the pot of jam and in place I'll leave a little note for Jimmie, telling him how wrong it is to sneak out jam that way instead of going to his mother and asking for it."

So Uncle Wiggily quickly hopped across the fields well knowing that he could reach Jimmie's house ahead of the little duck boy and the two rabbits. And Mr. Longears did. He saw the open pantry window. Below it was a box and it was easy to see how, by standing on this box, Jimmie could give Sammie a boost up to the window so he could reach the pot of "strumberry" jam.

On a white piece of birch bark, with a fire blackened stick, Uncle Wiggily wrote a little note. In it he said:

"Dear Jimmie. It is wrong to sneak out jam through the pantry window. Go in through the door and ask your mother for jam."

Then Uncle Wiggily got up on the box and found that he could easily reach his paw in through the open window without being boosted. For he was bigger than Jimmie or Sammie. Close to the open window was a pot of "strumberry" jam. The rabbit gentleman took it down and was leaving his note in place of it when, all of a sudden, behind him a voice asked:

"What are you doing? Why are you putting your paws in through my pantry window?" Uncle Wiggily turned and there stood Mrs. Wibblewobble the duck lady. "Oh, Uncle Wiggily! I'm surprised at you—taking my jam!" she said. "Oh, Uncle Wiggily! Why didn't you come and ask me?"

Uncle Wiggily blushed as red as a beet and said:

"You don't understand, my dear duck lady. I heard Jimmie planning to come here with Sammie and Susie to take some strumberry jam out of the open window, and I got here first to teach him a little lesson. See, I am going to leave him a little note telling him it is wrong."

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Mrs. Wibblewobble. "You needn't have gone to all that work. You see Mr. Wibblewobble is painting the kitchen floor and Jimmie can't get in that way to take his jam. So I told him I would leave the back pantry window open so he could get it from outside. It is quite all right for him to take jam that way. Ha! Ha!"

"Ha! Ha!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily, laughing at himself. "Wasn't I silly!" Then Jimmie and Sammie and Susie came and they laughed too, as they ate some jam.

SHORELINT OPPOSES CIRCULET AGAIN

Both Entered in Prince of Wales Plate At Thorncliffe.

TORONTO, May 23.—Nominations for the inaugural running of the Prince of Wales Plate at Thorncliffe on the King's Birthday closed with twenty-one nominations. Included in the list is Shorelint, winner of the King's Plate, and Circulet, who reversed the tables on Shorelint in the running of the Breeders' Stakes at the Woodbine.

The conditions of the race which calls for three-year-olds foaled in the British Empire, make the race quite an open affair, there being nominations of four horses bred in England. Three are H. C. Hatch's Hurry Up IV., who started at the Woodbine, and W. J. Gibbin's Lion-Hearted, also a starter at the Woodbine, while the Sewickley Stable has nominated two in Sonnell and Humanist.

This race has an added value of $7,500 for the first running, but if conditions warrant it may in time become one of the richest stakes in Canada. In addition to the purse, a silver cup will be presented by the Thorncliffe Park Racing and Breeding Association to the owners of the winner.

Possibly one of the features of the opening day card on Monday is that the last four races are over a distance of ground, there being three events at a mile and a sixteenth, while the closing race is at a mile and a furlong.

The fololwing are the nominations for the Prince of Wales Plate:

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

HOW TO LIVE

Live life as you would live the year:
The winters come, the springs appear,
And yet you sing, for snow or spring,
You know that life is neither thing,
Not always sun, not always rain,
But sometimes joy and sometimes pain.

Live life as you would live the day:
Not quite all work, not quite all play,
But work a while, and walk a mile,
And take a little time to smile—
A day that has its share of fun,
Yet not a day with nothing done.

Live life as you would live the hour:
Both plant the grain and pluck the flow'r.
The farmer knows about the rose
And yet the fertile furrow goes,
The beauty of the world receives
And yet a little beauty leaves.

Live life as you would live them all,
No season long, no second small,
In each one see that each shall be
A part of all eternity—
For life itself is but a day,
An hour, a moment, on your way.

(C. 1929 by Douglas Malloch)

These results produced in April last net earnings totalling $4,443,180.15, as against net earnings in April, 1928, of $2,884,286.08, an increase during April, 1929, of $1,558,894.07 or 54.05 per cent.

BREAK IN WHEAT FORCES SELLING

Active Issues Affected in Drop To New Low Levels.

NEW YORK, May 27 (Canadian Press).—A break in wheat futures below $1 a bushel to the lowest level in 15 years, coupled with the uncertainty regarding credit conditions, brought a flood of selling orders into the stock market to-day, and prices of many active issues broke 2 to 12 points. Scores of stocks, including General Motors, Montgomery-Ward, Canadian Pacific, Northern Pacific and the St. Paul issues, dropped to new low levels for the years.

Call money renewed unchanged at 6 per cent., but a flurry to 10 or 12 was predicted by Wednesday because of the heavy month-end and holiday demands for funds. Time money rates held firm, the quotations, except for a few weeks in the deflation crisis of 1920, being around the highest levels since 1907.

"Bear" traders, sensing an absence of effective buying support for many of the leading industrials and fails, hammered away with considerable success, dislodging a number of "stop loss orders," and forcing the liquidation of many weakened marginal accounts. Week-end letter of most of the leading commission houses either urged a reduction of long committments until the credit situation was cleared up, or else advised extreme discrimination in the making of new committments. Several of Wall Street's large operators, unable to attract a following on the long side, took short positions in some of the supposedly vulnerable issues.

DIVORCE BILLS ARE IN ORDER

Labor Member Makes Futile Protest Against Their Passage.

SPONSOR ABSENT.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 27 (C.P.).—Rapid progress in the passage of divorce bills was made in the House of Commons to-day. When the first bill was called, A. Heaps (Labor, Winnipeg North) protested, on behalf of J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, Winnipeg North Centre) who was not in the House, that the bill should not be advanced unless its sponsor was present. The sponsor of the bill under consideration was not in the chamber.

G. R. Geary (Conservative, Toronto South) rose to a point of order. Mr. Woodsworth was not in the house himself, and therefore he could not oppose the passage of any bill.

Mr. Speaker Lemieux ruled that the point raised by Col. Geary was well taken, and the House proceeded to put several bills through the committee stage.

Ontario Equitable Increases Capital

Waterloo—The Ontario Equitable Life and Accident Insurance Company of Waterloo has announced its plan for financing the acquisition of the business of the Equity Life. A special general meeting of shareholders authorized the application for an increase of capital from 52,500 to 80,000 shares.

Shareholders of record on July 2 are being offered the right to subscribe for 10,500 shares on the basis of new share for every five shares held. The price to shareholders will be $40 per share, which, while considerably below the present market price of the stock, will nevertheless provide sufficient funds to cover the purchase price of the Equity Life without affecting the Ontario Equitable's surplus.

The Ontario Equitable has endeavored to provide itself with sufficient capital and surplus to establish itself as a business getter on a big scale. It reports a 100 per cent. gain for new business this year, and now has over fifty millions in force.

Sales of Recent Knitting Mills Show 10 Growth.

According to advices received from official sources, the business of Regent Knitting Mills continues to show a steady increase. The recently published annual statement showed a substantial gain in total sales as compared with the previous year. Results so far this year indicate that an ever better showing will be made during the current fiscal period. Gross sales for the first four months amounted to $502,739. This compared with $459,434 for the corresponding period a year ago, an increase of $43,303, or practically ten per cent.

The company's plant has been entirely removed from the rented premises in Montreal and operations are now concentrated in the new works at St. Jerome. As a result of the economies that will be effected in the new location, the ratio of new profits is expected to be considerably higher during the remaining months of the year.

A quickened enquiry is reported for the various lines of knitted goods produced by the company. A factor which places Regent Knitting in a favorable position among Canadian manufacturers of woollen goods is that it specializes on certain lines for which there is a steady demand. Following this policy, it was decided some time ago to discontinue the unprofitable manufacture of hosiery, and this department was disposed of to outside interests on favorable terms.

Canadian Flour Mills Improve Their Operating Position

Last year the King Edward Company earned better than $16 per share on the 20,000 shares outstanding. United Hotels management is mentioned as being in charge of operations of the consolidated operations.

STOCK MARKET BREAKS OPEN

Scores of Issues Tumble From $2 to $12 Per Share in New York.

WHEAT GOES DOWN.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 27 (C.P.).—The stock market again broke wide open to-day. Scores of issues tumbling $2 to $12 a share, many breaking through the low levels reached on last Wednesday.

Drastic collapse, predictions of a severe scarcity of money during the mid-year shifting of balances, and another break in the wheat market, carrying prices below $1 a bushel for the first time in 15 years, caused the heavy selling.

In Police Court

Two local young men appeared before Magistrate Langley charged with breaches of the Ontario Liquor Contorl Act. One man pleaded guilty to the charge of permitting drunkness to take place in his house. His counsel pleaded that he should not be taxed too heavily as he was merely acting the part of an unwise good Samaritan in not throwing the drunken man out on the street. He was fined $10 and $3.75 costs.

The man who had caused the trouble for his friend pleaded guilty to the charge of drinking liquor not obtained under the Ontario Liquor Control Act. He was fined $10 and paid costs of $4.50.

Both men had more serious charges withdrawn when the prosecution failed to produce any evidence.

Three young men of Harvey Township who were mixed up in the midnight affray at a Buckhorn dance paid dearly for their fun in County Police Court this morning. Two were fined $100 each, one for having liquor purchased on permit in a place other than a private residence, and the other not being a holder of a permit did have liquor in his possession. The third paid $10 and costs for consuming liquor in a place other than a private residence.

PLANE ATTEMPTS TO BREAK RECORD

Miss Ranger Has Already Been More Than 40 Hours in Air.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 27 (C.P.).—Better than forty hours of continuous flying had been marked up by the single motored monoplane "Miss Ranger" as she soared over Minneapolis early Monday in an attempt to break the record of the "Fort Worth." Notes dropped by the pilots, Gene Shank and Owen Haugland, indicated that all was well, allaying fears that Sunday's heavy rain and the resultant fog might have impaired the efficiency of the motor.

The endurance fliers took on fuel and food twice Sunday.

The ship took off from the Wichita, Kans., field shortly before 9 a.m Saturday.

AVIATION LEAGUE STARTS CAMPAIGN

Major General MacBrien Heads Movement For 25,000 Members.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 27 (C.P.).—The Aviation League of Canada, in annual meeting here to-day, decided to commence an intensive membership campaign with an objective of 25,000 members. To this work Major-General J. H. MacBrien, president of the league, and others have pledged their whole time support.

Recognizing "the inestimable value of aviation to a country such as Canada," where the great distances between centres of population and between the pioneer and settled territories makes a fast system of transportation most desirable, the Aviation League is throwing its full weight of influence behind the campaign for members, Major-General MacBrien said.

"Only by awakening the interest of the public in this new field, and by demonstrating to the people of Canada what aviation will do for the nation, can the fullest achievement be realized," Major-General MacBrien added. "There would seem to be no better way of gaining public sympathy than by bringing into our membership the many thousands of persons who have at least a passing interest in aviation. There are sufficient people who recognize the future of this science, and who are enthusiastic where its encouragement is concerned, to make progress inevitable and to assure success."

COMMENT ON THE MARKET

A Special Service to The Examiner.

WARNER BROS. PLAN 2-FOR-1 STOCK SPLIT.

New York.—Directors of Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., voted to split the common stock of the company on a two-for-one basis, and to increase the authorized number of common shares from 2,500,000 to 7,500,000. Stockholders of the company will vote upon the proposals at a special meeting on June 21.

Announcement was also made that the directors planned to place the company's stock on a dividend basis. The company's stock at current price is worth more than $150,000,000.

Albert Warner, vice-president of the company, said the directors intended to decline an initial quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on the new common stock, placing it on a $3 annual basis, which is equivalent to $6 on the present stock, which has not paid dividends. In addition, he said, an extra dividend of 12½ cents a share would be declared. Payment of the dividends would be made not later than September 1, if the split-up was approved before that date. Other extras might be declared from time to time, Mr. Warner said.

PRUDENTIAL INSURANCE COMPANY HAS OVER $30,000,000 INVESTED IN CANADA.

In the first three months of the current fiscal year, ended March 31, the fire business in Canada has increased 30 per cent. During 1928, due to the relatively high yields available on sound Canadian securities, the Prudential, through a well-known Canadian investment house, invested large sums in this country.

EXPORTS WILL BE HEAVY DURANG MAY.

New Westminster. — Lumber exports from the Fraser River are showing strength, following the period of weakness in the early spring.

The rail lumber business is exceedingly good ,lumbermen state.

There is a keen demand for industrial timber, owing to the vast construction under way for B.C. fish canneries, prairie elevators, and Eastern Canadian pulp and paper, mining and power projects.

EASTERN CANADIAN MANUFACTURERS ESTABLISH BRANCHES IN WEST.

Vancouver.—It will not be long before Eastern Canadan manufacturers will establish branch factories in the west, where rapid expansion is being experienced and where a spirit of unbounded optimism prevails, according to E. W. BeSaw, vice-president of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company of Canada Limited, who has just arrived here from a business tour.

In every city in the west visited by Mr. BeSaw he discovered business conditions to be of a most promising nature. Building construction projects showed that this year the expansion would be even more remarkable than that of 1928. In Vancouver they expected to double the construction work of last year.

The development of manufacturing in Western Canada was inevitable, he declared. As American factories had built branch plants in Eastern Canada, so Eastern Canadian factories would build branch plants in the west.

The man who would never walk again.

Who could imagine a more poignant story than this? A champion athlete—bedridden. Told that he could never walk again . . . ! And then he took Kruschen.

"My Doctor told my landlady that I could never walk again. I had rheumatism set in about Christmas time, and was confined to bed for two months.

"I am nearly sixty years of age. After taking six bottles I am starting to work next week.

"Up till two years ago I had been a Champion Racing Cyclist. I have won a prize every time I have ridden. Being an athlete, but a poor scholar, it would take me a week to write the facts about Kruschen Salts."

LAKE SHORE MINES.

Commenting on Lake Shore Mines, F. J. Crawford in the Mining Chronicle for May says.

"We have reports from Kirkland Lake Camp which we believe to be correct that will bring Lake Shore Mines shares still more prominently to the front.

A good deal has been heard of the third ore body at the mine which was encountered first at the 1000 horizon when cross cutting was under way, and then was picked up at the 400 ft. level. This ore is of such importance as to add many millions to the known ore reserves.

It is reported to us that a diamond drill was carried to a depth of 3500 feet at Lake Shore for exploration purposes to satisfy the curiosity of the management as to what might be expected at g reater depth, when development work went down. This drill we are advised, passed through a large ore body at this horizon of high grade material.

Furthermore, we are advised that Lake Shore has ore developed equal in value to that of Noranda.

We are informed also that Lake Shore Mines will step up the mill by stages during the next two or three years to a maximum, probably, of 2500 tons daily, when earnings at the rate of $5 per share may be expected, on the present capital of $2,000,000 of $1 par value. This basing average recovery at $15 per ton and average costs at $5 per ton.

The present capacity of the mill is 1300 tons daily, and with average recovery better than $15 production is running at the rate of approximately $7,000,000 per annum with profits over all costs in excess of 200 per cent. per annum.

. . . The Daily Newspaper is the only medium in Canada that is sufficiently flexible to meet all seasonal opportunities. A schedule can be "called" as easily as a bank loan, and quicker.

"Hold this ad for a cold, rainy Thursday" . . . An agency man thinks nothing of asking a Daily Newspaper to do this . . . but try it out on some of the more static forms of publication.

. . . North, South, East and West can be handled independently in the Daily Newspaper. Warm weather products need not be advertised where the weather is cold, nor cold weather products where the weather is warm.

. . . "Season" copy is kept absolutely in step with seasonable demand. And if freak weather—or a freak market condition—obtains, your Newspaper schedule can be changed overnight.

No other advertising medium is so completely under your control as the Daily Newspaper.

LOCAL PEOPLE ARE THANKFUL "HUSKY" WAS BROUGHT HERE

Say They Didn't Know Anything Would Give Such Quick Relief From Indigestion, Constipation, Catarrhal Troubles, Headaches, Rheumatic Pains, Weak and Worn Out Feelings and Other Ailments.

MRS. ANNIE JACKSON

Did anything ever make you feel more thankful than to get rid of something that hurt you and worried you?

That is the reason hundreds in Peterborough are so thankful for "Husky," the wonderful medicine being introduced here by Bond's Drug Store.

"Husky" is giving them such quick relief from sour stomach, gas after eating, heartburn, constipation, catarrhal troubles, headaches, rheumatic pains in the back and limbs, nervousness and weak, tired out feelings. Peterborough people find that Husky makes them enjoy their food more, sleep better and feel stronger.

Sufferers in Peterborough and in all sections of Canada report the most marvelous results from using this medicine. Mrs. Annie Jackson, of 167 Dumas St., Montreal, writes as follows:

"I've had kidney trouble for years and suffered something terrible with my back. The pains went down into my legs," she said, "and I ached all over. I had terrible headaches and even my eyes were affected. I was very weak. My niece told me about Husky and I began taking it just a short time ago.

"It is helping me so fast I am going to keep on taking it. The pains have gone down so I can sleep well and I feel like eating again. I am a lot stronger."

When catarrh or acidity irritates your stomach and kidneys and causes the delicate membranes to throw off mucus, take Husky. This mucus surrounds the food you eat, fills you with gas, constipates you and then your food sends poison instead of rich, red corpuscles into your blood. Rheumatism, headaches, dizzy spells and weak run-down conditions follow. Husky's ingredients cleanse the system of this mucus and acidity and soothe the membranes. That's why it helps so quick and why a treatment of several bottles gives permanent relief.

Call at Bond's Drug Store and see the authority from the Husky Laboratories who is now making his headquarters at this Store. He will gladly explain to you how best and quickest results are obtained from the use of this medicine. Call on him to-morrow, your visit no doubt will lead you to relief from suffering just as such visits have already brought new health and strength to hundreds in Peterborough.

The highways of buying

"FOLLOW the highway markings and you can't go wrong." . . . That's the advice the Automobile Club gives you before starting on a motor trip. You follow the well-known, well-marked roads. And you reach your destination the safest, most comfortable way.

Why not follow the same rule in your shopping? Why not stick to the "highways of buying?" They have been just as carefully plotted, and are just as carefully marked as the great motor roads you've come to depend upon. Marked by the trade-marks of reliable, advertised products.

The next time you go shopping follow these "highways." Before you start, look through the advertisements in these columns. Pick out the products you want. Notice the names and trade-marks that identify them. And then ask for them by name.

The advertisements are sign-posts to guide you to the best and most reliable merchandise.

THE DULL TRIP - By FANNIE HURST

The World's Highest Paid Short Story Writer

Author of "Lummox", "Humoresque"

It was a supercilious, a bored young woman who stood at the rail as the Leviathan steamed into Cherbourg. Beside her, in the midst of her littler of hat boxes, golf bags, trunks, frills and flounces, stood Beepo. A dull trip, Isabel thought. But did Beepo?

MISS ISABEL SCOTT was a young woman with a Long Island and an East Sixty-first Street address. She was a graduate of the most excellent girls' school in New York. Had been presented at the court of King George. Occupied a suite at the Crillon in Paris ten weeks every Spring. Drove her own racing roadster and at twenty-four, an orphan, rather fabulously rich and good-looking in a bold, careless fashion, dared to do everything, go everywhere, unchaperoned.

She got by with it. There was something eupeptic about her. She was the sort of girl who wore tailored togs extremely well, who danced in a sexless, athletic fashion, thoroughly pleasing to behold. She traveled with one maid, eight trunks, a bull terrier and a chauffeur. She had taste, breeding, a certain amount of intellect and personality.

Life Was a Dull Affair

The summer she boarded the steamship Leviathan for Cherbourg, she was bound for a spot on the Italian Riviera, where she had heard there was a colony of "sophisticates", who might give life, which was a pretty dull affair to her right then, renewed interest.

A young man named Ardsley, whose grandfather was probably the richest North American in South America, had recently committed suicide over a cliff in the Dolomites. Rumor in Isabel's set had it, that a letter of dismissal from her was found in his pocket. There was something hard and daring about Isabel. It might easily have been so.

In any event, it was a rather nervous, irascible, high-strung, feverish-eyed young woman who boarded the Leviathan and occupied in single state, the suite-de-luxe.

Passenger List Full of Famous

According to the personnel of the passenger list, it was a brilliant journey. There was a member of the Russian Romanoffs on board who danced with Isabel five times out of every six. The author of the reigning dramatic success of London decided that Isabel was like a tiger-orchid and, every one of the six days of the voyage, sent her a bunch of outrageously expensive ones from the ship's florist. The most famous tenor in the world was on board the boat and the night he sang at the charity concert, it was to laugh the manner in which he hurled his beautiful voice at Isabel.

There is no doubt that she was, by virtue of her social position and something a little intangible that placed her apart, the most sought-after young woman on board.

Five times a day, Isabel disappeared to her suite for a change of costume. She had a blue-eyed, bronze-haired maid with the ridiculous name of Beepo. She had had her for five years. A caricature of a little thing, with a pert nose and a pert flip to her body as she walked and a profile that was packed with comedy. She was a squat, little Pekingese sort of a person. Invaluable to a girl of Isabel's quick, panorama habits.

Beepo Was "Quite a Card"

Beepo was one of those self-effacing people. She had no personality in particular, which to a person of superlative personality, was soothing. Between the frequent intervals of helping her mistress change costumes, Beepo sat down in the deck-kitchen where afternoon tea and cold drinks could hurriedly be prepared for passengers, and chatted and gossiped with the stewards and odds and ends of members of the crew.

There was one steward in particular, named Marko, who thought Beepo, as he put it, "quite a card". They were forever sparring and teasing and indulging in low-comedy chaff. But Marko, like Beepo, was engaged in a regimental sort of service. His hours were long and hard and exacting. He was at the mercy of the whims of the traveling public.

And that part of the traveling public which is least accustomed to being served at home, is most exacting as to service, when abroad. And so the snatches of levity between Beepo and Marko, what with the demands of his work and her servitude to the most popular woman on board, were apparently few and far between.

So Beepo Could Endure Isabel

And yet, they helped Beepo endure Isabel's rising tide of nervousness as the trip wore on.

After all, there had been the suicide of young Ardsley over the cliff in the Dolomites, with that letter from Isabel in his pocket. The press had come dangerously near to a spectacular "scoop" where Isabel was concerned, and all in all, it was a high-strung, over-wrought young woman with whom Beepo had to cope these days. And now, to add to the tension, the member of the Russian family of Romanoff was hot with pursuit of Isabel, whose bank account was said to run easily into seven figures, and whose high-handed insolence had fascination for his Slavic temperament.

Every night of that trip, Beepo waited up for her mistress until four in the morning. There were evening gowns to be pressed, chiffons to be mended, wardrobe trunks to be rummaged, hats to be unearthed, notes to be delivered, telegrams to be answered, cold creams, beauty creams, lotions to be applied, flowers to be arranged, every hour of the day and far too late into the night.

The British dramatist on board insisted upon calling every day after his tiger orchids had been delivered. There was a young poet named Andalusia who wrote Isabel a sonnet every morning and sent it to her by messenger. Crerson, who happened to be the adventurous son of a Seattle oil magnate, proposed to her the second day out.

A Dull Trip, Isabel Thought

It was a supercilious, a bored young woman who stood at the rail as the Leviathan steamed into Cherbourg. Beside her, in the midst of the litter of hat boxes, golf bags, trunks, Gladstones, steamer blankets, frills, flounces, bull-dog, hampers, stood Beepo, with a perky little comedy hat on her bronze-colored hair and a feather in it that seemed to have a continual wiggle to it.

"Heavens alive," said Isabel, "but it's been a dull trip, hasn't it?"

"Yessum," said Beepo, accustomed to acquiesce, "it's been a dull trip, but I'm just 'agiving notice, Miss Isabel. I'll be going back on the Leviathan next trip. The Captain married me and Marko at sea this morning."

FINAL REPORT BEING DRAFTED

Little Hope of Success is Held By Delegates at Experts' Conference.

15TH WEEK ENDS.

PARIS, May 25—(Canadian Press)—The fifteenth week of the reparations conference was drawing to a close to-day in deep gloom.

Eleventh hour conversations in an effort to find a solution for the long pending reparations problem continued but nobody was willing to say that there seemed much hope of success.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the German delegation, talked with Owen D. Young this morning and resumed their conversation after lunch. They discussed mostly how the committee's report to the respective governments shall be drawn, setting forth agreement on some points and disagreement on others.

There was some talk on continuing the conversations until after the British elections, but the experts declared that politics never entered into their calculations and that they would get through their work as soon as they could.

OLD TRADITION CAUSES RIOT

Belief in "Forty-Man Law" in Quebec Leads to Trouble.

CUSTOM OF NEW FRANCE

MONTREAL, Que., May 22.—(By the Canadian Press).—Threatened riots recently in the town of Senneterre, Abitibi, have brought to the fore a tradition, which has cropped out from time to time in remote country districts of Quebec, that ancient law in force for centuries has provided that "forty men, grouped and having the same view or the same object, make law."

In what dim age was this 'law' born; in what circumstances; and how was it transplanted in New France to be handed from generation to generation even to the 20th century? Such is the question now occupying E. Z. Massicotte, Court House archivist, who has before him data proving that the tradition has been widespread in the remote areas of this province.

Contracts Not Followed.

The Senneterre incident came a week or two ago. It was based on complaints from lumbermen that their contract had not been followed. Coming out of the bush, they united at Senneterre, and for a time, there was ugly situation in the little Abitibi town. Officers of the law were summoned, together with officials from the Departments of Lands and Forests at Quebec. The would-be rioters were soon told that execution of plans for making trouble would be quickly checked, according to the laws of the land. Then came the occurrence which has raised the question of the origin of the old "Forty-man law."

One of the government officials from Quebec has written to Mr. Massicotte as follows: "I heard it affirmed by some of the men at Senneterre that forty men, grouped and having the same view or the same object, make law. In around fifty years, this is the third time that the same affirmation, to my knowledge, has been made. I have known of it around 1880 at St. Elie de Caxton (St. Maurice county); in 1918 at Grande Baie, Lake St. John, and now in 1929 at Senneterre, Abitibi.

Origin Unknown.

"I questioned those people, and they know nothing of the origin of the pretension, but their contention is that forty men have all privileges and all powers. One of them told me that his father had said this dated from the time of the knights in old France, who used this law to impose their views on their sovereign."

That is all the information Mr. Massicotte now has before him. In commencing his research, however, various suggestions have been made to him. That the tradition, or "law" is European in origin is taken as beyond question. Whether it is a relic of the days when each province in France had its own "costume," or code of laws; or whether it came from Britain in pre-feudal days or feudal days; whether it is a fragment of written or unwritten law, are all matters to be thrashed out. And, as for the birth of the "law" on this side of the Atlantic, search must be made to determine whether it came with the pioneers of New France, or whether it is one of those clauses of the unwritten "bush law" and study must be made to decide the possibility of its having possibly been transmitted to the old voyageurs by Scots traders, or by other Europeans of the days le pays d'en haut.

Commander Evangeline Booth Is Injured In Automobile Accident In New York

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 25.—(C.P.)—Evangeline Booth, commander-in-chief of the Salvation Army in America, was seriously injured in an automobile accident yesterday, it was announced at her headquarters to-day.

Commander Booth is suffering from concussion of the brain and a multiple contusion around the eye.

The accident occurred as the Commander was on her way from her home in Hartsdale to the headquarters here.

Explaining the accident, Army officials said Commander Booth's chauffeur ran his car across a ditch to avoid hitting an auto in front of him which started to turn across the road. There was not room enough between the car and a telephone pole to pass. Commander Booth was thrown against the top and side of the auto. She was taken to her home.

JOINT MEETING HEARS ADDRESS

Mrs. Myers Addresses Members of Fenella and Roseneath Branches.

INTERESING TALK

FENELLA, May 25 (Examiner Correspondence).—On Saturday afternoon last, Mrs. Myers of Dundas addressed the Roseneath and Fenella branches of the Women's Institute in Fenella Hall.

Mrs. Myers spoke first on "Does and Dont's in Institute Work." She said: "Make your programs educational. Let people know about your organization; you can't afford not to. Have a roll call to be answered with the name of a Canadian industry, and do not omit historical research from your programs."

Mrs. Myers followed this short talk with an address on "Citizenship." She said, in part: "The dictionary defines citizenship as the rights of a free man, but I would say, citizenship is the art of living together in a community. Women are on a level with men now. As citizens, we must realize our responsibility; woman is thinking for herself now." Just here, Mrs. Myers spoke for a moment on the consolidated school question, emphasizing its value to rural children. "As voters, we must study this question from every angle. We must have a far-away vision."

Continuing on the subject of citizen ship, she said: "Home is the centre of all citizenship, and woman is the centre of the home, 'the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world.' A good citizen must have a good foundation of health. Napoleon said food makes the soldier, so, to-day, food makes the every-day soldier, sent out to fight the battles of the world. We cannot have the right kind of a citizen without the right home influence. If we would send a self-reliant citizen out into the world, we must train the child in self-control; in self-restdain, train with a fine outlook. The home influence should be such that it would draw them back from the four corners of the earth. National influence all comes from the home.

The women of generations ago were trying to build up a good citizenship; to them we owe our comforts of to-day. Do not let these comforts be our downfall — youth must not be satiated with comforts. Happiness is something that cannot be expressed in words, it is within ourselves if we would make an art of living together in a community."

In conclusion, Mrs. Myers gave her audience this key to citizenship, the key to the royal road of happiness:

"If you're keeping an investment,
That will bring to life contentment,
Just help the other fellow lift his load.

There's no greater joy in living,
Than that which comes from giving,
So help the other fellow with his load.

It will make your day grow brighter,
Your every task grow lighter,
If you help the other fellow with his load.

And you'll find before your life is o'er
That you've found the key to Heaven's door,
While you helped the other fellow with his load."

Mrs. Hershey, president of Roseneath branch, moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Myers for her splendid address.

Mrs. Nichol and Mrs. Brisbin, of Roseneath, moved a vote of thanks to Fenella branch for its hospitality.

Mrs. Harrison George, president of Fenella Branch, was in the chair and responded to the latter motion in a few appropriate words.

Mrs. W. J. Jibb read a paper entitled "About the Institute." Several community songs were sung, also a duet by Mrs. Clark Jewell and Mrs. A. Nill.

At the close of the meeting, the ladies of Fenella Branch served supper to the visiting branch.

Personals.

Mrs. Myers, of Dundas, who has been addressing open meetings of the Women's Institute in West Northumberland, spent the week-end with Mrs. Thomas Bates, of Harwood.

FARM WORK PROGRESSING

Farmers Rapidly Completing Spring Seeding Under Favorable Weather Conditions.

DISTRICT NEWS.

BAILIEBORO, May 27 (Examiner Correspondence).—The dry weather that has prevailed during the past week has enabled the farmers of the district to make splendid progress toward getting their spring seeding completed. The major portion of the early grain is now in the ground, but there is still some grain to be sown.

Experienced farmers state that they have never, during their lives, witnessed a spring when they have found it such a difficult task to get their seeding done. The soil was very wet to start with, and the cold rains that have been so numerous have kept the land in a very soddened state.

Grain that was sown almost a month ago is now only beginning to show above the surface and it is not coming up evenly as it should, but very patchy. In some instances where wet soil was sown, the owners claim they will have to re-sow the crop.

On account of the extremely backward spring, grain has been rushed into the land when the soil was not in a condition to receive it, and thus the prospects for a heavy spring grain crop are not at all favorable. It is not so, however, with the fall wheat, hay and alsike. These crops have wintered splendidly, and are now looking wonderfully good.

The weather during the next six weeks will have a lot to do with the yield of the crops, and there is the possibility that all crops may this year be bumper crops.

ARCHBISHOP O'BRIEN LIFE-LONG RESIDENT

College and the Grand Seminary in Montreal, before going to the Propaganda University at Rome. He holds the degrees of L.S.T. and B.C.L from the Seminary at Montreal, and of Doctor of Divinity from the University at Rome.

Ordained in 1897

Archbishop O'Brien was ordained to the priesthood in 1897 and two years later in Rome received the degree of Doctor of Divinity. In that same year, returning home, he became curate at St. Peter's Cathedral and occupied that charge of ten years years, until the new Church of the Sacred Heart was built in 1909, and he was appointed as its first pastor in November of that year. Incidentally, this was his first and only pastoral charge, lasting four years until the death of the late Bishop O'Connor, when he was appointed as his successor, on June 20th, 1913.

At the age of thirty-nine years, Archbishop O'Brien was consecrated as Bishop of Peterborough on September 24th, 1913, by His Excellency Monsignor Stagni, former Apostolic Delegate to Canada, the attending clergy including three archbishops and fourteen bishops, as well as many priests, representing altogether almost all of the chief dioceses of the Dominion.

Two years before that time, his mother passed away, and his father died a year later, in 1912.

Archbishop O'Brien is at present the chaplain for Ontario of the Knights of Columbus, succeeding Bishop Fallon of London in that position, in November, 1927.

His career in Peterborough has been distinguished by a keen interest in community affairs and a broad viewpoint that has made him popular with citizens of all creeds. His work in connection with St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society was among the many activities that will serve as a reminder of his ability as an organizer of men, in a battle against the forces of evil.

The nearest relatives of Archbishop O'Brien are two first cousins, living in the city; the Rev. Mother Bernard, Superior of St. Joseph's Hospital, and her sister, Miss Elizabeth O'Brien.

MEDICAL REPORT FROM MISSIONARY

Dr. C. B. Archer Tells of Conditions and Activities Among Natives of India.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 27. — The many friends of Dr. B. B. Archer and the members of this Deanery of the Church of England, will be interested to learn from first hand information some of the conditions and activities under which Dr. Archer is working, and in which he is engaged in his field of service as a medical missionary in India. Dr. Archer is well known in this district, and many follow his work with interest in its progress. In a letter from the C.M.S. Medical Mission in Bengal, Dr. Archer gives a brief but complete synopsis of the year's work there.

In the beginning of the letter Dr. Archer mentions the fact that the year just passed has been a heavy one, especially since Dr. Flint and Miss Law were away from the mission for some time, part of which was during the hot rainy season when the staff had its hands full. He also mentions thankfully that they have all been well with the exception of Mr. Cooper, who has suffered from recurring attacks of malaria. The return of Miss Law and of Dr. Flint, one month later, was a welcome event. During their absence, two natives, one a Christian doctor, and the other an assistant, did excellent work, he claims.

"The outstanding event of the year," he said, "was the completion of the new ward of the woman's hospital. The Metropolitan performed the dedication ceremony and the ward was officially opened by Lt.-Col. Coppinger, D.S.O., I.M.S., acting Surgeon General. There were about 60 officials present at the ceremony. After the religious ceremony was completed Dr. Archer read a short report outlining the history of the ward and describing how the funds for its erection had been accumulated. The Surgeon-general spoke of the Mission and its work. After the opening ceremonies the guests retired to the Sister's bungalow, where a social gathering took place. Another note of interest is that on the evening preceding the ceremony the Bishop held a confirmation service where seventeen were confirmed.

In his detailed report of the dispensary Dr. Archer mentions the fact that malaria was somewhat less than during the previous three years. This, he says, is due to the satisfactory monsoon rains in lower Bengal. The number of patients did not reach the thousand mark on any one day but the number continued large till well into December. There were 85,829 visits made to out patients. The wave of Kala-azar seems to be definitely decreasing, the symptoms becoming more indefinite and the disease more difficult to diagnose. Since 1926 the number of intravenous injections have decreased from 12,943 to 5,716, practically half. During the year, three of the dispensers at the hospital qualified for the government examinations and received their diplomas.

"In the hospitals," he says, "the work has gone on as usual, with 1302 men patients, and 812 women. These figures mean that the beds in the hospitals are practically never empty. It represents the maximum with the present number of beds and staff. The sisters have taken over the feeding arrangements in the men's wards, and the patients are more comfortable. The services of an Indian Christian woman have been secured in this department. In the letter are also a number of very interesting personal experiences and observations of Dr. Archer. Under the head of building the doctor mentions that an additional doctors' bungalow had been erected and the next extension to the hospital was to be an antiseptic operation and dressing room at the men's hospital and then at the children's home.

MRS. JAMES KELLEHER.

CAMPBELLORD, May 27. — The funeral of the late Mrs. James Kelleher, was held from her late residence, Seymour West at nine o'clock on Saturday morning, to St. Mary's church, Campbellford, where service was held. Interment was in St. Mary's Roman Catholic cemetery. The Rev. Father Phelan, parish priest, was the officiating clergyman. The pall bearers, were Joseph Kelleher, George Kelleher and Arthur Kelleher, three sons of the deceased, and James McGrath, a son-in-law, Peter Kelleher, a nephew, and Michael Mahoney.

The late Mrs. Kelleher was the last member of her generation of one of the pioneer families of the district. She was born in Tyandinaga township, but had resided in this district during all her married life. Before her marriage she was Sarah Culkeen, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Culkeen. She was in her 83rd year, and her death came as the termination of a long period of failing health. With her passing the district mourns an aged and highly respected citizen. She was a devout member of St. Mary's Roman Catholic church.

Mrs. Kelleher was the mother of eleven children, five of whom predeceased her. Her husband died several years ago. There survive, four sons, Joseph of Seymour West; Arthur at Healey Falls; George at home and Reuben in Western Canada. There are also two daughters, Sister Lyola of London, Ont., and Mrs. James McGrath of Seymour West.

No Fires As Result May 24 Celebrations

The members of the Peterborough fire department and Fire Chief Gimblet wish to express their appreciation as to the celebrations held here yesterday. Chief Gimblet states that this year more attention was paid to his warning that was published the night before the holiday than ever before and that the celebration was carried out under the supervision of the parents to a large extent which minimized the dangers of fireworks a great deal.

There were no fires reported to the fire station as the result of fireworks or firecrackers. The only alarm being received yesterday was a chimney fire at 527 George street, calling out the men at 11.38 p.m. There was no damaged reported.

TRIP SHOWED HER MUCH TO CONDEMN

Miss Yvonne Fitzroy Finds houses Dull and Toronto Arrogant.

London, England, May 27.—(By The Canadian Press)—Miss Yvonne Fitzroy, writer of a book called "The Canadian Panorama" describes in it her motor tour across Canada. She found Montreal romantic but not beautiful. "We lived on Ontario Avenue, halfway up the steep ascent to the mountain, in a house large and gloomy and Victorian, but it had both character and comfort. The details of bathroom and breakfast in bed were the one of American, the other of English perfection and the servants had a refreshing air of performance. Yet I could not live in these houses, so weighty and dark. The bitter winter seems to create a fear of warmth; blinds are drawn against the welcome sun as they are, and justifiably, in India. The effect is depressing."

She gives a page of comment to the treasures in the Royal Ontario Museum, Toronto, particularly mentioning the Chinese items, which are only rivalled by Peking itself. Of Toronto itself, she says: "It may be arrogant, but it is not dull; complacent, but it is not dead. I liked its Press and its atmosphere. I thought the new station admirable and I have seen no shore road to compare with its own, except perhaps the Marina at Madras."

Auent Niagara's illumination her remarks are forcible: "The monstrous, blasphemous colored lights—pink and blue and green and orange—stain the Falls and make the fortune of the hotelkeeper by holding the tourist at Niagara overnight. Of course there are people who saw Niagara 30 years ago and who to-day shake their heads over past glories; but I for one believe that to be nothing but malice. Niagara is not spoilt. I admit the power stations do not exactly adorn the gorge. I admit that to have come upon it in an untouched wilderness must have been a terrific experience, but for all that there is enough and to spare left over for our awe and delight."

MRS. W. BOOTH WAS PIONEER PREACHER

General's Wife Extolled at Centenary Service in Toronto.

Toronto, Ont., May 27—(By The Canadian Press)—At the General William Booth Centenary Service held here, the self-sacrifice and energy of his wife, Catherine, were extolled by Mrs. Wm. Maxwell.

Temperance work in Christian missions was organized by Catherine Booth, and Mrs. Maxwell related a story where criticism had arisen when Mrs. Booth agreed that Generzl Booth, who was in ill-health, should partake of a little port wine that the doctor had prescribed.

A glorious day accorded to her, when the general invited his wife to speak in his pulpit, thus acknowledging the equal intellectual status of army women. "She blazed the trail of women in public speaking," Said Mrs. Maxwell concluded

A telegram was read from Commander Eva Booth, in part, as follows:

"I am but one of the hundred thousands of his children who lift this day voices of praise to God for my father, for his birth, which immortalize the old town of Nottingham, for his unbroken service to man, given to the people of all nations, for his abandonment to the will of God maintained until the day he died, for his 83 years of self-effacement in single-eyedness of God's glory, for his passion, for the love he gave me. All are with me still a quenchless flame within my heart, ever inspiring me to stand with those of my command to the pledges oft given of unfailing devotion to the original ideals and purposes of our founder."

"AUNT BETSY" DIES AT PORT CREDIT

Mrs. Sharp Was 72 Years Old, But Had Only 22 Birthdays.

Port Credit, Ont., May 27.—(By The Canadian Press.)—The obituary notice of Mrs. Elizabeth Sharp of this town, reads, "better known as Aunt Betsy." She was the relict of Captain Daniel Sharp and died in her 94th year. A resident here jor more than 72 years, she had only 22 birthdays, having been born on Febuary 29. She had a wonderful memory and derived much pleasure in recalling incidents and occurrences of early days, whenever she could get an attentive listener. She would remind them that in her girlhood the only means of transportation between Port Credit, Toronto and Hamilton, was by water. Mrs. Sharp saw the advent of the telephone, phonograph, steamboats, the radio and aeroplane, but she did not take kindly to the two latter—radio, she said, was too uncanny, and flying was a defiance of the Almighty.

That Body of Yours

(By Jas. W. Barton, M.D.)

JOKING ABOUT INFECTED TEET JOKING ABOUT INFECTED TEETH.

About once or twice a year I feel the urge within me to get after the humorist who says "It is very easy to be a doctor. All you have to do when you don't know what is wrong with a patient is to say "Oh it is your teeth that is the cause of all your trouble. You'll have to have them all extracted."

This is of course only a joke, but it is not a joke if an individual has a mouthful of infected teeth, or even one infected tooth.

The care of the yeeth, the removal of the infection from the teeth, gums, and tonsils, is just as important from a health standpoint as any other part of the body.

When asked about the importance of the care of the mouth, Sir William Osler, the greatest physician of modern times replied that "it was one of the outstanding public health matters, the promotion of which will do more to prevent disease and promote the health of the human race, than any other single thing in the whole field of modern sanitation." Just think of that for a moment. No other one thing in the whole field of medicine or sanitation is as important as having a healthy mouth. Someone recently pointed out that our life insurance companies pay more attention to such unimportant things as a small boil or pimple than they do to the condition of the mouth, and yet more trouble starts here than anywhere else.

Abscessed teeth, or even one abscessed tooth, may be the cause of all sorts of ailments throughout the body.

Heart disease, including infection of the lining of the heart itself, inflammation of the heart muscle or its covering, can come from infected teeth.

Most rheumatism, while due in part to infected tonsils, can likewise be blamed on infected teeth.

Eye and ear specialists have been telling us for years that a good percentage of their cases can be traced to bad teeth.

Even anaemia is now definitely established as being frequently due to infected teeth.

So likewise with ulcers of the stomach and small intestine, kidney and liver ailments, appendicitis and other abdominal ailments.

You cannot wonder then that I wish our humorists would get away from treating this matter as a joke.

It means health, and happiness, life itself, to every one of us.

OLD SONGS

THAT PIECE OF SONG, That old and antique song we heard, last night.

SHE MOTHERED FIVE.
By Edgar A. Guest
(Contributed by "Dory")

She mothered five!
Night after night she watched a little bed,
Night after night she cooled a fevered head.
Day after day she guarded little feet,
Taught little minds the dangers of the street,
Taught little lips to utter simple prayers,
Whispered of strength that some day would be theirs,
And trained them all to use it as they should.
She gave her babies to the nation's good.

She mothered five!
She gave her beauty—from her cheeks let fade,
Their rose-bush beauty—to her mother trade.
She saw the wrinkles furrowing her brow,
Yet smiling said: "My boy grows stronger now."
When pleasures called she turned away and said:
"I dare not leave my babies to be fed
By strangers' hands; besides they are too small;
I must be near to hear them when they call."

She mothered five!
Night after night they sat about her knee
And heard her tell of what some day would be.
From her they learned that in the world outside
Are cruelty and vice and selfishness and pride;
From her they learned the wrongs they ought to shun,
What things to love what work must still be done.
She led them through the labyrinth of youth
And brought five men and women up to truth.

She mothered five!
Her name may be unknown save to the few;
Of her the outside world but little knew;
But somewhere five are treading virtue's ways,
Serving the world and brightening its days;
Somewhere are five, who tempted, stand upright,
Who cling to honor, keep her memory bright;
Somewhere this mother toils and is alive
No more as one, but in the breasts of five.

AS YOU PASS BY.

Oh stay your feet my dearest,
And listen as you pass,
A voice, a voice, is calling,
Across the Kirkyard grass.
Oh don't you hear it speak again,
From out the silver dew,
The old sweet words of long ago,
That once I spoke to you?

Kneel down, kneel down, my dearest,
And kiss the waving grass,
It is my heart has waited,
Kneel down if you remember,
And leave a kiss for me,
For all the love of long ago,
For all you used to be.

A SONG.

When the leaves are falling dearest,
And you seek this quiet mount,
Where I slumber, you will find it
With a wreath of blossoms crowned,
Gather then for thy bright tresses,
Those that from my heart have sprung,
They're the love thoughts that I spoke not,
And the songs I left unsung.

FOREIGN FOODS.

Nothing is better for the jaded appetites of late winter than a meal of foreign cooking. The smart housekeeper can purchase, at small price, cook books that give whole menus from various countries. Also many current magazines carry descriptive accounts of how to give a Spanish dinner or a high tea in Bermuda.

TAKING AVIATION COURSE

Betty Robinson, only American girl to win a track championship at Amsterdam, is taking an aviation training course at Chicago. Miss Robinson was given the decision over "Bobby" Rosenfeld in the 100-metre race at the Olympic games, causing a protest to be registered by Canadians.

Golden Glory

By LAURA REID MONTGOMERY.

"Here's a china slipper." The auctioneer didn't trouble to mask his contempt as he held aloft the dainty bit of rose-and-gold porcelain with its buckle of tiny roses. "Who wants to start bidding?""

Richard, who had dropped in to bid on a buhl cabinet, he wanted for his bachelor apartment, regarded it reminiscently. How many of those gay trifles he had seen during that winter in Paris when he had lived on the wrong side of the Seine and spent months in getting, as he pompously phrased it in his youthful egotism, atmosphere. And he had become soaked in the quaint colorful life of the students and his pictures had revealed his knowledge of the ways of those lucky ones who fare forth with high hearts and francs when they need fortunes.

"Ten cents," rasped a nearby woman. "It might do to hold matches," she added to her companion.

"You oughtta have a self-lighter on your gas stove," answered the other.

"It wouldn't interest me," remarked a showy matron. "I use an electric range."

And Richard, listening, understood the wistful droop to the pretty mouth of a girl who wore a gold wedding ring. She wore yellow gold where the matron of the electric range displayed her revamped ring of platinum set with diamonds. The young bride craved an electric stove and probably used a coal range. "And I," reflected Ricahrd, regarding the buhl cabinet which had cost him more than that whole winter in Paris, "want to find a real girl and I meet only dull plaster saints or bright little gold-diggers."

The satiny curve of ebon-black hair against a soft cheek next caught Richard's attention. The girl was a poem in black-and-white. Her small face was camoe-white above the small and very costly black fur she wore.

"She'd look well against my new tapestry," thought the artist, "or bending above a copper samovar in a north light when a grey fog drifts through the studio. I expect she's going to bid for that blue-and-white Ming. It's priceless."

She did not, however, and, much to his joy, Richard obtained it. It was not until the ends of the auction, when the odds-and-ends were put up, that he noticed herglove when she raised her hand to bid. It was darned, exquisitely, almost perfectly.

"That's Gloria Green," whispered a man. "Remember the story of her father's failure? He died and she gave up every cent she had to pay his debts. This auction is from their house. It was rented on a long lease while the family were in Italy. I've heard that this sale is the last of the Green fortune. The house paid the last debt and this furniture will be all she has. Wasn't she a fool? The old man had put everything in her name when he saw the crash coming and she could have kept every cent. Wish I'd had her chance."

Richard saw then that the fur was old and that the smart little suit of black had been dyed. Because of her beauty he had failed to notice these details, the artist-eyes seeing only the long-lashed dark eyes and the petal-pink mouth.

"Who will bid a quarter for this? Only a quarter. Two bits. Music by the pound here. All the hits—" the auctioneer halted, even his brazen soul blenching at his eulogy of music of two seasons past.

The small gloved hand made a gesture and the auctioneer grinned contentedly at Gloria.

For the sake of getting her to turn towards him Richard bid a dollar.

"A dollar-twenty," responded Gloria.

Ashamed of his bid as he recalled her circumstance, Richard subsided and the package of music was Gloria's.

"Tell Miss Green that I will give her twenty dollars for that pile of music," instructed Richard, who had thought out a scheme for meeting her. "I believe there may be a valuable piece of sheet music in it."

Gloria had paid for her purchase and was now near the door. The auction was over.

Surprised dark eyes surveyed Richard who pulled out his card and handed it to her. "I am most anxious to acquire that music and, to be frank, I have a faint idea that it may be worth much more than twenty dollars—to me."

"I'm afraid that your idea is exceedingly faint," she said. "This is old music that is quite out of date now and only valuable to me because of" she hesitated, "memories," she finished at last. "My mother sang these songs."

"Then," said Richard boldly, "if I may not buy it I may surely carry it for you. When I told you that it might be worth more than twenty dollars to me I set the price low purposely because I feared I might startle you. You see," his voice sank to a whisper although the auctioneer had bustled off and they were alone in the shadow of the doorway, "I had to find some excuse for being presented to you and I—oh, well, I used the music."

Gloria's dimples re-appeared and there was a light in her dark eyes that Richard decided matched her name. A golden glory of radiant happiness had encompassed her now, replacing the grave sweetness of her bearing; and she made no demur when he took her package from her as they passed out into the dimness of the late afternoon.

The Mirror of the Mode

By Mary Marshall

The smartness of gingham is assured for sports dresses and general daytime wear at resorts and in the suburbs it mingles on equal terms with linens and silk. One need make no apology for wearing a gingham dress.

For the woman who makes her own clothes gingham has much to recommend it. It is a firm material that may be handled easily. It does not fray, it lies flat on the cutting table, yet its softness makes either hand or machine sewing upon it an easy matter.

There are many sorts of gingham—all the way from the tissues and French ginghams to the heavy apron ginghams. All of them are yarn dyed and always the design is woven in—never printed. Usually ginghams are checked, plaided, striped and by means of these devices it is a simple matter for the home dressmaker to lay a straight and even pleat or tuck.

There are new ginghams of the finer quality showing a variety of authentic Scotch plaid designs. These are smart either for children or grown-ups. Some of the smartest of the new gingham dresses are made of rather large check design in three colors. Orange red and black—black, red and yellow, yellow, orange and white—blue, green and white—are among the three-color combinations that are particularly good.

Some of the new gingham dresses show trimming bands or pipings of plain colored gingham to match one tone of the checked or plaided gingham, and plain toned ginghams of the sort we call chambray are to be had at most of the stores.

Remember this in buying ginghams—that the really cheap materials with loose, coarse weave are most likely to shrink. The finer, firmer ginghams cost more but prove to be most durable in the long run.

I WAS GREATLY IMPRESSED on Victoria Day to notice so many flags out in honor of our "Mother Queen."

* * * * * *

What a great figure she was during her reign and what a great figure she remains to-day. With what we know of her personally and what we have read about her makes us realize that she was a very human woman, great indeed, because she was so human!

* * * * * *

She set a fashion in monarchy. King George's sons and daughter, as well as himself, have, like Queen Victoria, recognized that the only true dignity is that of high serviec.

* * * * * *

What was sought in the Royal Family was what is good in every family—love, respect, obedience and duty. This was ever impressed upon the children of the Royal Household.

* * * * * *

Simplicity, Duty, Service are the keystones of national stability. That in greatly changed conditions they still hold their place in the structure of the Commonwealth is in no small degree the work of Queen Victoria.

The help this week includes three in one. Instructions are for the making of a baby's gown, kimona and shirt. It is impossible to go astray in the making of any of these, so I will be delighted to send one of the helps to any person who desires it.

Have you read of the sudden break with the college graduates in the way of dress for the graduation? The girl graduate of 1929, having already started many innovations in dress, is this season to wear a colored frock at her graduation!

* * * * * *

This is a very sudden break, for the custom for generations has been to wear all white on certain occasions. Probably it is because the tinted wedding gown has come to stay, but at any rate many of the high school graduates are planning their frocks simply yet softly feminine, in one of the pastel shades.

* * * * * *

The fancy started last year in several boarding schools of the South, where each member of the graduation class wore one of the pastels that became her, the colors being assembled with regard to their values to make an artistic picture. The gowns were made of organdie, simple, with full skirt, flounces, scalloped edges and quaint bodies.

* * * * * *

With these were worn large, floppy hats, some trimmed with flowers to tone with the tint of the dress, others with wide ribbon of taffeta or satin, and the group resembled a flower garden in full bloom in the setting of early summer green.

* * * * * *

It would make a very artistic picture, would it not? It does seem strange that no one ever thought of trying it before when such wonderful shades can be found!

* * * * * *

Of course, the success of this scheme has inspired the graduating classes of other schools to select their dresses for commencement day each with regard to the others in the class. With a full palette of colors to choose from, it must surely be a relief to be released from the everlasting white.

* * * * * *

There are, of course, some colors which blend with others more beautifully, but no one color is more fashionable than others. The range this season includes many lovely blues, violet, yellow, greens and every shade of rose from the tea rose to the wild rose and the La France. Then there are the many hues of green ranging from that beautiful shade which is just off the crystal white to the quite dark one.

* * * * * *

These frocks are being made of organdie, starched chiffon or ninion. The favorite models are made with bias flounces or with a wide skirt which makes it very simple yet picturesque.

* * * * * *

There is hardly any trimming being used, but sometimes the edges are bound with a piping of the same material or with a contrasting shade.

* * * * * *

When the graduation exercises are held in the daytime, a wide brim hat is worn—one of those floppy ones, or a sheer one made of the material of the frock.

* * * * * *

There will be, of course, now that this custom has arrived, the tendency to over-dress—to have her desire realized and order a gown much too old for her.

* * * * * *

Each school having its own rules and regulations, as the saying is, the frocks for graduation will be governed by its wishes.

* * * * * *

The use of clock on our stockings has once again come into fashion. New models are being offered with varied designs of heels and clocks. The chiffon stockings are being shown with them in colors, so they may be worn with sport clothes. Some of these are machine made while others are hand embroidered.

* * * * * *

Like everything else, gloves are taking on a new importance since the advent of the sleeveless frock for summer wear. The eggshell and powder shades are at present in great favor, while many in ivory tints are to be seen, with fancy stitching in black, navy blue or other colors. The slip-on styles, with ends finished with piping or even just picoted are being displayed.

* * * * * *

For wear with a fancy chiffon frock there are gloves with cuffs made elaborate with embroidery or beading or cutwork designs. The one-button style fitting snugly at the wrist shows to advantage the new cuff styles and at the same time emphasizes the sleeveless effect. For wear with the long sleeved dresses gloves of the same colors are chosen but with simpler cuffs. For wear with sport costums the slip-on styles take preference in various colors and styles.

SLEEVE BOARDS.

With more elaborate styles coming in again, and especially with the emphasis there is upon intricate sleeves, one should either bring out the old shaped sleeves board from its hiding place or purchase a new one. They are inexpensive and worth their price.

DELICIOUS PRUNES.

If you soak prunes 24 hours in cold water, then put them on in the same water and let them come to a boil, no more, they are big, juicy and delicious.

PIQUE TRIM.

A wide-side poke cloche hat for the tailored suit is of navy bakou with striped pique in navy blue and white making a modernistic inset on the downward side. The scarf to complete the effect has a collar portion of the pique with jabot ends of blue crepe de chine, white lined.

MANY COLLARS.

Changing one's neckline changes one's appearance so very much that it is of real interest this spring for women to note that a single type of frock can have as many as twelve different collars. Russian, Prince of Wales, revised scarfs, sailor, bow-not, kerchief, Peter Pan, sports skirt and batteau are some of the more popular collars.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

Dear Marion:

"I have just received the helps and like them so much I am going to send for more, then I'll have lots of ideas for my spring sewing. I will enclose two stamps as I see it took more than one to send me these helps. Also I'd like a pattern and am enclosing money for same.

I wonder if you ever lived in Toronto, Marion? It is to me, the best city there is, because I grew up there I suppose, but Peterborough is a very nice place to live too. I find quite a difference in ideas and views. Some of the women are narrow-minded, but they can't all be as some of the letters you print are so interesting. The women who wrote those could not be narrow minded, and there certainly seem to be an awful lot of gossipers here too. Some of my neighbors are interested in every single garment hung on the line and everything I do that they can watch. I have heard a lot of unkind remarks said about me since I came here to live. Seems to me people should either mind their own business absolutely, or else if they are interested in someone show it in a nice neighborly spirit and not in catty gossip or worse still, lies. I often feel bad when people are unkind. It seems hard when a person is new to a neighborhood and a little lonely.

I will speak of something more cheerful now, that is country walks which you say you enjoy. I love them, myself. As you say a car speeds by a lovely spot too quick to let one really notice it. I often feel like getting out every few minutes to look at a beautiful view or listen to a brook. You can't keep stopping with a car though, most people want to keep on going till they reach a certain place.

"I will send a recipe for orange cocoanut cake with this letter., I find it very good.

"Some of the ladies write such nice letters they should go in for novel writing don't you think? 'Virgie' writes nice ones and lots of others too. I like the Old Song Column. My mother has lots of old sheet music and I remember lots of the one printed.

"Will close now, thanking you for helps."

Yours.
"Ex-Toronto Wife"

Maybe you're just a little hard on us, "Ex-Toronto Wife". In a smaller place everyone is interested in what everyone else does, but isn't it much the same in the districts, of a larger city. Take Rosedale, for instance, or the Beaches—they're just like little towns, and I'm sure the women of Peterborough are no different in spirit from those who live there. Maybe when they look at your clothes on the line, they are enjoying the spotlessness of them! I do hope you find some real neighbors soon, and enjoy living with us.

Dear Marion:

"I certainly enjoy your page and helps. I have not written to you before because I really have so little time with a family of thirteen to work for, but as I would like a few helps I thought I should let you know that I love the Women's Page in The Examiner.

"I am sending a recipe for Sausage. My family got tired of fried sausage, so I put 2 pounds in a large frying pan and poured over them two cans of tomatoes and let simmer slowly for half an hour. They like this very much on Saturday nights for supper.

"I beg to remain, sincerely an interested reader."

Blue Nose.

Thank you for your hint, "Blue Nose", which I'm sure many will find useful.

Dear Marion:

"I am enclosing a coupon; please send me the helps marked if possible.

"Anything which helps a busy mother with young children is a kindness greatly appreciated. I admire your page very much; find it interesting and helpful. Hoping your helps have not all been taken and thanking you in advance, I remain."

Yours truly,
Mrs. J. C.

I'm glad your enjoying our pages, "Mrs. J. C. Please come again.

Marions Mail May 27
Dear Marion:

"I have never written before, but read the letters every evening, especilly the old songs. A lot of them I know and I have learned nearly all of the rest of them since you have started printing them. I can memorize songs or poetry quite easily and remember them.

"I am enclosing the words of a song I see you had printed for 'Leatherhead' but not complete, "She's a Pretty Little Dear,' I wonder if any of the neighbors can give me the words of the song: 'When we went to School Together", and all the verses of 'A Little Rosewood Casket"? I know a few verses but there are supposed to be twenty verses to it.

"I have tried a lot of your recipes and like them fine. I am enclosing one for cooking macaroni and beef steak which I hope the neighbors will like.

Happy Emma.

Thank you for your recipe and the song, "Happy Emma". It's nice to know you appreciate the various items on our pages.

Marions Mail May 27
Dear Marion:

"In the interests of wild flowers, perhaps you may care to publish enclosed leaflet in your column, or if not, perhaps the Editor would find room for it in another part of the paper.

"Perhaps also you would put the following in your own column:

"I am a middled aged lady, with a cottage on Stoney Lake, where I spend a good part of the summer. I would like to get in touch with another lady or two friends who would care to join me there as paying guests, for any part of the summer. The cottage is conveniently located, there are country walks, boating, bathing as well as books and other indoor recreations. It may appeal to some who want an inexpensive and quiet outing.

Basille.

I'll see if I can find room for that leaflet on preservation of wild flowers, "Basille". Replies to your other request will be forwarded to you.

HALF THE NEWS OF THE DAY.

Is advertising news? If it were not, we would never go on subscribing for a newspaper that devoted half its space to paid news of an advertising character. But since we accept advertising as part of the day's news, surely it is wisdom to read it all.

In fact, we depend upon the advertising columns for detailed information about our bodily needs, just as much as any of us depends upon the editorial and news columns for the events and views of to-day's world.

Retail merchants accumulate in their stores the products of a world's work. The shops are reservoirs of everything that modern life requires. Change is an essential part of their being, as material, style, price and quality alter from day to day and fluctuate with the passing seasons.

In Canada every day two million families see the advertisements and the wise woman seeks the opportunities for shrewd buying that the day offers. The news of a new product from the looms of China is of more vital interest to us really than the news of China's revolution. So come every day into your market place and study the news of what an entire world is offering for your personal consideration.

King George School Group Wins Meet Honors

Will Take Part In Finals

Few of Competitors Earn Right o Compete in Finals at Kingston.

BELOW STANDARD REQUIRED

Lindsay Collegiate Overshadows Local High School Athletes in Competitions.

Although ideal conditions existed for the big School Boy Athletic Meet held at Exhibition Park, Saturday afternoon, the time for all but a few of the events was below the standard required by the Ontario Athletic Commission. Very few of the competitors earned the right to go to Kingston to compete in the final meet against the pick of the school boy athletes of the province.

King George School took a prominent place in the Public and Separate School group winning in all but one event. This school's relay team was well above the standard in the 440 yard relay, doing the distance in 52 and 3.5 seconds. The team will go to Kingston to compete in the final.

Lindsay Collegiate sent down a large squad of athletes and they far overshadowed the Peterborough Collegiate in the competition, carrying off 75 per cent. of the events.

The Lindsay Collegiate 440 relay team won the right to go to Kingston, clipping one and four-fifths seconds off the standard set for the event. C. McLean of Lindsay was one inch over the standard in the running high jump doing 4 feet 10 inches. M. Fulton of Lindsay stepped off the 100 yards in 11 1.5 seconds in the intermediate section and will go to Kingston. The same boy also won the right to compete in the finals in the shot put, heaving gthe 8 pound shot 38 feet 7 inches further than the standard.

Not a single Peterborough Collegiate athlete earned the right to compete in Kingston, being below the standard in the few events in which they did compete.

The meet was perfectly arranged by D. A. Loomis. Every detail had been looked after and he was complimented by the directors of the Ontario Athletic Commission who were on hand in the capacity of judges and timers.

PACKERS BEAT QUAKERS IN SPALDING CUP

Winners Were Up Two Goals in First Two Minutes of Play.

FOUR GOALS TO NIL.

Quakers Had To Concede Defeat Through Injuries in Second Half.

The Canadian Packing soccer team eliminated the Quakers from the Spalding Cup by the score of four goals to none on Saturday.

The losers put up a great battle with nine men against eleven. Hotson was injured when they had only ten men, but Evans made the count the same just ten minutes before the conclusion. The winners now go into the semi-finals. In the game on Thursday evening, the C.G.E. and Brintons drew, two goals each. They will play the deciding game at an early date.

Two Goals in Two Minutes

From the kick-off, the Packers made straight for the Quakers' citadel, where "Newt" Downer made no mistake with a lightning grounder past Hotson, who took the plaec of Fowler in the first ten minutes of the tussle. On the next raid upon the same goal, Beggs gave the goal-keeper no chance to save the oblique shot from the left wing; all within two minutes. Fowler took up his usual position between the sticks and strengthened the team immediately. Hotson went to the left wing position to complete the forward rank. Immediately thereafter, the Quakers took up the attack in real earnest to give Griffin something to do between the posts.

Craig Tried Hard

In spite of the fact, that they had only ten men, Craig had his front rank moving nicely, and finished with a fast drive that Griffin handled quickly. Bromley relieved the pressure. Foster, carrying the attack down into the proximity of Quakers' area where the ball was misused in front of goal.

Opportunities Lost

Instead of a timely touch when the ball was placed at his foot, Foster banged the ball across to the other wing. It was returned in a similar fashion again to find Fowler grab the sphere away from amongst the players. Craig dribbled his way towards the other end and left Galloway in possession, who kicked the ground instead of the ball, with only the goal keeper to beat. Foul throws and throw-ins prevailed for the remainder of the first half and the score stood two goals to nil in favor of the Canadian Packers.

Half time—C.P.C., 2; Quakers, 0.

Half Time

On resuming, Craig took up the full back position himself to offset the close tactics of the C.P.C. forwards. They would dribble the ball right against the custodian, who saved from the right winger's drives for the corner of the upright, but a foul was committed when an opponent pushed the goal-keeper.

Beggs Made It Three

Two corner-kicks in succession went in favor of the C.G.E., who were three up when Beggs connected from the flag-kick. Two minutes later, Carmichael worked inside the defence to give Fowler no chance to stop number four. The play run from end to end with nothing interesting being recorded, except that the Quakers' full backs played the one-back tactics to perfection, which nullified many a good intention of the C.P.C. players.

Nine Men Against Eleven

Through a previous injury, Hotson had to retire from the left wing altogether. Dick Evans arrived on the field of play near the conclusion of the encounter. His presence made a great difference to the tactics displayed and C.P.C. goal-keeper repeatedly saved from close range. Just after the whistle blew, Beggs broke through on his own to land the ball in the net, but the score remained the same:

Canadian Packers, 4; Quakers, 0.

Goal scorers—Beggs, 2; Downer and Carmichael.

Canadian Packing — Griffin, goal; Westwood and Downer, full backs; Wilson, Buchan and Bromley, halves; Carmichael, N. Downer, A. Beggs, Robertson and Foster, forwards.

Quakers (10 men).—Fowler, goal; Armstrong, full back; Budworth, Ward and Honor, halves; Watkins, Dyer, Galloway, Craig and Fowler, forwards.

Referee—Jack Clark.

Robins Rally in Ninth To Defeat Phillies 5-4

BROOKLYN, N.Y., May 27.—(Canadian Press).—A counter rally by Brooklyn for two runs in the ninth, after the Phillies had taken the lead with three in the first half of the inning, enabled the Robins to win here yesterday, 5 to 4.

A home run by Cy. Williams with two on in the ninth gave the Phils their margin, but the Robins came back with the two runs needed to win.

DIVIDE DOUBLEHEADER

ROCHESTER, May 27 (C.P.).—Montreal divided the double header here yesterday afternoon with Rochester by winning an extra inning night cap duel, 11 to 10, after dripping the first game, 7 to 1.

It looked like a sure double win for Rochester in the second inning of the second game, when the Wings staged a furious attack on Montreal hurling to push across nine runs.

But the Royals, fighting desperately, tied the score with five runs in the seventh, and won out in the eighth. Each club used four hurlers in an effort to snatch victory.

There were two out at the time, and the count was two and two on Br'er Rabbitt.

DEFEATED AT BUFFALO

BUFFALO, N.Y., May 27 (C.P.).—The Bisons went on a bad batting spree here yesterday afternoon before a throng of 12,000 animated and excited Sunday customers, and when the "whoopee making" ceased the Maple Leafs were obliterated under a score of 11 to 2.

In addition to their ferocious batting the Bisons also were acrobats in the field, completing four double plays and other brilliant individual feats. So against this combination the Leafs hardly knew they were in the ball game.

TRANTER MAKES GOOD SHOWING

Willby and Freeman Stage Keen Competition in Elimination Race.

TORONTO FIELD MEET.

The C.G.E. runners entered in the 24th of May track meet at the University of Toronto failed to place in any of the events. The races were staged under ideal running conditions on a quarter mile track, and the two and three mile events were run on the eliminating plan, which forced any runner who had been lapped to drop out. That means that any runner who gained one whole lap or quarter mile over other runners would force every man out of the race that he passed. This system lessened the danger of the timers becoming confused and speeded up the whole program.

Herb. Tranter made the best showing of any local runner, being forced out of the race just before starting his twelfth and final lap by the two leaders who spurted past him over the finish line.

An interesting feature of this event was the keen competition displayed between Willby and Freeman, two C.E. runners. Freeman took the lead at the start but was soon overtaken by Willby and after that, the two see-sawed back and forth in the race until the last mile, when Sam Freeman, trailing Willby, heard the judge tell the runners behind him to drop out. This spurred Sam to renewed efforts, which carried him past this opponent and Willby was the next to be forced out, to be followed by Freeman soon after. Tranter was now the only local fellow left in and as he had held his own with the leaders for the first two miles, he was voted a good chance of finishing well up, but was forced out on the last lap.

This meet gave some of the local fellows their first taste of stiff competition and is just what they needed to gauge their ability. Their performance in view of the fact that they were pitted against the best runners in Ontario was very creditable and the public can look forward to some speedy exhibitions during Old Home Week.

CHAMPION TEAMS HONORED AT ANNUAL HOCKEY BANQUET

Members of Teams, Together With Executive, Gather At Festive Board.

HAPPY GATHERING.

Cups Presented To Two Teams For District Championships.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, May 27. — On Monday evening the Lakefield Hockey Club held their annual dinner at the Lakefield Inn with about 35 present, including the officers of the club and members of the executive, the Intermediates, the District hockey champions, the Midget champions. It was a matter of regret that a larger number of fans did not avail themselves of the opportunity afforded them to attend and to honor the boys who acquitted themselves so creditably in the Intermediate O. H. A. They eliminated Marmora and Bobcaygeon and only lost by one goal to Whitby after two hard fought games. No previous hockey team has forged ahead so far in the O. H. A. and it would have encouraged further progress next season if the fans had supported them at their banquet by their presence. Dr. M. P. Kennedy, president of the Hockey Club, was in the chair and was supported by the secretary, Percy Spence and members of the hockey committee. When all had done ample justice to the splendid supper provided, a toast list was run off with K. A. Mackenzie acting as the toast master.

The first toast to the Hockey Club was proposed by D. Kennedy and responded to by the secretary, Mr. Spence. Both gentlemen paid a tribute to the fine showing of the teams, the Intermediates, who established a new high mark, the Grove Second team, who won the district championship after a heated contest and the Baby Cots, who won the Midget League. The season had been marked by more games of major importance than any previous season.

Mr. K. A. Mackenzie, in a complimentary speech proposed the toast to the Intermediates, who did so well during the past season, and who so nearly went even a step farther than Whitby, as only one goal lost them the chance.

Mr. John Sabatino, the captain of the team, replied modestly giving the credit to his team mates, although they disclaimed the honor, and paid a hearty tribute to "Johnny," the popular captain and doughty right defence man of the team.

Harry Stabler, a valuable member of the Intermediate team, proposed the toast to The Grove Second Team, the champions of the district. The district league was not large this year but the games showed that there was promising material among the junior players with which to recruit the Senior teams. The Grove Seconds had all through the League lived up to the best traditions of The Grove and its teams. J. Macauley, the captain, replied in a brief speech, thanking the club for the tribute paid and hoping for future success.

The toast to the Baby Colts, the Midget champions, was proposed by Mr. T. W. Chaplin, who complimented the boys on their success; they had earned their place at the banquet by their good play, their well directed attempts at combination play and their pluck in overcoming difficulties.

As the captain of the Baby Colts, Joe Blewett, was too modest to reply; Mr. D. H. Charlton spoke a few words on his behalf, adding his own congratulations at their achievements.

Cups Presented.

The Casement cup for the district championship, was presented to The Grove Seconds, and the Mackenzie Cup for the Midget championship, ws presented to the Baby Colts.

At the close of the toast list the cup for Sportsmanship was presented to Braden Blewett by the donor, Dr. Kennedy.

The doctor expressed his extreme satisfaction with the club, and took especial pleasure in presenting the cup to Mr. Blewett, who for so many years has done so much for hockey in the village.

Mr. Blewett replied briefly thanking Dr. Kennedy for the cup and expressing his pleasure and astonishment at being singled out from the other members of the team for this distinction.

Mr. Elwood Northey also voiced his surprise in a humorous speech, stating that although a has-been he had really deserved the cup more than once but had never actually landed it.

The following officers were elected for the season of 1929-30.

President: Dr. M. P. Kennedy.

Secretary: Percy Spence.

Executive Committee: Messrs. Wilfrid Murduff, K. A. Mackenzie, Harry Stabler, Braden Blewett, John Sabatino, E. H. Northey and T. W. Chaplin.

The president closed the evening with a vote of thanks to Mr. Lawless, the host, who replied in a few words.

After singing the National Anthem the meeting broke up with cheerful hopes for the ensuing year.

Phil Edwards Shatters Record By Sheppard

HAVERFORD, Pa., May 27.—The flying feet of Phil Edwards, dusky West Indian runner, broke one world's mark here Saturday and played a major role in the shattering by the New York University's team of the long-standing record for the 2,400-yard relay race. Competing in a special race at the seventeenth annual track and field meet of the Middle Atlantic Association, the N.Y.U. men covered the route in 4.52 2-5.

Edwards ran his 600-yard part of the relay in 1.10 flat, breaking Mel Sheppard's world mark of 1.10 4-5.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

"Dream of Love" with Joan Crawford and Nils Asther which opens at the Capitol today, sets new mark for brilliancy.

Romantic intrigue amid royal environment, fierce revolutions, gay court functions, scintillating operatic debuts, glamorous receptions and fiery love episodes enliven the dramatic moments that motivate "Dream of Love," which opens at the Capitol Theatre today.

This brilliant Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature is one of the most pretentious films ever to reach the screen and insettings, costumes and spectacular scenes set a new pace in cinema fare.

Fred Niblo, who directed "Ben Hur," and many more recent triumphs, including Greta Garbo's "The Mysterious Lady," was behind the camera in this new feature and may be credited with another exceptional directorial accomplishment.

Joan Crawford and Nils Asther appear in the leading roles in the gripping modernization of "Adrienne Lecouvreur," seventeenth century play in which Sarah Bernhardt starred for many seasons in Paris. An elaborate supporting cast includes such splendid players as Aileen Pringle, Carmel Myers, Warner Oland, Harry Reinhardt, Harry Myers, Alphonse Martell and Fletcher Norton.

Dorothy Farnum, who adapted the French play for the screen, laid the plot in a Balkan kingdom where the colorful action takes place with swiftly moving episodes that revolve about the romance between a strolling gypsy dancer and the heir to the throne.

As the gypsy girl, Miss Crawford gives the outstanding performance of her career and follows her triumphant characterizations in "Our Dancing Daughters," and with John Gilbert in "Four Walls." Asther is seen to great advantage as the Crown Prince and reaches new dramatic heights in the climax where he is ordered executed as a traitor.

Miss Pringle wins new laurels as the Grand Duchess and Warner Oland is sufficiently powerful as the cruel Grank Duke.

Japanese Team Out Of Davis Cup Series

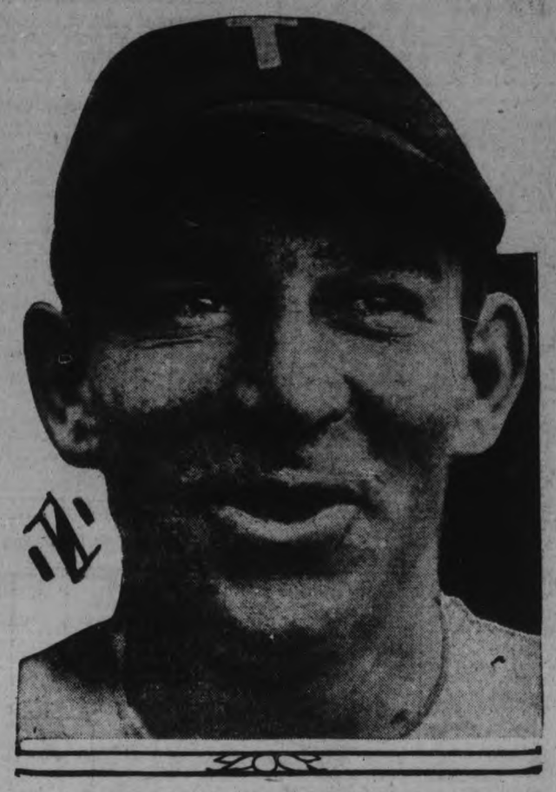
WASHINGTON, May 27. — Two singles victories by John Van Ryn and John Hennessey, United States Davis Cup stars, over Tamio Abe and Yoshiro Ohta Saturday, eliminated Japan from the international tennis contest, and placed the United States in the American Zone final round to meet Cuba.

Japan was defeated by the youthful court team, four matches to one. Hennessey on the first day of play defeated Abe in a four-set encounter, and the Hennessey-Van Ryn double combination trounced the Japanese pair Friday; while Ohta gained the only Nipponese win by an unexpected and brilliant five-set victory over Van Ryn.

The final-round match with Cuba will be played at Detroit on May 30 and June 1, and the Americans are expected to gain an easy triumph, which will win them the right to meet the European Zone winner and challenge France for the Davis Cup.

GUY CANTRELL CUTS WIDE SWATH ACROSS THE INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE

Oklahoman Coal Driller Again Promises Brilliant Season As Sensation in Minor Loop Records—Out To Win 25 Games For Toronto Leafs.



By JIMMY THOMPSON
(Special to The Examiner, Copyright)

TORONTO, May 27.—Guy Cantrell, 25-year-old right hander who is cutting a brilliant swath in the International League pitching firmanent, will land with a thump in the majors if he doesn't watch out.

But the stocky Oklahoman coal-driller says he is going to turn in 25 wins for the Toronto Leafs before he moseys up—which incidentally won't be a new experience, since $25,000 was purchased for $25,000 by Washington from Baltimore last year before 'Czar' Landis discovered some hanky panky about "stage money" in the deal and declared all bets off. Toronto then outbid the rest of the field.

In coming to Toronto Cantrell passed up opportunities to join the Boston Braves and Philadelphia Quakers. Both clubs offered him larger bonuses to sign, but, as he says, he would rather play with a live club in a smaller league than with "bush" outfits in a big league. He was delighted to shake the shackles of Washington from his feet, as his contract with the Senators called for $1,000 less than he drew down from Baltimore last year and much under the figure in his contract with Toronto.

Won 19 Games.

He won 19 games for Baltimore last year and but for forfeiture of a game at Buffalo when he had the Bisons 3 to 0 in the seventh would have turned in 20 victories. He also figured in several time games, in one of which he allowed only two hits and in another but one.

That forfeited game was the upshot of somebody discovering the late Jack Dunn, veteran Baltimore leader, then suspended, peeking through a hole in the fence.

Essentially a fast ball pitcher, Cantrell didn't make the grade at Brooklyn because Manager Robinson tried to change his style. At that he won 10 games and lost 9 when with the Robins in 1927. Jack Dunn gave him a bonus for winning 20 games last season at Baltimore, giving him credit for the forfeited game at Buffalo and $100 on top of that for his exhibition in that particular struggle, the trouble over which virtually brought about the attack that curtailed the Baltimore magnate's life. Naturally Cantrell holds a high opinnio of the deceased veteran, whom, he says, was a much maligned and misunderstood man.

in "Dreams of Love," at the Capitol Theatre to-night, Tuesday and Wednesday.

LEAFS LEAD HITTING IN WEEK'S GAMES

Reading Wins Most Games and Rochester Makes Most Home Runs.

NEW YORK, May 27.—Newark's one-sided triumph over Baltimore upset the scoring dope in the International League for last week. The Bears were well up toward the top in the run and hits columns for the seven days ending Saturday, although they had a .500 average for the week, with three victories and three defeats. They tallied 43 runs and 54 hits to take fourth place in each table, although they were sixth in the week's standing.

Reading led the pack in games won and lost, taking four out of five encounters. Rochester was second, with five won and two lost. Jersey City, with three and two, was third; while Buffalo and Toronto tied for fourth, with four and three. Baltimore and Montreal were the week's losers.

The leading Keystones scored their victories by close margins, and tallied fewer runs than any other team. They had but fourteen runs and fifty hits, but they held their opponents to eleven tallies. Buffalo and Toronto tied for high score with forty runs each, and Rochester was second with thirty-nine. The Maple Leafs led the hitting with seventy-seven safe blows. Rochester's seventy-three took second. The Red Wings were far ahead in the matter of home runs, driving out six. Three each for Reading and Newark took second in a week which saw few circuit clouts.

Last week's record of games won and lost, runs, hits, errors, opponents' runs and home runs follows:

Lap Routed Out of U. S. Owing To Disagreement With El Paso Chamber of Commerce.

SALO RETAINS LEAD.

FEBENS, Texas, May 27 (Canadian Press).—C. C. Pyle's Transcontinental foot race assumed an international aspect to-day with to-night's stop scheduled for Jaurez, Mexico. Disagreement with the El Paso Chamber of Commerce resulted in the lap being routed out of the United States.

Pyle announced, however, to-morrow's start for the first control point in New Mexico would be from El Paso.

John Salo, Passaic, N.J., first in elapsed time, tied with Giusto Umek, Italy, for first place in yesterday's lap from Sierra Blanca, and increased his margin over Pete Gavuzzi, to 1:16:50. Gazuzzi, second in elapsed time, and Salo ran dead heats the six previous days.

DON WOOD OUTSTANDING RACER AT TORONTO.

Don Wood of this city, has been the surprise of the sea-flea racing regattas. Going to Toronto, unheralded and unknown, he outsped and outdrove for courage and skill the most daring and famous of the Toronto outboard motor sailors. Wood was the sensation of the National Yacht Club regatta on the holiday stepping his boat up cleanly over the crests of a rough sea to a clean victory.

On Saturday at Frenchman's Bay he again demonstrated his superiority by winning two heats in the Class B boats and coming in third in the free-for-all.

Wood was driving a specially designed boat made by the Peterborough Canoe Company, and powered by a Johnston motor.

SWEENEY CONTINUES BATTING SPREE.

Bill Sweeney, the Leafs' first baseman, continues to smash the ball hard and timely. His fifth home run of the season against the Bisons on Saturday tied the score, and he had two singles at Buffalo yesterday.

Sweeney has now batted safetly in eleven consecutive games, and in 20 of the last 21 games played by the Leafs. He is second to George Fisher in the International League batting race. Les Burke and Pete Cote also are hitting the ball better now than at any time last season, but Fred Bedore is in a steep slump. He has gone hitless in the last five games.

Jess Doyle is having hard luck with his twirling. Yesterday's defeat was his fifth and he has been forced from the mound in four games.

WALTER HAGEN AGAIN IN BAD GRACES.

When Walter Hagen failed to keep an agreement whereby he was to meet Archie Compston in a special match, he again got in the bad graces of the British golfing public—something he appears to have a habit of doing. In a signed article under his signature in the London Evening Standard, Compston says:

"I imagine that he (Hagen) must be feeling badly off-color if he wants to withdraw from our matches, for I thought he was just as keen on the chance of getting his revenge at Moor Park as I was on letting him have it."

The London Star has carried an editorial, headed, "Think Again, Hagen," in which it chides the American most severely as being "very unwise to lay himself open to the suspicion of being afraid to meet his British rival."

WOOD AGAIN WINS HONORS

Takes Two Out of Three Events in Class B Race at Frenchmen's Bay.

CARTER WINS ALSO.

TORONTO, May 27.—Ten thousand people turned up at Frenchman's Bay, a summer resort 19 miles east of Toronto, for Saturday's outboard motor boat regatta, and they were given a thrilling program of seven races. Thirty-two boats turned up for the seven races carded. Five upsets and two collisions added zest to the afternoon's racing and chasing and, best of all, no one was hurt.

Don Wood, the Peterborough "dark horse" who visited the National Yacht Club on the holiday and surprised the talent by taking the Class B race, showed that his victory was no flash in the pan by winning two of the three heats in Class B at Frenchman's Bay and by finishing third in the free-for-all.

While Wood's sensational performance was probably the high light of the meet, the work of Art. Heaven of Oakville, the N.Y.C. boy who held the mile championship of Canada last year was equally noteworthy. Heaven, with a new boat of his own design and build, started only in two heats of Class C, but he won them both, and was second in the free-for-all, where he opposed boats twice the horsepower of his. Bill Landrigan of the N.Y.C., who drives Charlie Turnbull's racing craft for him, also had a good day, with a first and two seconds in Class C.

Cecil ("Jake") Winter of the N.Y.C. also had a good day. He started in six of the seven races, and had a second and two thirds in Class B and a second, third and fourth in Class C. He did not start in the free-for-all.

Herman Hunter Aids Team Win Championship

Owing to the training of a Peterborough boy, Herman J. Hunter, son of R. H. Hunter, 437½ George street, the Duke of York school recently won the senior championship in the Strathcona Team Drill. All the schools in the suburban area of Toronto competed and the team, which Mr. Hunter trained captured the championship against keen opposition. Mr. Hunter is a graduate of P.C.I. and is a teacher at Duke of York School. This is the second year his team has won the championship.

LAKEFIELD BEATS KEENE TEAM 7-3

Frank Payne Has Leg Badly Injured in Softball Game.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, May 27. — On Tuesday evening a group of the members of Keene Masonic Lodge visited Lakefield and played a friendly game of softball with the team from Clementi Lodge. The last of the fifth innings had just well begun when an accident happened which definitely ended it. Frank Payne, who was playing for the locals, was running from second to third, when his foot turned, and he collapsed. Dr. J. R. Fraser, who was present, made an examination and found no bones broken but the ligaments between the ankle and the heel badly torn. Kindly offers to help were numerous and the injured boy was carried to a motor car, and taken to his home, where he will be confined for some time. The whole affair was purely accidental and was very much regretted as Frank is one of the most popular young men of the village.

The line-up was as follows:

Keene: S. Laing p; S. Wood, c; D. D. Brown, 1b; R. Comrie, 2b; H. Garbutt, 3b; D. White, ss;; H. Schwark, rf; H. Reid, cf; C. Chase, lf.

Lakefield: E. H. Northey, p; F. Payne, c; W. G. Morrison, 1b K. Junkin, 2b; F. L. Erskine, 3b; F. E. Madill, ss; J. R. Hull, rf; R. P. Payne, cf; T. W. Chaplin, lf.

E. Briant was umpire.

The score by innings was:

Sore Back and Headaches Disappeared

Dodd's Kidney Pills were Recommended by Friend

"I had Kidney Trouble," writes Mrs. J. McDonald, 352 Esplanade, Sydney, N.S. "I suffered terrible with Sore Back, Dizziness, and used to take awful sore Headaches. My friends advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and after I had used half a box I felt much better. It took two boxes altogether, and I feel like a new person now."

Many women suffer periodically with Backache and, as middle age approaches, the pain grows more severe. Rest may give temporary relief, but Dodd's Kidney Pills strengthen the Weak Kidneys and help the cause of the pain. A trial will surely convince you.

MISSION HELD AT WARKWORTH

Services Conducted Under the Direction of Redemptorist Fathers.

INSTRUCTIVE ADDRESSES.

WARKWORTH, May 27 (Contributed). — The Catholic Redemptorist Mission, under the direction of the Redemptorist Fathers, which opened on Saturday in the Warkworth parish is now more than half finished. It is with a feeling of satisfaction and thankfulness that Rt. Rev. Father Ferguson views his flock and feels that the big majority are better men and women for this mission.

The Redemptorist Fathers have done everything in their power to impress their congregations which have been composed mostly of Catholics, but here and there interspersed through the tiny body of the church, men and women from every other denomination could be seen. These people had courteously accepted the invitation the missionaries had extended in all good faith and fellowship.

The sermons have all been very instructive, but perhaps that of Wednesday night is the most outstanding. The text, "Be ye as a light, that seeing you, men may see light," wrought together with example: its power, good and evil taught a rather startling lesson when enlarged upon. The subject was dealt with in three phases. First, the power of example in our place of business, in our pleasures and in our home. In the last phase the example was that which parents give to children And the example which children give parents was discussed in detail.

"Each person," said the Reverend Father, "has a duty to do, save his own soul and thus save others by his example. God help anyone who by his bad example causes another to forfeit his eternal heritage." This force has proved from personal experience to be the greater teacher, the strongest power and the worst evil in the world. The example of a woman may either make or mar a man's career and life-work. The example of a man, on the other hand, may make of a woman either a saint or a devil."

Each word was so sincere and so personal that no listener could be other than stricken with remorse and self-consciousness. In no small terms did he condemn the motives of these so-called socialistic workers who by their inhuman morals and false doctrines were destroying the sacredness of the home and extinguishing hearth fires. His closing words were an exhortation that we live so that seeing us others might see light.

Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament then followed.

DOFF TROUSERS, ENJOY SHOW.

Amanullah's reforms had a setback recently when a European theatrical company visited Kabul. All Kabul society appeared in Western clothes, but the performance evidently bored the men, who refused to sit it out in the unfamiliar trousers. These they removed and placed neatly on the backs of the seats. After that, the audience, in true Oriental fashion, endeavored to enjoy the rest of the show sitting on their haunches.

Nearly $5,000,000 worth of American proprietory medicines were sent to South American last year.

RUSH FOR LAND STILL GROWING

1,000 New Settlers Take Up Homes in Northern Alberta.

PLENTY OF CAPITAL

MONTREAL, May 27 — The land rush to Northern Alberta continues apace. It is reported by the Edmonton offices of the Canadian National Railways Colonization Department that approximately 1000 new settlers, with capital aggregating more than one million dollars, had gone into the Peace River country and northern Alberta since the first of the year, and up to the first week of April. It is estimated that during April alone nearly 1500 settlers will settle in these districts. During the period of April 1 to 15 a total of 312 settlers, with capital totalling $170,000, went to the Peace River district. Among these was one man with $20,000 capital, another with $14,000, and another with $12,000.

During the first quarter of the year 400,000 acres of government land were taken up by the homesteaders in the four western provinces, an increase of nearly 100,000 acres over the same period of last year. In the period mentioned, 136 homesteads were taken in Manitoba, 994 in Saskatchewan, 1277 in Alberta and 96 in British Columbia. Homesteading in Northern Alberta has been unprecedent during this period.

Every month so far this year has seen homestead entries at the Edmonton office double over the corresponding months last year. For March alone the total was 226, as compared with 109 in March, 1928.

Last year there were 3370 homesteads filed on in the Edmonton district, an increase of 147 per cent. over the previous year.

There is every reason to believe that the increase noted so far this year will not only be kept up, but may even exceed that of 1928 over 1927. Even if the figures only double it will mean that close to 7,000 homesteads will be taken up in this district alone.

Mrs. Gene Tunney Suffers Relapse

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 25.—(Canadian Press).—Friends and relatives of Mrs. Gene Lauder Tunney were concerned to-day over reports that she had suffered a relapse while convalescing from a recent operation.

Despatches from Brioni, Italy, where the Tunneys and Mrs. George Lauder, Jr., Mrs. Tunneys mother are spending a holiday, carried word of the relapse after an operation for acute appendicitis April 30.

Lux keeps them new-looking more than twice as long!

HOW do you keep them so soft and fluffy?" says the young housewife. For the Lux-washed blankets of experienced housekeepers are not a bit like the ones that come through ordinary washings!

Many soaps, whether flakes, chips or cakes, contain harmful alkali which dries up the delicate wool fibres—makes blankets hard and shrunken.

With pure Lux suds, blankets are washed easily and safely—woolly nap kept downy, lusciously soft—for years!

At the touch of hot water, the tissue-thin Lux diamonds dissolve completely, foam up into rainbow bubbles. Add cold water, then press the lovely lukewarm suds through the blankets—soil and dust are carried away. Rinse in two or three luke-warm waters, then gently squeeze out. Now the blankets are ready to hang in a warm (not hot) place to dry, soft as new.

If it isn't in the blue box it isn't Lux

48 COUNTRIES REPRESENTED AT CONVENTION

Rotary International Opens To-day in Dallas, Texas.

3,000 COMMUNITIES.

Resolution From Great Britain and Ireland Calls For Change in Motto.

DALLAS, Texas, May 27.—The representatives of Rotary clubs in 48 countries and more than 3,000 communities in many parts of the world gathered in Dallas to-day for the twentieth annual convention of Rotary International, to strengthen their "world fellowship" of business and professional men. A steady stream of delegations arriving by special train kept the Texas Rotarians busy piloting them to hotels and to the Texas State Fair Park where convention sessions will be held. A fleet of planes brought the Wichita party, a group of five landed from Schenectad in a cabin cruiser plane, and thousands came by automobile. The European delegation, after a leisurely ten-day journey through the South and a week-end visit to New Orleans, arrived Sunday afternoon.

Centered in Fair Grounds

The business sessions of the convention do not begin until to-morrow, giving the visitors time to get settled, register their attendance, and locate old friends of other conventions. Full advantage is being taken of the facilities of the lovely Fair Park, which this week becomes an international headquarters of Rotary. Pratically all convention activities, even the entertainment ,are centered there, and in the exhibition building, fitted with little Spanish bungalows, are special headquarters for each of the 72 groups into which Rotary clubs are grouped for administrative purposes. No more lovely "House of Friendship" has ever been prepared for a Rotary convention, for a place in which to spend leisure moments and make new friends from strange lands.

Since I. B. Sutton of Tampico is international president, delegates from the Mexican Rotary clubs were present in unusual numbers, and Cuba, Central America and South America were well represented. Ernesto J. Aguilar, Mexico City manufacturer, and Carlos Mejorada, attorney of Mexico City and Pachuca, were leaders of the party from Mexico, which began at once to develop plans for the reception of several hundred visitors, who will make a post-convention tour through Mexico.

Change Motto

Most of the 48 countries are to be represented by a speaker on the program, with a brief message from the Rotarians of their country greeting the Rotarians of the world. In between these goodwill messages from abroad will be short talks by Americans on the ways in which a Rotarian can be of greater service to his fellow citizens and his community. A growing difference of interpretation on the Rotary motto, which declares that "He profits most who serves best," has resulted in presentation of a resolution by the Rotarians of Great Britain and Ireland which would direct discontinuance of that expression because it infers an element of profit in service, which some feel should be wholly unselfish. This resolution is one of the chief topics for debate at the session Monday afternoon for voting delegates. Another resolution up for discussion would provide that Rotary conventions should be held outside North America every third of fourth year. The last convention overseas was held at Ostend, Belgium, in 1927. This resolution was offered by the international board of directors which has been in session in Dallas for several days.

The entertainment program began this afternoon before all the visitors had arrived and settled in their hotels. The Rotary Club of Nashville presented a "Rotary School" as a demonstation of the process of educating a Rotarian in his duties to his club, his customers and his community. At the same time, the visiting ladies were guests at an informal reception and tea, where they met their Dallas hostesses for the week and learned of the special afternoon entertainments planned in th ir honor. The most elaborate of these affairs for the Rotaryanns is an "Afternoon in the Old South" on Thursday afternoon, at the Dallas Country Club, in which the scenes of 75 years ago will be faithfully reproduced.

A colorful picture of the spread of "Rotary Around the World," to be presented by five hundred young ladies of Dallas, acting as escorts to the flags of 48 countries, will be the entertainment Monday evening under the title "Procession of Flags." It will be at once a lesson in geography and international goodwill. As each flag comes into the Fair Park Stadium, a concert band will sound the national anthem of each country.

FORMER SOLICITOR-GENERAL MAKES ATTACK ON LLOYD GEORGE

Liberal Leader Is Referred To As An "Ignorant Gas Bag."

ATTACKS PRESS.

Sir Henry Slesser Says Premier Baldwin Has His Faults But He Knows Them.

(By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, May 27. — Although he had just made a severe attack on the press, Sir Henry Slesser, Solicitor-General in the former Labor Government at the close of a speech to-day felt constrained to send down a note to the reporters asking them to omit his reference to Mr. Lloyd George as an "ignorant gasbag."

Sir Henry was speaking in his own constituency at a meeting subsequently addressed by Right Hon. J. Ramsay Macdonald.

"Whenever I or any other Labor leader, point out that Lord Birkenhead, Lord Carson and Sir William Joynson-Hicks organized or attempted to organize an illegal and seditious mutiny in Ulster just before the war that is never reported in any newspaper," he declared. "You will see that whatever is reported to-morrow morning the fact will be omitted that as soon as we proposed to do something in Ireland they did not like, these men imported arms, organized an irregular army, and the custodian of our peace and liberties, the present Home Secretary, shouted to them to 'Shoot, and be damned.'"

Sir Henry Slesser then described Lloyd George as an "ignorant gas-bag." "Premier Baldwin may have his faults," he said, "but he knows them." "The one good work Baldwin ever did for his country was when he broke up that infamous coalition of hard-faced men and kicked Lloyd-George out of office."

Toronto Resident Is Strangled To Death

TORONTO, Ont., May 27.—(Canadian Press). — Rufus K. Curlett, aged 38, of 91 Browning Ave., died suddenly from strangulation in the bathroom at his hom Sunday morning. He was found dead by his wife, two hours after he had left his bed. No inquest will be held.

Deceased was the son of Joseph Curlett, of Picton. For the past 11 years he was employed as a conductor on the street railway here. He was a man of strong physique and jovial disposition, and his sudden death came as a tremendous shock to his relatives.

Sunday afternoon after the work was finished on a short sightseeing trip of the metropolis.

Besides singing in this contest the choir broadcasted at 3.30 on Saturday afternoon over the Columbia Broadcasting system, from the key station WABC, in New York and on Sunday in the morning they sang in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church.

Banquet Planned.

The following telegram was received among others by the president of the Male Voice Choir, on their successful achievement: "St. Paul's church extends heartiest congratulations on the choir's splendid achievements in New York and herewith invites all members of the choir to a banquet in St. Paul's church on Tuesday at 6.30 p.m. This message was signed by William L. Ferguson.

The members of the choir wish to make a correction as to test piece that was sung at the competition. The choir entrede B class and the piece that was sung was "Lullaby of Love', by Fletcher and not "Twilight" as was first reported.

F. G. McNEELY LEAVES Y.M.C.A.

Boys' Secretary Has Tendered His Resignation To Board of Directors.

10 YEARS IN WORK.

The staff of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. is losing one of its most popular members in Fred G. McNeely, who recently resigned from the position of boys' secretary. Mr. McNeely has served faithfully and efficiently the boys at the "Y" for ten years, and he will be missed by all. He entered upon Y.M.C.A. work with the local association immediately on being demobilized from the Canadian Army in 1919.

Among the other things that Mr. McNeely conceived for the development of boys in this city was the boys' hobby show. He also had the honor of opening the first boys' camp at Camp Rotary, now Camp Skookum, on Clear Lake.

It was with deep regret that the Y.M.C.A. directors accepted his resignation. All spoke highly of his services to the "Y."

Mr. McNeely has accepted a position as local representative of the Willison and Neely Corporation, government and municipal bond brokers. He is taking over the work of T. W. Bennett, who has been promoted to district representative.

SIDELIGHTS ON ELECTION

(By Canadian Press.)

Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, former Labor cabinet minister, speaking at Manchester, said:—"I do not believe there is a country in the world has such a syndicated press as ours. Talk of freedom of the press is all humbug but do not let those newspaper proprietors assume that though people buy newspapers for news or for insurance protection they are going to have their policies dictated to them."

Lor Forescue at a Conservative meeting at South Molton said:—"I am grateful to Lloyd George for what he did for the country and the empire during the war. Although he made ghastly mistakes his services outweighed them. But I do not want the country to be run by a man his colleagues do not trust."

King George Will Make Public Names On His Birthday.

LONG LIST EXPECTED.

LONDON, May 27 (Canadian Press).—The honors list expected a week from to-day on the occasion of the King's birthday will consist of both the usual birthday honors and others which according to custom an outgoing Premier may advise. Rt. Hon. William Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty, who is retiring from politics, will, it is expected, receive a peerage. Should the general election this week indicate that Premier Baldwin is not likely to form the next Government, some other members of the expiring Ministry will probably be elevated to the House of Lords.

Almost equal interest attaches to the honors which may be conferred on some members of the medical profession following His Majesty's recovery from his illness. It is confidently stated that several of the physicians who attended him will be named in the list.

attendance system followed by that organization and commended its use by the local club.

Rotarian Roy also announced that Rotarian Beamer of the Bell Telephone Company was moving to Montreal, and introduced his successor, H. H. P. Johnston of Kingston, whom it was hoped would also be Mr. Beamer's successor in Rotary.

Appreciative reference to the success of the Peterborough Male Voice Choir were made during the luncheon and Rotarians will co-operate in anything done to honor the members of the successful organization.

Kiwanian Browne, in his address, pointed out that the real aim behind the educational efforts of the schools was to give the pupils useful habits and high ideals. It was never intended that a pupil's education should be considered finished when he graduated, but rather that he should have received such training as to be receptive to the things he would learn in after life. The idea was not to turn out walking dictionaries or compendiums of knowledge and if such pupils were turned out he would consider them a libel upon an honored profession.

Special stress was laid by the speaker of the necessity of children being taught to make proper use of their leisure hours. Here the parents were primary responsible, but there were many agencies available to assist them in discharging their duty. The school helped in two ways by providing supervised play and by insisting upon home work. Of the latter, Mr. Browne said that while he favored its reduction to a minimum, he did not believe that it should be entirely abolished. Supervised sport, he eulogized as of the greatest importance, particularly rugby, which he maintained taught those who played it many valuable lessons in self-control and sacrifice.

Other agencies that helped to take care of the leisure hour problem, the speaker mentioned, were such organizations as the Y.M.C.A., the Y.W.C.A., the Boy Scouts, the Girl Guides, etc. Parents should direct their children's attention to these agencies and support them in every way possible while much could be done in making the facilities of such organizations available to the under-privileged boy and girl to whom they would be of splendid benefit.

Rotarian Ensign Green of the Salvation Army expressed the appreciation of the club to Mr. Browne for his splendid address.

In spite of advertising and a careful investigation no one has yet turned up to prove ownership.

The instruments and other things in the office were left by the thief.

Mr. Puffer was casting from the shore just opposite Braundport when he got a strike that made him quiver. After playing the firsh carefully for some minutes he wheeled it in. It was a beauty—a lunge estimated to weigh around eight pounds.

However, since the fishing season for lunge is not open until July 1 the angler without a moment's delay dropped the fish back in its native element. Puffer did not go home empty-handed, fortunately taking three fine pickerel which he caught later.

PENDULUM OBSERVATIONS.

Pendulum observations by the Dominion Observatory show that the mountains of British Columbia are buoyed up by abnormally light material extending down into the earth's crust for about 60 miles. The excess of gravity revealed by the pendulum on the prairies is believed to be due to an extensive underground ridge of abnormally heavy rock.

Gypsies have defied the plan to bar them from the grounds of the famous Epsom Downs race course in England.

The King signed the treaties after he had received Premier Mussolini and other Ministers in the Quirinal Palace.

"Wes" Kelly, driving a Canada Flyer speedster, flashed across the finish line in front of a dozen starters to win the Class "D" contest for outboard motor boats held at Frenchman's Bay on Saturday.

Driving like a veteran, Kelly drove a wonderful race that took a great deal of nerve as well as skill to bring the 11-foot Canada Flyer in first place.

The boat was one of D'Arcy Carter's, built in agreement with B. C. Chambers of the Peterborough Pattern Works, and was powered with a 32 h.p. Johnson sea horse motor, which attained a speed between 46 to 48 miles an hour.

Alexander Roberts is trying his luck again in East Toxteth, where a short while ago he was defeated in a bye-election by Hon. Henry Mond, son of Lord Melchett, running as a Conservative.

Conservatism in the city is on the defence to an extent which has not been known for a long time. The meetings as a general rule have been conducted on orthodox lines and the campaign is markd by an absence of ill temper and bad manners.

WAR DEBT SETTLEMENTS UNFAIR TO GREAT BRITAIN IS CLAIM OF LABOR LEADERS

France Spending Money She Owes England, Rt. Hon. Philip Sowden Declares.

END AGREEMENT.

Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas Favors Wiping Slate Clean and Starting Anew.

(From George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, May 28.—Both Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden and Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, former Labor Cabinet ministers, last night returned to the war debts question and attacked the settlements as unfair to Britain.

"The French budget just published discloses a surplus," said Mr. Snowden, at Bradford. "France is relieving taxation to the extent of ten million pounds. She is spending money she ought to have paid us in lending to Poland and other servile states for purposes of military equipment. She is spending it in creating the greatest air fleet in the world, which as Lord Balfour said, could only be a menace to Britain."

And at Derby, Mr. Thomas declared, "It would be far better to end all these settlements and start afresh. But if they are not going to be wiped out we are not going to stand by and see our country bled white for the benefit of other nations."

Appeals to Employers

Premier Stanley Baldwin has issued from Downing Street a special appeal to employers to arrange that employees living at a distance from their work be enabled to vote on Thursday.

In an address broadcast by radio last night, Sir John Simon, one of the outstanding Liberal leaders, warmly defended Lloyd George's scheme for solving unemployment against the aspersions by Premier Baldwin. He challenged the Prime Minister's view that the scheme would "inevitably damage British railways." Sir John argued that no industry would benefit more than the railways from the general prosperity which would result from the completion of the Liberal scheme.

Baldwin Denies Report

A threat to prosecute, if possible, whoever is responsible for originating the insinuation that the Baldwin factories in Worcester employ a number of Germans, was made by Premier Stanley Baldwin in the course of a speech at Malvern, Worcester, last night. Questions about this had been made at various of his meetings, the Prime Minister said. "In the first place, I employ nobody myself. I am merely a shareholder in Baldwins, Limited," he said, "but the insinuation that Germans are employed is a cowardly lie. I have given instructions that the next time this question is asked, they shall try to find out who is the man who originated it. If I can get him and if action is possible, I shall prosecute him."

Answers Lloyd George

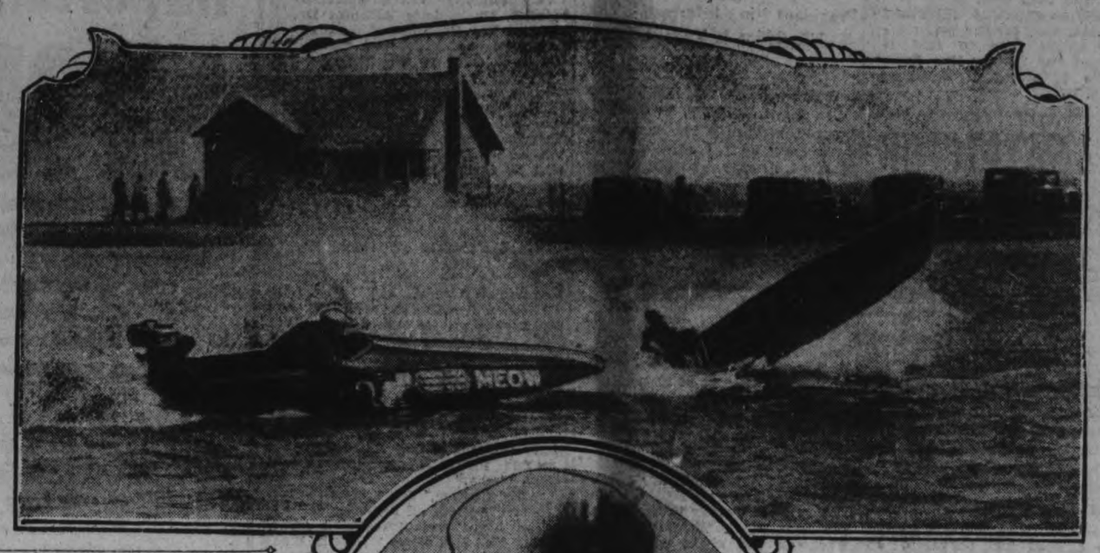
Referring to denials by Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George of statements that he was responsible for the pledges to "Hang the Kaiser" and "Make this country a land fit for heroes to live in," Rt. Hon. Ramsay Macdonald last night at West Hartlepool went into detail concerning the occasions on which the Liberal leader had been alleged to have made these promises.

"On November 29, 1918, at Newcastle, Lloyd George promised to hold the Kaiser responsible for the war, and fetch him out of Holland and try him." The Labor leader asserted. "Although Lloyd George knew that international law prevented him from getting the Kaiser out of Holland, he gave no warning that the pledge could not be fulfilled."

Cow Moose Is Seen In Marsh Near Marmora

MARMORA, May 28.—(Examiner Correspondence.)— As Levi Wannamaker and Russell Fox were returning to Malone from Marmora on Saturday noon they saw a cow moose in the corner of the marsh on George Bedore's property. The animal appeared to be somewhat tame for it leisurely mounted a slope and then turned round to survey the two men. It was about the size of a two year old heifer, according to Fox. After being satisfied with its scrutiny, the animal neatly jumped over the fence and proceeded across the fields in a southerly direction.

Racing Sea Fleas Hurdle Each Other at Frenchman's Bay



A SENSATIONAL ACCIDENT AND A NARROW ESCAPE

During Saturday afternoon's spectacular racing hydroplane regatta down at Frenchmen's Bay, there were four upsets and two collisions during seven races. The photographer caught the most sensational incident of the day and the photo is reproduced ABOVE. "Miss Trent," an amateur built boat, owned by W. J. Warrington of Trenton, was rounding the home mark in the first heat of the Class C event— and he took the turn wide open. Just behind him came Bill Butler, a well-known Toronto racing motorcycle rider, who now lives in Guelph, driving "Meow" a Peterborough Bullet model. "Miss Trent" leaped as Warrington turned her and Butler drove his boat right under her as she was in the air. Butler had to duck below the deck of his boat to escape being killed. A fifth of a second after this photo was snapped "Miss Trent" was upside down, Warrington was in the water, and Butler and "Meow" were on their way up the course. It was a great test of Butler's nerve. He went on and finished third. The other photo shown ABOVE is that of Don Wood, the seventeen-year-old son of Henry Wood of Peterborough, whose successful driving was the feature of the National Yacht Club races on the holiday and the Frenchmen's Bay regatta Saturday. Wood in "Miss Cadillac" won the Class b race at the N.Y.C. and took two out of three heats in the same class at Frenchman's Bay and was third in the Free-for-all. He is only seventeen years old.

FOUR CABINET MINISTERS REPRESENT BIRMINGHAM SEATS

Chamberlain's Name Has For Years Represented City Divisions in House.

CONSERVATIVE STRONGHOLD

Thirty-three Candidates Are Contesting the Twelve City Seats.

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., May 28. — (By Trevor Jones, Canadian Press Staff Writer).—In this city for which Joseph Chamberlain, statesman and tariff reformer, sat for over thirty years and for which his two famous sons now sit while they hold important Cabinet posts, the general election is being pursued with unusual vigor. Since the great split on the home rule issue in 1886, before which Birmingham was Liberal in politics, the city has been the stronghold of Unionism, and when other cities yielded to the pressure of Socialism and the Labor Party, Birmingham remained true to the Chamberlain tradition.

One Labor Representative.

Since the enlargement of the city in 1911, Birmingham has had twelve members, all of whom were Unionist prior to 1924. In the general election of that year Labor got its first foothold, when R. Dennison was elected for King's Norton. He is defending the seat again, and is the centre of one of the most widely discussed controversies of the election. He clashed with Sir Herbert Austin, head of the Austin Motor Works, when he said his works might have to close if Labor came into power and carried out its policy of removing the McKenna duties on automobiles. Dennison replied by declaring a Labor government would take over any works which closed because of its coming into office.

Birmingham is unique in having four Cabinet Ministers as its representatives: Sir Austen Chamberlain, Foreign Secretary; Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain, Minister of Health; Rt. Hon. L. C. M. S. Amery, Dominion and Colonial Secretary; and Sir Arthur Steel-Maitland, Minister of Labor. Sir Austen is opposed by a Socialist, O. G. Willey, and each of

MAY SUSPEND 15 STUDENTS

Governing Body of University of Western Ontario Rules With Iron Hand.

UNBECOMING CONDUCT.

LONDON, Ont., May 28 (C.P.).—Fifteen students of the Arts faculty of the University of Western Ontario "will pass out of the picture" with the completion of the present examinations unless they scrupulously conform to the regulations of the Arts College as enforced, not by the faculty but by the students' own governing body.

By a process described by Dr. K. P. R. Neville, Dean of Arts, as "the finest example of student government I have ever known," and 15 have been convicted of unbecoming conduct. They have been assessed and have paid up the costs of repairing damage they caused and only by the most scrupulous obedience to regulations will even the best of them be able to continue his studies. For some of the 15 there is not even that last opportunity to make good, and for these the rules will be allowed to operate and when the Fall term comes it will be found that they have excluded themselves.

Dr. W. Sherwood Fox, President of the University, stated last night that the whole situation had been handled by the students themselves and that stern measures had been taken to deal with the offenders.

Dr. Neville stated that the trouble had centered around a recreation room used by the men students. Numerous complaints had been heard and the trouble came to an issue when the offenders played softball in the room, using a bat so effectually that they knocked out four windows, broke two pictures and knocked down the electric fixtures.

SYNOD OPENS IN KINGSTON

Bishop Seager Delivers His Annual Charge To Members of Anglican Communion.

1,076 CONFIRMATIONS.

KINGSTON, Ont., May 28 (Canadian Press).—The sixty-second session of the incorporated Synod of the Diocese of Ontario opened this morning in St. George's Cathedral, when the annual charge to Synod was delivered by His Lordship Bishop Seager. In his charge, Bishop Seager referred to the almost complete restoration to health of His Majesty the King and the spirit of thankfulness which prevailed among people in all walks of life and divergent religious views, while he emphasized the fact that the British Throne undoubtedly stands for stability in a world which changes very rapidly.

Bishop Seager reported that during the year he had ordained three candidates to the priesthood, and one candidate to permanent deaconate.

The number of confirmations during the year was 1,076. Every parish and mission in the Diocese is filled with the exception of Wolfe Island.

"One of our most serious weaknesses," said Bishop Seager, "especially in the country parishes, is the need of school-houses and parish halls. The work of the church to-day absolutely requires adequate equipment."

ALTITUDE RECORD CLAIMED.

German Airman Climbs To Indicated Height of 41,000 Feet.

DOSSAU, Germany, May 28 (C.P.) —A Junker W-33 type monoplane captured another record yesterday morning when Willi Nounhofer, a Junkers flier, reached an indicated altitude of 12,500 metres (about 41,010 feet). He carried no extra weight.

The Junkers' Works expect to claim a new world's record for the flight if, after the altimeter is calibrated, it proves to have bettered the 1927 record of C. C. Champion of the United States, of 11,710 metres. The sealed altitude recording instruments will be submitted to the German Air Board for calibration.

Nounhofer's plane is equipped with an automatic controlling device which shuts off the motor and enables the plane to glide to the earth if the aviator is overcome in rarified air strata.

The Junkers would now claim four records for their W-33 monoplane: distance and speed nationally and duration and altitude as world records.

(The record is now claimed by Lieutenant Apollo Soucer, U. S. N., who climbed to 39,140 feet on May 8. Application has been made for international recognition of this record.)

DESSAU, May 28 (C.P.).—On an earlier attempt yesterday a break in Neunhofer's oxygen tube caused him to lose consciousness, and the machine dropped nearly 22,000 feet before he regained control.

On the first flight Neunhofer climbed to a height of 35,080 feet before the oxygen tube burst. Despite the long drop in the unpiloted plane, he was still more than two miles above the ground when he recovered his senses, and he was able to make a successful landing.

Neunhofer spent two hours and twenty minutes in the air on the second flight. Its purpose was to test the effects of rarefied air and cold on his motor and fuel.

PARIS, May 28.—Two seasoned French army pilots, Commandants Weiss and Girier— the former one of the officers who rescued Colonel Lindbergh from the crush of his admirers the day he arrived at Le Bourget Field —broke the world's speed record for a distance of 5,000 kilometres (about 3,125 miles) when they brought their 600-horsepower army plane to a standstill on the Etampes flying field this morning after twenty-six hours of continuous flying at an average speed of 180 kilometres (roughly 112 miles) an hour.

There was widespread rejoicing in French aviation circles for the record has been in the hand of the Italin flying corps since June 2 last year when the Italian airmen, Ferrarin and Del Prete, did the same distance at an average speed of 139 kilometers.

Taking off Saturday morning at 6:08, the Frenchmen flew over the course Etampes-Chartres-Orleans-Etampes until 8:43 this morning. A group of high officers of the army flying corps watched the final stages of the record-breaking flight.

Paris was speculating on whether this would be a prelude to a trans-Atlantic attempt, but neither of the airmen would discuss the subject. However, in view of the governmental ban on such attempts it is believed unlikely that they have any such venture in mind.

With yesterday's success, French

WHEAT GROWERS PROTEST AGAINST MILLING GRAIN

Hawley Tariff Bill Is Scheduled By Republican Leaders To Go To Vote, With All Most Certain Passage in House To-day.

CANADIAN PRODUCTS OF FARM AND FOREST ARE THE CHIEF COMMODITIES AFFECTED

Committee of Ways and Means Endorses Growers' Proposal To Increase Duty On Canadian Wheat Milled in United States While in Bond.

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 28 (Canadian Press). — Amendment of the Tariff Bill to provide that imported wheat milled in bond for re-export would pay a duty equal to any preferential rate granted this country by a foreign nation on wheat shipments to that country was decided upon today by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The proposal will be offered before consideration of the Bill is completed by the House.

This change was decided upon after American wheat growers had protested against wheat coming into the United States from Canada without paying duty and having it milled in bond and re-exported to countries on the same preferential basis as American wheat.

Pass To-day

WASHINGTON, May 28 (By Kenneth S. Clark, Canadian Press Staff Correspondence).—The Hawley Tariff Bill is scheduled by Republican leaders to go to a vote with almost certain passage in the House of Representatives this afternoon.

The measure would, if it passed the Senate without a change and were signed by President Hoover, would considerably affect Canadian exports.

Canadian commodities chiefly affected would be products of the farm, cedar shingles and hardwood lumber. The bill increases rates on cattle, swine, sheep, wood, beef, lamb and pork; hides, leather, boots and shoes; milk, cream, butter and cheese, flaxseed, potatoes, canned tomatoes, peas, beans and buckwheat, shingles, cedar boards and planks, and maple and birch lumber.

British Columbia will suffer from a twenty per cent, ad valorem duty on shingles—three-quarters of their output last year going to the United States, with a valued business of seven million dollars.

Potatoe growers of Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick would be adversely affected by the increase of duty on potatoes of seventy-five cents per hundredweight instead of fifty. Western Canada would feel the doubling of the beef rate of three cents and the increase of half a cen on light cattle and a cent on the heavier stock.

Ontario and milk territory of Quebec would feel the milk and cream rates. President Hoover has already put higher rates on these commodities into effect.

Death came suddenly as a result of pleurisy which followed the extraction of the bullet from beneath his lung. Members of his family were at his bedside.

Small Nova Scotia Town Is Terrorized When Gangsters Fire Constable's Home

HALIFAX, May 28. — Terror reigned in the new Victoria district just outside the town of New Waterford all Sunday night when an organized gang stoned the residence of Constable Daniel Cowans, burned his garage and his Chevrolet car. Every pane of glass in the house was shattered.

The stones were hurled into the sleeping rooms of the family. In the meantime noise of the disturbance spread, and other residents of New Victoria armed themselves and barricaded their homes.

Constable Cowan armed and descended to the street, but the gangsters made off when a shot from his gun barked into the darkness of the night. The Fire Department saved the residence from the fire, which was fanned by a strong wind, but could not save the garage or its contents, and the loss, including the car, is estimated at several thousand dollars. The fire was apparently well under way before the stoning of the house began.

"Number Seventeen Gang," to whom the credit for the act of warfare is laid, had notified the constable and several prominent residents that they were slated for punishment for recent arrests in New Victoria, and for some time there has been a feeling of fear and terror among the law-abiding citizens while act after act of vandalism and terror have demonstrated that the lawless gang element was at work.

A month ago, the store of W. J. Hinchey was burglarized and some damage was done to the extent of over one thousand dollars, after a large part of the stock had been removed. A number of the "Seventeen Gang" were arrested, charged with the crime, and the evidence against them was strong enough to warrant their committal for trial. Recently they were allowed out on bail.

For months residents have been living in terror of this gang, and the law-abiding citizens of the district are uniting to-day in a sort of vigilant posse to enforce law and order and to prevent any repetition of last night's riot. The homes of several citizens who acted as witnesses are considered in danger.

Flier Killed In 150-Foot Nose Dive In Jersey; Girl Critically Hurt On Sightseeing Cruise

MILLINGTON, N.J., May 28.— A young pilot was killed while his wife looked on from a flying field near here yesterday when the biplane in which he was taking two passengers for a ride nose-dived into the mud close to the field. A young woman passenger was critically injured and the other passenger, a young man, was painfully hurt. The cause of the accident has not been determined.

The pilot was Richard L. Perry, 22 years old, who lived at 834 Hobart avenue, Plainfield. He was employed by the Interurban Airways Corporation, which opened a new field near here recently, but is said to have been the owner of the plant. He was piloting an OX5 Challenger biplane. His passengers were Helen Dananski, 18 years old, of Elm street, Stirling, and her friend, Joseph Schweitzer, 24, of South Stirling.

The plane was making a sightseeing cruise, for which the passengers had paid $3 each. The police said Perry had been taking up sightseers all day.

Mrs. Perry and others on the field saw the pilot swing off over the field soon after the take-off. Suddenly they noticed that something was wrong. The plane banked over a field across the highway. It went abruptly into a nose dive, plunging 150 feet. Mrs. Perry fainted.

The plane's nose went deep into a mud hole. Perry was jammed against the instrument board. Mechanics at the field rushed to the fallen plane and pulled out the passengers and Perry.

An automobile took them to the Overlook Hospital at Summit, eight miles away. Perry was dead when the car reached there. Miss Dananski's right foot was almost severed and she had other severe injuries. Hospital authorities said her condition was grave. Schweitzer's injuries were less severe.

Attaches at the field said that Perry, realizing that a crash was coming, had cut the ignition switch and thus prevented fire when the biplane struck.

LINDBERGH IS MARRIED TO ANNE MORROW

ANNOUNCEMENT IS SURPRISE TO EVEN CLOSEST FRIENDS OF THE TWO YOUNG PEOPLE

Staff of Newspapermen Are Eluded By Colonel and His Mother.

WAITED AT GATES.

Bride's Father Has Nothing to Say to Press Interviewers.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., May 28. (C.P.)—Anne, daughter of Ambassador and Mrs. Dwight M. Morrow, and Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, were married at the bride's home here yesterday afternoon.

The ceremony was conducted by Rev. William Adams Brown of Union Theological Seminary, New York City.

The bride wore a simple white chiffon dress, with short veil. She wore no gloves, but carried a bouquet of blue larkspur, plucked from the Morrow garden.

So far as could be learned there were no witnesses outside the immediate Morrow family, and possibly a few of the household staff.

Is Complete Surprise.

News of the wedding came as a complete surprise. No advance announcement of the date had been made, although there had been many newspaper guesses, most of which had favored mid-June.

Every large newspaper has besieged the Morrow estate since the family first moved there this month. In addition many news picture agencies have kept photographers at hand for weeks.

Apparently the "lone eagle" dodged all the best efforts of his army of observers for from no source during the day came anything indicating that he had arrived at the home, or that there would make public a date for the ceremony.

Signs are Recalled.

Since the formal announcement that the ceremony had taken place, however, it was recalled that only a short time after the Ambassador drove through the guarded gates of his estate here from his train yesterday, Colonel Lindbergh and his mother arrived in the Colonel's automobile, drove at once to the house and remained for two hours. During their visit some of the watchers reported a man of clerical appearance also arrived at the estate and immediately was admitted. This combination of events was taken by the observers to indicate that arrangements for today's ceremony was made immediately after the Ambassador arrived here.

When the Ambassador stepped from his train at Newark yesterday efforts were made to obtain some indication of the wedding date, but to all queries he courteously replied that he had "nothing to say." He drove with Mrs. Morrow and their daughter Constance, from Newark to the estate here, and from the time of his arrival no word was forthcoming from the home until formal announcement of the wedding was made late today.

Only Announcement.

Ambassador and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow late to-day announced the marriage to-day of their daughter Anne to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

The announcement said simply:

"Mr. and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow announce the marriage of their daughter Anne, to Charles A. Lindbergh, at Englewood, N.J., on May 27, 1929."

No details were given, the reply to questions in every case being, "That is all."

The only explanation for the unexpectedness of the event was furnished by Mrs. Edwin L. McIlvaine of Meadville, Pa., sister of Am. bassador Morrow.

A telegram from her brother said: "Anne and Charles married very quietly this afternoon. Betty and I regret your absence, but there seemed no other way after the sudden decision last night."

Mrs. McIlvaine said she was informed by telephone that the wedding was advanced at the request of Miss Morrow because she was annoyed by the publicity and the insistence of reporters and curiosity seekers for information.

Wedding Informal

The wedding was utterly informal. The bride wore a simple white chiffon dress, made by Miss Mary Smith, an Englewood dress maker, who has sewed for the Morrow family for years. The bride had a short veil and in her ungloved hands carried a bouquet of blue larkspur which had been picked in the gardens of the Morrow estate by her fiance a few moments before the ceremony.

Colonel Lindbergh wore a blue business suit of the sort that has been his favorite garb in flights about the country.

Each guest was given a piece of wedding cake.

Dr. Brown describing the wedding said:

"There were no special decorations. The very simplest wedding ceremony was used at the request of the family. It was a very unusual and very brief ritual, designed to use a minimum of words and time.

"There was no best man and there were no bridal attendants. Ambassador Morrow gave his daughter away.

"The bride was very charming and very lovely. She wore a white veil and a white dress. Colonel Lindbergh wore a plain business suit.

London Man Claims He Has Squared the Circle

LONDON, Ont., May 28.—(C. P.)—Leonard William Hartmen, of 742 Elias street, divisional timekeeper for the Canadian Pacific Railway, is making a bid for a place in history with the claim that he has solved a problem that has baffled the scientists of the world down through the ages.

Hartman says he has squared the circle—in other words, that he has devised a geometric method by which to reproduce the exact area of a circle in the shape of a square.

Hartman's studies in the realms of science have produced results beyond the ken of most laymen, and it is claimed that in London there are not a handful of men able to read his formula for squaring the circle. University professors are now examining it.

MAN WILL RECOVER.

BEAVERTON, Ont., May 28 (Canadian Press). — Dougal Gillespie,, a local farmer, had his neck broken last Wednesday as the result of being kicked off a gangway while driving a team of horses into his bar. He is now lying encased in a plaster cast in a Lindsay hospital. Attending physicians say Gillespie will be completely recovered within three months.

LITTLE GIRL KILLED.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., May 28.—Florence White, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John White, Richmond Township, was killed yesterday, being crushed by a motor car driven by her father as he backed from the garage in the barnyard.

Wild Ducks Caught In Fishermen's Nets

GODERICH, May 27 (C.P.).—Local fishermen, already harassed by loss of nets in early season storms, have a new worry and an unusual angle to the problem of game preservation is presented by the wholesale destruction of wild ducks in the lake waters.

Hundreds of the fowl in pursuit of fish become fouled in the nets with their prey.

Many an expectant fisherman has laboriously raised a net promising weight only to find it snagged and torn by the futile efforts of scores of desperate ducks.

DRAMATIC CLUB PRESENTS PLAY

Young People From Little Britain Provide Program At Omemee.

CUPS PRESENTED.

OMEMEE, May 28. — (Examiner Correspondence.) — Once more the Omemee Athletic Association went over the top on Victoria Day. The officers and others who assisted are more than pleased with the success of the day. Following the afternoon's program of sports a capacity house awaited the arirval of the Dramatic Club of Little Britain, which presented a three act comedy, entitled "And Home Came Ted." The attention and applause of the large audience showed the approval of its presentation. Each character was exceptionally well suited to the part chosen for them and the humorous trend of the play, together with the heavier parts which were well interpreted, was heartily appreciated by the entire audience. The Little Britain orchestra supplied splendid music between the acts and were generous in their numbers.

During the evening the president of the O. A. A. presented the cup awarded by F. G. Gandy, M.L.A., for the five mile marathon race, to Mr. Douglas Brandon, of Lindsay, who made the distance in 28 minutes and 10 seconds. Mr. Brandon made a neat reply.

The proceeds of the day are in the neighborhood of $485.

One party of six Finlanders, arrested yesterday, walked into a waiting group of immigration officials as they climbed up a ladder from the gorge across which they had been rowed. All are being held for the grand jury.

The United States Consul's office was surrounded to-day by a large crowd of aliens waiting to apply for visas and to be placed on quota lists.

WAYMAN POLITELY EJECTS DR. SHIELDS IN DES MOINES

"Toronto Tom" Returns To University With Other Members of Board.

HEATED CONTROVERSY.

President is Informed That His Office Is Vacant By Dr. Shields.

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 28 (Canadian Press). — Dr. T. T. Shields of Toronto, invidiously known as "Toronto Tom" on the campus of Des Moines University, returned here yesterday bearing with him a breath of courtesy and manners.

With him came, also from Toronto, Miss Edith N. Rebman, and two other members of the Board of Trustees of the institution, Rev. E. A. Roberts of Cleveland and Rev. H. G. Hamilton of Austin, Minn.

Two weeks ago Dr. Shields, Miss Rebman, and several other trustees were egged off the campus of this fundamentalist seat of higher learning.

Not Egg Thrown.

Not an egg, not a trustee, was thrown yesterday.

Shortly before 3 p.m. Dr. Shields and Miss Rebman and all, appeared on the campus.

They went directly to the office of President H. C. Wayman, who was discharge two weeks ago, effective June 4, but who is keeping the University open under a court injunction despite a board order closing the school.

The board order was delivered from the city jail May 11, after police had rescued the harrassed Toronto divine and his companions from the student rock and egg shower.

Very formally fairly extending courtesy, Dr. Shields informed Dr. Wayman that the office of the president of the university was vacated.

"Get Out" Is The Order

Dr. Wayman (who is only very recently from Missouri) came right back in repartee, lacking in formality but pregnant with meaning: "Interesting if true, but the court will have something to say in regard to that. You know the university is operating under the injunction of Judge F. S. Shankland, I presume?"

"Get out," exploded Dr. Wayman.

"We don't have to" retired Dr. Shields.

The telephone rang. It was Dr. Wayman's attorney.

"Now get out," he said, "so I can have a private talk with him."

We might leave if you asked us nicely" hinted Dr. Shields.

"Get out," repeated Dr. Wayman.

"That won't do; ask us nicely" reiterated Dr. Shields, rising to the climax of the afternoon's controversy with the genteel infection of a mother instructing her offspring. "Say please."

"All right then," Dr. Wayman surrendered, "please all get out."

The board members smiled and slowly filed out, moral victors in the first battle of manners on the campus of Des Moines University.

DEBATE ENDS IN HOUSE WITHOUT VOTE BEING TAKEN

"Lost On Division," Says Speaker and There Is No Protest.

IMMIGRATION CRITICISED.

Peace River Member Declares Railway is Greatest Need to Settlers.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 28 (C.P.).—Without a recorded vote, the amendment of General A. D. McRae, Conservative member for North Vancouver, was declared lost in the House of Commons last night. The amendment which was moved on a government motion to go into supply for consideration of Immigration Department estimates, expressed regret at "the failure of the government's immigration policy and the settlement of men and women on Western Crown lands at Great distances from transportation and other facilities, and finally set forth that conditions, "can only be remedied by an immediate re-organization of the Department of Immigration and Colonization."

Immediately after the amendment had been declared lost, the House went into committee of supply on estimates on the Department of Immigration.

Peace River Scheme

In moving his amendment, General McRae last week outlined a large scheme for the settlement of the Peace River district. This scheme drew criticism from a number of yesterday's speakers.

"The poor settlers already located in that part of the country are loaded with debt and new settlers would only get discouraged," asserted J. A. Bradett (Liberal Timiskaming North).

From the Progressive benches, Miss Agnes Macphail, member for Southeast Gray, remarked that General McRae had talked like a promoter.

D. M. Kennedy, U.F.A. member for Peace River, felt that the present was not the time of encouraging immigration because hundreds of homesteaders were without railway facilities. The immediate problem was one of transportation.

Farmers Lost Millions

Farmers of the Peace River district had lost millions of dollars in the past two years because of lack of transportation facilities, J. A. Frazer (Conservative, Caribou), declared to the House. The government should see that modern facilities followed the settler into the new lands.

Oscar Boulanger (Liberal, Bellechasse), advocated encouraging Canadian boys to go on the land. Once on the land, they should be assisted by the government, so that their lives might be made comfortable, thus inclining them to remain farmers.

NO FARMERS TURNED OUT.

GUELPH, Ont., May 28.—A survey of the 1929 graduating class of the Ontario Agricultural College here, disproves the contention that the majority of the graduates of that institution return to the farms. The majority of the students who have completed their term at the college are entering work closely allied to farming, but not one is planning to take up actual farming operations immediately.

MAJOR LEAN RETURNS.

TORONTO, Ont., May 28.—Major Osborne Lean, missing from his home here since November 29, 1927, walked into the home of his brother-in-law on Rusholme Road last night.

Major Lean's condition is such that no one excepting his wife and little son will be allowed to see him.

He is an Australian by birth and had seen service in both the Boer and Great Wars. He sustained several wounds which left him with a distinct limp.

Children Receive Picture of Prince

ST. JOHN, N.B., May 28 (C.P.).—As an award for merit in walking four miles on each of three days to attend diphtheria immunization clinics, the children of the Frog Pond or Lower Golden Grove school were presented with a nice framed large photgraph of the Prince of Wales, to hang in their school building.

DENOUNCES IRREGULAR MARRIAGES

EDINBURGH, Scotland, May 28. —The greatly increased number of irregular marriages was a very disastrous feature of home life in Scotland, declared Rev. Dr. John White in submitting the report on "The Church and The Nation" to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland yesterday. He also denounced the "Gretna Green" marriage as being not only irregular. But also a ceremony that was seldom followed by registration.

ONE MAN LOST WITH SHIP

SEATTLE, Wash., May 28—Only one man was lost when the liner Aleutian plunged to the bottom near Kodiak Island, Alaska, and that a member of the crew, Anuel Dorras, was the victim. He climbed back on the ship from a lifeboat to rescue a "lucky horseshoe." All the 15 passengers and the 115 members of the crew were taken aboard the steamer Surveyor. The Aleutian, of the Alaskan Steamship Company, was valued at $1,000,000.

CANADIAN RAILWAYS REDUCE TARIFF ON FLOUR SHIPMENTS

Answer is Made to Action of Railroads in United States.

ANNOUNCEMENT TO-DAY.

New Rates Will Become Effective On One Day's Published Notice.

MONTREAL, Que., May 28 (C.P.).—The long-waited announcement as to what Canadian railways would do to meet reduced rates on export wheat flour made by the United States recently, wa soutlined in a statement issued here yesterday by the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National railways. The statement reads:

"The United States railways, at the request of the administration in Washington, have announced reductions in rates on wheat flour only for export, following their recent reduction on wheat only from Lake Erie ports to the Atlantic seaport for export. The Canadian railways have decided to meet such reduced rates on wheat flour from Bay ports and intermediate points to Canadian ports, and are asking the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada for permission to issue revised tariffs on one day's notice, so that the rates may be effective on the same date as the reduced rates take effect in the United States. These reduced rates are of a temporary nature, and expire September 30 next."

Petition Granted

OTTAWA, Ont., May 28 (C.P.).—Under an order passed by the Board of Railway Commissioners late yesterday, the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways are authorized to publish, on one day's notice, tariffs containing reduced rates on grain and wheat flour from Ontario shipping points to the Atlantic seaboard, for export, to meet the reduction made by United States railways.

The amount of the reduction in rates is not specified in the order, but according to information received by the board, rates from Bay ports to Canadian ports will be reduced by 3.33 cents per 100 pounds below present rates. The railway companies, it is understood, will publish their tariffs to-day and the reduced rates will come into effect on Wednesday.

Under the usual procedure, Canadian railways can issue revised tariffs only on three days' notice, but the order passed yesterday respecting grain and wheat flour enables the issue of revised tariffs on one day's notice.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 28.—Wholesale butter prices were steady yesterday, with trading quiet. Receipts were 1,297 boxes. The prices to the retail trade were likewise unchanged.

The cheese market was firmer, following the higher prices asked at country board meets on Saturday. Dealers were reluctant to quote prices, awaiting developments before making quotations in view of the variance in prices paid in the country. Receipts were 3,416 boxes.

Potatoes were a little dearer here, the firmer feeling being due to lighter receipts. New Brunswick Green Mountains on track here in car lots, were 65 cents per 90 pounds in bulk; while Prince Edward Island potatoes were 80 cents for whites and 85 cents for Green Mountains in 90-pound bags.

Receipts of eggs yesterday were the greatest in six years, totalling 9,003 cases. Prices, both wholesale and retail, were steady.

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, May 28.—Trading was quiet on the local wholesale egg market yesterday, and prices were unchanged, with dealers quoting country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered and cases returned, as follows: Fresh extras, 27c to 28c per dozen; firsts, 25c to 26c, and seconds 22c to 23c per dozen.

Monday is usually a quiet day, and receipts are small. Dealers reported, however, that large offerings are being made from country points, and it is stated that the warmer weather is lending an easier undertone to the market.

Butter Steady.

Butter trading was also inactive, and the price of No. 1 finest creamery held firm at 37c per lb., with No. 2 grade 1c per lb. lower. Dealers are now operating solely on domestic brands, and supplies from this source are increasing rapidly with the warmer weather.

Quotations to retail trade were unchanged at 39c per lb. for No. 1 grade and 38c for No. 2 grade.

Lacking any new interest of note, trading remained quiet on the wholesale cheese market, and the price of No. 1 large, colored, paraffined and Government graded supplies was unchanged at from 18c to 18¾c per lb.

ZION LEAGUE HOLDS UNIQUE MEETING

Race Between Groups is Very Close—Boys Form Softball Club.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, May 28.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The Packard group gained a further increase in the Zion League race on Wednesday evening and is now more than sixty points ahead of the second place Reo group. The program was in charge of the citizenship convenor, George Brunton, with Don Kerr as leader. Following the usual business and devotional section, instrumental music was given by Misses Gladys Simpson and Freda Petherick and Albert Petherick. A reading by Laura Watson and the citizenship topic by George Brunton completed the program.

During the devotional talk Rev. F. C. MacTavish conducted a discussion period, which proved to be quite interesting. A unique Bible question contest closed the meeting, this being won by the Reo group with a 100 per cent. score.

Club Organized.

Following the league service on Wednesday evening, a meeting of boys was held under direction of Rev. Mr. MacTavish to organize a softball club. The team has been invited to fill a vacancy in the Rawdon-Seymour League with teams from Menie, Hoards, Bethel and Springbrook.

The following officers were elected to control the destinies of the Petherick's Corners entry: Manager, Grant Kerr; captain, Roy Fry; coach, Thomas Fry; secretary-treasurer, L. Anderson. The membership fee is placed at 25c and everyone in the community is being invited to join to obtain a supply of cash for purchasing equipment. The first game of the local season will be played here on Monday, June 3, when

There is far more MAGIC BAKING POWDER used in Canada than of all other brands combined

E.W. GILLETT CO. LTD. TORONTO, CAN.

Hoards will be the guests of the Petherick's team. The complete schedule will be announced in a few days.

While the locals have entered a team, they are not over-confident as to their ability to win games as this is the first attempt at organized softball. The other teams are all experienced and have been pennant winners or finalists in the past three years, so that the local boys are more in search of sport than silverware in this series.

HOW BABY SPECIALISTS TREAT CONSTIPATION

Constipation in babies and children is the cause of colic, bloating, skin disorders, etc. It weakens them, just as it does grown folks; makes them cross, feverish and fretful. But don't use grown folks' medicine with them. baby specialists advise. Ninety per cent. of them recommend just one preparation for constipation, colds and other ills of babies and children. They say Fletchers Castoria. Millions of mothers have proved its merit during thirty years of use. Castoria is purely-vegetable, harmless and pleasant-tasting. Genuine Castoria always bears the Fletcher signature. Avoid imitations.

BIG HOUSE GREETS "GREEN STOCKINGS"

Play Presented Under Auspices of U.F.O. Club is a Success.

CENTREVILLE, May 28.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The young people of Centreville presented a very pleasing three-act drama, "Green Stockings," in the Conservatory of Music hall on Thursday evening under the auspices of the U. F. O. Club of Peterborough.

A well filled house greeted these talented amateur performers, and the stage was cleverly arranged to represent an old English home, in which all the acts take place, with a period of several years elapsing between the first and second acts.

The following is a cast of the characters:

Admiral Grice—George Berry.
Robert Farver—Charles Anderson.
James Ralley—Donald Rutherford.
William Faraday—Mac Bradshaw.
Henry Steele—L. Pammett.
Martin—Willis Hall.
Colonel Smith—Dickson Hutchison.
Mrs. Chisholm Faraday — Edith Deyel.
Celia Faraday—Dorothy Hall.
Mrs. Rockingham—Grace Johnson.

FLAGS ADD COLOR TO VILLAGE STREETS

Meetings of Interest to Women Scheduled for Week.

LAKEFIELD, May 28.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The display of flags on May 24 showed a decided increase over previous years, and was a great improvement, but there is still a lot of room as there were many homes of prominent citizens whose flags were noticeably absent. During the day a veritable procession of motor cars passed through the village and the flag decked homes and business places were very attractive.

To Hold District Meeting.

The district meeting of the Women's Institute will be held in Lakefield on Wednesday, June 5, beginning at 10.30 a.m. Mrs. J. G. Stone, of Bond Head, the provincial president of the Women's Institute, will speak. Delegates will be present from Norwood, Havelock, Warsaw and Apsley.

To Hold Second Class.

The second coaching class will be held in the Town Hall on the afternoon of May 30, with Miss Hopkins in charge. These classes are under the auspices of the Women's Institute and the Junior Institute.

CLIFF CHALKS USED IN CURE.

Chalf from Beachy Head, a noted spot in England, is being swallowed by patients in a London hospital at the rate of two tons a year. It is the principal ingredient of a powder invented by Prof. H. MacLean, a graduate of Aberdeen University, for relief of ulcers of the stomach. Use of the powder has reduced the number of operations performed at the hospital from one or two a day to one a month.

WINDOW UNVEILED TO FORMER PASTOR

Manning Family Presents Beautiful Window to Oshawa Congregation.

The Rev. H. M. Manning, former pastor of Trinity United Church, and founder of St. James' United Church, has become almost a specialist in the line of organizing new churches. After leaving the regular work in the ministry he went to Oshawa and there began in a small way a Sunday school in Oshawa, south.

This cause has grown and flourished until to-day they have a well-appointed church that will accommodate five hundred people.

On Sunday Mr. Manning's family unveiled a stain glass window in appreciation of the work that he and Mrs. Manning had been doing.

Rev. M. Whatham, a former pastor of Mark Street Church, is now in charge of this new cause and officiated at the services of dedication.

Immediately after the sermon, which had been taken by Mr. Manning, who is yet a vigorous man in spite of his eighty years, his two sons, Dr. Kent Manning, of Toronto, and H. G. Manning, of the Peterborough Normal School, lowered the flag, which revealed a window that reproduced once again that famous work of art by Holman Hunt, "The Light of the World." Mr. Manning was taken very much by surprise as he had known nothing of the previous arrangements, but was able to express his appreciation in the thoughtful gift.

Their two daughters, Mrs. A. H. Milner of Brampton, and Mrs. J. E. Middleton, of Peterborough, were also present at the occasion.

OBITUARY

MRS. RICHARD CONDON.

DOURO, May 28.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late Mrs. Richard Condon, who died at her home near Indian River on Tuesday, May 22, was held on Friday morning at 9 o'clock to St. Joseph's Church and St. Joseph's Cemetery. Requiem mass was sung by Rev. J. Leonard.

The late Mrs. Condon had been in poor health for some time, but the news of her death came unexpectedly, in her 54th year. She was of a kind and cheerful disposition and will be greatly missed by her many friends.

She leaves to mourn her loss besides her sorrowing husband, two sisters, Mrs. John Garvey, of Douro, and Mrs. Peter Doherty, of Otonabee; also two brothers, Daniel, of Douro, and John, of Dummer.

PROFESSOR GILLESPIE.

Professor Gillespie, one of Canada's foremost engineers, died suddenly on May 26 at his home in Toronto as the result of a heart attack. Professor Gillespie was one of the most brilliant of the engineering faculty, University of Toronto. He served on the staff of the university for twenty-five years, during which time he gained a wide reputation, both as an engineer and as a teacher of marked ability, beloved by the students with whom he came in contact.

Professor Gillespie was for many years a resident of Peterborough, and many of the older people in the locality will remember him as principal of the Old West Ward School. While a student of engineering in university, he acted on the Lift Lock engineering staff in this city.

For the past five years Professor Gillespie had been head of the department of civil engineering in the faculty of applied science and engineering. He joined the staff as a lecturer just a year after his graduation from the University of Toronto, in 1903. He was 56 years old.

Professor Gillespie was a former vice-president of the Engineering Institute of Canada and a former vice-chairman of the Canadian Engineering Standards Association. He was very active in the field covered by that latter association, having had a large share in the framing of modern engineering standards. In that connection he was chairman of a committee formed to frame general specifications for concrete and reinforced concrete.

Professor Gillespie was constantly occupied with engineering research and conducted highly important original investigations in connection with the use of reinforced concrete. More recently he had done much important work in the field of structural welding.

He was regarded at the university and among the members of his profession as an unusually able lecturer and an excellent public speaker. To these qualities was added a charming personality, which attracted to himself the particular admiration of the members of his classes.

Surviving him are his widow and three children, Robert, Peter and Elibabeth, all at home. The funeral service will be held on Tuesday morning in Convocation Hall, Toronto, when it is probable that Rev. Dr. G. C. Pidgeon, of Bloor Street United Church, will officiate.

AUTO RUG IS GIVEN PASTOR

Congregation of Indian River Baptist Church Bids Farewell To Rev. Eikenaar.

GOES TO BRACEBRIDGE.

On Friday evening the congregation and Sunday School of Indian River Baptist Church gathered at the home of William Dewart to bid farewell to their pastor, Rev. A. Eikenaar, who leaves shortly for his new charge at Bracebridge.

The social program was in charge of Mesdames Bradley and Jones and the time passed pleasantly in games and contests.

During the evening Rev. Mr. Eikenaar was presented with an auto rug and purse by Mr. Evans, while Mr. Boreland read the following address:

"Dear Mr. Eikenaar:

"It is with deep regret that we learned of your intended departure from our midst, and we have assembled to-night to voice our appreciation of the work done during the two years of your pastorate here.

"You have faithfully ministered to our needs and been a friend to all. Your spirit of optimism and good cheer could not fail to give courage and inspiration in the work you were laboring to promote.

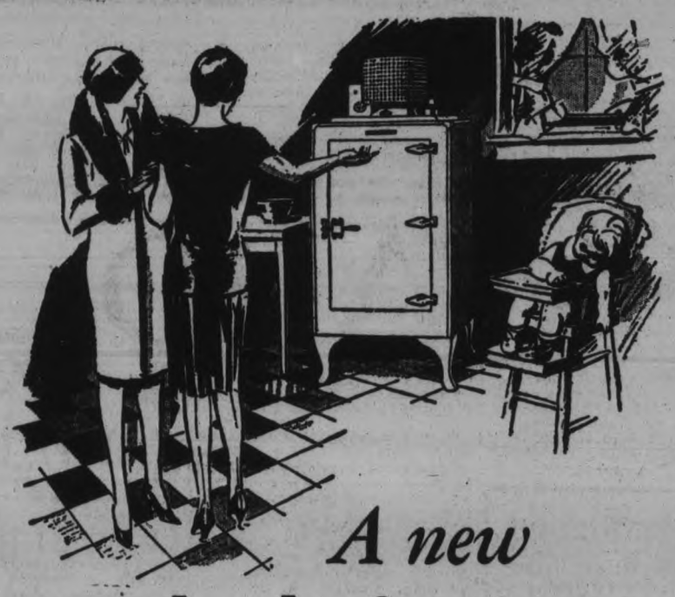
"As a minister of the gospel your church work seemed ever to have first place in your life. You will be missed not only by the older ones but also by the children in whom you took a special interest, and your social intercourse has been most pleasing and helpful in every way.

"We all join in wishing you success in your new field of labor and ask you to accept this gift as a token of good-will and kindest remembrance from your friends at Indian River.

"Signed on behalf of the church and Sunday School."

Rev. Mr. Eikenaar's reply showed his appreciation of being thus remembered, and he also spoke feelingly of the fellowship enjoyed and the support given him while pastor at Indian River.

A dainty lunch was then served, and the evening closed by singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."



A new standard of quietness

One of the things you'll like best about the General Electric Refrigerator is the quietness with which it operates. At a distance of a few feet you can barely hear it. Sometimes you'll wonder if it is running. The motor is automatically turned on whenever the temperature rises a little and stops when the temperature is reduced. Still you are hardly aware when it starts or when it stops.

The mechanism, all contained in an hermetically sealed steel casing, is dirt-proof, so automatic you do not even oil it and placed up on top so that every inch of cabinet space is left free for food storage.

It keeps food always at precisely the right temperature. It freezes an ample supply of ice cubes. Its porcelain finished surface inside is easy to clean. And it is up on legs so that cleaning underneath is easy.

There's a right size for every home. Phone for an illustrated book, then come to our display rooms and examine any model as critically as you wish.

Any General Electric Refrigerator may be placed in your home upon a small down payment.

GOING TOO FAR.

Most people will agree with the Border Cities Star that the speaker who addressed the Fundamental Baptist Young People's Association of Ontario and Quebec a few days ago on the subject of moving pictures is "one of the reasons why a large number of very fine persons do not attend church."

The speaker, Dr. J. W. Gillon, of Shawnee, Oklahoma, is quoted as saying: "No man or woman is fit to be a church member who goes to the movies, and every preacher who goes ought to be turned out of the church and his credentials taken from him."

Statements of that kind do much more harm than good, and speakers who give utterance to such narrow views are a source of weakness to the cause they espouse rather than a bulwark of strength.

There is always a suspicion that speeches of this type are made more with a view to the size of the headlines they may get in the newspapers rather than in the hope that they will be helpful to the hearers.

There are some features of the movies that need attention, but the view that everybody who patronizes this form of entertainment should be banned from church membership is too prejudiced to be seriously ·nsidered.

A GREAT SHOWING.

The Canadian National Railways go on setting up new records that make pleasant reading for the people of this country.

The figures for the month of April are remarkable in the increase they show over the returns for the same month of last year.

The gain in net earnings climbed to the astonishing percentage of 54.05 per cent., the total for April, 1929, being $4,443,180.15, as compared with $2,884,286.08.

An increase of over a million and a half in one month's net earnings is striking enough to attract general attention.

The figures for the first four months of the present calendar year are also decidedly satisfactory, inasmuch as they show an increase in gross earnings this year of almost three million dollars, while the increase in net earnings for the period as compared with the showing during the first four months of 1928 was 14.06 per cent.

Increased economy in operation is evident in these most gratifying returns, which indicate that Canada's National Railways have reached a status that a few years ago would have been regarded as impossible.

MORE PETERBOROUGH VICTORIES.

The success scored in outboard motor races at Toronto and at Frenchman's Bay on Friday and Saturday by Peterborough racing drivers, Peterborough-made boats and Peterborough-built engines will be generally appreciated.

The triumphs registered by Don. Wood and Wes. Kelly show conclusively that when it comes to developing drivers with nerve and skill and building boats capable and standing up to heavy going and making reliable and powerful engines, Peterborough need take second place to no other centre.

This demonstration is the more satisfactory in that the output of local industries had not up to the present received the credit that these products deserved, while the mere idea that there were drivers in an inland town who could successfully compete with the better known sea flea experts living in Toronto had never impressed anybody outside of Peterborough.

Peterborough victories in these competitions have put the city on the sporting map once again, this time in a new line of sporting activity, and the drivers and firms participating in the wins deserve general congratulations.

THE ROTARY CONVENTION.

The growth of the Rotary movement has been effectively illustrated by the attendance at the convention of Rotary International at Dallas, Texas, just concluded, when the representatives of Rotary Clubs in 48 countries and more than 3,000 communities in various parts of the world gathered together.

The outstanding feature of this huge convention has been the stressing of Rotary's sixth object, the fostering of international peace.

The keynote was supplied by President Sutton in his opening speech last Tuesday.

"The world is full of good and friendly people," said the Rotary president. "Wherever a man goes with friendship and love for his fellowmen in his heart, he will find friends and good-will. The peoples of the world, and the statesmen of the world, are now seeking, as never before, for a better way for the settlement of international differences, fostering a world-wide friendship entirely compatible with national patriotism. In this great International movement Rotarians endeavor to take a leading part, recognizing their responsibility as business and professional men of their communities for the advancement of world-wide understanding. If we will to have peace, we shall have peace, and the friendship and esteem of our world neighbors."

It is impossible to believe that such an organization providing for an association of business and professional men throughout the world and for the meeting together of people from 48 different countries can fail in contributing materially to the peace of the world.

A STUDY IN FIGURES.

where people like to do things according to statistics. They can no longer be satisfied with general statements, but the thing must be all put down in exact figures drawn out to the vanishing decimal point.

Just last week a Chicago reporter went about interviewing women who were known to be interesting in dieting. In all he found 100 of them, and admits that his list was far from exhausted. They told him how they had taken off pounds in a simple way, and some even went so far as to say they felt better, while others were not so certain. There was in a few cases even a hidden and faintly-obscured longing for the return of the pounds which had vanished.

Then he went into figures and statistics, and showed that the average weight of these women was 122 pounds, while their former average weight had been 130. It included large folk and those of the smaller variety. A few had gone as much as 160 pounds on the hoof, while others were not much over the 100 mark.

That means that these 100 women combined, losing 8 pounds each, had dropped a total of 800 pounds of womanhood out of the ranks of United States.

Let's see—a pencil and the back of an envelope to figure on shows us that 800 pounds would make 6 17-23 women. Yes, that's right. Six women of 122 pounds each, and 68 pounds left over to start on the next one.

Where have they gone? The thing is rather alarming. If 100 women have shed enough surplus to make 6 17-23 average ladies, what under the sun must be the sum total of all the host of dieting devotees throughout the length and breadth of the United States?—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

BALLOTS, BRUCE AND BANNOCKBURN.

Scotland's part in the political struggle now being waged in Britain has an interest distinguished from that of any other phase of the campaign, and at least one notable feature which seems to have escaped the attention of the newspaper correspondents engaged in covering the elections. We hear of the activities north of the Tweed of the Clydeside "Reds," of the Nationalists shouting for Home Rule, of Prohibitionists running on the temperance ticket, of Protestant Independents warring against Catholicism, of anti-Irish demonstrations and of "Wee Free" propaganda directed against the breaking of the "Sawbath."

In the injection of these ultra-Radical, racial and religious issues into a campaign to decide whether the next Imperial Government shall be Conservative, Liberal or Socialist there is something characteristically Scottish, since, with the exception perhaps of the temperance crusade, they illustrate traits of the Caledonian character which history and tradition have made familiar. But in their appeal to patriotic sentiment and the traditional spirit of the race they derive a special significance from the fact that, almost simultaneously with their determination at the polls, will be celebrated an event of great historical importance, the six hundredth anniversary of the death of the Scottish hero, in whom the independence of the northern kingdom had its birth, and nationalism its genesis.

Early in June of the year 1329 died King Robert the Bruce, famous in history as the liberator of his country from the yoke of England, the conquering hero of Bannockburn and the crusader who by his personal valor, resolute spirit and military genius won for himself a crown and set alight the torch of patriotism that has flamed in Scotland ever since. Celebrations to mark the sixth centenary of his death have been arranged for the end of the present month, so that the marking of election ballots will coincide with orations on Bruce and Bannockburn and perfervid Nationalist candidates will find inspiration in the commemoration of achievements whose glory their cause invokes.

Scots the world over cherish the name of Bruce with a pride which neither the modern debunkers of history, nor the native weepers of Scotia's decadence have attempted to challenge. It is a veneration which owes less to legend than that inspired by Wallace and other mediaeval heroes, for though the popular conception of the monarch, who laid the proud Plantagenet usurper low, is largely based upon the metrical rhapsodies of Barbour and the traditional lore of other patriotic chroniclers, and is colored by the romantic touch of later writers, it is supported and fairly well substantiated by the records that bear the stamp of authentic history.

No doubt the despoilers of the great, who revel in the process of dethroning kings and tumbling heroes from their pedestals, could find much in the story of Bruce to invite depreciation. There were episodes in his life and flaws in his character that might easily lend themselves to destructive criticism. His early associations with the English court, his indecision at the outset of his career, his change of fealty and the series of failures that marked the initial stages of his military leadership could be cited as evidence against him. It could as readily be argued that his aggressive patriotism was not altogether free from personal ambition, and that as a ruler he was more interested in preserving his crown than in improving and strengthening his kingdom. Irreverent biographers and historians might even find food for ridicule in the story of Bruce and the spider, or in the equally moving tale of his compassionate treatment of the poor Irish washerwoman.

But nothing that any critic might write could ever shake the pride of Scotland in one who was her noblest champion of freedom, who delivered her from foreign bondage and her people from an aristocratic oppression, and who in his martial ardor, personal courage, grim perseverance, fervent patriotism and successful leadership embodied many of the most striking qualities of his race. "Through him," declared the Scottish Parliament of 1320, "salvation has been wrought to our people." He had suffered trials and distresses, extremities and perils of every kind to rescue his people from the hands of a despotic usurper. He had fought, "not for glory, wealth or honor, but for liberty." And he gave to the nation he moulded a spirit that was to endure for centuries.

To what extent that spirit survives in Scotland today will be revealed, if not in the votes polled on behalf of the Nationalist cause, at all events in the celebrations that may ironically mark its eclipse while honoring the memory of its most illustrious and successful protagonist.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Peterborough musicians and Peterborough boats and engines are both doing their share in keeping Peterborough on the map.

Ramsay MacDonald says it will be bad for the country should none of the three parties in the British election command a majority of the seats, which is about the most accurate campaign declaration so far heard.

Zulu witch doctor has been using phonograph records as a cure for malaria. We always maintained that there must be some use for the things.

Sunday, June 16, will be a date of national thanksgiving for the recovery of King George. Peterborough should heartily enter into the observation of the occasion.

A Thought

TRIFLES.

Trifles are trifles only to triflers. To the thoughtful they are symptoms of peril, signs of hope, opportunities of love. To ignore trifles is to be ignorant of the spot where decisions are made and destinies determined. Railroads figure, not on dollars and cents, but on fractions of mills; and we have discovered of late that God ploughs and harrows His fields with earthworms, and puts the burden of His creation on beasts that can swarm through the eye of the needle. Awake to the significance of the insignificant for you are in a world that belongs, not alone to God of the infinite, but to the God of the infinitesimal.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE ARE JEALOUS OF PEOPLE WE LOVE.

"Why do we get jealous of the person we are in love with?" This question was recently asked by one of the readers of this column.

No doubt many people are puzzled about their feelings toward those they love. It would seem that if you loved any one enough you would trust him and not be jealous, for jealousy implies doubt and distrust.

The strangest thing about it is that the more intensely you love the more strongly jealous you are likely to be.

In a certain sense, the jealous person is not so much in love with another person as he is in love with himself. This is another way of saying that the more selfish a person is, the more insanely jealous he is likely to be.

Every jealous person is motivated by fear—the fear of losing something. And the value that he places upon this object determines the degree of jealousy that he feels.

This will explain why jealousy is, on the one hand, an indication of deep love and, on the other hand, of no true love at all but merely self love. The true lover is supposed to be interested primarily in the happiness of the person he loves and should therefore be satisfied so long as that person is happy, regardless of whether he wins or loses personally. But as a matter of fact the lover wants the love of the beloved and is unhappy unless his love is returned. He is also made unhappy if someone else gets the love which he thinks belongs to him.

Moreover, this type of loss is more bitterly resented because it is so personal. To lose out in a love affair is a blow at one's personality. It is taken as a personal affront and one's good opinion of oneself suffers accordingly.

Jealousy is the name we give that emotional reaction that a person experiences when he is threatened by the loss of what he prizes very highly.

This is why you are more likely to be jealous of your "steady" than you are of ordinary friends. The person you are in love with is more definitely a part of you and any threat of losing out here comes close home. It is as though your arm or your leg were to be cut off. In fact some people would lose an arm or a leg than lose their "steady".

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

Wednesday, May 29, 1929.
(Copyright McClure Newspaper Syndicate).

Benefic aspects rule to-day, according to astrology, which sees in the horoscope adverse indications, also.

It is pre-eminently a time to study financial problems and to make friends with banks and banking interests.

Under this sway it is wise to adjust one's business affairs and to catch up the loose ends.

By eliminating waste and all that is hampering, even at a decided cost, progress may be assured while this rule prevails, the seers declare.

While the sway may not be so favorable to builders and contractors as they would like it to be, it is believed to favor land tenure and tenancies.

This should be an exceedingly lucky rule for all who seek employment. There is an especially promising sign for real estate offices.

Students again are subject to stimulating and promising planetary conditions which seem to presage for well trained minds and hands just the right opportunities.

While this configuration prevails, the aged may be captious and inclined to find fault with the progress they can not understand. The young should be patient.

Washington, D. C., now comes under a sway of the planets making for removals and changes in public buildings.

Ancient places as well as traditions must vanish under this rule of the stars which makes for efficiency rather than historic romance.

This is a day when it is possible to find among persons who exercise authority kindly help and personal interest. Even those who present letters of introduction may expect consideration.

Persons whose birthdate it is, have the augury of many changes to get into law suits in the coming year. They should avoid litigation and whatever seems to lead to it.

Children born on this day, probably will be lucky all through life in finding opportunities to attain success. The subjects of this sign may be too much inclined to resent fancied injuries and to quarrel on slight provocation.

Patrick Henry, Statesman, was born on this date, 1736.

The Tule Marsh Murder

By NANCY BARR MAVITY

Story of a Missing Actress and the Taxing of Wits to Explain Her Fate

THE STORY THUS FAR.

Sheila O'Shsy, formerly a popular actress, and now the wife of the young multi-millionaire Don Ellsworth, disappears, leaving no trace behind her. Don visits Dr. Cavanaugh, the famous criminologist and confesses that his married life has been very unhappy. Dr. Cavanaugh agrees to investigate the case.

CHAPTER 4.

"Piper!" The city's editors raucous voice rose above the clack of typewriters and the murmured exchange of jokes in the "Herald" local room.

"Peter" Piper untangled his legs from the rounds of his chair, caught up a sheet of copy paper and a pencil, and ambled over to the city desk.

"I want to get a 'follow' story on the Ellsworth case."

"Anything new?"

"There isn't anything new. That's the trouble. We've got to nurse it along till there is. It may blow up any time, of course, but its' a great story while it lasts. And it's still lasting."

The city editor, who on dull days was a man to avoid like a violent and insufficiently caged animal at the zoo, was content as a cat in a bed of catnip when a "big story" broke.

"Peter" Piper's long, mobile face, which had drooped disconsolately over his typewriter, was slit by a wide grin.

"What's the dope?" he asked, his bright, near-sighted eyes waking up from a bored contemplation of the bulletin board.

"Here are the clippings on the husband. We've used all that stuff, of course. But he'll bear watching. He's not telling all he knows, not by a damn sight. See if you can get anything on him. Meanwhile, you might go out and see if you can get an interview with Cavanaugh."

"Cavanaugh! I didn't know he was in on this."

"He isn't—not yet. But he's likely to be. When the police are in doubt—and they seem to be in quite considerable doubt this trip—they always play Cavanaugh. Besides, he's good stuff any time. Get him on the psychology of why wives leave home, or something like that."

"Peter" blinked—an exaggerated blink which conveyed a decidedly adverse opinion of the reasonableness of city editors.

"Hells bells, Jimmy!" he protested. "Cavanaugh's about as easy to interview as the Dalai Lama. He charges forty dollars a look—by appointment only—and then if he doesn't like your looks, good night!" Peter Piper was a student of law in his off hours, and was entitled to wear—though he never did—a Phi Beta Kappa Key, but his office vocabulary was strictly in the vernacular

"Now don't go off thinking you can't get an interview with Cavanaugh. Because I know you will. Here, take these." The city editor thrust a sheaf of clippings from the office library, each one pasted on a strip of colored paper, into "Perer's" hands, and turned to the telephone.

"Lord, what an assignment!" Peter groaned aloud. The groan was entirely spurious, because the stimulus of doing difficult things was the wine of life to him. Like all reporters, he affected to be blase and cynical, and like many of them, though he would never commit the outsider's solecism of calling newspaper work a "game" it really was a game to him, played with immense and carefully concealed gusto.

By the time he had emerged from the locker room, with a soft gray hat, its crown shapeless and its brim a series of irregular ripples from exposure to many rains on his head, he was whistling under his breath. What tune there was to this musical performance consisted of two phrases, endlessly reiterated, in a lugubrious, monotonous minor calculated to make the human listener long to lift his nose and howl.

"Put it out!" growled the water-front man, whose desk adjoined "Peter's" Peter stopped whistling long enough to grin, then absent-mindedly resumed his wailing cadence at the precise note where he had left off. He tossed all the clippings but one into a drawer, which already contained carbon paper, cigarettes, a torn bag of peppermints, an assortment of very soft black "copy" pencils, and an upset box of paperclips. The remaining clipping he thrust into his coat pocket, which already bulged with several sheets of folded copy paper.

"You'll emit that series of sounds once too often some day," the water-front man said, "and there'll be another ax murder. 'Crazed reporter slays mate.' What's the good cheer?"

"Oh, one of Jimmy's wild goose chases. Nothing to it. It's bound to be a flop. If Jimmy got the idea that there was a cheesemonger's convention being held in the moon, he'd send some poor devil of a reporter out to cover it—and by heck, he'd get so firmly fixed in the idea that he mustn't come back without the story that the chances are, he'd get there!"

Nevertheless, Peter was cheerful.

"Hoo-oo-oo, hu-hu-hu-hoo." The wailing notes were cut short by his efforts to dodge a wadded piece of copy paper hurled after him by the water-front man. He ducked with exaggerated alacrity, and made a hasty exit into the library.

Say", Ben, dig up what we've got on this bird." He thrust the clipping which he had brought from the local room into the hand of the library attendant. "The society department must have run a picture at some time or other. If not, of what earthly use are they, I ask it?"

A few minutes later he had recrossed the local room, still whistling, and slammed the door behind him. He angled his battered car out of the "Herald's" parking lot and favored the watchman with a hoarse honk of greeting. Peter called his car "Bossy" because he explained, it had a crumpled horn like the cow in "The House that Jack Built." It also had four crumpled fenders whose waves and dents were only to be matched by the waves and dents in Peter's hat. It was painted bright green, and there were two bullet holes in the side curtains, relics of Peter's rather too prompt arrival onthe scene of a shooting fray between the police and a fugitive holdup man. Peter would not have exchanged it in even trade for a next year's model Rolls-Royce

Twenty minutes later he parked hastily, with a shriek of brakes, opposite the house of Dr. Cavanaugh. The haste was due to the fact that a small sport coupe, very shiny as to nickel trimming, was at the moment drawing up at the Cavanaugh entrance. Peter's long legs swung over the door, whose catch had a habit of sticking, and by the time the girl shut in the sport coupe had alighted and clicked the door shut behind her, he was standing on the sidewalk beside her, hat in hand.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

THIS BOUQUET.

When all is well and all is gay
You will not lack for love 's bouquet.
It always seems in happy hours
They always bring us all our flow'rs.
But if by chance the crow should leave
And if by chance your soul should grieve,
Ah, then for that dark day of thine
I send you this bouquet of mine.

It isn't much—a single rose,
But only in the heart it grows.
It isn't much—a leaf or two,
But still as bright, as green, as true.
And in one dear, remembered spot
I gathered one forget-me-not.
Now, fastened with a deathless vine,
I send you this bouquet of mine.

I pray your skies are always bright,
Your world a heaven of delight,
But if a cloud should fret your sky,
Or if new friends shall pass you by,
If all the flow'rs they bring you now
Shall fade, the way they do somehow,
For that dark day, if such be thine,
I send you this bouquet of mine.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND SUSIE'S SWING.

(Copyright, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Go on, Susie! Tell us!" barked Jackie Bow Wow, the little puppy dog boy one day as Uncle Wiggily watched the animal children coming from the Hollow Stump School.

"Nope!" answered Susie Littletail, the rabbit girl, "I'm not going to tell you! It's a secret!"

"You'll tell me; won't you, Susie, cause I gave you some strumberry jam; didn't I!" and Jimmie Wibblewobble, the duck boy, waggled his feathery tail in a funny way.

"Yes, Jimmie, you gave me some jam and I thanked you for it," said Susie. "But I can't tell you about this cause it's a secret with me and Nannie Wagtail."

"Well, here comes Nannie's brother Billie," said Peetie, who was a brother to Jackie Bow Wow. He pointed to a little boy goat who was prancing along the path, butting sunbeams with his horns. "If Billie says it's all right will you tell us Susie? 'Cause he'll make it all right with Nannie."

"No!" exclaimed Susie. "I'm not going to tell you boys anything about it. Nannie and I have a secret and we're going to keep it."

"Oh, go on, Susie! Tell us where it is!" bleated Billie. "I asked my sister and she said it was all right for you to tell, if you wanted to. Go on—tell us! I'll let you look at my horn where I scratched it against a barbed wire fence if you tell us."

"Pooh! As if I cared to see a scratched goat's horn!" laughed Susie. "No, I'm not going to tell you where it is!"

Uncle Wiggily saw Billie, Jackie and Peetie whisper together as they followed the rabbit girl along the woodland path.

"I wonder what sort of a secret Susie has that she won't tell her boy school chums?" thought Uncle Wiggily, who was among the trees where he could not easily be seen. The next moment he learned, for Billie, the goat suddenly bleated:

"Go on, Susie! Tell us where you and Nannie have a wild grape vine swing in the woods and I'll stand on my horns for you!"

"Will you, really?" asked Susie for she loved circus tricks and Billie could do two or three. "Honest, Nillie?"

"Sure!" bleated the boy goat. "Tell us where you and Nannie found that grape vine swing in the woods."

"And if you let us swing in it," went on Jackie, "I'll turn a front somersault for you!"

"I'll turn a back somersault!" barked the other puppy.

"Oh, how lovely!" exclaimed Susie. "Three circus tricks! Well, go on, boys and after you do them I'll tell you where Nannie and I found a wonderful swing in the woods."

So this was the secret which Jackie Peetie and Billie had been teasing Susie to tell. Uncle Wiggily had found out by listening.

"And now to see what happens next!" chuckled the old rabbit gentleman.

"Look, Susie!" suddenly bleated Billie his horns. Susie clapped her paws. Then Jackie turned a front somersault and his brother Peetie turned a back somersault and then Susie Clapped her paws again at these jolly circus tricks and said:

"Come with me, boys, and I'll show you the swing Nannie and I found."

Uncle Wiggily, without being seen, followed the animal children along through the woods until, pretty soon, they reached a dingly dell, which is a pretty little mossy green hollow among a clump of trees. And there, hanging between two trees, was a long strand of wild grape vine that made a wonderful swing.

"Say, this is swell!" bleated Billie wiggling his horns.

"Best swing I ever saw!" barked Jackie.

"Come on, we'll take turns!" whined Peetie.

"No!" bleated the goat. "Susie must have the first swing 'cause she and Nannie found it. If Nannie were here she could swing before we fellows took our turns. But, anyhow, Susie goes first!"

"Sure! Susie first!"barked Jackie and Peeties. So Susie took her seat in the grape vine swing and the animal boys took turns in pushing her until, at last, Susie swung so high that Billie could run right beneath her as he sent her up in the air.

But, all of a sudden, something happened. For the swing, with Susie in it, caught on a high tree branch and didn't come down! There Susie was, stuck up in the air.

"Oh!" she cried. "Oh, dear!" She was frightened and so were the animal boys. But Uncle Wiggily jumped out of the bushes and said:

"Don't be afraid! I'll get Jacko Kinkytail, the monkey boy and he will save you, Susie!" So Jacko climbed up the tree like a sailor, loosed the swing from where it was caught and down came Susie safely.

Then she let the animal boys have turns on her swing and they like it very much.

ANTS HELP TRACE ORE VEINS

Now the humble ant comes to the aid of the prospector. How geologists may well pause in their surveying to examine ant hills for desired minerals is described in a report of W. D. Johnston, Jr., of the U. S. Geological Survey. In Popular Science Monthly he tells of a recent attempt to map a valuable vein containing iron and manganese ore in the Little Florida Mountains near Deming, New Mexico. Several test pits had disclosed the vein, but its course lay concealed. As a last resort Johnston examined ant hills in the vicinity and tested the sand of which they were built. One hill proved to contain as much as 22 per cent. of the desired ores—and beneath it lay the hidden vein.

LITHIUM DEPOSITS IN MANITOBA.

The only locality at which lithium ores have been produced in Canada, Winnipeg, Manitoba. Outside of occurrences of mineralogical interest only, there is only one district in Canada in which lithium minerals are know nto occur, namely Wakefield township, Quebec.

GOING TOO FAR.

Most people will agree with the Border Cities Star that the speaker who addressed the Fundamental Baptist Young People's Association of Ontario and Quebec a few days ago on the subject of moving pictures is "one of the reasons why a large number of very fine persons do not attend church."

The speaker, Dr. J. W. Gillon, of Shawnee, Oklahoma, is quoted as saying: "No man or woman is fit to be a church member who goes to the movies, and every preacher who goes ought to be turned out of the church and his credentials taken from him."

Statements of that kind do much more harm than good, and speakers who give utterance to such narrow views are a source of weakness to the cause they espouse rather than a bulwark of strength.

There is always a suspicion that speeches of this type are made more with a view to the size of the headlines they may get in the newspapers rather than in the hope that they will be helpful to the hearers.

There are some features of the movies that need attention, but the view that everybody who patronizes this form of entertainment should be banned from church membership is too prejudiced to be seriously considered.

A GREAT SHOWING.

The Canadian National Railways go on setting up new records that make pleasant reading for the people of this country.

The figures for the month of April are remarkable in the increase they show over the returns for the same month of last year.

The gain in net earnings climbed to the astonishing percentage of 54.05 per cent., the total for April, 1929, being $4,443,180.15, as compared with $2,884,286.08.

An increase of over a million and a half in one month's net earnings is striking enough to attract general attention.

The figures for the first four months of the present calendar year are also decidedly satisfactory, inasmuch as they show an increase in gross earnings this year of almost three million dollars, while the increase in net earnings for the period as compared with the showing during the first four months of 1928 was 14.06 per cent.

Increased economy in operation is evident in these most gratifying returns, which indicate that Canada's National Railways have reached a status that a few years ago would have been regarded as impossible.

MORE PETERBOROUGH VICTORIES.

The success scored in outboard motor races at Toronto and at Frenchman's Bay on Friday and Saturday by Peterborough racing drivers, Peterborough-made boats and Peterborough-built engines will be generally appreciated.

The triumphs registered by Don. Wood and Wes. Kelly show conclusively that when it comes to developing drivers with nerve and skill and building boats capable and standing up to heavy going and making reliable and powerful engines, Peterborough need take second place to no other centre.

This demonstration is the more satisfactory in that the output of local industries had not up to the present received the credit that these products deserved, while the mere idea that there were drivers in an inland town who could successfully compete with the better known sea flea experts living in Toronto had never impressed anybody outside of Peterborough.

Peterborough victories in these competitions have put the city on the sporting map once again, this time in a new line of sporting activity, and the drivers and firms participating in the wins deserve general congratulations.

THE ROTARY CONVENTION.

The growth of the Rotary movement has been effectively illustrated by the attendance at the convention of Rotary International at Dallas, Texas, just concluded, when the representatives of Rotary Clubs in 48 countries and more than 3,000 communities in various parts of the world gathered together.

The outstanding feature of this huge convention has been the stressing of Rotary's sixth object, the fostering of international peace.

The keynote was supplied by President Sutton in his opening speech last Tuesday.

"The world is full of good and friendly people," said the Rotary president. "Wherever a man goes with friendship and love for his fellowmen in his heart, he will find friends and good-will. The peoples of the world, and the statesmen of the world, are now seeking, as never before, for a better way for the settlement of international differences, fostering a world-wide friendship entirely compatible with national patriotism. In this great international movement Rotarians endeavor to take a leading part, recognizing their responsibility as business and professional men of their communities for the advancement of world-wide understanding. If we will to have peace, we shall have peace, and the friendship and esteem of our world neighbors."

It is impossible to believe that such an organization providing for an association of business and professional men throughout the world and for the meeting together of people from 48 different countries can fail in contributing materially to the peace of the world.

A STUDY IN FIGURES.

Some people like to do things according to statistics. They can no longer be satisfied with general statements, but the thing must be all put down in exact figures drawn out to the vanishing decimal point.

Just last week a Chicago reporter went about interviewing women who were known to be interesting in character. In all he found 100 of them, and admits that his list was far from exhausted. They told him how they had taken off pounds in a simple way, and some even went so far as to say they felt better, while others were not so certain. There was in a few cases even a hidden and faintly-obscured longing for the return of the pounds which had vanished.

Then he went into figures and statistics, and showed that the average weight of these women was 122 pounds, while their former average weight had been 130. It included large folk and those of the smaller variety. A few had gone as much as 160 pounds on the hoof, while others were not much over the 100 mark.

That means that these 100 women combined, losing 8 pounds each, had dropped a total of 800 pounds of womanhood out of the ranks of United States.

Let's see—a pencil and the back of an envelope to figure on shows us that 800 pounds would make 6 17-23 women. Yes, that's right. Six women of 122 pounds each, and 68 pounds left over to start on the next one.

Where have they gone? The thing is rather alarming. If 100 women have shed enough surplus to make 6 17-23 average ladies, what under the sun must be the sum total of all the host of dieting devotees throughout the length and breadth of the United States?—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

BALLOTS, BRUCE AND BANNOCKBURN.

Scotland's part in the political struggle now being waged in Britain has an interest distinguished from that of any other phase of the campaign, and at least one notable feature which seems to have escaped the attention of the newspaper correspondents engaged in covering the elections. We hear of the activities north of the Tweed of the Clydeside "Reds," of the Nationalists shouting for Home Rule, of Prohibitionists running on the temperance ticket, of Protestant Independents warring against Catholicism, of anti-Irish demonstrations and of "Wee Free" propaganda directed against the breaking of the "Sawbath."

In the injection of these ultra-Radical, racial and religious issues into a campaign to decide whether the next Imperial Government shall be Conservative, Liberal or Socialist there is something characteristically Scottish, since, with the exception perhaps of the temperance crusade, they illustrate traits of the Caledonian character which history and tradition have made familiar. But in their appeal to patriotic sentiment and the traditional spirit of the race they derive a special significance from the fact that, almost simultaneously with their determination at the polls, will be celebrated an event of great historical importance, the six hundredth anniversary of the death of the Scottish hero, in whom the independence of the northern kingdom had its birth, and nationalism its genesis.

Early in June of the year 1329 died King Robert the Bruce, famous in history as the liberator of his country from the yoke of England, the conquering hero of Bannockburn and the crusader who by his personal valor, resolute spirit and military genius won for himself a crown and set alight the torch of patriotism that has flamed in Scotland ever since. Celebrations to mark the sixth centenary of his death have been arranged for the end of the present month, so that the marking of election ballots will coincide with orations on Bruce and Bannockburn and perfervid Nationalist candidates will find inspiration in the commemoration of achievements whose glory their cause invokes.

Scots the world over cherish the name of Bruce with a pride which neither the modern debunkers of history, nor the native weepers of Scotia's decadence have attempted to challenge. It is a veneration which owes less to legend than that inspired by Wallace and other mediaeval heroes, for though the popular conception of the monarch, who laid the proud Plantagenet usurper low, is largely based upon the metrical rhapsodies of Barbour and the traditional lore of other patriotic chroniclers, and is colored by the romantic touch of later writers, it is supported and fairly well substantiated by the records that bear the stamp of authentic history.

No doubt the despoilers of the great, who revel in the process of dethroning kings and tumbling heroes from their pedestals, could find much in the story of Bruce to invite depreciation. There were episodes in his life and flaws in his character that might easily lend themselves to destructive criticism. His early associations with the English court, his indecision at the outset of his career, his change of fealty and the series of failures that marked the initial stages of his military leadership could be cited as evidence against him. It could as readily be argued that his aggressive patriotism was not altogether free from personal ambition, and that as a ruler he was more interested in preserving his crown than in improving and strengthening his kingdom. Irreverent biographers and historians might even find food for ridicule in the story of Bruce and the spider, or in the equally moving tale of his compassionate treatment of the poor Irish washerwoman.

But nothing that any critic might write could ever shake the pride of Scotland in one who was her noblest champion of freedom, who delivered her from foreign bondage and her people from an aristocratic oppression, and who in his martial ardor, personal courage, grim perseverance, fervent patriotism and successful leadership embodied many of the most striking qualities of his race. "Through him," declared the Scottish Parliament of 1320, "salvation has been wrought to our people." He had suffered trials and distresses, extremities and perils of every kind to rescue his people from the hands of a despotic usurper. He had fought, "not for glory, wealth or honor, but for liberty." And he gave to the nation he moulded a spirit that was to endure for centuries.

To what extent that spirit survives in Scotland today will be revealed, if not in the votes polled on behalf of the Nationalist cause, at all events in the celebrations that may ironically mark its eclipse while honoring the memory of its most illustrious and successful protagonist.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Peterborough musicians and Peterborough boats and engines are both doing their share in keeping Peterborough on the map.

Ramsay MacDonald says it will be bad for the country should none of the three parties in the British election command a majority of the seats, which is about the most accurate campaign declaration so far heard.

Zulu witch doctor has been using phonograph records as a cure for malaria. We always maintained that there must be one use for the things.

Sunday, June 16, will be a date of national thanksgiving for the recovery of King George. Peterborough should heartily enter into the observation of the occasion.

A Thought

TRIFLES.

Trifles are trifles only to triflers. To the thoughtful they are symptoms of peril signs of hope, opportunities of love. To ignore trifles is to be ignorant of the spot where decisions are made and destinies determined. Railroads figure, not on dollars and cents, but on fractions of mills; and we have discovered of late that God ploughs and harrows His fields with earthworms, and puts the burden of His creation on beasts that can swarm through the eye of the needle. Awake to the significance of the insignificant for you are in a world that belongs, not alone to God of the infinite, but to the God of the infinitesimal.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE ARE JEALOUS OF PEOPLE WE LOVE.

"Why do we get jealous of the person we are in love with?" This question was recently asked by one of the readers of this column.

No doubt many people are puzzled about their feelings toward those they love. It would seem that if you loved any one enough you would trust him and not be jealous, for jealousy implies doubt and distrust.

The strangest thing about it is that the more intensely you love the more strongly jealous you are likely to be.

In a certain sense, the jealous person is not so much in love with another person as he is in love with himself. This is another way of saying that the more selfish a person is, the more insanely jealous he is likely to be.

Every jealous person is motivated by fear—the fear of losing something. And the value that he places upon this object determines the degree of jealousy that he feels.

This will explain why jealousy is, on the one hand, an indication of deep love and, on the other hand, of no true love at all but merely self love. The true lover is supposed to be interested primarily in the happiness of the person he loves and should therefore be satisfied so long as that person is happy, regardless of whether he wins or loses personally. But as a matter of fact the lover wants the love of the beloved and is unhappy unless his love is returned. He is also made unhappy if someone else gets the love which he thinks belongs to him.

Moreover, this type of loss is more bitterly resented because it is so personal. To lose out in a love affair is a blow at one's personality. It is taken as a personal affront and one's good opinion of oneself suffers accordingly.

Jealousy is the name we give that emotional reaction that a person experiences when he is threatened by the loss of what he prizes very highly.

This is why you are more likely to be jealous of your "steady" than you are of ordinary friends. The person you are in love with is more definitely a part of you and any threat of losing out here comes close home. It is as though your arm or your leg were to be cut off. In fact some people would lose an arm or a leg than lose their "steady".

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

Wednesday, May 29, 1929.
(Copyright McClure Newspaper Syndicate).

Benefic aspects rule to-day, according to astrology, which sees in the horoscope adverse indications, also.

It is pre-eminently a time to study financial problems and to make friends with banks and banking interests.

Under this sway it is wise to adjust one's business affairs and to catch up the loose ends.

By eliminating waste and all that is hampering, even at a decided cost, progress may be assured while this rule prevails, the seers declare.

While the sway may not be so favorable to builders and contractors as they would like it to be, it is believed to favor land tenure and tenancies.

This should be an exceedingly lucky rule for all who seek employment. There is an especially promising sign for real estate offices.

Students again are subject to stimulating and promising planetary conditions which seem to presage for well trained minds and hands just the right opportunities.

While this configuration prevails, the aged may be captious and inclined to find fault with the progress they can not understand. The young should be patient.

Washington, D. C., now comes under a sway of the planets making for removals and changes in public buildings.

Ancient places as well as traditions must vanish under this rule of the stars which makes for efficiency rather than historic romance.

This is a day when it is possible to find among persons who exercise authority kindly help and personal interest. Even those who present letters of introduction may expect consideration.

Persons whose birthdate it is, have the augury of many changes to get into law suits in the coming year. They should avoid litigation and whatever seems to lead to it.

Children born on this day, probably will be lucky all through life in finding opportunities to attain success. The subjects of this sign may be too much inclined to resent fancied injuries and to quarrel on slight provocation.

Patrick Henry, Statesman, was born on this date, 1736.

The Tule Marsh Murder

By NANCY BARR MAVITY

Story of a Missing Actress and the Taxing of Wits to Explain Her Fate

THE STORY THUS FAR.

Sheila O'Shsy, formerly a popular actress, and now the wife of the young multi-millionaire Don Ellsworth, disappears, leaving no trace behind her. Don visits Dr. Cavanaugh, the famous criminologist and confesses that his married life has been very unhappy. Dr. Cavanaugh agrees to investigate the case.

CHAPTER 4.

"Piper!" The city's editors raucous voice rose above the clack of typewriters and the murmured exchange of jokes in the "Herald" local room.

"Peter" Piper untangled his legs from the rounds of his chair, caught up a sheet of copy paper and a pencil, and ambled over to the city desk.

"I want to get a 'follow' story on the Ellsworth case."

"Anything new?"

"There isn't anything new. That's the trouble. We've got to nurse it along till there is. It may blow up any time, of course, but its a great story while it lasts. And it's still lasting."

The city editor, who on dull days was a man to avoid like a violent and insufficiently caged animal at the zoo, was content as a cat in a bed of catnip when a "big story" broke.

"Peter" Piper's long, mobile face, which had drooped disconsolately over his typewriter, was slit by a wide grin. "What's the dope?" he asked, his bright, near-sighted eyes waking up from a bored contemplation of the bulletin board.

"Here are the clippings on the husband. We've used all that stuff, of course. But he'll bear watching. He's not telling all he knows, not by a damn sight. See if you can get anything on him. Meanwhile, you might go out and see if you can get an interview with Cavanaugh."

"Cavanaugh! I didn't know he was in on this."

"He isn't—not yet. But he's likely to be. When the police are in doubt—and they seem to be in quite considerable doubt this trip—they always play Cavanaugh. Besides, he's good stuff any time. Get him on the psychology of why wives leave home, or something like that."

"Peter" blinked—an exaggerated blink which conveyed a decidedly adverse opinion of the reasonableness of city editors.

"Hells bells, Jimmy!" he protested. "Cavanaugh's about as easy to interview as the Dalai Lama. He charges forty dollars a look—by appointment only—and then if he doesn't like your looks, good night!" Peter Piper was a student of law in his off hours, and was entitled to wear—though he never did—a Phi Beta Kappa Key, but his office vocabulary was strictly in the vernacular.

"Now don't go off thinking you can't get an interview with Cavanaugh. Because I know you will. Here, take these." The city editor thrust a sheaf of clippings from the office library, each one pasted on a strip of colored paper, into "Perer's" hands, and turned to the telephone.

"Lord, what an assignment!" Peter groaned aloud. The groan was entirely spurious, because the stimulus of doing difficult things was the wine of life to him. Like all reporters, he affected to be blase and cynical, and like many of them, though he would never commit the outsider's solecism of calling newspaper work a "game" it really was a game to him, played with immense and carefully concealed gusto.

By the time he had emerged from the locker room, with a soft gray hat, its crown shapeless and its brim a series of irregular ripples from exposure to many rains on his head, he was whistling under his breath. What tune there was to this musical performance consisted of two phrases, endlessly reiterated, in a lugubrious, monotonous minor calculated to make the human listener long to lift his nose and howl.

"Put it out!" growled the water-front man, whose desk adjoined "Peter's" Peter stopped whistling long enough to grin, then absent-mindedly resumed his wailing cadence at the precise note where he had left off. He tossed all the clippings but one into a drawer, which already contained carbon paper, cigarettes, a torn bag of peppermints, an assortment of very soft black "copy" pencils, and an upset box of paperclips. The remaining clipping he thrust into his coat pocket, which already bulged with several sheets of folded copy paper.

"You'll emit that series of sounds once too often some day," the water-front man said, "and there'll be another ax murder. 'Crazed reporter slays mate.' What's the good cheer?"

"Oh, one of Jimmy's wild goose chases. Nothing to it. It's bound to be a flop. If Jimmy got the idea that there was a cheesemonger's convention being held in the moon, he'd send some poor devil of a reporter out to cover it—and by heck, he'd get so firmly fixed in the idea that he mustn't come back without the story that the chances are, he'd get there!"

Nevertheless, Peter was cheerful.

"Hoo-oo-oo, hu-hu-hu-hoo." The wailing notes were cut short by his efforts to dodge a wadded piece of copy paper hurled after him by the water-front man. He ducked with exaggerated alacrity, and made a hasty exit into the library.

Say", Ben, dig up what we've got on this bird." He thrust the clipping which he had brought from the local room into the hand of the library attendant. "The society department must have run a picture at some time or other. If not, of what earthly use are they, I ask it?"

A few minutes later he had recrossed the local room, still whistling, and slammed the door behind him. He angled his battered car out of the "Herald's" parking lot and favored the watchman with a hoarse honk of greeting. Peter called his car "Bossy", because he explained, it had a crumpled horn like the cow in "The House that Jack Built." It also had four crumpled fenders whose waves and dents were only to be matched by the waves and dents in Peter's hat. It was painted bright green, and there were two bullet holes in the side curtains, relics of Peter's rather too prompt arrival onthe scene of a shooting fray between the police and a fugitive holdup man. Peter would not have exchanged it in even trade for a next year's model Rolls-Royce.

Twenty minutes later he parked hastily, with a shriek of brakes, opposite the house of Dr. Cavanaugh. The haste was due to the fact that a small sport coupe, very shiny as to nickel trimming, was at the moment drawing up at the Cavanaugh entrance. Peter's long legs swung over the door, whose catch had a habit of sticking, and by the time the girl shut in the sport coupe had alighted and clicked the door shut behind her, he was standing on the sidewalk beside her, hat in hand.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

THIS BOUQUET.

When all is well and all is gay
You will not lack for love 's bouquet.
It always seems in happy hours
They always bring us all our flow'rs.
But if by chance the crow should leave
And if by chance your soul should grieve,
Ah, then for that dark day of thine
I send you this bouquet of mine.

It isn't much—a single rose,
But only in the heart it grows.
It isn't much—a leaf or two,
But still as bright, as green, as true.
And in one dear, remembered spot
I gathered one forget-me-not.
Now, fastened with a deathless vine,
I send you this bouquet of mine.

I pray your skies are always bright,
Your world a heaven of delight,
But if a cloud should fret your sky,
Or if new friends shall pass you by,
If all the flow'rs they bring you now
Shall fade, the way they do somehow,
For that dark day, if such be thine,
I send you this bouquet of mine.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND SUSIE'S SWING.

(Copyright, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Go on, Susie! Tell us!" barked Jackie Bow Wow, the little puppy dog boy one day as Uncle Wiggily watched the animal children coming from the Hollow Stump School.

"Nope!" answered Susie Littletail, the rabbit girl, "I'm not going to tell you! It's a secret!"

"You'll tell me; won't you, Susie, cause I gave you some strumberry jam; didn't I!" and Jimmie Wibblewobble, the duck boy, waggled his feathery tail in a funny way.

"Yes, Jimmie, you gave me some jam and I thanked you for it," said Susie. "But I can't tell you about this cause it's a secret with me and Nannie Wagtail."

"Well, here comes Nannie's brother Billie," said Peetie, who was a brother to Jackie Bow Wow. He pointed to a little boy goat who was prancing along the path, butting sunbeams with his horns. "If Billie says it's all right will you tell us Susie? 'Cause he'll make it all right with Nannie."

"No!" exclaimed Susie. "I'm not going to tell you boys anything about it. Nannie and I have a secret and we're going to keep it."

"Oh, go on, Susie! Tell us where it is!" bleated Billie. "I asked my sister and she said it was all right for you to tell, if you wanted to. Go on—tell us! I'll let you look at my horn where I scratched it against a barbed wire fence if you tell us."

"Pooh! As if I cared to see a scratched goat's horn!" laughed Susie. "No, I'm not going to tell you where it is!"

Uncle Wiggily saw Billie, Jackie and Peetie whisper together as they followed the rabbit girl along the woodland path.

"I wonder what sort of a secret Susie has that she won't tell her boy school chums?" thought Uncle Wiggily, who was among the trees where he could not easily be seen. The next moment he learned, for Billie, the goat suddenly bleated:

"Go on, Susie! Tell us where you and Nannie have a wild grape vine swing in the woods and I'll stand on my horns for you!"

"Will you, really?" asked Susie for she loved circus tricks and Billie could do two or three. "Honest, Nillie?"

"Sure!" bleated the boy goat. "Tell us where you and Nannie found that grape vine swing in the woods."

"And if you let us swing in it," went on Jackie, "I'll turn a front somersault for you!"

"I'll turn a back somersault!" barked the other puppy.

"Oh, how lovely!" exclaimed Susie. "Three circus tricks! Well, go on, boys and after you do them I'll tell you where Nannie and I found a wonderful swing in the woods."

So this was the secret which Jackie Peetie and Billie had been teasing Susie to tell. Uncle Wiggily had found out by listening.

"And now to see what happens next!" chuckled the old rabbit gentleman.

"Look, Susie!" suddenly bleated Billie his horns. Susie clapped her paws. Then Jackie turned a front somersault and his brother Peetie turned a back somersault and then Susie Clapped her paws again at these jolly circus tricks and said:

"Come with me, boys, and I'll show you the swing Nannie and I found."

Uncle Wiggily, without being seen, followed the animal children along through the woods until, pretty soon, they reached a dingly dell, which is a pretty little mossy green hollow among a clump of trees. And there, hanging between two trees, was a long strand of wild grape vine that made a wonderful swing.

"Say, this is swell!" bleated Billie wiggling his horns.

"Best swing I ever saw!" barked Jackie.

"Come on, we'll take turns!" whined Peetie.

"No!" bleated the goat. "Susie must have the first swing 'cause she and Nannie found it. If Nannie were here she could swing before we fellows took our turns. But, anyhow, Susie goes first!"

"Sure! Susie first!" barked Jackie and Peetie. So Susie took her seat in the grape vine swing and the animal boys took turns in pushing her until, at last, Susie swung so high that Billie could run right beneath her as he sent her up in the air.

But, all of a sudden, something happened. For the swing, with Susie in it, caught on a high tree branch and didn't come down! There Susie was, stuck up in the air.

"Oh!" she cried. "Oh, dear!" She was frightened and so were the animal boys. But Uncle Wiggily jumped out of the bushes and said:

"Don't be afraid! I'll get Jacko Kinkytail, the monkey boy and he will save you, Susie!" So Jacko climbed up the tree like a sailor, loosed the swing from where it was caught and down came Susie safely.

Then she let the animal boys have turns on her swing and they like it very much.

ANTS HELP TRACE ORE VEINS

Now the humble ant comes to the aid of the prospector. How geologists may well pause in their surveying to examine ant hills for desired minerals is described in a report of W. D. Johnston, Jr., of the U. S. Geological Survey. In Popular Science Monthly he tells of a recent attempt to map a valuable vein containing iron and manganese ore in the Little Florida Mountains near Deming, New Mexico. Several test pits had disclosed the vein, but its course lay concealed. As a last resort Johnston examined ant hills in the vicinity and tested the sand of which they were built. One hill proved to contain as much as 22 per cent. of the desired ores—and beneath it lay the hidden vein.

LITHIUM DEPOSITS IN MANITOBA.

The only locality at which lithium ores have been produced in Canada, Winnipeg, Manitoba. Outside of occurrences of mineralogical interest only, there is only one district in Canada in which lithium minerals are know nto occur, namely Wakefield township, Quebec.

NEWS FROM THE MINES

Solloway, Mills & Company Through

NORANDA

Since smelter was restarted after breakdown a much higher grade of ore is being run at Noranda. Mine feed is running around 12 per cent and the concentrates around 16 per cent. Naturally this means a good increase of blister copper being poured.

GRANADA

The 625 level at Granada is looking particularly good. Since No. 2 vein was picked up past the fault over 100 feet of ore has been drifted on. Much visible gold in evidence. Management believe that this hundred-odd foot length will run extremely high grade. Impossible to give a correct assay as one channel sample would run into high figures and the next a few inches away would just run traces.

AMULET

Diamond drilling has been stopped in the area south of shaft, close to Area claim, drill not having struck anything. Drilling has started a few hundred feet north of shaft. Drill working near White line did not get anything in first hole and has been moved and second hole started in same vicinity.

NEWBEC

Newbec reported to have 17½ feet of better than 10 per cent. copper ore on 250 foot level on which drifting is now proceeding. This is better than on the upper 125 foot level and in some ways looks like a different ore body. Management believe that they can get upward extension on 70 foot level by a crosscut to south. Crosscut south on 125 foot level after it had passed through high grade was turned and south wall was drifted on to east. This kept in ore. Machines were put back to turn and crosscut continued to south and after a few rounds drills broke again into good grade ore. There are evidently several lenses of ore in vicinity of porphyry contact.

TECK HUGHES

Teck Hughes on twentieth level have reached main ore zone. Are not yet through the vein, says Northern engineering service. At present appears to be same ore as encountered on upper levels.

SYLVANITE

Sylvanite have started new shaft north of Wright Hargreaves property.

LAKE SHORE

Official plans call for an increase in Lake Shore's mill equipment sufficient to handle 2,000 tons daily, and it is anticipated that this average will be handled in 1930. Development of mine goes on apace. Arrangements being carried out with a view to economically supplying 2,000 tons daily. Sections as wide as 60 feet of high grade ore have been blocked out on 1600 foot level, some of which is described as jewellery. Mill treating around 1,200 tons daily.

HOWEY

HOWEY WRIGHT-HARGREAVES

Mill treating approximately 325 tons daily at Wright Hargreaves. Selective mining being employed to raise value of mill feed. No. 1 shaft now 176 feet below 2,000 foot level as forerunner of intensive program of development. Rumors are to effect that upon complete management of Wright-Hargreaves being taken over by Maurice Summerhayes on June 1, mine will witness the greatest development program in its history.

BARRY-HOLLINGER

Operating five drills, two shifts daily. Crosscutting and drifting on 500 foot level; drifting on ore on 750 foot and 1375 foot levels; raising on ore 1250 ft. level and 1125 ft. level; crrosscutting to vein on 1500 ft. level; milling 50 tons daily. This is Barry Hollinger's present effort. Major development of importance is cutting of syenite porphyry to west on 500 foot level. This is first appearance of this favorable rock to any extent in mine.

AMITY

Amity Copper is drifting with one shift daily towards ore on 475 ft. level. Drifting on ore one shift daily on 600. Results on 600 do not equal splendid showing on 350 level but do indicate appeciable lengths of commercial copper ore of concentrating grade. Development on 600 ft. are considered favorable by management. A station, suitable for installing a diamond drill, has been cut on 600 ft. level from which drilling of several long flat holes into hitherto unexplored ground will be accomplished. This work will result in cheap exploration of a large block of virgin ground without interfering with normal development of section now being opened up by actual mining operations.

NET EARNINGS AT NEW RECORD

164 Per Cent. Increase For Twenty-nine Companies in Ten Years.

RETURN OF 8.62 PER CENT.

(Special to The Examiner.)

NEW YORK, May 28. — The balance sheets of 29 Standard Oil Companies, as of December 31, 1928, show tota lassets of $5,025,794,277, compared with $4,700,000,000 at the end of 1927, and with $1,900,000,000 at the end of 1918. The survey was completed with the recent issuance of the annual report of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, which was the parent company of the Standard Oil group before the dissolution in 1911.

The record of growth of the various units comprising the Standard Oil group is probably without a parallel in American industrial history. The assets of the companies at the end of 1928 represented an increase of 164 per cent. in the last ten years. Accumulated undivided surplus at the close of 1928 was $1,621,271,665, compared with approximately $1,370,000,000 at the end of 1927, and $991,000,000 at the end of 1927, and $991,000,000 on December 31, 1918.

Net earnings of the twenty-nine companies in 1928 established a new high record, amounting to $433,546,865, compared with $220,000,000 in 1927 and $193,000,000 in 1928.

It is reasonable to expect that 1928 earnings should be much higher than those reported for 1918, owing to the vast expansions in all departments of the oil industry and the larger amount of capital invested in these companies at the present time. Even taking this factor into consideration the net profit earned on the total assets of these companies make a favorable showing when consideration is given to the low prices prevailing for crude and refined oils in 1928.

The twenty-nine companies earned a net return of 8.62 per cent. on their total assets of more than $5,000,000,000 in 1928, compared with a net return of ten per cent. on assets of $1,900,000,000 in 1918. The latter year witnessed the close of the World War when petroleum prices were much higher in comparison with the average prevailing in 1928.

During the ten year period the Standard Oil companies paid out a total of $1,320,848,814 in cash dividends. Stock dividend distributions during the period had a market value of $2,030,114,684, making a total of $3,350,963,398. Cash dividends paid by twenty-eight of the companies in 1928 totalled more than $197,000,000,, the largest amount for any one year. This compares with $189,000,000 in 1927, and $105,000,000 in 1918.

LOWER RECORDS CHICAGO MARKET

July Wheat Drops To Below $1.00 Bushel in Active Trading.

CHICAGO, Ills., May 27. (C.P.) — With offerings free and only moderate buying, wheat, corn and oats all outdid previous low record prices today in early dealings. July wheat, in which the trading was most active, dropped to below $1 a bushel, rivaling yesterday's performance of the May delivery. Further rains in Canada and bigger downturns in Liverpool wheat quotations than had been anticipated, were depressing factors.

Opening unchanged to 1 1-4c off Chicago wheat later underwent a further setback. Corn started 1-8c to 7-8c lower, rallied, and then fell again. Oats were irregular. Provisions tended downward.

Mail Order House To Sell Motor Cars Through The Medium Of a Catalogue

News despatches from Chicago to the effect that one of the big mail order houses is planning to place on the market a low-priced automobile, have created considerable interest in auto trade circles, both in the States and in Canada.

While it had not been ascertained definitely which of the houses was understood to be behind the move latest information available is to the effect that Sears-Roebuck is the firm that has the new development under consideration. It is stated that the new car will sell for $500 in the United States, and the company plans to distribute it directly to the public through its mail order catalogue. In this way, large reductions in selling expenses will be eliminated through the saving of agents' commissions and other overhead charges, which will be utilized in turning out a low-priced car embodying many features of cars selling at much higher prices.

The story as yet lacks official confirmation, but it is stated in some quarters that plans have progressed to a point where the company is said to be prepared to start in with a production of 1,000c ars daily.

NEWBEC LEADS DULL SESSION ON STANDARD

Number of "Key" Stocks Present Stronger Appearance At Noon Hour Quotations.

DOWNWARD SESSION.

Lower-Priced Stocks Heavy Sufferers—Oil Section Slumps.

TORONTO, Ont., May 28 (C.P.).—Prices continued to move steadily downward on the local mining market to-day, though at the noon-hour a number of the "key" stocks presented a much stronger appearance than earlier in the session. Noranda was one of these and after hitting a low of 48.50, held at 48.75, off 75 cents. Trading was not overly active, and was again largely supplied by Newbec which dropped a further 5 points to 71. Lake Shore was off 50 to 23.00 while Falconbridge at 11.75 showed a net loss of 75 cents. Sudbury Basin dropped an additional 45 cents to 7.80 and Ventures dipped 65 cents to 8.50.

Lower-priced stocks were heavy sufferers in the downward swing, Abana slumping 13 cents to 1.52, Vipond 9 to 85, Premier 6 to 1.59, Big Missouri 7 to 1.35, and Amulet 9 to 1.21.

The oils at one time appeared quite strong but weakened toward the noon hour when Foothills indicated a net loss of 50 cents at 8.00, Mayland 60 at 9.50, and Dalhousie 15 at 4.45. Home was an exception and moved up 75 cents to 23.50.

They are enforced July 1. Female employees in wholesale houses and warehouses are also to be included with office workers and orders governing them.

Females operating elevators, under this Act, are to have a two weeks' learning period, during which no minimum wage rate is enforced.

After the expiration of the learning period, they are to be paid $12.50 a week in Toronto, $12.00 in cities of 30,000 or more, excepting Toronto; $11.00 in cities and towns having 10,000 population or more and less than thirty thousand; $10.00 in cities and towns having 4,000 and less than 10,000; $9.00 in towns and villages of 1,000 and more than 4,000, and $8.00 throughout the rest of the province.

Into Force July 1.

Commencing July 1, new regulations come into force covering female employees in factories, canning, packing and evaporating fruits and vegetables, which operate seasonally. They govern those over eighteen and less than sixty years of age, in Toronto 25 cents an hour, 23 cents in cities of 30,000 or more excepting Toronto; 22 cents in cities and towns having 5,000 and less than 30,000; 20 cents in towns and village of 2,000 and more than 5,000; 18 cents through out the rest of the province. If less than sixty per cent. receive wages at these rates, they shall apply to all pieceworkers. Lodging shall not be charged for in excess of $1.50 per week, nor board in excess of $4.50 per week, nor single meals in excess of 25 cents per meal.

ISSUES SOAR UNDER STRONG BUYING SUPPORT

Industrial and Railroad Leaders Advance During Early Morning Session.

CALL MONEY UNCHANGED.

Believed Recent Liquidation Has Obviated Possibility of "Money Pinch."

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 28.— (By Stanley W. Prenosil, Associated Press Financial Editor.)—The story of selling which has been sweeping through the stock market for the past week appeared to have run its course at least temporarily, to-day, and prices rebounded in brisk fashion under the influence of strong buying support. A few weak spots cropped out here and there, presumably in reflection of the closing out of weakened marginal accounts, but most of the industrial and railroad leaders met strong support from the outset of the market.

Call money renewed unchanged at 6 per cent. and appeared to be in fairly plentiful supply at that figure. Recent liquidation undoubtedly has released a large volume of credit and probably obviated the possibility of a sharp "money pinch" at the end of the month. Barring any sharp revival of bullish activity within the next two days, Wall street expects a sizeable reduction in brokers' loans this week, preliminary estimates ranging from $100,000,000 to $300,000,000.

OIL SECTION WEAKER.

TORONTO, Ont., May 28. (C.P.) — Despite a cessation in the heavy selling which marked yesterday's session, prices continued to drift downward on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. Losses, however, were not generally so pronounced, though Goodyear Tire slumped 15 points to 325, and city dairy suffered an additional loss of 6 points to 61. Trading, with the exception of International Nickel, was very backward. Nickel ,after starting weakly at 43 1-2, got up as high as 45 1-2, with the noon quotation at 44 5-8, showing a fractional increase. Gypsum got up 1 1-2 to 106 while a few shares of Abitibi came out 1 1-4 points higher at 41.

Oils were generally weaker with Foothills dipping 1.25 to 8.25, while McColl, International, Petroleum, and British American all showed point losses. Service Stations, Ltd., lost 1 1-2 to 65.

Massey-Harris held with a point loss at 55 and Ford was slightly weaker at 47, but Waterloo tumbled 2 1-4 points to 21. Single point losses were spread well over the balance of the list.

BARREN LANDS MAY BECOME RICH PARADISE

Government Plans to Move Vast Herds of Reindeer from Alaska.

BUFFALO FLOURISHES.

Sportsmen Being Lured From All Parts of Globe to North-West Territories.

(By James A. Cowan. Special to The Examiner. Copyright.)

EDMONTON, Alta., May 23. — Out into the "Barren Lands" of the North West Territories, last great paradise on the American Continent of the naturalist and big game hunter, preparations are being made for an inward trek of many thousands of reindeer.

Vast herds of caribou already roam the northern tunra and investigations made by the Canadian government show that there is ample room in the wide spaces between Great Bear Lake and Hudson Bay for additional enormous herds of reindeer. These will be brought by the overland route from Nome, Alaska under the care of the Porsild brothers, experts in reindeer farming.

Major D. L. McKeand, assistant director of the Northwest Territories, and Yukon Branch of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa, announces that the first invasion will start this year. Ultimately it is expected to reach large proportions and to mark the beginning of a new economic era for the natives of the near-Arctic.

The Indian in Canada is a ward of the Crown but the Eskimo of the Barren Lands, Major McKeand points out is a free and independent citizen. As such he must be cared for and the transplanted reindeer will bring him a permanent meat supply.

So far the Canadian government has had great success in its efforts to populate the northern wilds with animals. The buffalo, almost extinct a short time ago, is now flourishing. More than 6700 animals were carefully brought by water and land from the preserves at Wainwright, and turned loose in vast empty pastures. They have now settled down to a natural life, and as a result of interbreeding with the larger wood buffalo, a new and powerful race of far northern animals is growing up. So rapidly have they increased that there is a possibility of hunting permits being issued in the near future, which would allow sportsmen one buffalo each.

Unspoiled and untouched by civilization with its enormous herds of musk-ox, caribou and buffalo, as well as all sorts of fur-bearing animals, the Barren Lands are beginning to have an irresistible lure for the adventurer from all corners of the globe.

BAD SPOTS ON LINDSAY ROAD

Highway Not in Best of Condition Owing to Road Work Going Forward.

GRAVEL IN STRETCHES.

LINDSAY, May 28.—The official highway bulletin issued by the Department of Highways on Saturday stated among things that the Provincial highway between Lindsay and Peterborough was in good condition. It may have been a week ago, but anyone figuring on finding a highway in good shape for the whole route just now will be badly left. There is considerable gravel in stretches and on top of that the road near Omemee is being torn up, and then about seven miles this side of Peterborough a gang is at work cutting down a hill, making a very dangerous spot, particularly in wet weather. The rest of the way the road is in fair shape.
